At Baltimore, Lou Whitaker belted his 17th home run and drove in three runs to power Detroit. Frank Tanana, 7-7, scattered three hits over seven innings to collect his first victory at Baltimore since June, 1986. Tanana struck out five and walked none to outduel Pete Harnisch, 10-11.

Mariners 5, Athletics 2

At Seattle, Ken Griffey Sr. socked a three-run homer and Eric Hanson hurled a six-hitter to lead Seattle. Hanson, 14-9, pitched 8 2-3 innings, walking one and striking out 10, ending Oakland's seven-game winning streak. Keith Comstock got the final out for his second save. Athletics starter Bob Welch, 23-6, took the loss.

Angels 3, Twins 1

At Anahei, Calif. Dave Winfield had three hits and drove in a run to help Jim Abbott win his 10th game of the year, a 3-1 victory for California. Jim Abbott, 10-12, went 7 2-3 innings surrendering 11 hits and at least one hit in each of the eight innings he pitched. He walked two and struck out one and he did not allow a run until the seventh inning thanks to defensive help as the Angels turned three double plays behind him.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 11) UPI - Management and negotiators for the nine unions at the New York Post were set to conduct round-the-clock talks to save the troubled tabloid.

Post management opened its financial records to the accounting firm of Peat Marwick last weekend so the unions could verify publisher Peter Kalikow's claim that he is losing $27 million a year on the paper.

Kalikow has threatened to close down the newspaper Saturday if the unions do not make concessions that will help close the paper's financial gap.

''We have looked at the books and what the Post has told us about its losses is substantially true,'' said Geroge McDonald, president of the Allied Printing Trades Council which represents the unions, at a Monday press conference at the New York Newspaper Guild headquarters.

''But we have some questions and we have sent our accountants back to the Post to ask them. If the wrong answers come back, it could blow the talks out of the water.''

However, McDonald expressed confidence about negotiations, scheduled to begin Tuesday at the Sheraton Centre Hotel. Each union is expected to meet separately with Post negotiators and make concessions it deems necessary ''to save jobs for its members and their families and at the same time save the Post,'' he said.

''Every union is going to have to tighten up its belt to save the Post, it's that bad,'' McDonald said. ''They need relief or they will got out of business. We've only got five days. It could very well come to a cliffhanger.''

Theodore Kheel, a labor expert who is acting as union advisor, said it wasn't just a question of saving the Post but of finding a solution that will ''assure its future so it isn't just a matter of postponing the evil day.''

Kheel also has been involved with contract negotiations at one of the Post's main tabloid competitors, the Daily News, which is trying to obtain major contract concessions with its unions. Unionized workers at the News have been without a contract since March 30.

''New York needs its newspapers,'' Kheel said. ''It's already in danger of losing the Daily News, a newspaper that seems to have a death wish.''

Kalikow has said he expects the unions to make concessions totaling $17 to $20 million so he can continue to publish the 189-year-old Post, the nation's oldest continuously published daily newspaper.

''We've come to the conclusion that, in principle, we're going to try to give them the relief that they're asking,'' McDonald said, adding that the unions would demand employee stock ownership and seats on the Post's board in return for any concessions.

(SEPT. 11) UPI - Wet weather stalled over Texas for the second day Tuesday, leaving northern sections of the state drenched with 4 inches of rain in 24 hours, while the West remained warm and clear skies covered the East.

Thunderstorms passed from eastern Kansas into Missouri Tuesday, carrying strong rains and winds gusting to 45 mph.

The storms damaged trees and knocked down power lines when they hit Barton County in southwestern Missouri and area residents were warned of high winds and frequent lightning.

In Texas, where storms caused dozens of highway accidents Monday, a flash flood watch was in effect for parts of north Texas, including the cities of Tyler and Waco, as a large area of showers and thunderstorms stretched out into the south central part of the state.

Heavy rains caused by a nearly stationary upper level disturbance that dumped up to 4 inches of rains into the region over 24 hours could drop another 4 inches of water during the day Tuesday.

Mostly clear skies dominated from western Pennsylvania through the Northeast Tuesday, but patches of dense and patchy fog were reported in some valleys and rural areas.

Weak high pressure kept most of the South in unsettled weather, with scattered thunderstorms easing the 90-degree heat. Winds of 45 mph and half inch hail were reported at Duluth, Ga. and three-quarters of an inch of rain fell on Bovina, Miss.

Southern California suffered through another hot day Monday, where the mercury soared to 114 in Palm Springs. Downtown Los Angeles recorded 95 degrees, but it was above 100 in most of the inland suburbs.

The mercury climbed to a near-record 107 degrees in Las Vegas Monday, 10 degrees above normal. High pressure will keep the heat on for the next several days under clear skies.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein is offering free oil to the Third World. Iraq can NOT sell its crude because of the U-N sanctions. White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater calls the offer an act of desperation. He says the U-N embargo prevents Iraq from shipping oil, whether paid for or NOT.

Oil prices increased again yesterday. The price of U-S crude jumped more than one dollar a barrel, wiping out earlier losses. West Texas Intermediate crude closed in New York at 31 dollars 30 cents. The earlier decline was attributed to the lack of military action being decided on at the weekend summit meeting.

NASA engineers are recommending the space agency go ahead with its schedule for launching the shuttle Discovery around October 5th. The shuttle is to take the Ulysses probe into space. The date for Columbia's much-postponed flightstill is undecided. It could be announced today. September 17th or 18th is the target date.

At least six people were killed this morning by bomb explosions in a nightclub in Hong Kong. Police say three men overpowered a guard and tossed gasoline bombs into crowds of people. They escaped in a car. Police believe the attack was an act of revenge by one crime faction against another.

Turmoil is reported in the western African nation of Liberia. Liberian President Samuel Doe was reported killed by rebels. Two rival leaders both claim they are taking charge of the country. Witnesses told the British Broadcasting Corporation rebels on Bushrod Island put Doe's body on display.

MOSCOW (SEPT. 11) UPI - Secretary of State James Baker and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze met Tuesday to discuss the Persian Gulf crisis, disarmament and final details of German unification.

Baker arrived in Moscow Monday night from Brussels, where he briefed NATO allies on the Helsinki summit and asked for more help in the gulf. He is in Moscow for Wednesday's final ''two-plus-four'' negotiations on German unification.

Shevardnadze said Monday he was confident the final agreement between the four World War II victors - the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union - and East and West Germany could be signed Wednesday.

The Soviet foreign minister said before his talks with Baker Tuesday they planned to discuss the final details of the two-plus-four agreement as well as the gulf crisis and disarmament.

Asked about a comment by Baker Monday that a U.S.-Soviet agreement on troop levels in Europe was already outdated because of Soviet withdrawals from former East Bloc countries, Shevardnadze refused to say what he thought the new levels should be.

''This issue was discussed and figures were quoted'' at the Open Skies conference in Ottawa in February, Shevardnadze said. ''Maybe, it would be possible to leave them intact.''

The official Tass news agency, which carried the remarks, did not elaborate.

Shevardnadze also planned to meet foreign ministers from the other countries involved in the German unification talks prior to the official meeting Wednesday.

DUBLIN, GA (SEPT. 11) UPI - A Middle Georgia high school football coach has been suspended for three days without pay for making a player strip to his underwear and T-shirt on the practice field.

The Dublin Board of Education voted 5-3 Monday to impose the suspension against second-year coach Ben Snipes, whose team has an 0-2 mark this season.

Snipes will be allowed to return to the school, about 50 miles southeast of Macon, Friday

The incident occurred Aug. 15 during a summer camp involving Dublin players. Junior Anthony Kellam refused to participate in a drill, saying he had an injured knee.

Snipes then ordered the player to take off his uniform immediately or, ''He said ... the coaches would,'' according to Kellam's mother, Sarah Kellam.

Kellam undressed to his underwear and a T-shirt and was then ordered to walk back to the dormitory. But a booster club member intervened and drove Kellam home.

Kellam quit the team and has not returned to the squad.

The school board called the action ''unprofessional conduct'' and cited Snipes for ''failure to properly provide for the safety and well- being of the students places in his charge.''

Snipes was not available for comment.

Despite the action taken Monday against the coach, Sarah Kellam still believes Snipes should have been fired.

''I don't feel good at all,'' she said. ''It's not over.''

Nearly two weeks ago, Dublin Principal Norman Jarrard ordered Snipes to apologize in person to Kellam, his sister and his mother. However, no meeting took place.

Last season, the Georgia High School Association placed Dublin on ''severe warning'' and fined the school $1,000 for using an illegal volunteer coach who was not an employee of the school system.

PARIS (SEPT. 11) UPI - France is renting four ships to the United States to ferry American troops to the Persian Gulf, Foreign Minister Roland Dumas said Tuesday.

Dumas also told Radio Monte Carlo that ''France will make available ... several military airplanes'' to help ferry stranded refugees out of Jordan.

He said France was making ''a big effort'' to help the refugees, mostly foreign workers fleeing the region after Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion and subsequent annexation of Kuwait. Monday, an Air France jetliner started taking Bangladeshi refugees home from Jordan's capital Amman.

Asked about a U.S. request by allies to provide more assistance to the U.S.-led multinational force in the region, Dumas said, ''France has already responded positively, since we have given our accord to renting four ships allowing the transport of American troops in the zone.''

The French announcement came as Defense Minister Jean-Pierre Chevenement, accused of being too pro-Iraqi and insufficiently hawkish in the crisis, defended his policy saying, ''when you have to take responsibility for human lives, you have to think twice.''

''My idea of a responsible politician is that one must never jump into a void,'' Chevenement said in an interview with TF1-television Monday night. ''You have to keep your head on your shoulders.''

Chevenement's stance has been out of step with strident statements by Prime Minister Michel Rocard and Dumas.

President Francois Mitterrand personally endorsed Chevenement last week.

But political sources say the embattled defense minister may resign, not least because of his jockeying for position on the left of the Socialist Party.

''Events of the last month show that good sense has prevailed and it is best for the French to have a defense minister with a certain sang-froid '' Chevenement said.

In an another development, France's hard-line Communist Party criticized the Soviet Union for not proposing ''political and peaceful solutions'' during the Helsinki summit with President Bush in Helsinki Sunday.

''Our fears and disappointments are unfortunately confirmed by the proposals of Mr. Baker indicating that the common declaration does not exclude the use of force,'' said Maxime Gremetz, a member of the French Communists' Politburo.

Genscher was to meet with his East German, British, French, Soviet and U.S. counterparts for what is expected to be the last round of negotiations known as the two-plus-four talks on the external aspects of German unification.

The foreign ministers of the two Germanys and the four World War II victorious powers are widely expected to sign an agreement, giving the final go-ahead for Oct. 3 unification.

Genscher left Bonn Tuesday with Koehler. Genscher and his Soviet counterpart, Eduard Shevardnadze said they were confident the agreement will be signed Wednesday at the formal session of the talks in Moscow, the fourth ministerial session in the two-plus-four process, which was devised in February.

A series of bilateral meetings were planned Tuesday, in advance of the formal negotiations.

The major hurdle toward agreement on external aspects of unification was cleared when Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev dropped his objections to a united Germany being a member of NATO.

During a meeting in the Soviet Union in July, Gorbachev and West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl also agreed no NATO troops will be stationed in East Germany until the withdrawal of Soviet forces ends in the next four years.

The agreement also entailed that no nuclear weapons would be deployed on East German territory.

But negotiations appeared to hit a snag last week when the Soviet Union asked for guarantees no dual-capable systems will be deployed on East German territory. Such systems are often armed with conventional weapons, but can also be used with nuclear missiles.

In closely linked talks, Soviet and West German authorities were negotiating the financial participation of a united Germany in the massive cost of withdrawing the 380,000 troops now stationed in East Germany.

Koehler was to discuss final details of the bilateral ''transition agreement,'' which officials in Bonn and Moscow said was almost ready to be signed.

President Bush gets a chance tonight to report on his summit with Soviet President Gorbachev, and to re-state the main reasons for U-S involvement in the Persian Gulf. He addresses a joint session of Congress in a speech that aides say will focus on points of U-S-Soviet agreement. Bush also is expected to lay out again the rationale for U-S intervention in the Gulf, in a bid to sustain popular support for the move. .

Secretary of State Baker asked NATO foreign ministers meeting in Brussels yesterday to step up sanctions against Iraq. He also wants NATO ground troops sent to the Persian Gulf to bolster the multi-national force being formed to counter Iraqi aggression. Baker is in Moscow and plans to fly to Syria Thursday for more talks on the Persian Gulf crisis. .

Washington has criticized Syria in the past for supporting terrorism. But Baker says President Bush asked him to go to Damascus because Syria's opposition to Iraq's invasion of Kuwait illustrates the isolation of Iraq's President Saddam Hussein.

(SEPT. 11) UPI - President Bush addresses Congress and the American people tonight on the Persian Gulf crisis. He will go beyond the statement he and Soviet President Gorbachev made at the end of their Helsinki summit conference on Sunday.

Iraq is offering to give oil to Third World nations. The White House calls the offer evidence of Baghdad's desperation. Presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater adds that even if it is free, the oil would violate U-N sanctions against Iraqi exports.

White House and congressional budget negotiators have missed their midnight deadlines for making tough decisions to reduce the deficit. They talked past then, but came up empty handed. An aide to a Democratic negotiator said- ''There are problems everywhere.'' Talks resume today.

Negotiators for nine unions are beginning round-the-clock talks today in an effort to save the New York Post. The newspaper's publisher threatens to close the 189-year-old daily paper on Saturday if the unions do NOT help reduce its financial losses.

Three teen-agers convicted of beating and raping a woman jogger in New York's Central Park will be sentenced today. They face maximum sentences of five to 10 years in prison. Three other defendants are to be tried later.

(SEPT. 11) UPI - Here is a roundup of the latest major events in the Persian Gulf crisis stemming from the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion of the oil-rich emirate of Kuwait.

Japan is reportedly considering sending up to 2,000 unarmed Japanese troops and civilians to the Middle East in non-combat roles. A Japanese Foreign Ministry spokesman refused to confirm the reports but said a ''hot discussion is going on'' within the government on the issue. Australia, meanwhile, says it will use force against ships breaking embargo and a British envoy is scheduled to travel from Baghdad to Kuwait to arrange the next mercy flight of hostages.

(WASHINGTON) - The United States calls Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's offer to supply the Third World with free oil a sign of desperation, while Secretary of State James Baker asks NATO countries to send ground troops to the Persian Gulf region. Baker also is asking the ministers to help Eastern European nations suffering as a result of the gulf crisis.

NEW YORK - President Bush drops longstanding U.S. opposition to Soviet involvement in Middle East peace efforts during his weekend meeting with President Mikhail Gorbachev. The New York Times quotes administration officials as saying Bush invited Moscow to play a greater diplomatic role in the region, and agreed to consider working with the Soviet Union on problems like the Arab-Israeli conflict.

WITH THE U.S FORCES IN SAUDI ARABIA - U.S. troops from the lowliest foot soldier to the highest ranking commander are pondering their roles in the Persian Gulf crisis. While protecting oil and international law are the basic reasons for the buildup of troops in Saudi Arabia, many U.S. personnel are wondering deeply whether it would be sweet and fitting to die in defense of such concepts.

(PARIS) - France is renting four ships to the United States to ferry American troops to the Persian Gulf. Foreign Minister Roland Dumas says France will make available several military airplanes to help ferry stranded refugees out of Jordan. France on Monday started taking Bangladeshi refugees home from Jordan's capital Amman.

WASHINGTON - A federal energy expert says U.S. refineries should be able to meet demand for gasoline and heating oil this year, but there may be ''localized shortages'' of motor fuel in the months ahead. The warning by Calvin Kent, head of the Energy Information Administration, reflects growing concern about the loss of refined products from Kuwait and Iraq.

BAGHDAD, Iraq - Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz flys home from Iran

NEW ORLEANS (SEPT. 11) UPI - Mike Cofer saved his best kick for the best moment, one that probably should never have happened.

Cofer hit on a 38-yard field goal with 12 seconds remaining Monday night to propel the San Francisco 49ers to a 13-12 victory over the New Orleans Saints.

That kick came after Cofer had missed three others from 47, 51 and 55 in the game, and after the Saints had blown three opportunities with less than 5 minutes remaining in the game to run out the clock while leading 12-10.

On each possession, the Saints could not muster a first down, giving the ball back to the Niners and giving Joe Montana another chance to pull out the win.

''I think if we had gotten a couple of first downs toward the end, we would have won the football game,'' said a dejected Saints Coach Jim Mora.

The bottom line, said Niners Coach George Seifert was that his team got the job done when it counted.

''The thing at the end of the ball game, our wide receivers and Joe came through as they've done so many times and somehow they got it done,'' said Seifert.

After stopping the Saints with 1:30 left, Montana, who had been sacked six times in the game, led San Francisco downfield with a patented heartstopping drive.

''We came from behind at the end,'' Montana said, ''and showed a little bit of character and pulled it. But I'm not happy with the way I played. I know that.''

On first down from the 49er 19, Montana connected with John Taylor for 25 yards to the 44. Three plays later, with 35 seconds remaining and facing a third-and-6 at his 48, Montana hit Roger Craig for 11 yards to the Saints 41. On the next play, the quarterback found a streaking Jerry Rice on a post pattern for a 20-yard gain that carried to the New Orleans 21.

''They had the intention of just taking me out of the ballgame,'' said Rice, who had only one other catch all night. ''But I just kept working all night long.''

Two plays after Rice's key catch, Cofer booted the game-winner.

Cofer said the game-winner was similar to one he had missed earlier.

''I felt it was going to get to the pole before it had a chance to get outside of it,'' Cofer said.

The Saints had held a 9-3 halftime lead, but that was quickly erased after the two teams traded turnovers at the beginning of the third quarter.

Montana led the Niners 80 yards in nine plays, capping the drive with a missed-direction toss on third down from the New Orleans 4 to Brent Jones, who was wide open in the endzone. The extra point gave San Francisco the 10-9 lead in the third quarter.

Morten Andersen had put the Saints up 12-10 midway through the fourth quarter when he hit on a 32-yard field goal.

San Francisco got its only points of the first half after Keith DeLong recovered a fumbled punt return by Bobby Morse at the New Orleans 32. Three plays later, Cofer connected on a 52-yard field goal, tying his personal best, to give the Niners the early 3-0 lead.

John Fourcade connected with Brett Perriman on a 24-yard completion and Eric Martin for 18 yards, to help move New Orleans to the San Francisco 26. The drive bogged down from there, and Andersen connected on a 41-yard field goal.

Early in the second quarter, San Francisco faced a third and 2 at their 18 when a Montana pass was tipped by New Orleans linebacker Vaughan Johnson into the hands of defensive back Toi Cook.

The 49ers stiffened, and Andersen hit on a 39-yard field goal for the 6-3 New Orleans lead.

The Saints got a field late in the first half when Fourcade went 4- for-4 for 49 yards on a drive that consumed just 1:25. Andersen hit his third field goal of the half, this one from 28 yards out with 3 seconds remaining, to give the Saints the 9-3 lead.

Motana finished the game 26-of-43 for 184 yards while Fourcade was 12-of-34 for 180 yards.

Andersen's 4-for-4 field goal performance moved him back into first place on the all-time kicking accuracy list, with a 77.43 percentage, compared to 77.40 for Nick Lowery of Kansas City.

NEW CANAAN, CT (SEPT. 11) UPI - Volunteers visited refugee camps in Jordan Tuesday to help plan two more airlifts of medicines and supplies for tens of thousands of people who fled the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, relief workers said.

AmeriCares, a private foundation which shipped 70,000 pounds of supplies to Jordan last weekend, said it had chartered cargo jets and would make additional flights to Jordan Thursday and Saturday.

Scheduled to leave Bradley International Airport in Windsor Locks, the airlifts will help ease ''horrendous'' conditions with donated supplies gathered by the non-profit group, officials said.

Last weekend's airlift ''went beautifully,'' although AmeriCares officials who made the trip to Amman, Jordan, had encountered bureaucratic problems in getting the supplies distributed, said spokesman Steve Norman.

The supplies that left Bradley on Saturday were valued at about $1 million and included food, medicines, water, blankets and materials to build shelters.

The non-profit foundation shipped the supplies to aid the tens of thousands of refugees who have fled into camps along Jordan's border since the Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

AmeriCares also has airlifted supplies to earthquake victims in Iran and the Philippines this year, while aiding past quake victims in Armenia, Mexico and El Salvador.

The foundation completed the first airlifts to Romania following the revolution to deliver medicines to hospitals where pediatric AIDS patients were being treated.

Each airlift costs between $200,000 and $250,000, and AmeriCares made four to Iran and three to the Philippines earlier this year, Norman said.

Since it was founded in 1982, AmeriCares estimates it has shipped $365 million worth of medicines and other supplies to people in need in a total of 53 countries.

PHILADELPHIA (SEPT. 11) UPI - The city, desparate to find backers for $375 million in loans needed to stave off bankruptcy, has received a partial vote of confidence from a Swiss bank.

Swiss Bank Corp. Monday agreed to back $50 million worth of the notes, far short of the needs of Mayor Wilson Goode's administration.

City officials and their financial management team, headed by Merrill Lynch Capital Markets, are trying to persuade two other banks to guarantee additional notes, The Philadelphia Inquirer reported Tuesday.

The city's dire financial situation has scared away bankers. City officials have said the city can last no later than January without the cash infusion.

A consortium of foreign banks backed out of a deal after the city failed to find local banks willing to participate.

''We cannot reconcile the associated risk with our bank's ongoing responsibilities to stockholders and other important constituencies,'' said the Reading, Pa-based Meridian Bank, the only one of four local banks to comment publicly.

The lack of guarantors has forced City Hall to trim the note sale from the originally proposed $450 million down to $375 million. The sale itself has also been postponed several times but is expected to take place this week.

The loans are needed to cover the shortfall in revenue until business and property taxes pour in next year. The city has projected a $206 million budget deficit for the current fiscal year which ends next June.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 11) UPI - American Airlines President Robert Crandall says failure to win the right to fly lucrative Chicago-to-Tokyo and Los Angeles-to-Tokyo air routes will doom his company to a minor role in the Pacific air market.

''Life would go on,'' Crandall said Monday after he argued American's case before the Department of Transportation in Washington.

''But the fact of the matter is if we don't get the Chicago-Tokyo and L.A.-Tokyo routes the American would be relegated for most of the decade of the '90s to being a niche carrier in the Pacific.''

Deputy Assistant Transportation Secretary Patrick Murphy will decide whether to go along with an administrative law judge's recommendation that United Airlines be awarded the Chicago route and Delta Air Lines get the Los Angeles route.

During the hearing, Crandall criticized a recommendation that American be awarded only one of the six routes it is seeking between the United States and Japan. The department's public counsel earlier had recommended American get the Chicago route.

Crandall also repeated American's assertions that administrative law judge John Mathias had yielded to political pressure from Illinois officials who backed United, which is based in Chicago.

''In establishing this case, the department said it intended to maximize competition and to award new authority to carriers which have limited rights to Japan,'' Crandall said. ''There is no competitive rationale whatsoever for giving United rights to fly from Chicago. In fact, doing so will clearly reduce competition.''

American, based in Fort Worth, Texas, is waging a fierce battle for a market share at Chicago's O'Hare Airport, United's home field, where both airlines maintain hubs.

Crandall testified that United already operates 79 round-trip flights between the United States and Tokyo each week and has the authority to fly another 35 round trips.

Giving United six of the 18 trips now under consideration runs counter to the government's stated goal of increasing competition in the airline industry, he said.

Should American fail to win either the Chicago or Los Angeles routes, the carrier probably would continue its expansion plans on routes to Europe and Latin America, Crandall said.

Representatives of United and Delta Monday urged Murphy to follow Mathias's recommendations.

Joel Burton, an attorney for United, said the decision in favor of United would reduce intergateway competition between Chicago and Dallas- Fort Worth Airport, where American currently operates its only service to Tokyo.

Burton also criticized American's performance on the DFW-to-Tokyo run, noting that American has to cancel its daily flight when one of its two Boeing 747SP aircraft is grounded for maintenance.

Delta attorney James Weiss made the same point in arguing that American should not be given the Los Angeles-Tokyo route.

He said giving Delta the route would be the best way to help the United States gain a bigger share of the huge L.A.-to-Tokyo traffic. Japanese airlines now carry about 75 percent of the passengers on that route.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 11) UPI - The nation's current account deficit - a broad measure of trade in goods, services and investments - edged up 0.8 percent to $21.84 billion in the second quarter of 1990, the Commerce Department said Tuesday.

Private analysts expected a slightly smaller increase.

In the first quarter of the year, the current account deficit stood at a revised $21.67 billion, according to statistics compiled by the department's Bureau of Economic Analysis.

The first quarter figure was the lowest for the current account deficit since a shortfall of $21.30 billion during the first quarter of 1985, a Commerce Department spokesman said.

For the first six months of the year, the deficit was running at an estimated $43.5 billion, the lowest shortfall since the fourth quarter of 1983 and the first quarter of 1984, the spokesman added.

''In the second quarter, a further decrease in the merchandise trade deficit was more than offset by a shift to a deficit on investment income and an increase in net unilateral transfers,'' the government said.

Net unilateral transfer is the movement of a wide variety of assets overseas, from U.S. government grants to money sent to relatives living abroad.

The Commerce Department said the merchandise trade deficit decreased to $22.58 billion in the second quarter from $26,28 billion in the first quarter, a drop of 14.1 percent.

The balance on services - a surplus - was virtually unchanged at $6 billion, while the balance on investment income slipped to a deficit of $637 million from a surplus of nearly $2 billion, the department said.

Direct investment in the United States by foreigners edged down from $5.54 billion in the first quarter to $5 billion in the second quarter, a decline of nearly 9.6 percent, the government said.

All the figures in the report were adjusted to reflect seasonal factors.

KATY, TX (SEPT. 11) UPI - An abandoned newborn baby girl who lay by the side of a rural road for 12 hours covered with fire ants in a plastic bag was recovering in a hospital Tuesday, a day after she was found.

The infant was discovered Monday after her 19-year-old mother told police she had given birth and left the child along a Waller County road. The 6-pound, 12-ounce baby was found 12 hours later, covered with fireants in a plastic bag, authorities said.

The child survived in part because ''there was a periodic rain, and it was a cloud-covered day,'' said San Felipe Police Chief Clyde Grimet. ''I guess God meant it to be that way.''

The infant was in fair condition at Katy Community Hospital. The mother, whose name has not been released, also was admitted to the hospital for observation.

Grimet said an Austin County deputy noticed the woman about 7 a.m. at Stephen F. Austin State Park and spotted blood on the outside of her car.

Inside the car, he found more blood and the afterbirth. The deputy called for an ambulance and the woman was taken to the hospital, where her story began to unfold.

''We didn't even know there was a baby until we took the afterbirth to the doctor. We just thought there was a miscarriage,'' Grimet said.

The baby was found after an extensive search and was taken to the hospital ''kicking, screaming and hollering,'' he said.

''She didn't know what to do,'' Grimet said of the mother, who he described as confused. ''She gave birth to the child in Waller County, left the baby there, then drove to the bridge where the deputy spotted her.

''She maintained that there was no sign of life. She said she just found the bag on the side of the road and put her in it. Fortunately, she didn't seal the bag, or she just didn't have any method to seal the bag up.''

''The deputy and the police department were just elated at the fact the baby was still alive,'' she said. ''The enthusiasm has gone through the hospital.''

It was unknown whether the mother would face charges in the case.

DENVER (SEPT. 11) UPI - The Office of Thrift Supervision has rejected arguments by the president's son, Neil Bush, that he cannot be disciplined for his activities as a director of the failed Silverado Banking savings and loan.

''Bush is perfectly capable of becoming a director at another institution and repeating his misconduct there,'' the agency said in a motion filed Monday.

The OTS is seeking to ban Bush, a Denver oilman, from future activities at any federally-insured financial institution. A public hearing is scheduled in Denver Sept. 25.

Silverado was seized by federal regulators in December 1988 and its bailout is expected to cost taxpayers $1 billion. Bush was a director of the thrift from 1985 until he resigned in August of 1988.

Federal regulators have accused Bush of conflict of interest in dealings with former Denver developers Ken Good and Bill Walters, who were major Silverado borrowers. Regulators allege Bush failed to disclose to other board members that Good and Walters were investors in Bush's oil firm.

Also, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. has considered filing a negligence lawsuit against Bush and other former Silverado directors.

Bush's lawyers argued earlier that the government's case should be dismissed because Bush was no longer a director of the thrift. The cease-and-desist order would be meaningless since Bush could no longer effect the future of Silverado, his lawyers said.

The government's reply, filed before administrative Judge Daniel Davidson, said Bush still could become a director of another thrift.

''The reasons that moved a $2 billion institution to invite the then-30-year-old bush, who had no experience in depository institutions, to become a director are even more forceful today,'' the OTS said.

TORONTO (SEPT. 11) UPI - Campeau Corp. said Tuesday that its creditor Edward J. DeBartolo Corp. agreed to extend to Sept. 18 a notice arrangement that gives DeBartolo the right to exercise remedies against Campeau as a result of a defaulted loan to the troubled real estate and retail company.

The extension was at least the eighth since the arrangement was made public in May. The previous extension expired Monday.

The arrangement requires DeBartolo to give nine days notice to Campeau before taking action against certain collateral, including California-based Ralphs Grocery Co., pledged for an earlier $480 million loan.

The loan was provided by DeBartolo to Campeau's United States holding company and was guaranteed by Campeau. The loan was made several years ago when Campeau took over retailer Federated Department Stores Inc.

Payments on the loan were halted in early March and soon afterwards, Campeau's U.S. holding company, Federated Stores Inc., filed for Chapter 11 reorganization. Earlier, FSI's two retailing subsidiaries, Federated and Allied Stores Corp., also made Chapter 11 filings.

Campeau has been trying to negotiate long-term standstill agreements with DeBartolo and its other key lender, Olympia & York Developments Ltd., for several months. Two similar notice arrangements with Olympia & York subsidiaries remain in effect, Campeau said.

OMAK, WA (SEPT. 11) UPI - The test flight of a new type of helium balloon that four adventurers hope to take on an historic trip around the globe ended about 2,000 miles short of its destination, but was still called a success.

Larry Newman, organizer of the effort and captain of the crew, said the 2-day flight that ended near Omak, Washington Monday was ''flawless.''

He said he never planned to land his Earthwinds balloon in Wisconsin and only had told the Federal Aviation Administration weather patterns might carry them that far.

Newman's unique system, which employs a helium balloon above the cockpit and one filled with pressurized air below as ballast, soared aloft Saturday night from a World War II blimp hangar at Tillamook on the Oregon coast.

The crew initially hoped to land the test craft as far east of the Rocky Mountains as it could journey in two days. But a changing wind current turned the craft northward and Newman finally decided to land Monday morning near Omak.

Newman, a member of the first crews to cross the Atlantic and Pacific in helium balloons, said he was satisfied with the test, adding that he only wanted to make sure the balloon would stay aloft for at least two days.

''This balloon could have easily flown across the Atlantic, the continent and the Pacific all in one flight,'' Newman said.

The big trip is slated for November, with Newman, the leader of the group, and crew members from England and the Soviet Union taking off from Akron, Ohio and riding the jet stream at 35,000 feet elevation. If successful, it will mark the first time anyone has piloted a helium balloon around the world.

For the round-the-world trip, Newman said he will use a helium balloon 10 times larger than the one used for the test. The larger balloon will hold about 1 million cubic feet of helium.

BONN, WEST GERMANY (SEPT. 11) UPI - East Germany's three outdated nuclear plants have been closed indefinitely for security inspections that will be completed after German unification, West German Environment Minister Klaus Toepfer said Tuesday.

Toepfer said he did not expect the plants will ever operate again.

''Speculations about the chances for refueling or restarting the reactors have no basis,'' Toepfer said at a news conference, adding current operating licenses are unlikely to be renewed after they expire in 1992.

He said it did not seem likely the outdated reactors at the Greifswald, Stendal and Rheinsberg plants would satisfy international safety standards set by the European Atomic Organization.

After German unification on October 3, ownership of the three Soviet-designed nuclear plants will transfer to the government of the Federal Republic of Germany - now still West Germany.

The Environment and Finance ministries will be responsible for completing the inspections.

Previous surveys showed the East German nuclear power plants represented a major security risk. Greifswald has been plagued by hundreds of minor incidents and breakdowns since it was built in 1974, including a major fire not reported until after the fall 1989 ouster of the East German Communist leadership.

The nuclear plants provide 10 percent of East Germany's energy needs. Toepfer said a $32 million, oil-based plant is being designed to replace the Greifswald nuclear facility.

''Every facility has already been or soon will be shut down as a precaution,'' Toepfer said.

BEIJING (SEPT. 11) UPI - Iraq Tuesday attacked moves to oust its athletes from the Asian Games, accusing its Arab foes of bribery and hinting that Iraq might try to undermine the sponsoring Olympic Council of Asia.

Iraqi Embassy counselor Kais al Yacoubi claimed the OCA's executive bureau knuckled under to U.S. pressure when it recommended at an ''illegal meeting'' last weekend that Iraq be suspended from the OCA and the Asian Games, which open Sept. 22.

''This is part of an attempt by very well-known circles to punish Iraq'' for its military conquest of neighboring Kuwait, Yacoubi told reporters summoned to Iraq's embassy.

The Iraqi diplomat identified the ''well-known circles'' only as countries that supported the U.N. Security Council embargo of Iraq. The move was spearheaded by the United States and backed by most of Iraq's neighbors in the Persian Gulf.

The 11-member OCA executive bureau held an emergency meeting in Beijing Saturday night and recommended unanimously that Iraq be suspended from the Asian Games until ''normal Olympic movement'' is possible in Kuwait, where the OCA had maintained its headquarters.

The executive bureau scheduled a Sept. 20 meeting of the OCA general assembly at which the issue of Iraq's participation in the Asian Games will be put to a vote. The games open two days later.

Yacoubi asserted that gulf countries were bribing OCA members to vote against Iraq, but declined to specify which nations and offered no evidence to support his claim.

''Bribery is now going on on the level of whole Olympic committees,'' said Yacoubi, seated beneath a large portrait of Iraqi President Saddam Hussein. ''Unfortunately they are paying very big ''fortunately Yacoubi repeatedly said Iraq has ''other options'' to derail its ouster from the games and possibly to attack the OCA itself, but refused to describe them.

''We haven't declared anything,'' he said. ''We are not in the process of trying to cause any harm to the Olympic Committee but we still have all kinds of options.''

Yacoubi assailed the executive bureau meeting, saying OCA General Secretary C.L. Mehta violated the OCA constitution by allowing the participation of Kuwaiti Sheikh Ahmad Fahad al Sabah, the son of OCA President Sheikh Fahad al Ahmad al Sabah.

Fahad was slain by Iraqi troops in the invasion of Kuwait and his son assumed his seat at the OCA meeting.

Yacoubi also disputed Mehta's assertion that Iraq can be barred from the OCA and the Asian Games by a simple majority of the general assembly, saying OCA rules mandate a two-thirds majority.

The Iraqi diplomat stopped short of saying Iraq would prevail in such a vote, saying only that Baghdad expects broad support. Yacoubi declined to say how many OCA members pledged to back Iraq's participation in the Asian Games.

''We have assurances from certain OCA members that they support Iraq,'' he said. ''It will be clear on the day of the voting.''

Yacoubi made it clear that members of eight Kuwaiti teams still in Kuwait will not be permitted to compete in the Asian Games under the Kuwaiti flag saying they now are Iraqi citizens from ''Kuwait province'' and cannot leave without exit visas.

''If they want to take part in the Iraqi team, then this is something else '' he added.

Five Kuwaiti teams were outside Kuwait during the Aug. 2 invasion and China has said they will compete in the Asian Games.

Police in Charlotte, North Carolina, say a 35-year-old man apparently angry over a failed marriage killed a construction worker, his ex-wife and a friend of hers before turning his gun on himself yesterday. Police say Joseph Ray Belk Junior was described by his father as- quoting now- ''just a dumb old boy so madly in love with a woman you couldn't tell him anything.'' The younger Belk was divorced from his wife Gina less than one year ago.

The heaviest two-day rain in 40 years flooded areas of Seoul and adjacent provinces in South Korea. Authorities say the downpours are expected to continue into tomorrow. They say 32 people are confirmed dead in the storms, with 11 others listed as missing since the rain began late Sunday. Disaster relief officials say at least 18-thousand people have been driven from their homes. Officials say that between 12 and 20 inches of rain have fallen since early yesterday.

CHICAGO (SEPT. 11) UPI - Corn and soybean futures were supported by follow- through buying and the weekly crop report, but wheat prices were lower at midmorning Tuesday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Monday's rally in corn and soybeans carried over into the early trading, although the overall volume was light. The Agriculture Department reported some deterioration in the condition of the crops during the past week, and their development continued behind normal.

Traders were squaring their positions in advance of the September crop report coming out Wednesday. Overnight rain in the Delta and forecasts for more rain the rest of the week limited the gains in soybeans.

Corn was fractionally higher with commission houses on both sides of the market.

Wheat turned lower on steady selling activity, but had underlying support from the sale of 99,000 tons to Egypt.

Basis levels generally were mostly steady and country movement was light.

The midmorning prices:

Corn Sep 2.39 3/4 up 1/4; Dec 2.35 up 3/4; Mar 2.44 1/4 up 1/2.

Soybeans Sep 6.22 up 2 1/2; Nov 6.35 1/2 up 3 1/4; Jan 6.49 1/4 up 3 1/2; Mar 6.61 3/4 up 3 1/4.

Wheat Sep 2.65 1/2 off 2 1/4; Dec 2.82 off 1 1/2; Mar 2.94 1/4 off 3/4.

Oats Sep 1.09 up 1 3/4; Dec 1.18 1/4 up 1; Mar 1.29 1/4 up 3/4.

BONN, WEST GERMANY (SEPT. 11) UPI - Eight members of West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl's conservative party started legal action in a bid to prevent Germany from formally recognizing Poland's western border, officials said Tuesday.

The eight Christian Democratic Union members want West Germany's constitutional court to request the removal from a treaty that unites East and West Germany of paragraphs that implicitly recognize Germany's loss of its former eastern territories, ceded to Poland after World War II.

Legal experts believe that the suit is unlikely to succeed but that it could delay ratification of the treaty.

The unification treaty, signed by the two German governments, is due for parliamentary ratification in Bonn and East Berlin later this month.

The treaty includes a new preamble to the German constitution that is based on West Germany's basic law.

By stating that unification will be complete when East and West Germany merge on Oct. 3, the preamble recognizes the loss of the former German territories to the east of what is now East Germany.

''We feel we are being gravely restricted in our rights as individual deputies by the fact that the unification treaty - on which one can only vote with a yes or a no - contains fundamental changes of the constitution '' said Herbert Czaja, one of the plaintiffs.

Czaja heads the Bonn-based Expellees Federation, which claims to represent the interests of the millions of Germans - and their descendants - who were expelled from the eastern territories after Germany lost World War II.

Czaja earlier described the recognition of Germany's borders as an ''amputation.''

Kohl said he will ''calmly await the decision'' of the constitutional court.

Hans-Jochen Vogel, who heads the opposition Social Democratic Party, sharply criticized the eight CDU members for what he called ''a head-on attack against recognition of Poland's western border.''

MOSCOW (SEPT. 11) UPI - The world's largest pizza parlor chain opened its first restaurant in Moscow Tuesday with Muscovites waiting in five-hour lines for a meal.

Diners at the new Pizza Hut about a mile from the Kremlin, one of two opening in Moscow, said the food and the service were very good, but many added they would not return because of the long wait and high prices.

''My feelings are complicated after waiting five and a half hours to get in,'' said Andrei Kolosov as he finished off a pizza and soft drinks with four friends. ''I don't think it was worth it.''

Andy Rafalat, the deputy general director of the joint venture running the Pizza Huts in Moscow, said the company was considering departing from company tradition and using a reservation system because of the long lines.

''We really have to see how things work out,'' he said. ''We will change things as we see how to improve.''

Unlike the recently opened Moscow McDonalds, which can serve thousands of customers quickly, Pizza Hut is a sit-down full-service restaurant and can only cook 3,000 pizzas a day.

Most of the several hundred customers waiting in line outside said they came mostly out of curiosity and would not be willing to wait as long a second time.

''Besides the wait, it is not cheap,'' said Vadim Maximov as he neared the entrance after sharing a four-hour wait with friends. ''I came because it is the first time it is open. We will see.''

Others seemed more resigned to the queue.

''We are used to waiting in lines,'' one woman said. ''It's something of a national sport.''

The Pizza Huts are a joint venture between Pepsico, which owns the pizza chain, and the Moscow city council. Pizza Hut imported employees from all around the world to prepare for the opening and train Soviet staff, but eventually the restaurants will be ''run and staffed solely by enthusiastic Soviet citizens,'' Pepsico Chairman Donald Kendall said before the ribbon cutting.

''Today we hope to begin to revolutionize the food and restaurant industry by providing great tasting pizza and friendly service to the people of Moscow,'' Kendall said.

''This project has positive implications far beyond our two restaurants,'' Kendall said. ''By working together to strengthen the Soviet food netwoork and especially to train more Soviets in the production and transport of large quantities of food, we are taking a big step in improving the local economy and making more food of all kinds available to the families of Moscow.''

Monday, Pizza Hut opened its first restaurant in China, despite the fact Chinese are known to hate cheese. The opening was closed to all but invited guests, but many Chinese on the street said they would return to give pizza a try.

Pizza Hut had planned to open in China last year, but the plans were delayed after the Chinese crackdown on pro-democracy demonstrators in Beijing's Tiananmen Square.

BOSTON (SEPT. 11) UPI - Animal activists have asked a federal judge to prevent the New England Aquarium from transferring an aggressive male dolphin to a Navy facility in California for military training.

The group, the Citizens to End Animal Suffering and Exploitation, said Monday the transfer of the dolphin named Rainbow was illegal because neither the Aquarium nor the Navy had a required federal permit to keep the dolphin.

''Congress made it clear there was a complete prohibition against capturing marine mammals and set up strict rules for exceptions,'' said Scott VanValkenburg, a spokesman for CEASE. ''Those rules are not being followed.''

Rainbow was taken from the wild in 1983 by the Aquarium at Niagara Falls, N.Y., which had a proper permit, said Steven Wise, president of CEASE. However, he said Niagara Falls sent Rainbow to the New England Aquarium four years later without obtaining a permit.

It would therefore also be illegal for the aquarium to transfer Rainbow to the Navy without a federal permit, Wise said.

John Prescott, the executive director of the aquarium, said previously he is reviewing the decision to transfer Rainbow. Aquarium lawyers are reviewing the suit, a spokesperson said.

CEASE asked Judge Mark Wolf to issue a temporary restraining order against the transfer. He was expected to hear the case later this week.

The aquarium earlier said it wanted to transfer Rainbow because he had become too aggressive against the other two dolphins - a male and a female - that take part with him in a show at the facility on the Boston waterfront.

Rainbow, an 11-year-old bottlenose dolphin, was to be transferred to the Naval Ocean Systems Center in San Diego to apparently undergo military training.

Andrea Conley, a spokesperson for the aquarium, said the Navy has assured it that Rainbow ''will not be endangered in this program.''

The Navy's dolphin program has come under fire from animal activists, both on ethical and humane grounds.

(SEPT. 11) UPI - Four out of every five mothers with young children surveyed said they use disposable diapers, and most said they would not voluntarily switch to cloth diapers, a recent Gallup poll showed.

During June, Gallup surveyed by telephone a national sample of 803 mothers of children aged 3 and younger. The poll was conducted at the request of the Diaper Manufacturers Group of the New York-based American Paper Institute.

''What's important to mothers is a diaper that allows them to provide the best baby care possible,'' Scott Stewart, public relations director of Procter & Gamble and a member of the Diaper Manufacturers Group, said Tuesday during a telephone interview from New York.

The poll of mothers ''does bring up a voice that is pretty important but seldom heard from,'' he added.

Of those surveyed, 72 percent of the mothers said they use disposables most often, while 7 percent reported they use cloth and 8 percent use both cloth and disposable diapers.

The survey showed most mothers used disposables for health reasons, with 85 percent saying disposables prevent leakage, 83 percent saying disposables keep the baby's skin drier, 62 percent saying disposables help prevent the spread of germs and diseases, and 60 percent saying diaper rash is less frequent with disposables.

The majority of mothers surveyed said they were more willing to recycle newspapers and plastics, build a compost pile or join a car pool than they were to voluntarily switch from disposables to cloth diapers.

Upon questioning, 71 percent said they were very likely to recycle newspapers, 67 percent said they would be very likely to recycle plastics, 45 percent said they would be willing to build a backyard compost pile and 31 percent said they were extremely likely to take mass transit or car pool to work.

But only 24 percent said they would volunteer to switch to cloth diapers. Seventy-four percent reported they were very likely to support recycling and 69 percent said they were very likely to support composting disposable diapers.

Two industry-funded pilot projects are under way to test the feasibility of reclaiming the paper and plastic used in disposable diapers, Stewart said, adding researchers have found that 60 percent of the nation's total waste stream can be managed through municipal solid waste composting.

The margin of error for the poll is plus or minus 5 percentage points, Gallup executives said.

(SEPT. 11) UPI - Oil prices slipped in early trading Tuesday, in reaction to the prior day's ''mystery'' rally in which crude shot up more than a $1 a barrel in the final 10 minutes of trading on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

The Monday rally occurred about the same time as rumors surfaced that Iraqi forces were moving toward Jordan and Saudi Arabia. The State Department later denied there were troop movements.

Traders said they were unaware of the rumors until after the Merc closed at 3:10 p.m. EDT and were at a loss to explain the rally that saw prices zoom more than $2 in the last hour.

Prices were moving lower early Tuesday ''because we were up $1.60 a barrel in 10 minutes yesterday,'' said Richard Redoglia, vice president of Merrill Lynch Energy Futures Inc. in New York.

Asked if anyone had come up with an explanation of Monday's late rally, the trader replied, ''None of us can.''

Randall Rothenberg of Dean Witter Reynolds' Energy Futures Group in New York said the Merc Tuesday ''was down because of the denial of the rumors.''

Rothenberg said he hadn't heard the rumors until after the Merc closed, adding, ''Most people on the trading floor hadn't.''

On the Merc at midday, the benchmark West Texas Intermediate crude for October delivery was down 15 cents from Monday's close to $31.15 a barrel.

October-delivery unleaded gasoline had eased off 0.08 cent to 94.80 cents a gallon and October home heating oil was down 0.79 cent to 85.10 cents a gallon.

Overseas on the European spot market, where crude barrels are bought and sold for cash, Britain's North Sea Brent was down 17 cents to $30.93 a barrel.

The United Arab Emirates' Dubai light - the key OPEC crude from the Middle East shipped primarily to the Far East - was off 5 cents to $27.10 a barrel. On the U.S. Gulf Coast spot market, prompt-delivery WTI was quoted at $31.15 a barrel, a decline of 10 cents.

Sun Co., of Radnor, Pa., said raised its posted price for crude at the wellhead by $1.25 across the board to $29.75 a barrel for WTI, effective Monday.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 11) UPI - On Sunday, worshippers at St. John's Episcopal Church, just across Lafayette Square from the White House, will bow their heads and ask their God to ''save us from from weak resignation to violence'' and to ''hear, we beseech thee, our prayer for peace in the Middle East.''

The prayer of the faithful at St. John's - also known as the church of the presidents for its proximity to the White House and the string of national leaders who have worshipped there - will be echoed by tens of thousands of other American Christians, who will ask their Lord: ''Help us to love our enemies, not by countenacing their sins, but by remembering our own.''

And that prayer by Christians will mingle with the voices of countless other American Moslems and Jews on their holy days this weekend as they, too, lift up prayers in a unique plea for divine intervention on behalf of peace in the Middle East.

The three prayers are the work of the U.S. Interreligious Committee for Peace in the Middle East, a 3-year-old group of 1,200 Christian, Muslim and Jewish leaders who have labored together to encourage active U.S. involvement in bringing about a negotiated settlement of the Arab-Israeli-Palestinian conflict.

''We are Christians, Jews and Moslems who believe working together for peace is a fundamental moral imperative of our time,'' four leaders of the group said in a joint statement calling members of their faiths to prayer over the Sept. 14-16 weekend.

Signers of the statement were Al-Hajj Dawud Assad, president of the Council of Mosques, USA; Dale Bishop, director of the Middle East office of the National Council of Churches; the Rev. J. Bryan Hehir, counselor, U.S. Catholic Conference; and Rabbi Arthur Hertzberg, vice president of the World Jewish Congress.

''While at times religion appears to contribute to Middle East conflicts, we believe the deepest sources in our traditions provide inspiration and wisdom for resolution of these conflicts,'' the joint statement said.

Ron Young, executive director of the interreligious committee, said each of the three prayers was written by someone deeply immersed in the spiritual tradition of the particular faith.

And they are being widely circulated for use this weekend.

Young said, for example, the Council of Mosques has sent the prayer to 200 mosques and Islamic centers for their use. The National Council of Churches has sent it to the head of each of its 32 member communions as well as the heads of all state and local councils of churches for distribution.

Bishops and regional leaders of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) the Episcopal Church, the Evangelical Lutheran Church, the United Church of Christ, the United Methodist Church and the Presbyterian Church (USA) are also circulating the prayers and encouraging their use.

Among Jewish groups, the Union of American Hebrew Congregations has sent the prayer to Reform rabbis for use and Hertzberg has written a letter encouraging all Conservative rabbis to make use of the prayer. The Federation of Reconstructionist Synagogues has has also embraced it.

''What I found so moving in the prayers is that in each of the three, reaching down into the deepest resources of their faith, there is a spirit of which is very complementary.

In their statement encouraging participation in the weekend of prayer, the four religious leaders said: ''At this time of world crisis, when all of us are reminded that our human efforts for peace are inadequate, we are simply asking for your prayers and the prayers of your community.''

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 11) UPI - Chairman Joseph Biden, D-Del., said Tuesday Supreme Court nominee David Souter will have to provide the Senate Judiciary Committee with ''specific answers'' to a range of questions on constitutional issues, including abortion.

Despite exhaustive investigation by the committee staff, Biden said Souter's record provides ''more blank spaces than answers'' and leaves the Senate with ''almost total uncertainty'' about his judicial philosophy.

Biden said that examining Souter's views in depth and at length does not mean asking him ''how he will vote on a future case'' nor would the panel be looking for ''promises'' from President Bush's first nomination to the high court.

In a lengthy Senate speech, Biden said, ''There is nothing wrong with putting to Judge Souter some specific questions about constitutional issues, including religion, speech, civil rights and abortion and expect some rather specific answers.

''At this fateful moment in our history, we have a right to know and I believe a duty to discover precisely what David Hackett Souter thinks on the great constitutional issues of our time,'' Biden said. ''What is his thought process, how is ge going to arrive at decisions on the great constitutional issues of the day.''

He said the questions are neither a ''litmus test'' nor a ''check list'' of Souter.

Biden spoke in advance of Souter's confirmation hearings scheduled to begin Thursday. The panel chairman said he has made ''no judgement'' on the Souter nomination but added ''some questions have arisen in my mind.''

The issue of abortion, on which Souter does not have a clear record, has dominated discussion about the nomination with both sides apprehensive about the views of the conservative jurist from New Hampshire.

Neither his term as a member of the New Hampshire Supreme Court nor his brief stint at a member of the 1st U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals has given a picture of his position.

Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., in a speech that preceded Biden's, said Souter should not be judged on any one issue, including abortion. He said there are numerous critical issues facing the court, on any of which Souter could be the deciding vote.

''Interest groups, like litigants, are not entitled to a new justice who they know is predisposed to their views,'' Specter said.

Specter, considered a swing vote on the committee, said the Senate should not ask Souter his ''ultimate views,'' adding he would not ask Souter about issues likely to come before the court - which is certain to be the case on abortion.

Biden said he has seen no intent on Bush's part to politicize the selection of federal judges - unlike President Ronald Reagan - and has voted for all 59 of the president's nominations to the federal bench.

But Biden said that Bush has never recanted the Republican Party platform that calls for the appointment of federal judges who oppose abortion and suggested Souter could be the ''deliverance on this promise'' by the GOP.

''There may be grounds for some fear that politics may be seeping deeper into the process,'' Biden said.

Biden said it is critical to question Souter because there is ''some concern about the administration's approach,'' because the New Hampshire judge could serve well into next century and have a tremendous impact and because ''we know almost nothing about his views of the critical issues of the day.''

Biden said Souter will not satisfy the committee by just proclaiming himself a ''strict interpretist'' because ''many scholars and jurists travel under this banner'' including the most rigid conservatives.

Biden said ''nobody is entitled to be a Supreme Court justice'' and added that the burden is on Souter is to convince the Senate he belongs in the high tribunal.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 11) UPI - Public services for the 2 million seriously mentally ill are a ''disaster,'' with Hawaii offering the worst services, Vermont the best and Delaware making the most impressive gains, a report issued Tuesday said.

The report, replete with anecdotes of seriously mentally ill people who became injured or died because of poor or no services, was released by the consumer group Public Citizen and the National Alliance for the Mentally Ill, an organization of relatives of mentally ill persons.

''One would think that the quality of life of the now 2 million people with serious mental illness in the United States would have improved dramatically from the days of the hospital 'snake pits,''' said Dr. Fuller Torrey of Public Citizen's Health Research Group. ''Yet today, in 1990, services for individuals with serious mental illness ... are a disaster by any measure used.''

Laurie Flynn, executive director of the relatives' group, charged, ''Too many mental health professionals have abandoned the public sector and mentally ill people.''

The American Psychiatric Association took offense, calling the allegations untrue.

''We object strongly to stigmatizing, snide, scapegoating statements that psychiatrists have abandoned the public sector,'' said the group's medical director Melvin Sabshin.

The report was intended as a state-by-state ''consumer's guide'' of public services for the seriously mentally illness, which includes schizophrenia and manic-depressive psychosis, not mental retardation or alcoholism and other drug abuse problems.

The 50 states and Washington, D.C., were rated on delivery of mental heatlh care based on quality of hospital services, outpatient and community support services, vocational rehabilitation, housing and services to seriously emotionally disturbed children.

Out of a possible 25 points, Vermont was the nation's leader, albeit with 17 points. Following Vermont were New Hampshire and Rhode Island, each with 16 points; Connecticut and Ohio, each with 15 points; Colorado with 14 points; New York, North Carolina and Wisconsin, each with 12 points; and Utah with 11 points.

At the bottom of the list were Nevada and Texas, each with five points; Mississippi and Montana, each with four points; Idaho and Wyoming, each with three points; and Hawaii, earning two points. Hawaii also earned the last-place spot in the previous reports issued in 1986 and 1988.

Delaware made the ''most impressive'' gains, with the following states making ''significant'' improvements: Alabama, Connecticut, Michigan, New Hampshire, North Carolina, Ohio, Vermont, Washington and Wisconsin.

States ''going nowhere'' were Hawaii, Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska and South Dakota, and states ''moving backwards'' were California Florida, Indiana and Pennsylvania.

States spending more per capita tend to provide better care, particularly in the areas of vocational rehabilitation, housing and children's services the report said. But those states do not necessarily have better inpatient or outpatient services.

Average state spending on mental health services was 28 cents for every $100 of per capita income. The stingiest states, those spending less than 20 cents per $100, were Arizona, Hawaii, Idaho, Illinois, Kentucky, Nevada and Texas.

The ''best buy'' states - those offering the best quality per dollar spent - were seven of the top 10 state programs: Vermont, Rhode Island, New Hampshire, Ohio, Colorado, Wisconsin and Utah, spending $31- $52 per capita on mental health services.

The ''worst buy'' states were Hawaii, New York, Wyoming and Washington, D.C.

The report recommended the following to improve state services:

-Public mental health programs must, as a priority, serve people with serious mental illness, not devote excessive resources to non-disabled citizens.

-All psychiatrists, psychologists and psychiatric social workers should be required to donate one hour each week to public programs.

-A program should be tested in which psychologists, physician assistants and nurse practitioners are given special training and allowed to prescribe psychiatric medication. The American Psychiatric Association opposed this, saying it would further deteriorate quality of care.

-Funding must be overhauled and budgets examined for evidence of theft and misuse of funds.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 11) UPI - Egypt, a U.S. ally in the gulf crisis, bought 99, 200 metric tons of soft white wheat at subsidized prices from a U.S. exporter, the Agriculture Department reported Tuesday.

The grain was worth about $9.7 million based on Chicago prices. At 36.7 bushels to the metric ton, the transaction called for delivery of 3.64 million bushels of wheat in November and December.

Officials said the grain was sold through the Export Enhancement Program, the major U.S. export subsidy program. Exporters were given bonuses worth $1.27 a bushel for making the sale.

Egypt has the opportunity to buy an additional 661,800 tons of wheat at discount prices.

It was the second major sale to Egypt in less than a week. Egypt bought 175,664 tons last Thursday.

EASTERN SAUDI ARABIA (SEPT. 11) UPI - The world of the Pentagon met the world of the desert nomad the other day, and both came away curiously enlightened.

U.S. forces are under orders to keep contact with Arab natives minimal during their mission to defend Saudi Arabia from Iraqi aggression, clearly because Washington is wary of fueling any anti-Western backlash in the conservative Islamic kingdom.

Most foreigners residing in Saudi Arabia are employed on capital projects, but the nation has otherwise been closed to non-Moslems for decades.

While travelling in remote desert regions overnight Monday with scouts for the 24th Mechanized Infantry Division, chance encounters between the young Americans and Bedouin tribesmen proved to be meetings between innocents, each eager to sample the other's culture.

The scouts have a daily mission of wandering far from their newly constructed but temporary tent city to scour the sands for any enemy activity.

The best dune buggy is outclassed by their Humvees, successors to the jeep which grind through furrows of slush-like sand.

But the four-vehicle force is dwarfed by the landscape of dunes, scrub and eerie rock formations.

Their only company is an occasional escort of A-10 Thunderbolts, chunky, fixed-wing tankbuster aircraft humming overhead on training missions, circling lazily like arrogant vultures.

Nestled between two hills on a rocky plateau sat a Bedouin encampment, vastly different from the classic image romanticized in the tales of the Arabian Nights.

The hardy nomads - who comprise only about 5 percent of the nation's population and fiercely resist government settlement programs - eschew camels for cars, and water tankers have even made them independent of the oasis.

At this camp, a flock of scraggly goats bleated behind a steel barricade, lapping from twisted tin water troughs.

In a bizarre blend of tradition and modernity, a tent had been built on a platform atop a battered Toyota pickup truck, complete with a snug interior of carpets and pillows.

Two Arab youths emerged, obviously wary of the heavily armed soldiers.

''We think its a strange experience, but what about them?'' mused '' about them?'' musediers.erior

Any tension evaporated after two foreign correspondents approached and shook hands with the nomads, who then beckoned the American troopers forth and poured them small cups of heavily-sugared tea.

But apart from the Arab phrase of greeting, ''salam-halaikom,'' the language barrier was total.

The GIs discovered that their army-issue Arabic phrase book, with its translations for such terms as ''surrender'' and ''where is the road to ...,'' was not meant for polite conversation.

''It's so hard, just looking at the phonetics,'' said Sgt. Ricky Chatelain of Colorado Springs, frustrated at his attempts at Arabic which were received with only a smile and a benign shake of the head.

The two nomads departed in their water truck to tend a nearby goat herd. The soldiers strolled up a hill crowned with a fireplace filled with scorched, shattered bones and patches of fur, leftovers of a Beduoin goat feast.

From the goat herd approached another Bedouin on a mule, an almost biblical figure in sandals, brown rough cotton caftan and the traditional red cloth head dress.

He beamed a broad smile and rattled away in staccato Arabic, disappointed he could not converse with the strangers but openly fascinated by their desert- colored fatigues, kevlar helmets, bayonets, pistols and infra-red torches.

Arabs call untrustworthy people ''somebody who does not have time to take tea,'' and the host entered the truck-mounted tent to prepare more of the syruppy concoction for the bemused GIs.

To reciprocate, the Americans handed over packs of cigarettes and cracked open ration packs, the ubiquitous ''Meals, Ready to Eat'' that are fueling Washington's desert army.

The Arab poked gingerly through the sealed contents and opened a caramel candy, which he sniffed suspiciously, nibbled, and then quickly devoured.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 11) UPI - Three youths were sentenced Tuesday to the maximum punishment for juveniles in the gang rape of a woman jogger in Central Park, forcing them to serve five to 10 years behind bars.

State Supreme Court Justice Thomas Galligan sentenced each of the youths to two consecutive terms of three and one-third to 10 years in jail, but the actual imprisonment is reduced under state law to a maximum of five to 10 years.

Antron McCray, Raymond Santana, and Yusef Salaam, all 16, will be eligible for parole after five years.

Before imposing sentence, the judge lambasted the youths for wrecking havoc on New York City's most famous refuge from frenzied city life.

''Central Park is an oasis in our city that was turned into a torture chamber by mindless marauders seeking to 'chill,''' Galligan said.

He rejected the defense argument that he should be merciful to the teens because of their young ages.

''Is it less egregious that a woman has her head bashed with pipes and bricks by a 15 year old rather than a 30 year old?'' the judge asked rhetorically.

Before the judge spoke, he listened to a statement from each of the youths including a rap poem read by Salaam. The youth said he was a victim of white oppression, comparing himself to Nelson Mandela and Martin Luther King.

''I think my debt to society has been paid. This is the price for being a black man,'' Salaam told the judge.

The other two youths thanked their families for supporting them.

''I'm gonna make it,'' McCray said.

A jury in state Supreme Court in Manhattan deliberated 10 days before convicting the trio of rape, riot, robbery and assault in the April 19, 1989, attack on the 30-year-old investment banker, and two male joggers.

Meanwhile, two other defendants, Kharey Wise, 18, and Kevin Richardson, 15 - both of whom made videotaped statements about their involvement in the explosive case - will be tried together, with jury selection to begin Oct. 11, Galligan ruled Monday.

A sixth youth, Steve Lopez, who was fingered by the other defendants as the ringleader of the pack that went ''wilding'' through Central Park the night of the vicious attack, will be tried next year.

A large number of letters have poured into Galligan pleading with him to be lenient with the youths following the Aug. 18 convictions, but the judge stayed true to his reputation as a tough sentencer by delivering the maximum terms available as juveniles.

The youths were tried as adults, but were sentenced as juveniles because they were under 16 at the time of their arrest.

All three youths will serve at least part of their sentence in juvenile prisons in upstate New York. They must be transferred to adult state prison at 21 but could be sent there sooner, depending on their behavior.

At the request of their families, two of the young men had new lawyers during their sentencing and appeals. McCray was represented by activist attorney C. Vernon Mason, while Salaam's case was handled by civil rights attorney William Kunstler.

The rape and beating of the Wall Street worker initially shocked the city, but polarized blacks and whites during the trial of the three youths. McCray and Santana both made videotaped statements about their involvement in the attack, while Salaam made statements to police, telling them the attack ''was fun.''

Their attorneys, however, had argued that the statements were coerced, and that police rounded up the black youths indiscriminately, in a rush to bring the explosive case to a conclusion.

The victim - whose identity has generally been kept secret by the media - was attacked as she went on a late-night run through Central Park, and then was left bloody and near-death for some four hours in a muddy gully off the jogging path.

She appeared briefly as a prosecution witness against the three youths, but was unable to remember a single detail of the attack.

(SEPT. 11) UPI - Western diplomatic sources in Egypt say the offer of free oil to third world countries is simply a way that Iraqi President Saddam Hussein feels he can get around economic sanctions placed against his country. Iraq now has NO market for the oil it can produce.

Iraq is attacking moves to bar its athletes from the Asian Games scheduled for September 22nd in Beijing. An Iraqi Embassy spokesman in the Chinese capital says his nation's Arab foes in the Persian Gulf region are bribing other nations to vote against Iraqi participation in the games. He said the Olympic Council of Asia gave in to U-S pressure in voting last weekend to bar Iraq from the games.

President Frederik de Klerk of South Africa is meeting with Nelson Mandela and 19 other African National Congress members. The talks center on ways to stop black-on-black violence that is raging in black townships in South Africa. Authorities say another night of violence left 26 more people dead this morning.

Top West German officials are headed to Moscow for a final round of talks on the October 3rd date for German unification. A final agreement could be signed by tomorrow. One question still open is how much will it cost to get 380-thousand Soviet troops out of East Germany. That withdrawal may take four years to complete.

PRETORIA, SOUTH AFRICA (SEPT. 11) UPI - African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela warned Tuesday that peace talks with the government are in danger of collapse because of the government's failure to crush five weeks of urban internecine violence.

Emerging from more than two hours of talks with President Frederik de Klerk on the mounting violence between rival black movements, Mandela said pressure was mounting on the ANC to arm its supporters and resume the ''armed struggle'' suspended last month.

Mandela's warning came after another round of violence left 28 more people dead since Monday in black townships surrounding Johannesburg in the sixth straight week of fighting between supporters of the ANC and the rival Zulu movement Inkatha.

More than 600 have died since the clashes erupted, defying appeals for peace by the warring factions and the government's imposition of emergency regulations in the hardest-hit areas. The ANC has accused security forces of favoring Inkatha.

''The government came under heavy attack for its failure to take visible means to deal with this situation,'' Mandela said of the meeting with de Klerk. The ANC deputy president headed a 20-member delegation in the talks at the Union Building government complex.

Asked whether the negotiation procees with the government intended to end the country's protracted racial crisis was threatened by the violence, Mandela told reporters, ''No doubt it is.''

''The amount of casualties that have been suffered by our people ... threatens the peace process,'' Mandela said. ''We'll do everything in our power to ensure the peace process remains on track, but the government will have to play its part.

''And if it's dragging its feet, as it is doing now, then the peace process is definitely threatened,'' he said.

Mandela said there was a ''widespread demand among our people that they should be armed'' and that the ANC regarded this as a ''reasonable'' demand. ''It's going to be difficult for us to resist it,'' he said.

Asked whether the violence would force the ANC to resume the armed struggle, Mandela said, ''if the government fails to take action and if the people continue to demand to be armed, we will find it difficult to oppose that demand.''

The ANC suspended its 29-year limited guerrilla war against white minority rule on Aug. 6 in exchange for promises from the government of further racial reforms, including the release of all political prisoners.

Mandela said the delegation was ''disappointed'' de Klerk had not acted on a memoradum submitted nearly two weeks ago on how to end the violence. He said de Klerk promised Tuesday the ''memorandum and what was said today will receive serious attention.''

''We must give them a chance,'' he said. ''The government has the capacity to end the violence and I want them to use that capacity,'' he said.

Police spokeswoman Capt. Ida van Zweel said 23 people died in the eastern township of Katlehong, where heavy street fighting erupted Monday night between Xhosa supporters of the ANC and bitter rivals of the exclusively Zulu movement Inkatha.

Witnesses reported seeing bodies strewn in the township streets and exchanges of gunfire between migrant workers living in the township hostel and residents Monday night. In one incident, a mob set alight a car, burning the driver to death when he refused to name the faction he supported. A wheelchair-bound elderly woman also was among the casualties, witnesses said.

Police also found the bodies of four other people killed in Soweto, putting the death toll in the nation's largest black city in factional violence over the past three days at 41.

A clash also erupted on a train as it entered Johannesburg Monday morning. One man was stabbed to death and hurled from the coach, while another was injured and arrested, police said.

Mandela's delegation discussed with de Klerk both the strife between Inkatha and ANC-linked groups that began in the Indian Ocean Province of Natal in 1987 and its spread to the Johannesburg area since last month.

The delegation was the largest ANC team de Klerk has faced since he lifted a 30-year ban on the movement in February. The team included several people from Natal and four senior national level ANC officials in addition to Mandela, including ANC Foreign Affairs Director Thabo Mbeki.

(SEPT. 11) UPI - The Office of Thrift Supervision will push ahead with efforts to keep the son of President Bush from ever serving again in any capacity at a federally insured financial institution. Neil Bush once

RANGOON, BURMA (SEPT. 11) UPI - A top official of the Burmese government denied Tuesday that the ruling junta is trying to cling to power, but outlined a protracted process that would have to take place before there would be any transition to democracy.

''We shall certainly hand over power when a new, firm constitution has been promulgated and a strong government formed under that constitution,'' said Maj. Gen. Khin Nyunt, secretary of the ruling State Law and Order Restoration Council

Khin Nyunt, who is also chief of military intelligence, said the legislators elected in polls May 27 must submit ''truthful election expense accounts'' and overcome any challenges to their election before they would be allowed to convene.

After the elected members of Parliament have completed discussions on the new draft constitution, he said, they should convene a national convention of all political parties as well as representatives from all ethnic groups.

''The purpose of this convention is to ascertain the wishes of all national races of the country and to seek a broad consensus on the nature of the new constitution,'' he said.

Khin Nyunt indicated the military, which has ruled Burma directly or indirectly since a 1962 coup d' etat, would also have to find the consitution acceptable.

He gave no indication how long this process might take.

Leaders of the National League for Democracy, the party which swept 80 percent of the seats in the legislature, have called for the military to allow the Parliament to meet this month.

They accused the military of adding new conditions to the promised return to democracy in an effort to continue military rule.

The military responded last week by arresting Kyi Maung and Chit Khaing the two acting leaders of the party. The two men, both retired army colonels in their 70s, had themselves replaced the official party leaders, Aung San Suu Kyi and Tin U, arrested in July last year.

In a three-hour long address to reporters and senior government officials Khin Nyunt called on all political parties, students, Buddhist monks and government employees to avoid confrontational activities and to cooperate in paving the way for stable and prosperous country.

Buddhist monks have declared a religious boycott against government leaders for their harsh repression of dissidents - saying no monks perform religious rites for them.

There have also been repeated small-scale student demonstrations in the central city of Mandalay despite martial law orders that ban public assembly by more than five people.

Khin Nyunt lashed out at foreign diplomats and media for reports on the Mandalay demonstrations that were ''nothing but fabrications and distortions.''

Western diplomats quoted by the media said four people were killed by security forces, but the government denied anyone was killed, saying the only shots fired were into the air.

''It is clear the foreign media have not been using the dispatches sent out by our (Burmese) foreign correspondents here, but using only reports received from so-called diplomatic sources,'' he said.

Since the election, the military government has barred the entry of most foreign correspondents, allowing only reports by the Burmese correspondents of the major news agencies.

CAPE CANAVERAL, FL (SEPT. 11) UPI - The shuttle Discovery's crew sailed through a smooth practice countdown Tuesday to set the stage for blastoff around Oct. 5, less than 18 days after the shuttle Columbia's fourth launch attempt next week.

With Columbia's seven-man crew running more than three months behind schedule because of hydrogen fuel leaks and payload trouble, NASA managers reviewed test data Tuesday to determine when the veteran spaceplane will be ready for another launch try.

At pad 39A, engineers worked to complete installation of three new hydrogen fuel pumps inside the shuttle's cramped engine room to replace units that leaked last week, grounding the orbiter just eight hours before its planned launch.

A new pump package was bolted into place Monday but work to test the engine system for leakage fell behind schedule overnight with no word on what caused the original pumps to leak explosive hydrogen.

Initial tests on the suspect pumps before they were removed from Columbia found no signs of leakage.

But the problem apparently only shows up in the presence of supercold liquid hydrogen at minus 423 degrees. To find out once and for all, engineers at the Johnson Space Center in Houston began circulating liquid hydrogen through the pump package Tuesday morning.

Initial test results were expected Wednesday. But William Lenoir, NASA's associate administrator for spaceflight, said complete results from the tests were not required to clear Columbia for another launch try.

As it is, engineers are skeptical about whether replacing the pumps will stop the leak. As one official put it: ''I think there's a 50-50 chance it'll leak again.''

With a cloud of uncertainty hanging over Columbia's mission, NASA managers nonetheless hope to launch the ship around Sept. 18 to kick off a 10-day astronomy flight and to clear the decks for Discovery's Oct. 5 to carry the European-built Ulysses solar probe into space.

Whenever Columbia is finally ready to go, engineers will have only a few days to get the spaceplane into orbit. NASA Administrator Richard Truly has said Columbia must get off the ground within a few days of Sept. 17 or the flight will be grounded until after Discovery's mission.

The Ulysses mission has priority because to get the probe on the proper course to the sun, Discovery must be launched between Oct. 5 and Oct. 23 or the mission will face a 13-month delay.

Compounding the problem is a post-Challenger NASA rule requiring three weeks between shuttle flights so data from one mission can be studied before the next flight is launched.

Truly said last week the rule would be waived in this instance, but he made it clear that if Columbia's launch slips much past Sept. 17, the flight will be postponed to get Discovery off the ground.

On launch pad 39B, Discovery's crew strapped in and worked through the final hours of a dress-rehearsal countdown Tuesday that ended at 11:07 a.m. with the simulated ignition and shutdown of the shuttle's three main engines.

Commander Richard ''Dick'' Richards, 44, co-pilot Robert Cabana, 41, Bruce Melnick, 40, William Shepherd, 41, and Thomas Akers, 39, then reviewed emergency escape procedures at the launch pad before returning to Houston.

While Discovery has no known fuel leaks, engineers are carefully monitoring a small Freon leak in one of the shuttle's two cooling systems.

If the leak rate does not get worse, Discovery's coolant supplies will be topped off and the ship will be cleared for launch on a four-day mission as is. If the leak gets worse, repairs could be required that would delay the flight to the last few days of the Ulysses launch period.

NASA's long, launchless summer began May 29 when a hydrogen leak grounded Columbia the night before the crew's planned liftoff.

That leak was blamed on damaged seals inside a massive 17-inch-wide fuel line fitting that allows the shuttle's external tank to be jettisoned in space. A similar problem also grounded the shuttle Atlantis in July.

Columbia has since been equipped with a new ''17-inch disconnect'' assembly and cleared for a second launch attempt Sept. 1. After a delay because of trouble with an on-board telescope, the crew was cleared for a third launch try Sept. 6, but the mission was delayed by yet another elusive hydrogen leak.

Data indicated the leak involved hydrogen recirculation pumps used to keep rocket fuel flowing through critical engine systems prior to launch.

LEESBURG, FL (SEPT. 11) UPI - A 10-foot-long alligator grabbed a snorkeler's arm and dragged him to the bottom of a river, but the victim swam through a trail of his own blood and managed to escape.

''I never plan on getting in fresh water again, not until there's something done about the population of gators,'' Jason Smith, 20, said from his home in Leesburg Tuesday, where he was recuperating with 50 stitches to his right arm and a few to the right side of his head.

''I've got bites all over my forearm from my wrist up to my elbow, and I got bites, two bites on the side of my head.''

Smith said he and a friend were snorkeling in the Alexander Run, a spring-fed stream in the Ocala National Forest, on Saturday when the alligator attacked.

''I was just snorkeling, and I turned around and seen the gator's mouth open to get my head,'' Smith said. ''When he done that, I put my arm up. Instead of getting my head, he got my arm, took me under and started spinning me.

''He took me to the bottom and spinned me around. I don't know how I got loose, but when I got to the surface, I screamed to my buddy. ... I could feel him (the alligator) under my feet again.

''I started swimming toward the boat. I thought I'd lost my arm. When I was swimming toward the boat I couldn't feel nothing,'' Smith said.

Smith said he had trouble seeing as he swam the 40 yards to the boat because of blood flowing from his head wound, but he managed to pull himself aboard and ''fill up the bottom of the boat'' with blood while he and his friend paddled to shore.

Once there, another camper, a Seminole County firefighter, administered first aid, Smith said.

''I think if he hadn't quit the bleeding, I'd have probably bled to death '' Smith said.

Smith said he was not sure how he got away from the alligator.

''I think he tried to grab for another bite, for another hold, and I just got away,'' he said.

He said he spotted the alligator a split second before he attacked, ''just enough time for me to throw my arm up in front of my face.''

''It was like he was crushing my arm,'' Smith said.

He said the struggle lasted about 10 seconds.

He said he felt turbulence beneath him as he swam back toward the boat and was afraid the alligator would grab him again.

''I'm sure he tried. I was just swimming too fast,'' he said.

The 10-foot-long alligator was trapped and killed about 12 hours later, he said.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 11) UPI - Miss America proved again that a pretty girl is worth a lot of ratings points as the beauty pageant was the most-watched show last week and helped NBC to another prime time win, it was reported Tuesday.

In one of those oddities that prove the devil can quote statistics, the NBC broadcast was the No. 1 show of the week, but its 17.8 rating and 36 share were down from last year, when the pageant was only No. 3 but had a 19.8 rating and a 40 share. That's because last year more people were tube-watching, thanks to early premieres of ''Roseanne'' and ''Chicken Soup'' on ABC.

''The Fanelli Boys,'' the NBC preview of the week, came in fourth, and ''Working It Out,'' in its second airing, tied for 17th.

Both shows were part of some fancy footwork in the NBC programming department. The Saturday prime time evening began with part 1 of a two-part ''Golden Girls,'' followed by ''Working It Out.'' Then came the conclusion of ''Golden Girls,'' followed by ''Fanelli'' and Miss America.

''Parenthood,'' another new NBC show making its second preview appearance, tied for 29th.

''Real Life with Jane Pauley'' had its final broadcast of the series last week, tying for 33rd. The program has never fallen below a 20 share, which makes it a likely midseason replacement for some faltering show.

While NBC has been previewing new programs, returning shows are still in reruns. Most notably, a repeat of ''The Cosby Show'' tied for 10th place, while a rerun of its new competition, ''The Simpsons'' on Fox, tied for 54th with an ABC Ted Koppel special report.

Fox had some new offerings last week, but they were on the wrong end of the list. ''Parker Lewis,'' the premiere, was in 59th place, which was an improvement on a ''Parker Lewis'' repeat in 66th. Fox's ''True Colors'' was in 65th, ''DEA'' in 76th, a rerun ''DEA'' in 77th and the new ''American Chronicles'' from Lynch/Frost in dead last 87th place.

CBS won the Sunday movie competition with ''Jesse'' tied for 14th. ABC's first television run of the theatrical film, ''Little Shop of Horrors,'' was 36th and NBC's ''A Fight For Jenny'' tied for 51st.

In ratings for the week ending Sept. 9, according to the A.C. Nielsen Co., NBC remained in the lead with a 10.7 rating and a 19 share. ABC was second with a 9.4 rating and a 17 share, while CBS posted a 9.2 rating and a 17 share. Fox finished the week with a 6.3 rating and an 11 share.

In the night-by-night competition, NBC won Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday, while CBS was No. 1 Sunday and Monday and ABC held Friday.

In the 51-week season-to-date competition, NBC maintained a 12.9 rating and a 23 share. ABC was second with an 11.6 rating and a 20 share, and CBS was right behind with an 11.1 rating and a 19 share. Fox has a season-to-date record of a 6.3 rating and an 11 share.

Dan Rather's high profile in the Middle East did not tumble Peter Jennings from the top spot among news shows. ABC's ''World News Tonight'' was No. 1 for the 35th consecutive week, with a 9.8 rating and a 21 share. ''CBS Evening News'' with Dan Rather was second with an 8.4 rating and an 18 share, while ''NBC Nightly News'' with Tom Brokaw was third with an 8.3 rating and an 18 share.

Each ratings point represents about 921,000 households. A share is the percentage of TV sets in use that are tuned to a particular show or network.

The top programs for the week ending Sunday, Sept. 9, according to the A.C. Nielsen Co., were:

1. Miss America pageant (NBC)
2. Golden Girls (NBC)
3. Cheers (NBC)

4. Fanelli Boys (NBC)
5. America's Funniest Home Videos (ABC)
6. 60 Minutes (CBS)
7. (tie) Designing Women (CBS)
8. Roseanne (ABC)
9. Different World (NBC)
10. (tie) Bill Cosby (NBC)

LONDON (SEPT. 11) UPI - Stock prices closed slightly lower in sluggish trading Tuesday on the London International Stock Exchange as major dealers stayed on the sidelines due to the crisis in the Gulf.

The blue-chip Financial Times 100-stock index, which surged 24.1 points Monday, slipped 2.7 points to 2,144.3. The narrower top 30 industrial average eased 4.1 points to 1,651.0.

Volume remained light as an estimated 344 million shares changed hands, compared with 296 million shares traded Monday.

Analysts said prices eased from the opening bell following the poor showing in Japan, where the Nikkei Average lost 1.90 percent, or 476.24 points.

But underlying uncertainty over the Gulf crisis, highlighted by an IMF report saying growth would slow for the developed world due to oil price increases, encouraged a bearish mood.

In a speech in Paris today, IMF head Michel Camdessus warned the Gulf crisis would cut growth in the developed economies by 1/4 percent this year and 1/2 percent next year.

Tight monetary policy in Britain continued to take a bite out of the economy, giving bonds a boost with a half-point gain.

But poor interim company results further damaged investor confidence, although shipping and construction conglomerate P & O bucked the trend. P & O gained 16 cents to $9.09 despite lowered half-year pre-tax profits.

Among some of the day's other highlights, Fisons slipped 4 cents to $6.35 despite an interim report showing a 35 percent profits advance.

Allied Irish continued to tumble, falling 11 cents to $2.79 on debt worries.

British Aerospace gained 9 cents to $10 as investors speculated the company would report better earnings on Wednesday.

Elsewhere in Europe, stock prices closed lower in thin trading on the Frankfurt Stock Exchange as surging oil prices dampened enthusiasm.

The closely watched German Stock Index, which gained 37.53 points Monday, slid 23.02 points or about 1.4 percent to 1,577.42.

Traders said prices moved in narrow ranges most of the session in response to climbing oil prices and the weak performance in Tokyo.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 11) UPI - The federal insurance fund that protects depositors from commercial bank failures is facing its greatest danger of depletion since the days of the Depression, the General Accounting Office said Tuesday.

''Not since its birth during the Great Depression has the federal system of deposit insurance for commercial banks faced such a period of danger and uncertainty as it does today,'' said Charles Bowsher, comptroller general of the United States.

''I wish the message were more optimistic,'' Bowsher told the Senate Banking Committee.

The GAO's audit of the Bank Insurance Fund's 1989 financial statement showed a loss of $852 million during the year, marking the fund's second consecutive loss.

Banking regulators, expecting the fund to post an additional loss of as much as $2 billion this year, recommended last month that banks pay greater insurance premiums to slow the fund's steady erosion.

Banking performance worsened in 1989 as the growth in non-performing assets increased and industry earnings declined, the GAO said. The reasons for the decline are many - an increased reliance on real estate loans, stiffer international competition and the growth of non-bank financial services companies.

The GAO audit showed the insurance fund's balance has decreased 28 percent during the past 2 years to $13.2 billion from $18.3 billion due to steady levels of high bank failures.

Overstated appraisal values for foreclosed real estate also could further diminish the insurance fund, the GAO said.

''We are concerned that the fund's cash resources are too low to enable it to deal decisively with problem banks,'' Bowsher said.

The report said the low level of bank reserves, coupled with a recession, ''could lead to a level of bank failures that would exhaust the fund and require taxpayer assistance.''

Bowsher also said a GAO examination of 200 banks found 35 large institutions in such severe financial condition that their doors are likely to close without some form of recapitalization or regulatory assistance.

The 35 banks, mostly in the Northeast and Southwest, have combined assets of $45.1 billion and would cost the insurance fund between $4.4 billion and $6.3 billion should they fail.

''In addition to these 35 banks, we identified a significant number of other large banks that were experiencing severe negative performance trends as of December 31, 1989,'' Bowsher said.

This revelation appeared to stun several members of the banking committee and prompted recollections of the early days of the collapse of the savings and loan industry, which many call the greatest financial debacle since the Depression.

Sen. Donald Riegle, D-Mich., the committee's chairman, said regulators may need to take further protective measures to bolster the insurance fund in addition to increasing premiums.

''I think it would be very dangerous to the psychology of the country to allow this fund to be depleted,'' he said.

''This is not the thrift situation - there is still time to act,'' said Sen. Alan Dixon, D-Ill.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 11) UPI - Amid fresh signs of strong support from the American people, President Bush placed the final touches Tuesday on a prime-time speech outlining U.S. interests and staying power in the tense Persian Gulf.

Before a joint session of Congress and a nationwide television audience, Bush planned to lay out the opportunities as well as the dangers that confront the world in the aftermath of Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of oil-rich neighbor Kuwait.

Bush also held some slim hope of announcing progress in deficit-reduction talks with Congress, which Tuesday entered a fifth day in seclusion at Andrews Air Force Base, Md., after sliding past an informal midnight deadline.

In the likely absence of an agreement, White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said Bush would underscore ''the need to get our domestic house in order" to provide "a good foundation" at home for dealing with problems abroad.

The emergence of a ''new world order,'' in which Cold War adversaries become superpower partners, and the need to face down Saddam Hussein with military power and economic pressure, were among the themes of the 9 p.m. EDT speech.

It was a chance for Bush to renew his public optimism that Iraq ultimately will capitulate under the weight of economic sanctions ordered by the United Nations, while making clear that repulsing Iraqi aggression will not be done quickly or easily.

''We understand that that will take some time,'' Fitzwater acknowledged in advance of the speech, ''and we're in this until it works.''

As of Tuesday, the United States was one of more than two dozen countries with forces committed to faceoff against Iraq, with an estimated 100,000 soldiers, sailors and airmen and some 58 warships in and around the Persian Gulf at a cost of at least $46 million a week.

A virtual trade embargo, enforced by U.S. and other warships now patrolling shipping lanes to and from Iraq, is denying Saddam oil revenues and imports of vital goods, including military spare parts and industrial equipment.

Despite ''small seepages'' and ''some small infractions around the edges,'' including overland shipments of food from Jordan and the arrival of some goods by air, Fitzwater insisted the sanctions have been ''almost 100 percent effective.''

The catalyst for the speech was Bush's weekend summit in Helsinki, Finland, with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev, which ended with a bold show of superpower solidarity against Iraq, once Moscow's closest ally in the Middle East.

The summit outcome, a broad embrace of shared goals that masked continued differences over the means to achieve them, left Bush buoyed that the United States and the Soviet Union, for years protagonists in such regional conflicts, may cooperate in the post-Cold War world to prevent or resolve them.

Indeed, his willingness to give the Soviets a major role in crisis resolution in the Middle East marked a wholesale reversal of U.S. policy that for more than a decade had sought to limit Moscow's role and influence in the region.

A new Washington Post-ABC News poll showed Tuesday that support for Bush's handling of the gulf crisis has remained high and even increased over the past month to an overall approval rating of 81 percent, though many Americans remain wary of where events might lead.

The poll found sharp divisions over the use of force to push Iraq out of Kuwait, the likelihood of war, and whether the United States should maintain a permanent military presence in the region even if the current conflict ends peacefully.

On balance, Americans appear to share Bush's view the United States has a right and responsibility to lead the international effort against Iraq, if concerned about the costs and levels of participation by Japan and European allies.

It is the uncertain duration of the U.S. intervention in the gulf that has some politicians worried. Bush, however, has been careful to avoid speculation on the likelihood or consequences of a protracted standoff devoid of hostilities.

In what may turn out to be mere escalation of the war of images with Saddam, Bush will videotape an 8- to 10-minute message Wednesday for possible broadcast on Iraqi television.

The White House seized on an invitation Thursday from Baghdad as a chance for Bush to provide his view, unfiltered by Iraqi censors, to the Iraqi people just as Saddam has spoken to Western audiences through interviews and official televised statements.

LOS ANGELES (SEPT. 11) UPI - The Raiders have agreed to remain in Los Angeles, ending a two-year saga during which the NFL team bargained with four cities for a home, United Press International learned Tuesday.

The Raiders, Coliseum and city officials scheduled a mid-afternoon news conference to announce the deal.

''I think you'll get confirmation this afternoon,'' Coliseum President N. Matthew Grossman told UPI. ''I'm very pleased at this point.''

The Coliseum Commission voted last Wednesday to drop a $58 million breach of contract suit against the team if it agreed by Tuesday to remain in the city.

Under terms of the deal, approved on a 5-2 vote during a two-hour closed-door session, Raiders owner Al Davis will be allowed to keep an advance the panel gave him in 1984 for stadium improvements that has grown to $10 million with interest.

The Coliseum's private manager, Spectacor Management Group, has offered the team another $20 million cash and $145 million in stadium improvements to remain in Los Angeles.

The Raiders also negotiated with surburban Irwindale, Sacramento and Oakland.

The Irwindale deal broke down, first in environmental debates and later after the San Gabriel Valley city could not secure the financing. Davis walked away with a $10 million advance for Irwindale.

The Raiders failed to meet Sacramento's deadline in February for a stadium deal.

Davis announced at the NFL meetings in March he would move the Raiders back to Oakland for the 1991 season. From 1960 to 1981 the Raiders played in Oakland, where they began as an original AFL team and later won two Super Bowls while grooming their silver-and-black image as the league's rebel team.

Oakland officials, facing a public outcry, removed a $604 million package to the Raiders in April before making their new offer in July.

Oakland officials last week gave Davis another month to consider their offer to return to the city he left in 1982. The offer included $127 million for stadium renovations and a $31.9 million loan to the team, payable with interest in two years.

Last week, Grossman said he believed the Coliseum's panel's action removed the final impediment to the city's effort to keep the Raiders.

''It meets every condition they have sought in terms of the litigation,'' Grossman said of the commission's decision to drop its $58 million suit against the team.

The suits stemmed from the Raiders' refusal to build luxury boxes in the stadium after the two sides disagreed on how the commission should use its proceeds from the antitrust judgment it received from the NFL, which tried to stop the team from moving to Los Angeles.

Commissioners Deane Dana and Mike Antonovich cast the lone dissenting votes, arguing Davis should not be allowed to keep public money.

''As an elected official, I cannot support a gift of public money,'' said Dana, who like Antonovich is a member of the Board of Supervisors.

Antonovich called the proposed deal ''a shotgun marriage that we don't even know will work.''

But Don Webb, one of the chief negotiators for Spectacor, called the commission's action ''constructive.''

The deal was put together with the input of Mayor Tom Bradley and was tentatively approved at the first meeting attended by Commissioner William Robertson since his re-appointment to the panel by Bradley.

Robertson, a local labor leader, was influential in bringing the Raiders to Los Angeles and retains the trust of Davis, who had soured on the city after repeatedly clashing with the commission.

AUGUSTA, GA (SEPT. 11) UPI - Augusta National Golf Club has accepted its first black member in an apparent attempt to avoid being marked discriminatory following a racial stir over membership policies at an all-white Birmingham, Ala., club.

The reported first black to be admitted to the prestigious host of the Masters golf tournament is close to 50, a native of Texas and belongs to another private club, where he also was the first black member, the Augusta Chronicle reported Tuesday.

The newspaper quoted an unnamed source saying the membership offer was made last Friday. A spokesman at the club would not confirm the move, saying club policy prohibits discussion about members.

''We don't release any information about members,'' general manager Jim Armstrong said, refusing to confirm or deny the report.

The supposed decision came after black groups threatened to demonstrate outside Shoal Creek Country Club during the PGA Championship, held at the club last month.

Under pressure from corporations that threatened to pull some $2 million worth of television advertising from telecasts of the PGA Championship,

Shoal Creek agreed to accept its first black member.

The controversy surrounding Shoal Creek prompted the PGA Tour, PGA of America and the United States Golf Association to adopt guidelines prohibiting discriminatory membership policies against minorities and women at clubs where tournaments are held. The new policy goes into effect in 1991.

Even though the Masters is run independent of the PGA, Augusta National President Hord Hardin, in the midst of the Shoal Creek conflict, said the club had been searching for a black member for the past year.

The first time a black competed in the Masters was in 1975 when Lee Elder was a participant. Until 1982, the first year competitors were allowed to bring their own caddies, all of the tournament caddies were black.

Since the membership edict was handed down by the three main administrative bodies of golf, at least one private club, Old Warson Country Club in St. Louis, has refused to change its membership policies.

The club, as a result, will not be holding the 1991 Southwestern Bell Classic.

NORRISTOWN, PA (SEPT. 11) UPI - It's been four Christmases, two grandchildren and two family funerals since Joseph Cicippio was taken hostage in Beirut and still his family is keeping vigil without any inkling when he will be freed.

On Wednesday, Cicippio's brother, Thomas, will update the numbers on a sign outside his suburban Philadelphia home to mark the beginning of Cicippio's fifth year of captivity.

Cicippio, deputy controller of American University in the Lebanese capitol was kidnapped Sept. 12, 1986, as he walked to work. Since then, his family has had no contact with him other than sketchy reports from other freed hostages and a videotape released by his captors last year.

''I can remember very distinctly the day he was kidnapped I thought that he would not be held too long, that perhaps they'd let him out in a week or two,'' Cicippio said in an interview Tuesday at his Norristown home.

''It was so close to Christmas, I figured he would be out for the holidays. He's now spent four Christmases in captivity, and I hope he doesn't spend a fifth Christmas,'' said Cicippio, 66,.

Joseph Cicippio will celebrate his 60th birthday Thursday in the hands of the Revolutionary Justice Organization, an offshoot of the Iranian-backed Hezbollah group.

Since 1986, the Cicippio family has lived on a roller-coaster of emotions, depending on the news from the Middle East.

''It seems like there were a number of times before when we thought that the hostages might be released, and something comes up that throws a monkey wrench into it,'' Cicippio said.

The latest monkey wrench may be the Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait, which has sparked a massive military buildup in Saudia Arabia.

''This situation in the Middle East ... may put a damper on the release of our hostages, but we really don't know. We don't know which way it will go now,'' Cicippio said, who wears a yellow ribbon and button urging ''Free the Hostages.''

Since Joseph Cicippio was abducted, his sister and a brother-in-law have died and two grandchildren have been born. In all that time, Cicippio's relatives have heard from him only once, in the videotape released in August 1989.

''I have written to him,'' Cicippio said. ''I have never gotten answers and have no way of knowing if he received them.''

Outside the family's home, a wooden sign carries the names and length of captivity of all the Americans held hostage in Beirut. The name of one - Col. William Higgins - was boxed in black after the Marine was killed by his captors in July 1989.

Cicippio daily updates the days of captivity for each of the hostages. The longest held is Terry Anderson, a reporter held for 2,006 days.

Cicippio said if he could talk to his brother's captors he would not be critical.

''The first thought that comes to my mind is to thank them for taking care of him,'' Cicippio said. ''I don't know under what conditions they are keeping him, but they are keeping him alive.''

MOSCOW (SEPT. 11) UPI - President Mikhail Gorbachev publicly embarrassed Premier Nikolai Ryzhkov by endorsing a rival group's economic plan Tuesday signalling a possible change of government to speed up the transition to a market economy.

While deputies in the national legislature were embroiled in a political brawl marked by bitter personal attacks, the Russian Federation's parliament adopted a radical economic-reform plan for the republic that takes up three-quarters of the Soviet Union.

''The Russian Parliament today set off at full speed toward a market economy by adopting academician Stanislav Shatalin's daring reform plan, '' the official Tass news agency said.

Gorbachev told deputies in the Supreme Soviet, the national legislature, that he supports Shatalin's program over a more moderate plan developed by Ryzhkov, further enflaming an already heated debate.

''If you ask me, I'm more inclined toward the program developed by the Shatalin group,'' Gorbachev said.

Gorbachev's comment, minutes after Ryzhkov defended his own moderate plan and attacked the more radical Shatalin program, was the latest sign that the prime minister's days at the head of the Soviet government may be numbered.

Deputy Premier Leonid Abalkin, still officially in charge of Gorbachev's economic reforms, later told reporters that moderates and radicals are deeply divided over how quickly and at what costs the country should try to create a market economy.

''There are different options, and they cannot be reconciled,'' Abalkin said during a break in session.

''The question is which way is more realistic, suits current conditions, involves smaller social costs and, although longer, will not produce in several months the kind of shock that will make the people and the government allergic to the market idea for decades to come,'' he said.

Gorbachev and Russian Federation leader Boris Yeltsin agreed to join forces last month and devise an economic-reform plan for the Soviet Union.

They put Shatalin, a radical economist on Gorbachev's Presidential Council in charge of a joint working group of Soviet and Russian government officials. The panel used Yeltsin's bold ''500 Days'' blueprint as a basis for a plan to move the country to a market economoy within 18 months.

Ryzhkov, whose two previous economic-overhaul programs were rejected by parliament earlier this year, continued work on a separate new plan reflecting his more moderate views.

Ryzhkov warned lawmakers Tuesday that the Shatalin program's call to free all prices from central control on Jan. 1 will cause rampant inflation and a sharp drop in living standards.

The prime minister also said that the radical plan's intention to eliminate the government's $204 billion budget deficit by March 1 cannot be achieved without ''infringing on the vital interests of the large masses of the working people.''

HOUSTON (SEPT. 11) UPI - Conoco Inc. Tuesday said it is boosting its domestic exploration budget by $10 million, making it the first major energy company to respond to the rise in crude oil prices with increased spending.

The Houston-based Du Pont subsidiary has a worldwide exploration budget of about $540 million.

The $10 million will be used to accelerate five prospects in the Gulf of Mexico that had been scheduled for drilling in 1991 and later, a spokesman said. The company did not disclose the location of the planned wells.

Max G. Pitcher, Conoco's executive vice president for worldwide exploration, said the company is making the move despite a drilling service and support industry that has yet to recover from the energy bust of the mid-1980s.

''With the literal dismantling of the exploration infrastruture in the United States during recent years, this country can't expect to see a significant increase in exploratory activity right away,'' Pitcher said.

''It must also be recognized that even if one of these wells is a commercial discovery, it still will be some time before it becomes a source of energy for the nation.

''But, while this single effort will not lessen U.S. dependence on overseas energy right away, it is a step in the right direction toward helping to provide the United States with long-term energy security,'' he said.

MOSCOW (SEPT. 11) UPI - Foreign ministers from the victorious World War II allies and the two Germanys gathered in Moscow Tuesday for a final negotiating session expected to give the formal go-ahead for German unification Oct. 3.

The formal ''two-plus-four'' meeting between officials from East and West Germany and the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union was scheduled for Wednesday, and it is expected a final agreement will be signed then.

Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze met separately Tuesday with his counterparts from the United States and West Germany as lower- level officials negotiated the final wording of the agreement.

One of the last major obstacles was cleared Monday when Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev and West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl agreed on a compromise figure that Germany will pay to help withdraw 380,000 Soviet troops from East German territory.

A West German Finance Ministry spokesman in Bonn said Tuesday the Germans would pay $7.6 billion for the withdrawal, which is to take place over a four-year transition period.

West Germany is paying for part of the cost of withdrawing the Soviet troops and building new housing for them in what West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher has described as ''practically the price of German unification.''

Among the issues that were still being worked on was the Soviet request that a guarantee that nuclear weapons not be deployed in eastern Germany be expanded to include weapons capable of carrying either conventional or nuclear warheads.

The Soviet Union is also asking that no NATO maneuvers be held on East German soil, and experts were still working on the wording of restrictions on Soviet soldiers during the transition period.

''There are several issues that have to be resolved having to do with what might or might not happen on the territory of what was called the German Democratic Republic,'' Shevardnadze said before his meeting with Secretary of State James Baker.

''We'll be working on those together with our other two-plus-four colleagues.

The ''two-plus-four'' process began with an agreement setting up the negotiating mechanisms at the February ''Open Skies'' summit in Ottawa, and since then agreement has been reached on nearly all major issues.

The biggest hurdle in the eight months of work on the agreement on ''external aspects of German unification'' was cleared when Gorbachev dropped his objections to a united Germany being a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, the Western military alliance.

During a meeting in the Soviet Union in July, Gorbachev and Kohl also agreed that no NATO troops be stationed in East Germany until the complete withdrawal of Soviet forces.

The Germans have also agreed that the combined German army will be cut to 370,000 troops.

In addition to the talks on German unification, Baker and Shevardnadze covered other issues including the Gulf crisis, American economic aid to the Soviet Union and crucial questions about disarmament.

Baker arrived in Moscow Monday night from Brussels, where he briefed NATO allies on the Helsinki summit and asked for more help in the Gulf.

Responding to a report that the Soviets were asking for further U.S. troop cuts in Europe, Baker also said Monday that a U.S.-Soviet agreement on troop levels was already outdated because of Soviet withdrawals from former East Bloc countries.

Shevardnadze said arms control negotiators were working on the issue.

CAIRO, Egypt (SEPT. 11) UPI - The exiled Iraqi opposition seeking the overthrow of President Saddam Hussein of Iraq will continue an armed struggle against Baghdad and establish a government-in-exile, a group spokesman said Tuesday.

''We are preparing the ground for a government-in-exile that will form a credible alternative to Saddam Hussein,'' Dr. Abo Ali, the London-based official spokesman for the mostly Shiite Moslem Iraqi Islamic Al Daawa party, told United Press International.

''We are trying to work out a formula in which Islamicists, secularists and Kurds can work together on the armed struggle and achieve political cooperation,'' Ali said.

Ali's group was one of six Iraqi opposition groups that signed a declaration in London and the Syrian capital of Damascus last week calling on the Iraqi people to topple their leader to save their country from military confrontation with U.S.-led forces in the Persian Gulf.

The declaration also called for an Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait and the opposition pledged to continue the armed struggle against Saddam.

Ali said the diverse Iraqi opposition groups were also in the process of drafting a resolution that would soon be ratified.

The points of the resolution being discussed include the overthrow of Saddam Hussein, free elections and the establishment of a parliamentary, constitutional system with a transitional period for the interim government that would replace Saddam's Revolution Command Council.

The groups are also working toward a post-Saddam administration that would respect the constitution and independence of the executive, legislative and judicial branches of government, grant full rights to Iraq's Kurdish minority, and not discriminate between Iraqi Moslem Shiites and Sunnis, or between Iraqi Arabs and Iraqi Kurds.

The opposition groups involved were the Iran-backed Iraqi Islamic Al Daawa party, the Supreme Council of Islamic Revolution in Iraq, the Iraqi Islamic Action Organization, the pro-Syrian Iraqi Arab Baathist Socialist party, the Kurdistan Front of Iraq and the Iraqi Independent Liberal Democrats.

According to regional analysts, armed opposition to Saddam from the ''Iraqi Front of Revolutionary, Islamic and National Forces,'' consisting of Kurds, exiled Shiites and disaffected members of the ruling Iraqi Baathist party, died down after the ceasefire in the Iran- Iraq war in 1988.

The analysts said a tacit understanding between Iran and Iraq since the cessation of hostilities not to sponsor armed opposition groups meant a decline in the effectiveness of Iran and Syrian-backed groups.

Daawa, led by Sheikh Mohammad Asefi, is the oldest Iraqi opposition group founded in 1958. Daawa sources said the group was responsible for the 1981 bombing of the Iraqi Embassy in Beirut, which killed 53 people, and an assassination attempt the same year in Baghdad against Iraqi Foreign Minister Tareq Aziz, who escaped with an arm injury.

Groups affiliated to the Iraqi opposition, including the Iraqi Islamic Amal, the Iraqi Hezbollah and the secular Kurdistan Democratic Party, have launched hit-and-run attacks on the Iraqi armed forces and have claimed responsibility for a number of bomb attacks on Iraqi government offices and industrial and military organizations.

Regional analysts believe the Iran-backed Iraqi Kurdistan Democratic Party and Iraqi Patriotic Union of Kurdistan represent the toughest secular opposition to Saddam but operate mainly in Iraq's northernmost province of Kurdistan.

(SEPT. 11) UPI - A report says public services for the two-Million seriously mentally ill Americans are what it terms a ''disaster.'' The report was issued by the consumer group Public Citizen and the National Alliance for the Mentally Ill, an organization of relatives of mentally ill individuals. The report says Hawaii offers the worst service, while Vermont rated the best.

Police in Manila say it was an accident after an officer dropped a tear cas canister near leftist students demonstrating for an end to the U-S military presence in the country. The demonstrators fled the area around the U-S embassy when the canister went off. Talks at renewing a treaty over the bases are set to resume next week.

Legal experts in West Germany say they don't expect much will come from a lawsuit that tries to keep a unified Germany from recognizing its eastern borders with Poland. But the suit might delay ratification of the treaty to bring about German unification. The suit was filed by eight members of the conservative Christian Democratic Union party of West German Chancellor Kohl.

Residents of Moscow who are used to standing long hours in line waiting to buy scarce goods are reported waiting for up to five hours to get into the first Pizza Hut to open in the Soviet Union. Those who finally got inside report the food and service were great. But they didn't like the long wait or the prices.

TALLAHASSEE, FL (SEPT. 11) UPI - Florida Lottery officials raised their estimate Tuesday for this week's Lotto jackpot to $90 million and said frenzied ticket-buying could push it to $100 million by the end of the week.

Sales through 11 a.m. Tuesday were about 100 percent higher than the best week on record, said Lottery Secretary Rebecca Paul, who again urged players to buy their tickets for the Saturday drawing as early in the week as possible.

At least three callers have approached the lottery so far this week about buying 13.9-million tickets at $1 apiece from the central office and covering all possible six-digit combinations, Paul said.

''We get those sort of calls whenever it gets over $50 million, but we won't do it,'' Paul said. ''Technically and philosophically, we can't and won't. The computer can't print them out fast enough, and it's not fair to those players who are hoping to win the jackpot outright.''

Of course, she added, ''the callers are welcome to spend as much as they want and try to find enough terminals to handle the load.''

A $90 million prize would be the largest Lotto jackpot since the Florida Lottery gaming began and the second-highest amount in U.S. lottery history.

Pennsylvania holds the national record with a $115 million lottery jackpot that was divided among several winners.

The single largest payout to a lottery winner was $55.1 million won two years ago by Sheelah Ryan of Winter Park.

The jackpot opened at $75 million Sunday, when nobody matched all six numbers in the weekly drawing for the fourth consecutive week, and had climbed to $80 million by Monday afternoon.

The jackpot estimate is based on ticket sales projections for the next week, funds from rollovers and projected long-term interest rates, with winnings paid in 20 annual payments. If more than one person matches all six numbers, the winners would split the jackpot.

To play the Lotto, wagerers choose six numbers from one to 49. The odds of any $1 ticket matching all six numbers are one in 13,983,816, lottery officials said.

Sales for this week's drawing will continue until approximately 10:30 p.m. EDT Saturday. The drawing will be at 11 p.m. EDT.

DEARBORN, MI (SEPT. 11) UPI - Nissan's Infiniti luxury car division said Tuesday it expects to sell about 40,000 units for the 1991-model year, more than double its expected sales of about 17,000 cars this year.

During a new model preview in Dearborn, Infiniti General Manager William R. Bruce said the addition of a small $17,500 luxury sedan called the G20 and the addition of 30 more U.S. dealers to its current count of 70 by late 1991 will help the recently formed division meet next year's sales goal.

''We never said we wanted to be the biggest luxury car franchise - just the best,'' Bruce said, stressing that customer satisfaction, not sales, have always been the top priority at the Carson, Calif.-based company.

By contrast, rival Toyota's Lexus luxury car division, which began operations about a month before Infiniti's November 1989 launch, said recently it is well on its way to selling 60,000 cars this year and expects to increase sales slightly for 1991.

Lexus already has over 100 dealers, with about 123 planned by the end of this year.

While Infiniti never publicly disclosed its 1990 sales targets, Bruce conceded the company did not meet internal sales expectations, partly because of its start during a traditionally slow time of year and a ''brand philosophy'' advertising campaign that ran too long and did not focus on the cars themselves.

He also said Infiniti began with only 50 dealers, 25 less than envisioned, because of an exhaustive selection process.

''This is not a copout or a defensive,'' Bruce insisted, adding that ''Lexus has outsold us by quite a bit.

''But we never aspired to be exactly what (Lexus) wanted to be,'' he said.

Infiniti's long-range plans have not changed, Bruce said. It still plans to have between 150 and 165 dealers by the mid-1990s, with annual sales in the 85,000- to 90,000-vehicle range.

''The whole luxury car segment has growth in it, which runs counter to the general car industry,'' he said, adding he has seen no effect on Infiniti's sales because of Middle East tensions and higher gas prices. ''The luxury car market has traditionally been insulated from economic conditions.''

New to Infiniti's line for 1991 is the G20, a small, front-drive luxury sedan intended as a fuel-efficient ''entry-level product for customers moving into the luxury car segment.''

It will go on sale this month starting at $17,500 with a long list of standard features, including anti-lock brakes - but no driver's air bag. A fully equipped G20 will cost $20,000, including the three extra-cost options: automatic transaxle, leather seats and electric sun roof.

It is powered by a 16-valve, 2-liter, 140 horsepower four-cylinder engine, and should compete with cars like BMW's 3-series and the Mercedes 190 sedans.

Infiniti's flagship Q45 luxury sedan, powered by a 278 hp 4.5-liter 32-valve V-8 engine, will cost $39,000 for 1991, up $1,000 from 1990.

Added as a $4,000 option for 1991 is ''full-active suspension,'' which Infiniti claims to be a first on any U.S. production automobile. Using two computers and hydraulic pumps, it automatically controls the car's suspension to smooth bumps and reduce body lean on turns or while braking.

But there is a 2 mpg penalty for the 120-pound system, which raises the Q45's gas guzzler tax from $500 to $1,050, both of which are included in either the base or option price.

Electronic traction control, which reduces engine power to minimize wheel spin on slippery surfaces, will also be added on the Q45 for 1991 as a $1,500 option.

Also new is a convertible version of its M30 coupe, to cost just over $30,000 when it goes on sale in November. Its top is fully automatic, requiring just one touch of a button to lower or raise.

EDINBURGH, Scotland (SEPT. 11) UPI - British investigators issued their first official report Tuesday on the 1988 bombing of a Pan Am jumbo jet over Scotland in which they recommended that aircraft be strengthened to withstand bomb blasts.

In its report, which concentrated on technical matters, the British Transport Department's Air Accidents Investigation Branch also recommended improvements in the manufacture of planes' flight-recording systems, saying the ''black box'' aboard Pan Am Flight 103 did not have any record of the explosion.

The report does not cover criminal or security aspects of the disaster, which are included in separate inquiries. No one has been charged for the attack.

A team of 15 accident inspectors worked for months reconstructing the Boeing 747 that was destroyed 31,000 feet above Lockerbie, Scotland, by a bomb, killing all 259 people on board and 11 on the ground. Wreckage from the aircraft was scattered over 845 square miles.

Police and military search teams, totalling 2,500 people, meticulously combed the area for wreckage and recovered 90 percent of it, including the brass lock that was on the suitcase that contained the radio-cassette player rigged as a bomb. The huge jisgaw was put together in a hanger in Longtown, 20 miles south of Lockerbie.

The British aviation experts built a meticulous and chilling picture of the sequence of the aircraft's disintegration within two to three seconds. The report concluded the bomb had been planted in the left forward cargo hold, 23 inches from the skin of the plane.

The blast blew a large hole in the fuselage and severed the main cabin floor. The cockpit detached within two to three seconds and most of the rest of the plane disintegrated while it was descending nearly vertically from 19,000 feet to 9,000 feet.

Because the Boeing 747 was destroyed so quickly, the investigators recommended that airworthiness authorities and aircraft manufacturers seek methods to make airplanes more structurally sound to mitigate the effects of explosive devices on planes.

''The investigation has enabled a better understanding to be gained of the explosive process involved in such an event and to suggest ways in which the effects of such an explosion might be mitigated both by changes to future design and by retrospective modification of aircraft,'' the report said.

It also revealed that the flight recorder contained no record of an explosion, and suggested alterations to existing recorders and improvements to new ones so that data would be recoverable after a power loss.

The Pan Am flight recorder showed nothing unusual - it simply stoped at 19 hours, two minutes and 50 seconds on Dec. 21, 1988. The cockpit voice recorder stopped at exactly the same time ''with a sudden loud sound,'' the report said.

It was not clear whether the noise was from the explosion or the destruction of the plane.

The report recommends four steps for improving flight recorders, including a Department of Transport-funded study to devise methods of recording explosions.

Regarding the 259 passengers and crew aboard the plane, the report said most of them had suffered severe multiple injuries at different stages ''consistent with the in-flight disintegration and ground impact.''

There was no indication of a fire on board and no evidence that any of the victims had been injured by shrapnel from the explosion.

''There was also no evidence which unequivocally indicated that passengers or cabin crew had been killed or injured by the effects of the blast,'' the report said.

''Of the casualties from the aircraft the majority were found in areas which indicated they had been thrown from the fuselage during the disintegration,'' it said. The bodies of 10 passengers had not been recovered.

Dr. Jim Swire, who lost a daughter in the explosion, said the investigators deserve ''a mammoth pat on the back'' for their work to reconstruct the plane and determine exactly how it was destroyed.

He said, however, that a separate investigation must be conducted to discover the flaw in security that allowed the bomb to be loaded aboard the plane in London. Flight 103 originated in Frankfurt, West Germany, and was headed to New York after a change of aircraft in at London's Heathrow Airport.

The security improvements made in Britain after the disaster are inadequate, he said, adding that equipment designed to detect Semtex, the plastic explosive used in the bomb, should be commonly available in airports.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 11) UPI - The Environmental Protection Agency proposed new rules Tuesday to cut carbon monoxide emissions from cars in cold weather, with EPA studies showing likely pollution reductions of 29 percent a year nationwide.

The EPA said the new regulations were aimed at reducing the big grayish clouds of carbon monoxide emitted by cars in cold weather, particularly when they start up.

Cars are the major source of excessive carbon monoxide levels in the 41 cities nationwide that now exceed federal air quality standards for the pollutant, which reduces the flow of oxygen in the blood to the brain and other organs.

The proposal would for the first time set a federal limit on carbon monoxide emissions in cold weather, defined as temperatures down to 20 degrees Fahrenheit. Current federal regulations only apply down to 68 degrees Fahrenheit.

EPA officials said agency studies show recent model-year cars meet the current federal carbon monoxide limit of 3.4 grams of pollution per mile at operating conditions of 75 degrees Fahrenheit.

However, at 20 degrees Fahrenheit - where current federal standards are not in force - carbon monoxide emissions can range up to 35.9 grams per mile driven.

The new regulations set a carbon monoxide limit for cars at 10 grams per mile, applicable down to 20 degrees Fahrenheit. The new standards will be phased in, starting with 40 percent of an automaker's 1993-model year fleet and increasing to 100 percent by the 1995 model year.

EPA officials said the 3.4 grams per mile standard would remain in effect for temperatures between 68 degrees and 86 degrees Fahrenheit.

Carbon monoxide emissions result from incomplete combustion of fuel in car engines. The highest emissions occur in the first few minutes after a car is started because the engine needs extra fuel during warmup.

EPA officials say 90 percent of carbon monoxide increases at 20 degrees Fahrenheit come during ''cold starts.''

The agency said the new regulations are expected to reduce cold weather carbon monoxide emissions by 80 percent, compared with older vehicles.

EPA officials said the rules were only interim standards, based on their assessment of technological feasibility and cost-effectiveness in the short term. The agency said it is conducting long-term studies to determine if further reductions would be needed.

EPA analyses indicate the carbon monoxide rules will increase the cost of the average new car by $19 to $31. Agency officials said those additional costs will be offset by improved fuel economy resulting from improved carbon monoxide controls, which will ensure more complete fuel combustion in engines.

(SEPT. 11) UPI - Pakistani refugees who fled to Iran from Kuwait described brutality by Iraqi soldiers, shortages after the Aug. 2 invasion and the pillaging of Kuwait shops, reports from Iran said Tuesday.

The Tehran newspaper Kayhan, circulated in Athens, Greece, quoted the refugees as saying that before they left Kuwait they saw Iraqi troops arresting Kuwaitis in the streets and long queues at bakeries and food stores.

Kayhan said there were some 100,000 Pakistanis in Kuwait before the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion, and another 10,000 in Iraq. Several thousand entered Iran through Turkey, and a few hundred came across the Shalamcheh crossing point on the Iraq-Iran border.

The refugees, interviewed outside the Pakistan embassy in Tehran, said food, though available, was difficult to get in Kuwait before they left, and many of the stores had been stripped of items of daily need.

Kuwaits were being brutalized on the streets of their capital city, and some were taken away for questioning merely on being identified as Kuwaitis, the refugees were quoted as saying.

Abdul Wahid Abdullah, one Pakistani refugees, said several of his compatriots who tried to leave Kuwait through Saudi Arabia were subjected to brutal treatment by Iraqi troops at the border.

He said he knew of one case in which a Pakistani family tried to cross into Saudi Arabia. At the border, Iraqi troops ''killed the father, set the mother free (in the desert) and took the two big daughters away with them,'' Abdullah said.

Another refugee said, ''Iraqi troops in Kuwait do not behave well with women and children of the general public and treat Kuwaitis and Palestinians very badly.''

But he said Palestinians cooperated with the invaders and acted as guides for them in the city. Several Palestinians were ''carrying arms, like the Iraqi troops,'' he said.

The refugees said Iraqi troops looted shops after the invasion, but several foreigners in Kuwait, particularly Palestinians, also participated in the looting.

Kayhan said the Pakistani refugees were being given three-day transit visas in Iran to enable them to return home overland via Zahedan, near the Iran-Pakistan border.

Bangladeshis, who were being given six-day visas after reaching Tehran, were facing more difficulty getting home, and several were crossing into Pakistan, apparently to try to get back to Bangladesh over Indian territory.

PHILADELPHIA (SEPT. 11) UPI - Those with claims on some 10,000 businesses, from barber shops to factories, seized in 1972 by East Germany take heed: Sept. 16 is the deadline to file for restitution.

Earlier this year, in preparation for the reunification of Germany set for Oct. 3, the German Democratic Republic and the Federal Republic of Germany jointly created laws to assist those whose property was confiscated under the communist regime that controlled East Germany until last year.

But many who may be entitled to make claims - including individuals who held stock in companies that were seized and turned into state- controlled entitities - are unaware of the laws and deadlines, according to the Philadelphia-based law firm of Morgan, Lewis & Bockius.

In addition to the September deadline for those who lost businesses as the result of an unpublished 1972 decree, the cutoff date for filing claims for property lost after the formation of East Germany in 1949 was recently moved up to Oct. 13 from Jan. 31, 1991, a spokesman for the law firm said.

Those who fled the country, who had property confiscated or lost it through fraud, corruption or coercion are entitled to make claims. Additionally, people whose property was seized by the government from 1945 on because they were non-Germans are eligible to file for restitution.

Property covered includes businesses, real estate, mortgages, personal property, bank accounts, and claims against debtors who resided in East Germany.

''The laws and deadlines are not well-known,'' said Markham Ball, whose firm represents individuals and businesses who are making claims against East Germany.

Even U.S. citizens who have won awards against East Germany through the Foreign Claims Settlement Commission of the Justice Department now should file for compensation directly to East Germany, Ball said.

Some 1,900 awards were granted - out of 4,000 claims filed - by the commission in 1979 and 1980, but they have yet to be paid by East Germany under a lump-sum settlement agreement.

A State Department representative who asked not to be named said the agency continues to pursue the lump-sum agreement, but recognizes that ''individuals may wish to file under the new laws because they provide an opportunity to get a return of property, which would not be available under the lump-sum agreement.''

In a joint statement issued June 15, both German governments said they are committed to restoring confiscated property to rightful owners, who include the heirs of deceased claimants.

But the goverment has yet to spell out how it will value property, said Robert V. Daly, a lawyer in the Frankfurt office of Morgan, Lewis & Bockius.

''If you had a business taken away, we still don't know if you get the value of the business at that time or now,'' Daly said.

The question of whether interest due to claimants will be paid also remains unanswered, he said.

''Or you may get back a building, but it may be a wreck,'' he said. ''These are issues yet to be resolved.''

Where it is not possible to return property, the German laws provide for monetary compensation.

Additionally, there are provisions to put aside disputed property transactions since last November, when East Germans were first allowed to begin purchasing the property they were living in, Daly said.

''You can ask to have those deals set aside rather than take money back,'' he said.

To receive information about registering claims, the State Department advises contacting the Foreign Claims Settlement Commission, Washington D.C. 20579, (202) 653-5883 or the assistant legal adviser for International Claims and Investment Disputes, 2100 K Street NW, Washington D.C. 20037, (202) 632-5040.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 11) UPI - In an about-face from their much-publicized 1973 study, researchers Tuesday said they have found drinking four or more cups of coffee a day boosts the risk of heart attack by about 40 percent.

Based on the new research, a team headed by Dr. Arthur Klatzky of Kaiser Permanente Medical Center recommended people prone to heart attacks limit daily coffee consumption to less than four cups.

In the latest study, the researchers studied the relationship between coffee intake and heart attack risk among 101,774 people who underwent general checkups at Kaiser Permanente hospitals in northern California in 1978 through 1985.

During the checkup, patients were given a questionnaire asking if they drank coffee or tea, and, if so, to specify daily intake. About 28 percent of patients said they drank no coffee, about 14 percent drank less than 1 cup, 41 percent drank one to three cups, about 13 percent drank four to six cups and about 4.5 percent drank more than six cups.

After taking into consideration such factors as smoking, age, cholesterol levels, alcohol intake, blood pressure, obesity and blood sugar, researchers found people who drank four or more cups of coffee daily had a 40 percent greater incidence of heart attacks than people who drank lesser amounts.

''We were surprised at this,'' said Dr. Gary Freidman, co-author of the study published in the September issue of the American Journal of Epidemiology. ''But we decided we should not be unwilling to change our minds in the face of the new data.''

The National Coffee Association Tuesday had no immediate comment on the study.

In their 1973 article, which appeared in the Journal of the American Medical Association, the Kaiser Permanente doctors argued it was not necessary to limit coffee for people who have suffered heart attacks or were at risk of heart attacks.

''We still do not advise withdrawal of the solace of a cup or two, but our new study is consistent with the view that heavier coffee use increases myocardial infarction (heart attack) risk,'' the researchers said. ''We now suggest that persons at high risk of myocardial infarction should limit coffee use to less than four coups a day.''

Friedman emphasized the findings do not prove that coffee directly causes heart attacks. Factors not measured by the study, such as stress or certain dietary habits, may boost both coffee consumption and heart attack risk, he said.

If coffee does act directly to increase heart attack risk, researchers said it appears the culprit is something in the brew other than caffeine. The study found no increased heart attack risk among people who drank four or more cups of tea, which, like coffee, is high in caffeine.

Although some recent studies have found decaffeinated coffee and the boiled coffee common in Scandinavia raises cholesterol levels, the California study said higher cholesterol levels did not appear to be the major reason heavy coffee drinkers had a higher heart attack rate.

The possible link between coffee and heart disease was first raised by a 1963 study. However, that association was later attributed to the tendency of cigarette smokers to drink coffee. Two large studies of hospital patients in the early 1970s turned up ties between heart attacks and coffee drinking independent of smoking, but more studies in the following decade did not find such links and concern about the role of coffee in heart disease waned.

Asked what might explain the contradictory findings of the new study and the work 17 years ago, Friedman said it might stem from the increasing popularity of strong, filtered coffee in California. But more likely, the questionaire used in the latest research was more sensitive than the old questionnaire, which only asked people if they drank more than six cups of coffee a day, he said.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 11) UPI - Preliminary numbers for the 1990 census came up short of estimates, but census officials said Tuesday the totals almost certainly will increase as follow-up work continues.

Some members of Congress, however, are calling the census a failure, one that will have serious economic consequences for many areas and large groups of the U.S. population. They say minorities, in particular, were undercounted.

Census Director Barbara Bryant told a House subcommittee Tuesday that while the initial count is finished, ''the census is still in progress.''

The preliminary population count released two weeks ago was 245,837, 681. That was short of the estimated total of 250 million and Bryant acknowledged that ''some have questioned whether the count is wrong or the estimate is wrong.''

''In any case, the difference between the two figures is less than 2 percent, and will narrow as the census progresses,'' she said.

''The census count will increase in practically every jurisdiction throughout the country because of ongoing coverage improvement programs. We expect to add millions of persons before the count is delivered to the president (by Dec. 31).''

The final figures will be used to apportion representation in the House and determine the amount of federal funds to be received by various areas. Several witnesses said the count is off and probably cannot be corrected.

Rep. Donald Payne, D-N.J., disputed census figures indicating that the predominantly black city of Newark, N.J., lost 27 percent of its population over the last decade.

Rep. Norman Mineta, D-Calif., and others said the Asian-American community was significantly undercounted. That group includes ''over 3 million recent immigrants who are probably the most vulnerable to being missed by the census.''

Rep. Martin Frost, D-Texas, said warnings about the undercount of minorities went unheeded by the Census Bureau and that ''our worst fears have been realized.''

The bureau ''has done an excellent job of counting white suburbanites but, for some reason, cannot count minorities very well.''

Frost cited the case of 16 Texas counties. In eight predominantly white counties ''the 1990 count exceeded the 1988 projection and in each of the heavily Hispanic counties, the 1990 count was less'' than the projection.

''Are we to seriously believe that the Census Bureau consistently found more whites than they estimated but was unable to find even the number of Hispanics that they estimated as of 1988?'' he asked.

Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., said the census ''has failed and ... this failure could have been avoided.''

''New York City epitomizes this tragedy,'' Schumer said. ''Almost everything that could have gone wrong with the census in New York, did.''

The census count came up with a figure of about 7 million people, but city officials ''estimate an undercount of 1 million people, 200,000 missing housing units, and 6,000 blocks with discrepancies in the city alone.''

''Cities from Newark to Atlanta are reporting similar inconsistencies,'' he said.

Bryant said several post-census programs are under way to complete the count, including local government review of the preliminary figures reported last month, plus partial recanvassing and other steps. Schumer said those efforts are inadequate.

In 1980, the local review ''was little more than a minor cosmetic operation that added only 76,000 people to the count nationwide,'' Schumer said.

OTTAWA (SEPT. 11) UPI - A handful of Mohawk Indians, women and children engaged in a fierce standoff against the Canadian army Tuesday offered to surrender if the government agreed to a joint probe into alleged crimes committed during the eight-week dispute.

Mohawk negotiator Bob Antone said the Indians, who are surrounded by armed soldiers on the Kanesatake reserve south of Montreal, would lay down their weapons and surrender to police if the government accepts their latest offer. The Mohawks previously said they wanted to conduct their own investigation.

''We have offered a very flexible position,'' Antone said.

There was no immediate response to the offer from the federal or Quebec governments.

The government suspended negotiations with the Mohawks two weeks ago and repeatedly said there would be no amnesty for Indians suspected of crimes during the standoff.

The dispute began July 11 when Quebec police stormed a barricade erected by Mohawks on the Kanesatake reserve in Oka around land earmarked for a golf course expansion that the Indians claimed was an ancient burial ground. A police officer was killed in the action.

Days later, sympathetic Mohawks at the Kahnawake reserve set up barricades across major highways and the Mercier Bridge linking the town of Chateauguay to Montreal.

In August, the Quebec government ordered the Canadian army to conduct a peaceful campaign against the natives.

The standoff began to fizzle out two weeks ago when Kahnawake natives and the army agreed to jointly tear down barricades and reopened the bridge. Most of the Warriors Society, a militant faction of the Mohawk nation, fled the Kanesatake reserve, leaving only about 50 militants, women and children holed up in a drug treatment center on the Kanesatake reserves as a last defense.

The Indian negotiator Antone said the Mohawks would agree to surrender to the army and put their weapons in a ''neutral'' location until a joint commission of government representatives and Indians completed an investigation into alleged criminal actions.

Antone made it clear the Mohawks want nothing to do with Quebec police who they fear will take revenge on natives for the standoff.

Canada's top lawmaker, meanwhile, said the rule of law would apply equally to all Canadians, including natives.

Solicitor-General Pierre Cadieux told reporters he could not condone the use of high-powered weapons, violence and law-breaking by members of the Warrior Society.

''Warrior use of heavily-armed forces against law enforcement authorities is unacceptable and will not intimidate governments,'' Cadieux said.

But George Watts, chief of the Nuucha Luth tribal council on Vancouver Island, told a gathering of native chiefs in Ottawa natives should not fall under Canadian law.

''We are not Canadians and we will never be Canadians as long as we live under colonial rule,'' Watts said, adding the government and Canada's aboriginals were on a ''collision course'' because of the failure to resolve major issues such as the sovereignty of Indian nations.

BY SANA ATIYEH - UPI

AMMAN, JORDAN (SEPT. 11) UPI - If anyone should resent Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, it is Mo'ness Razzaz, whose father Muneef Razzaz was confined to house detention for six years in Baghdad until his death in 1984 because he opposed the execution of Iraqi officials.

But despite the years of psychological torment the junior Razzaz suffered while he was in Beirut awaiting the release of his parents and little sister and dealing with the shock of feeling betrayed by his own people, today he supports Iraq in every step it has taken since it invaded Kuwait on Aug. 2.

Razzaz's support for Iraq represents a feeling shared by many Jordanian intellectuals despite Saddam's undemocratic methods.

''As democratic Arab intellectuals, we are faced with only two choices: either to support the dictator (Saddam) who is trying to achieve Arab unity and a strong, modern state, or the dictators who are not only inviting, but also buying, Western colonialism in the Arab region,'' said Razzaz, a prominent Jordanian writer and newspaper columnist.

''So if it's a choice between a dictator and traitors - who are also dictators - then the choice can only be to support the dictator who happens to be a genuine Arab patriot,'' Razzaz told UPI.

Not only is the writer - whose father was a high-ranking Jordanian Ba'athist Party official and at one time described as ''Saddam's teacher'' - supporting Iraq in his columns, but he is also willing to enlist and fight alongside the Arab country if confrontation with the U.S.-led military forces should occur.

Razzaz's position, he explained, was subjective, not a ''self-centred or emotional'' one. He compared himself with a hypothetical situation with Trotsky's son: ''Trotsky's son would not join the Nazis to revenge his father's murder by Stalin; nor would he argue with Stalin over lack of democracy. He would first enlist to defend his country, and the argument over democracy can come later. It's a matter of priorities.''

Growing up in an Arab nationalist home, Razzaz could only support Iraq against any U.S. or Western intervention or aggression. As a former Ba'athist but still believing in its ideology of the one Arab nation, he also supports what he called ''uniting Kuwait with Iraq by force because 750,000 Kuwaiti millionaires would not want to peacefully unite with 14 million Iraqi peasants.''

''Bismarck and Abraham Lincoln united their own countries by force, so there is nothing wrong with that. And I don't want to hear the West talking about the importance of democracy in the Arab World because it never existed anyway,'' the writer commented.

Razzaz, author of ''Confessions of a Gunsilencer,'' a fictitious novel based on his family's experience under Iraqi detention, stressed that the priority was to gain independence from ''Western hegemony and colonialism.''

''Should the Arab nation be squeezed under the boot of the (American) marines, and thus the Arab political decision emerges from under that boot or should the decision emerge as an Arab national one? The answer must be the latter,'' Razzaz said, expressing a wide-spread belief among the intellectuals who were persecuted by the Iraqi regime and critics of Saddam's ''undemocratic measures.''

His columns, however, also carried articles saying that the Gulf crisis and the popular Arab and Iraqi support for Saddam was a good opportunity to introduce democracy into the country.

As someone who knew Saddam on a close and personal level, Razzaz said that ''playing with Saddam is extremely dangerous.''

''Saddam is not a man to pressure because the more he is pushed into a corner, the more vicious he will become. He will not ride the ship and escape, he will burn the ships and himself,'' Razzaz said, adding that the president had begun to withdraw his troops from Kuwait in the first few days after the invasion, but brought in 140,000 soldiers after he was challenged with rapid decisions taken against him.

The writer stressed that from what he knew of Saddam, if war is waged against him, the president was willing to fight until the last Iraqi was left. Razzaz recalled what Saddam had said in front of him and his father before his father was arrested.

Saddam had said: ''If I am ever defeated in a war or coup d'etat, I promise I will fire my machinegun until my arm fails to carry the gun. Then I will shoot the last bullet in my head. If I am caught alive, all you comrades are invited to come and urinate on my grave because I would deserve it.''

(SEPT. 11) UPI - News reports from Japan say Tokyo may send as many as two-thousand unarmed troops and civilians to support a multi-national force in the gulf region. Japan also says it will increase its more than one-BILLION- dollar contribution to the U-S-led effort against Iraq, but Tokyo is NOT giving a dollar figure.

President Bush will address a joint session of Congress tonight on U- S efforts in the Persian Gulf and his summit with Soviet President Gorbachev. Bush also is expected to touch on the lack of progress in budget talks with congressional leaders in his nationally broadcast speech on Capitol Hill.

New York State Supreme Court Justice Thomas Galligan today stayed true to his reputation as a tough sentencer. Galligan lambasted three youths for turning Central Park into a- quote- ''torture chamber.'' He then sentenced them to serve five to 10 years in prison in the gang rape and beating of a jogger last year.

The Office of Thrift Supervision rejects arguments by Neil Bush that he cannot be disciplined for his activities as head of a failed Colorado savings and loan. The agency wants the president's son banned from any future work at a federally insured financial institution.

The chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee says his panel will try to fill in the blanks about David Souter's judicial philosophy. But Delaware Democrat Joseph Biden says President Bush's U-S Supreme Court nominee will NOT be asked ''how he will vote'' on future cases in hearings that begin Thursday.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 11) UPI - Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter turned down the idea of a special round of subsidy payments to wheat farmers Tuesday, arguing the government already is supplying sizable income support to them.

In a letter to a key House Agriculture subcommittee chairman, Yeutter also rejected a suggestion to announce a specific land set-aside requirement for the 1991 wheat crop. He said it would be improper to do so until Congress completes work on the new farm policy law.

With wheat prices in a slump due to bumper crops in the United States and around the world, the Bush administration has faced a series of calls by Wheat Belt congressmen for more government action to prop up wheat prices or limit the size of next year's crop.

This year's crop, estimated at 2.7 billion bushels, is up 33 percent from last year and would be the third largest on record.

''Wheat prices have dropped significantly, more than most experts had expected, and that is a traumatic experience for producers,'' Yeutter said in the letter to Rep. Dan Glickman, D-Kan.

However, Yeutter rejected suggestions of making a special round of crop support payments to wheat farmers in anticipation of continued low prices. Wheat farmers received an advance deficiency payment when they enrolled in the farm program, he noted, and they can put their grain under government loan if they need additional money while waiting. The final deficiency payments will be made in a few months.

''That combination of actions by the government should give most wheat farmers a satisfactory cash flow picture for the year,'' Yeutter said.

Glickman has suggested a 20 percent land set-aside would be appropriate for next year. Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., favors 15 percent. This year's set-aside was 5 percent.

Yeutter has said the setaside for 1991 will be in the range of 10 percent to 20 percent.

''That is ... the best I can do for farmers when the legislative outcome is uncertain,'' he said.

Yeutter chastized the idea of a large set-aside or putting large amounts of grain into multiyear storage. Those ideas allow U.S. competitors to expand their share of the market at the expense of U.S. farmers, he said.

WITH U.S. FORCES IN SAUDI ARABIA (SEPT. 11) UPI - The men of the U.S. 82nd Airborne Division know that if they are given a mission to fight against Iraq, many will die.

Unlike other units deployed in Saudi Arabia, the crack paratroopers have seen action, having spearheaded the December invasion of Panama.

''There is nothing like the sound of a bullet cracking over your head,'' said Panama veteran Lt. David Woods, 24, of Pittsburgh, manning a foxhole with a Dragon anti-tank missile aimed at an adjacent road that leads to Kuwait.

But many of the 82nd troopers said during a recent visit to their positions in eastern Saudi Arabia that the action to bag Panama's Gen. Manuel Noriega - in which more than 20 died - would rate as a mere skirmish to the potential bloodshed of a war between Iraq and the American and allied Arab forces.

One officer predicted ''tens of thousands of casualties'' on either side, and this less sanguine view was shared by several other paratroopers in the division which normally has about 12,000 men.

The soldiers declared a total willingness to fight and a strong desire to test their training.

''It'd be highspeed, doing something like a jump,'' said Pvt. Tommy Riner, 19, a TOW anti-tank missileman from Cleveland, Va., manning a position overlooking a vast plateau of sand. ''It's got to be better than sitting around here.''

But a sensitivity to the potential carnage is rooted in the understanding that just as they were the first large-scale defensive deployments in Saudi Arabia, they may be the first units to take on the hazardous mission into occupied Kuwait.

Any ground offensive against Iraq would be spearheaded by M1 Abrams tanks and other heavy-duty items of America's arsenal, a role for which the 82nd with its lighter weaponry, would not be suited.

The paratroopers' task would probably be to exercise their ''forced entry capability,'' military jargon for landing by aircraft or parachute behind enemy lines to capture an objective, which is then held until ground forces hopefully link up, or more airborne troops arrive.

But as the World War II battle of Arnheim showed, when many allied soldiers died because they had been dropped in behind German lines in Holland unrealistically distant from the advance, it could be catastrophic if lightly armed paratroopers were left at the mercy of well-prepared defenders.

Although the 82nd has more firepower than all five allied airborne divisions that existed in World War II, its mission is still daunting.

Armchair strategists have earmarked Kuwait City airport as the likely airborne objective, a location that reports have said is heavily manned by Iraqi troops.

''This division could do that, take it and win,'' Sgt. Bradford R. Leach, a 24-year-old Sheridan tank commander, pondered about the airport operation. ''I would not want to do it because we would lose a lot of men. It would be a real mess of an operation.''

With the 82nd's initial mission of defending Saudi Arabia now being superceded by marines and mechanized units armed with more lethal weapons, its day-to-day role in Saudi Arabia is less defined.

Washington clearly has more options for any Middle East conflagration in keeping the 82nd on hand, but also has limited its rapid deployment capability should a crisis erupt elsewhere in the world.

The division has decided to use the time as a training exercise in desert warfare.

All its equipment can be dropped by parachute, including 17-ton Sheridan tanks and 105 mm howitzers, which come equipped with high explosive, white phospherous and anti-personnel shells.

Humvee jeeps equipped with TOW anti-tank missiles are aimed at fending off any armored attack on the paratroopers. Individual soldiers are armed with shoulder-fired armor piercing devices.

''We are normally the first to get deployed because we are the easiest to move,'' said Major Baxter Ennis. ''And we are ready for combat when we hit the ground.''

That is a situation many GIs await with trepidation.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 11) UPI - An inmate returning to prison from his work release program helped collar two muggers he saw ripping off a woman on a subway car, telling two policemen who joined the chase, ''I'm with corrections!,'' officials said Tuesday.

The convicted drug dealer was riding a train back to prison Monday at 7:40 p.m. when he spotted four men stealing a chain from a rider as the car pulled into a Brooklyn subway station.

In the next car, two undercover Transit Police officers who had been trailing the suspects gave chase as the muggers fled from the subway with the prison inmate in pursuit, said Al O'Leary, a Transit Police spokesman.

''While they were running, the man shouted, 'I'm with corrections!' and they caught two of the four suspects,'' O'Leary said.

While questioning the subway crimebuster, the officers learned that he was returning to a state correction facility in Queens after spending the day on work release.

O'Leary said the man, whom police would not identify, was serving five to 10 years in jail for selling drugs to an undercover police officer.

''He had to make it back to Queens to make 7:30 p.m. roll call,'' O'Leary said. ''So the sergeant gave him a note explaining the delay.''

The man, who had already served five years of his sentence, was slated to have his first parole hearing in 19 months and was planning to get married O'Leary said.

Police arrested Keith Johnson, 19, and Desmond Waters, 16, and charged them with second-degree robbery and second-degree assault. Early Tuesday, Transit Police arrested a third suspect, Archie Forman, 17, on the same charges, O'Leary said.

The fourth suspect was still at large.

DETROIT (SEPT. 11) UPI - Parents of a teenager who died after a botched illegal abortion Tuesday urged Michigan legislators to reject a bill identical to the Indiana parental consent law they blame for her death.

Karen and Bill Bell of Indianapolis joined the national Fund for the Feminist Majority in an emergency effort, saying the Legislature could vote on the bill as early as Wednesday. The bill, requiring consent of one parent or a judge, went to the Legislature through a referendum and cannot be vetoed.

''This beautiful 17-year-old died needlessly because others for political or moral reasons have seen to it to dictate how young women in this time of crisis must act,'' Bell said.

Bell said their daughter could not bring herself to tell her parents she was pregnant and died ''because we happened to live in the wrong state.''

''We're here to buy some time,'' said Katherine Spiller, national coordinator for the Feminist Majority. ''We're asking the Legislature to delay until they've had time to hear the Bells.''

The ''Becky Bell Campaign - Fighting for Young Women's Lives'' coincides with the second anniversary of Becky Bell's Sept. 17, 1988, death. The campaign planned stops in Ann Arbor, Lansing, Kalamazoo, Saginaw and Birmingham and candelight vigils are scheduled Monday at six college campuses around the state.

The Bells said they were a close, loving family with no secrets between them until Becky was faced with either telling them, petitioning a judge known to oppose abortions, going 110 miles to Kentucky or having it done illegally in Indianapolis.

Both said parental involvement sounds good and they probably would have favored it two years ago.

''But Becky is a perfect example of how no matter how close, how loving, there are no guarantees,'' Bell said.

''As long as there are those out there willing to write these punishing laws, I'm going to be here,'' Bell said. ''Becky wasn't a theory and her death is going to have some meaning.''

Gov. James J. Blanchard vetoed a consent law passed by the Legislature, and the referendum campaign to place it before the Legislature was launched in response to his action.

Lawmakers could enact it immediately or place it on the statewide ballot for the 1992 election.

Karen Bell said her daughter ''was a good girl'' who fell in love with her first boyfriend and when she told him she was pregnant, thinking he would marry her, ''he said, 'get the hell out of my life.''' Planned parenthood in Indianapolis told he she would have to get the consent of a parent for an abortion.

''If it could happen to our family, it could happen to any family,'' she said. ''Becky didn't want to disappoint us and tried to handle the matter herself. She felt that she had no safe options to get much needed medical care, especially since the judge in Indianapolis did not grant waivers to young women.

''Thinking she had nowhere else to turn, Becky obtained a back alley abortion and died from a massive infection. I would rather not have known about Becky's abortion and have her with me today,'' she said. ''That law killed my daughter.''

The Bells introduced a memorial bracelet, similar to those worn during the Vietnam war, which they said symbolize the impact of restrictive abortion laws.

''This is the Vietnam war for women,'' said Spiller.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 11) UPI - Iraq will ease restrictions slightly on American hostages by permitting Arab-born male U.S. citizens to leave occupied Kuwait with American women and children, the State Department said Tuesday.

The State Department termed the move an ''important development'' and said it had arranged for two more U.S.-chartered Iraqi Airways jetliners to airlift more Americans from Kuwait - one Wednesday, one Friday. They would bring to five the number of American evacuation flights since Friday.

However, the department warned U.S.-born American men hiding out in Kuwait that they ''remain subject to detention and arrest'' by Iraqi troops, who invaded Kuwait Aug. 2.

The change by Iraq, which began allowing women and children to leave Kuwait last week, followed the joint superpower demand at the Helsinki summit that Iraq withdraw from the gulf emirate, tightening the diplomatic noose around Baghdad, which already is being choked by economic sanctions that Washington views as nearly 100 percent foolproof.

''In our view, there is absolutely no doubt that the sanctions are effective,'' State Department spokesman Richard Boucher said.

''Desperate moves such as the Iraqi offer of free oil to some nations, which is an attempt to circumvent the sanctions, are proof that the sanctions are working.''

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein offered free oil to Third World countries that could come and get it - through a naval blockade made up mainly of U.S. warships - in an attempt to crack the trade embargo imposed by the United Nations.

About 1,700 Americans remain trapped in Kuwait, but there was no breakdown of how many are women, children, men born in the United States or men born in Arab countries. Another 100 Americans are in Iraq, Boucher said.

These include ''just under 90'' Americans being detained by the Iraqis in Iraq and Kuwait, he said. Those captives have been described as ''human shields'' for Iraqi military and industrial installations.

About 600 Americans have been evacuated thus far from Iraq and Kuwait, Boucher told a briefing. A U.S. consular official has been traveling from Baghdad to Kuwait to help departing Americans, who must get to the airport themselves for the charter flights, he said.

The U.S. Embassy in Kuwait, surrounded by troops and cut off from water and electricity, is operating under ''extremely trying conditions, '' Boucher said. He declined to provide details.

He said Iraq made the distinction between American-born and Arab-born adult males, indicating it was a unilateral decision rather than the result of negotiations between Iraqi and U.S. officials. Iraq previously has permitted other Arab nationals to depart Iraq and Kuwait.

''It's a decision that we will, of course, take advantage of and try to move as many people out as we can,'' Boucher said. He said the United States continues to press for freedom for the ''large number'' of Americans and other foreign nationals ''who are being held by the Iraqis, who are not being permitted to leave.

Britain and Canada also have chartered evacuation flights.

In addition, an American held by Iraq was released Monday into the custody of the U.S. Embassy in Baghdad, Boucher said. The man was not identified.

Further, the Iraqi Foreign Ministry agreed to hand over to the embassy the body of James Worthington, an American who died of a heart attack last week, Boucher said. The body may return to the United States on one of this week's charter flights, he said.

No consular access has been granted to an American shot and wounded by an Iraqi soldier in Kuwait last week and his whereabouts are unknown, Boucher said.

The Voice of America began broadcasting the new appeal Monday for Arab-born U.S. male citizens to break cover and join women and children waiting for flights out of Kuwait, Boucher said.

''U.S. citizen males born in Iraq, Kuwait or any other Arab country should contact the U.S. Embassy in Kuwait immediately as it is our understanding that they may be eligible for departure,'' the announcement said.

''U.S. citizen males born in the United States remain subject to detention and arrest and Iraq will not - repeat, will not - permit them to depart the country,'' it said. ''Indeed, the Iraqi authorities are continuing to pick up and detain U.S.-born American citizens.''

AUSTIN, TX (SEPT. 11) UPI - The Texas prison board Tuesday ordered an official review of the use of convicts to train tracking dogs, the same day Vice Chairman Charles Hodge - who was at the center of a controversial ''inmate hunt'' - became acting chair of the panel.

Texas Board of Criminal Justice Chairman Charles Terrell, who announced his intention to leave at the August board meeting, officially presented Gov. Bill Clements his resignation letter Tuesday, effective immediately.

Since Clements has not yet announced his replacement, Hodge said attorneys have advised him that he is now acting chairman.

Hodge declined to comment on whether he anticipates or wants to be appointed Terrell's permanent replacement.

Hodge also declined any further comment on the dog hunts.

''I'm not going to comment about anything on the dog hunts. I've talked about that all I am,'' he said. ''So that's a dead issue as far as I'm concerned.''

Hodge was initially believed to be designated to replace Terrell, but shortly before Clements was expected to announce his appointment, became the focus of the controversy over the use of inmates on dog training ''hunts.''

Hodge in April 1989 invited two bear hunting buddies to participate in a horseback hunt of prisoners using the tracking dogs at the Ellis II Unit in Huntsville. Following the exercise, he presented his friends with jackets that read, ''The Ultimate Hunt.''

The reports prompted the Texas Civil Liberties to call for Hodge's immediate resignation. Critics called the practice dangerous and demeaning.

The governor declined the TCLU request to seek Hodge's resignation, saying the practice was legitimate. However, he said Hodge showed ''poor judgment'' in inviting friends to review the procedure and in ordering the jackets.

The ensuing public outcry, however, prompted Terrell to apppoint a subcommittee of the board to study the dog training program to see if there was any danger to inmates.

On Sept. 4, that three-member panel recommended a full review of policies regarding dog training. It also recommended suspension of inmate-dog ''engagement'' at the conclusion of tracking exercises until headgear could be purchased to supplement other protective clothing issued to convicts.

Prison officials immediately complied with the recommended suspension, which was formally adopted with the other recommendations Tuesday.

At the meeting, prison officials showed board members helmets they have ordered. The helmets, which are used in the sport lacrosse, are similar to baseball batting helmets with a faceguard.

Andy Collins, director of the Texas Department of Criminal Justice's institutional division, said prison officials expect to have the helmets for prisoners ''any day now.''

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 11) UPI - The elderly could pay more for Medicare coverage now that Democrats at the bipartisan budget talks have nearly doubled the amount by which they have offered to cut spending on federal benefit programs.

No specifics were available Tuesday on the possible size of possible cuts in Medicare spending next year - or whether beneficiaries, doctors or hospitals would take the biggest hit.

But larger cuts in benefit program spending could mean higher costs to senior citizens through higher monthly premiums for Medicare coverage and a larger annual deductible - the costs beneficiaries pay before Medicare kicks in.

Federal payments to doctors or hospitals also are expected to be cut by budget negotiators.

Democrats late Monday night offered to increase from $7.2 billion to $13.9 billion the amount they were willing to cut spending next year on benefit programs such as Medicare, according to an aide to a Democratic negotiator.

Republicans had pushed for even larger cuts in benefit programs, so Democratic negotiators moved closer to the GOP position.

The Democratic aide said Tuesday that while Democrats had nearly doubled their proposed cuts in benefit programs, they had not adopted specific policies to back up the higher number.

''We moved substantially in their direction,'' the Democratic aide said of the Republicans. ''They have moved very little.''

Republicans remained ''absolutely rigid and inflexible'' after Democrats made their new offer, moving toward GOP positions on domestic spending, taxes and defense, the Democratic aide said. Even so, talks were very heated at times.

The aide said Republican negotiators ''were threatening to walk out'' of the talks late Monday night, even after the Democrats offered their new proposal. One Democratic negotiator called the GOP response to the new Democratic proposal ''arrogant,'' the aide said.

Negotiators met again Tuesday at Andrews Air Force Base, about 15 miles east of Washington, a day after their unofficial deadline passed for reaching agreement on a plan to cut the deficit by $50 billion in fiscal year 1991, which begins Oct. 1, and by $500 billion over five years.

No agreement was expected Tuesday and negotiators recessed the talks in midafternoon and returned to Capitol Hill for votes and to listen to President Bush's speech to a joint session of Congress Tuesday night.

Negotiators were expected to return to the bargaining table - a converted bar at the officers club at Andrews - on Wednesday.

Among the choices faced by budget negotiators on Medicare is whether to raise monthly premiums for coverage and whether to raise the deductible - the annual cost paid by beneficiaires before Medicare starts paying.

The administration had initially proposed raising the Medicare Part B annual deductible from $75 to $100, which would raise $360 million next year and $5.3 billion over five years.

The monthly Medicare premium of $28.60 a month may also be raised but it was not clear whether the Medicare co-payment - the 20 percent of doctor and hospital costs paid by beneficiaries - will go up as well.

The biggest possible savings in Medicare payments to hospitals are found in three areas, a Democratic aide said.

One is the market basket, which is how much a bunch of goods or services that cost $1,000 this year will cost next year. The government could raise payments to hospitals by less than the increase in the cost of the market basket.

Bush had originally proposed savings in this area of $600 million next year and about $4 billion over five years.

The second big hospital savings area is capital - payments for big medical equipment purchases and renovation costs. The administration proposed savings of $1.5 billion in this area next year and $10.4 billion over five years.

The third area is in payments for medical education and to medical teaching hospitals. Bush has proposed cutting those payments by $1 billion next year and by $7.2 billion over five years.

ANKARA, TURKEY (SEPT. 11) UPI - Defense Minister Safa Giray said Tuesday Turkey was aware of an Iraqi troop buildup near its southeastern border and was ''ready to counter any attack.''

Giray said Turkey has not moved more of its own troops to the southeastern region close to the Iraqi border at this stage, but noted ''the (Turkish) 2nd Army is located there.''

Giray told United Press International Ankara was aware Iraq has built up its military strength close to the southeastern border over the past month but he did not go into details.

''We are ready to counter any attack,'' he said.

Earlier reports said Iraq had moved some 30,000 troops from the Iraq- Iran border to areas closer to Turkey, which shares a 200-mile border with Iraq. There was no immediate confirmation of the reports from Turkish sources.

Turkey is the only member state of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to share a common border with Iraq, and NATO officials said last month that an attack on Turkey would be considered an attack on the Atlantic Alliance.

Giray said two frigates from the Turkish navy were standing by at the Golcuk naval base near Istanbul, but had not yet received orders to sail to the Gulf to join a multinational force in the region. They would sail if the government ordered them to do so, he said.

Last week, the Turkish Parliament, acting on the recommendations of President Turgut Ozal, voted to give more war powers to the government of Prime Minister Yildirim Akbulut,

Under the new legislation, the government was empowered to send troops into combat abroad and to allow foreign allied forces to be stationed on Turkish soil. The government has not yet sent troops to join the multinational force in Saudi Arabia.

Sources close to the chief of the general staff said although the armed forces would carry out any orders from the civilian government, the military believed Turkey should stay out of an armed conflict with Iraq.

Opposition groups, led by the Social Democratic Populist Party, have strongly criticized the move to give more powers to the government to wage war.

The Social Democrats said only Parliament had the right, under the constitution, to declare war. The party Tuesday challenged the latest legislation in the Constitutional Court. Akbulut said his government had no intention of taking the country into war.

Ankara was one of the first capitals to announce it would comply with U.N. Security Council sanctions against Iraq for invading Kuwait and cut a twin Iraqi pipeline carrying oil to a Mediterranean terminal.

The decision to comply with U.N. sanctions is estimated to have cost Turkey some $2.3 billion in lost trade and revenue from the pipeline, but the Kuwaiti government-in-exile has pledged to help Ankara make good the loss.

SAN FRANCISCO (SEPT. 11) UPI - Eleven prostitutes filed an appeal Tuesday with the California Supreme Court contending a 1989 state law mandating AIDS testing of convicted prostitutes or their customers is an invasion of privacy.

The appeal is the first legal challenge to the 1989 law to make it before the high court justices.

A state court of appeal late Monday refused a request by San Francisco public defender Grace Suarez, who represents the 11 prostitutes, to overturn the AIDS testing requirement.

The order refusing to hear the appeal by Suarez also dissolved the stay that had prevented the testing until the issue was resolved.

Suarez said Tuesday, ''I fully expect they (San Francisco) will go ahead with the testing now.''

Only the California Supreme Court could step in at this point to halt the blood tests while the issue is thrashed out.

The prostitutes, nine women and two men, were ordered to undergo the blood tests after convictions for prostitution.

Suarez contended the law amounted to an unconstitutional invasion of privacy.

Superior Court Judge Lucy Kelly McCabe ruled Sept. 5 that she did not believe the law ran afoul of the constitution.

McCabe said it was a matter of ''the right to privacy versus safeguarding the public and I don't see anything that says this law is inappropriate.''

The appeal court left that order intact, prompting the appeal to the state Supreme Court.

Although the law mandates that blood tests should be performed on the people who hire the prostitutes, none of the 11 involved in the pending appeal involves customers.

The Supreme Court could act at any time on the request for a hearing on the appeal.

The law also requires convicted prostitutes and their customers to undergo five hours of AIDS education. Suarez said that part of the law was not being challenged.

MIAMI (SEPT. 11) UPI - The court-appointed trustee for Eastern Airlines ended the carrier's 100-day service-improvement campaign Tuesday by declaring victory and unveiled a new strategy to win back lucrative business travelers.

''We didn't promise a quick turnaround,'' Martin Shugrue told employees gathered in an airline hangar for a question-and-answer session with their boss. ''We promised we'd get better, and better we got.''

Shugrue fielded questions while standing in front of a gleaming jet - one of 45 planes with expanded first-class cabins designed to lure business fliers back to the beleaguered carrier.

Eastern said it plans to remodel its entire fleet of 157 jets by October at a cost of $8 million. ''This is not a short-term promotion. This is a fundamental change,'' Shugrue said.

Also Tuesday, Eastern said it will introduce a ''corporate rate'' on Oct. 1 for first-class seats at prices below comparable coach fares on other airlines.

Although Eastern continues to lose money, Shugrue told employees the airline improved its on-time performance, baggage handling and meal service since the 100-day campaign began in June.

''We have a big, deep hole to climb out of. We're not there yet,'' Shugrue told the 1,500 or so assembled employees. ''We still have a long way to go.''

Film crews positioned behind the crowd captured footage for future television commercials featuring Shugrue. Those commercials could begin airing by the end of the month, a spokeswoman said.

Although Shugrue declined to say later how much money Eastern is losing, he said the airline's financial performance improved in August, despite higher fuel costs triggered by the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

Higher fuel costs have added $5 million to $10 million a month to Eastern's costs, he said.

Shugrue also said Eastern will need to tap into the money set aside from its asset sales before the end of this year, but he declined to predict when this would happen.

The airline has withdrawn $500 million from the account to date, including $50 million withdrawn in August. About $1 billion remains.

Eastern filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection in March 1989, five days after its three unions staged a crippling walkout.

U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Burton Lifland appointed Shugrue to run Eastern earlier this year, after taking control away from Eastern's parent, Continental Air Holdings, formerly known as Texas Air Corp.

ABIDJAN, IVORY COAST (SEPT. 11) UPI - President Samuel Doe of Liberia, who apparently was killed by rebels in the capital Monrovia Sunday, was about to surrender when he died, diplomatic sources in Monrovia said Tuesday.

After more than eight months of civil war, Doe had left his beachside mansion for the first time since July order to turn himself over to the five-nation peacekeeping force that has occupied much of the city, they said.

Instead, he was wounded in a gun battle and died a hostage of Prince Johnson, one of the two rebel leaders fighting to overthrow the government according to witnesses and the U.S. State Department. His body has not, however, been recovered.

Doe's death leaves the leadership of war-torn West African country in disarray. Four different men have claimed to succeed the president of 10 years - rival rebel leaders Johnson and Charles Taylor, Brig. Gen. David Nimlay, who was Doe's own choice as his successor, and a president-in-exile in Gambia.

''The situation as to who is in charge is very confused,'' said State Department spokesman Richard Boucher in Washington.

U.S. officials said Washington is not ready to recognize any government leader in Liberia and cannot predict whether Doe's ouster of President Samuel Doe will mean a peaceful resolution or more violence.

State Department and White House officials also said they still had not been able to confirm Doe was killed by forces under rebel leader Prince Johnson, although Boucher said ''we accept'' such reports as true.

''We have no way of knowing'' whether the violence in Liberia will end soon, "White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said at his daily briefing. ''It seems unlikely when you still have two rebel forces that are armed and fighting each ''ach

Diplomatic sources said they expected Taylor, who leads the largest force of dissidents, use the confusion to his advantage and win control of the city.

''The next 24 hours are absolutely crucial. Now that Doe is gone and his army is disintegrating, there is nothing to stop Charles Taylor's forces wreaking revenge on all the government forces they can find,'' one diplomat said.

Until now Taylor's forces have been prevented from entering the city by government troops under Doe's control who have held him back on the eastern side of the city.

His troops are stronger than Johnson's and control two-thirds of the country. Johnson, however, has the strategically important city center and the port areas.

When Doe left the mansion to surrender, he put the country under the control of the armed forces chief, Nimlay, diplomats said. Nimlay established the National Interim Defense Council to run the few remaining square miles of government-held territory, and said in an interview with the British Broadcasting Corp. Monday that his first task was to seek a cease-fire.

But a cease-fire now seems extremely unlikely.

''The streets of Monrovia are stangely empty and everybody is in hiding,'' a diplomat said.

A truce between Johnson and Doe agreed Aug. 23 is now seen as a having been a sham that is not likely to be repeated. ''Prince Johnson was playing for time and clearly had no intention of keeping to the cease-fire if he managed to get his hands on Doe,'' a source said.

The two men have fought to topple Doe for eight months. The civil war in the country the size of Oregon state has claimed thousands of lives and driven more than 500,000 Liberians from their country, according to the U.N. Council for Refugees.

Wearied by a battle he clearly was losing, Doe had gone with his bodyguard to the headquarters of the peacekeeping force of the Economic Community of West African States to surrender, the sources said.

He arrived at the same time as Johnson, and fighting broke out. Doe was shot in both legs and 64 people were killed, witnesses said.

They alternately said Doe died from his gunshot wounds, and that he suffered fresh injuries after being taken to Johnson's headquarters where he died Sunday night.

Members of the peacekeeping force did little or nothing to prevent the gun battle breaking out or to prevent Doe from being taken prisoner, said diplomats who had spoken to witnesses.

In Harare, President Dawda Jawara of Gambia, head of the West African alliance that raised the peacekeeping force for Liberia, said troops have been ordered to protect Doe's family and supporters.

OTTAWA (SEPT. 11) UPI - The union president representing some 4,000 Boeing de Havilland workers urged the Canadian government Tuesday to get ''involved'' in the proposed sale of the division to a European consortium.

Boeing Co. of Seattle announced in July that it was holding discussions with France's Aerospatiale and Italy's Aeritalia, who jointly own Avion de Transport Regional, concerning the future of its Canadian division.

Bob White, president of the Canadian Auto Workers union, met with Canada's industry, science and technology minister Benoit Bouchard to tell him that Canada cannot afford to abandon de Havilland to foreign control.

''This is one of the few industries where Canadians are on the cutting edge of new technology,'' said White.

It makes no sense for the government to ''abandon'' de Havilland after all the public money it has invested in the aircraft manufacturer's development, White added.

The Canadian government bought de Havilland from Britain's Hawker Siddeley Aviation in 1974. In the next 11 years, Canadian taxpayers spent hundreds of millions of dollars on developing de Havilland's short takeoff and landing airline technology.

Since the sale of de Havilland to Boeing in Jan., 1986, the division has continued to receive monies from a government program to assist Canadian companies in the defense and aerospace industries.

White said there are rumors that thousands of jobs will be lost at de Havilland's suburban Toronto location if the sale goes ahead and that contractors across the country could also be affected.

De Havilland manufactures the Dash 8 36-seat Series 100 and 50-seat Series 300 regional airliners.

Analysts have speculated that a purchase by ATR could lead to an end of the Dash 8, resulting in downsizing at de Havilland.

ATR currently manufactures the 28- to 52-seat Air 42s and the 58- to 70-seat Air 72s commuter airliners.

HALIFAX, NOVA SCOTIA (SEPT. 11) UPI - A Boeing 727 with 18 people aboard ditched in the northern Atlantic Ocean Tuesday about 180 miles south of Newfoundland, officials of Canada's Transportation Safety Board said.

''It's in the water right now,'' said a board spokesman in Ottawa. There were no immediate reports of casualties.

David Owen, the Board's Atlantic regional manager, said the Peruvian airplane left Keflavik, Iceland earlier Tuesday bound for Gander airport and was reportedly on its way to Miami. The last contact with the plane was believed to be at 2:20 p.m. EDT, he said.

Owen said Canadian search and rescue authorities on Canada's east coast have mounted a search for the jetliner.

The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation reported the plane ran low on fuel after it wandered far off its intended course. The plane was to refuel in Gander, Newfoundland before heading to Miami.

Lloyd Brown, regional marine superintendent of the Canadian Coast Guard, said in a telephone interview from Halifax, Nova Scotia that the plane's pilot last radioed authorities at 2:20 p.m. EDT.

''A mayday was issued. The aircraft was low on fuel,'' said Brown, who was unable to confirm whether the plane wandered off course.

He said the airline was owned by Fawcett Airlines of Peru, a registered company that was established in 1928.

''The pilot said he was ditching,'' said Brown. The plane, with 18 people on board, went down 180 miles southeast of Cape Race, Newfoundland, he said.

Brown said search and rescue officials have mounted a massive hunt for the plane with two Aurora aircraft from Greenwood, Nova Scotia, two Labrador helicopters from Gander, Newfoundland and a Buffalo aircraft dispatched from Summerside, Prince Edward Island.

Other aircraft are on standby, according to Brown, while Coastguard and commercial ships have also responded to the mayday.

There was good visibility in the area of the crash, Brown said, and winds were from the southeast at 10 to 15 miles per hour.

TORONTO (SEPT. 11) UPI - Negotiations to end a day-old strike by union paperworkers at seven Abitibi-Price Inc. newsprint mills in eastern Canada broke off Tuesday, the company said.

Spokeswoman Sharon Paul said Canadian Paperworkers Union representatives will be taking the company's latest offer to the membership.

Paul declined to say whether the break off in talks was positive or negative, saying, ''We have presented what we believe is a very fair offer.''

On Monday, union members at mills in Ontario, Quebec and Newfoundland set up pickets, shutting down seven of the company's nine mills in eastern Canada. The strike affected about 4,700 workers, Paul said, 4, 500 of whom belong to the CPU.

The union's chief negotiator, John McInnes, confirmed in a statement that negotiations broke down and that ''bargaining committees will be reporting to their membership throughout the week.''

Mills in Iroquois Falls and Thunder Bay, Ontario; Chandler, Quebec, and Grand Falls and Stephenville, Newfoundland were closed Monday. The mills collectively produce 1.18 million ton of newsprint a year, or roughly 62 percent of Abitibi-Price's total output, Paul said.

Paul said the company's offer ''reflects the pattern settlement, reached at Stone-Consolidated Inc. of Montreal in July, plus significant improvements in the areas of vacation pay and day work schedules.''

The CPU's 2,350 workers at Stone-Consolidated voted 56 percent in favor of a contract that will see raise wages by 5.5 percent each year of a three-year deal. Under the deal, base salaries will increase from $13.06 an hour to $15.34 an hour over the course of the contract.

On Monday, a union spokesman said the company had accepted the union's wage package and that talks were focused on two issues: tasks assigned to tradesman and running time on statutory holidays.

Operations at four Abitibi-Price mills in Manitoba, Quebec, Georgia and Alabama have not been affected by the strike, Paul said.

Contracts between the CPU and Abitibi-Price expired on April 30.

GUATEMALA CITY (SEPT. 11) UPI - Inflation has reached an all-time high in Guatemala, and the problem is expected to worsen in September, a National Statistics Institute official said Tuesday.

Neftali Hernandez, the institute's manager, said the cost of living rose 50 percent between January and August this year. This rate is ''without precedent in our history,'' she said.

Hernandez estimated that there will be this month ''a significant increase in prices, considering the rise in the price of oil.'' Gasoline prices went up 40 cents a gallon last week.

Inflation for 1989 was reported as 20.17 percent by the statistics institute -nearly 30 percent less than price increases for the first eight months of 1990.

Prices of food staples have risen substantially in 1990, with eggs and rice increasing by nearly 200 percent and beans by 300 percent.

JERUSALEM (SEPT. 11) UPI - Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir said Tuesday that Iraq may attack Israel if war breaks out in the Persian Gulf with the aim of showing the Arab world that it is the only country capable of defeating Israel.

In comments to visiting former Norwegian Prime Minister Kare Kristiansen, Shamir said Israel must be prepared for any possibility and was prepared. He told the visiting Norwegian dignitary that an attack probably would come either through Jordan, which has common borders with both Israel and Iraq, or through bombing runs by air, Shamir aides said.

''This is not up to us, but it is possible Iraq will try to attack us in order to demonstrate to the Arab world that they are the only state that has the capability to defeat Israel,'' Shamir told Kristiansen.

Shamir also said that when the gulf crisis ends, it may be easier for Israel to find Palestinians willing to negotiate a settlement to the Israeli-Palestinian conflict.

''I'm optimistic that with the end of the crisis it will be easier to find partners with Palestinians,'' he said. ''And the Americans will not pressure us for inclusion of the PLO'' in negotiations.

Shamir told Kristiansen he believed Palestinians understood that violence would not achieve anything, ''but every night there are deaths not by our army, but by the Arabs.''

In a related development, Defense Minister Moshe Arens said Tuesday he expected significantly more aid from the United States to Israel in light of the gulf crisis. The issue of aid will be discussed during his visit to the United States next week, he said.

Arens, speaking to the Knesset Security and Foreign Affairs Committee, said Israeli arms superiority did not exist at the moment because the United States was selling the same arms both to Israel and the Arab states. But he said there was an understanding in Washington of Israeli defense needs.

''We have been in contact with the United States about our defense needs, and we do feel there will be significantly more aid to Israel from the United States,'' Arens said. ''I hope that this (understanding) will be reflected in additional aid.''

The defense minister said Israel's financial situation does not allow it to produce all the arms it has developed and he hopes to get the United States to sponsor additional projects like the ''Arrow'' anti- ballistic missile program.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 11) UPI - A man and woman climbed atop the Times Square recruiting office for the U.S. armed forces, setting fire to an American flag after dousing the building with a flammable liquid, authorities said.

The pair, who claimed to be members of a group called, ''Refuse and Resist '' was nabbed and the blaze extinguished before flames could engulf the recruiting center at Times Square, said Sgt. Fernando McLean, the officer in charge.

''They're fanatics. They should be sent to Iraq,'' McLean said.

An office worker spotted the couple, who both wore bandanas around their heads, about 8:40 a.m. near the flagpole on the roof of the one- story building, the sergeant said.

''They were dousing the building with some type of a flammable liquid and proceeded to light the flag,'' McLean said

The worker then called police at the nearby stationhouse.

''They wanted to set the whole building on fire, but it wasn't a minute or two before we had the police officers here,'' he said.

The protesters were identified as Joseph Urgo of Paramus, N.J., and Shawn Eichman of Manhattan.

Both were charged with attempted arson, criminal trespass, resisting arrest, burglary and assault, police said.

NORFOLK, VA (SEPT. 11) UPI - F-14 Tomcats and other aircraft from the carrier USS Dwight D. Eisenhower made a roaring return to Virginia Tuesday after Middle East duty in support of Operation Desert Shield.

Three squadrons flew into Oceana Naval Air Station at Virginia Beach and another returned to the Norfolk Naval Air Station. About three dozen aircraft were greeted at the installations by family and friends.

Aviators said jets were flying night and day after Iraq invaded Kuwait. The Eisenhower battle group's scheduled six-month deployment to the Mediterranean Sea was altered as part of the U.S. military buildup in the Persian Gulf region.

The Eisenhower and its support ships were some of the first to maneuver in support of Operation Desert Shield.

The Eisenhower and the guided-missile cruiser USS Ticonderoga, carrying a total of more than 5,000 sailors, were to return Wednesday to Norfolk Naval Station.

During deployment the Eisenhower and support ships traveled through the Suez Canal into the Red Sea shortly after the invasion of Kuwait, to bolster a U.S. embargo against Iraq.

They remained in the region until being relieved by ships from the carrier USS Saratoga battle group.

Several other vessels from the 11-ship Eisenhower battle group began returning to East Coast ports late last week. The ships departed on March 8.

More than 30,000 military personnel from southeastern Virginia have been deployed in the midst of the Middle East crisis. Reservists have had to take over a large share of military support activities in the region.

The aircraft from Carrier Air Wing 7 that returned to Hampton Roads

Tuesday included Attack Squadron 34, Fighter Squadron 142, Fighter Squadron 143 and Carrier Airborne Early Warning Squadron 121. The aircraft included F-14s, A-6s and E-2s.

Aircraft from the carrier air wing also returned to bases in Florida and Washington.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 11) UPI - The dollar again strengthened in New York trading Tuesday as currency investors bought it on the perception that the Federal Reserve will not lower short-term interest rates any time soon.

Currency traders said participants continued to cover short positions - deals to sell the dollar made earlier when it was falling in value - in a general adjustment of positions following the release of last week's U.S. jobless data.

Before these stronger-than-expected figures came out, investors saw a Fed easing of short-term rates as imminent. Lower interest rates would cut the return on dollar holdings, undermining the unit.

But now most analysts don't see the Fed easing - pumping up the money supply - until recessionary signs are a lot stronger or until inflation comes off the boil.

Late in the New York session, the dollar traded at 1.5850 German marks, up from 1.5815 Monday, and 140.25 Japanese yen, up from 139.55.

Last week's unemployment data ''didn't give us any serious cues for the near term,'' said Shearson Lehman Brothers analyst Lisa Finstrom. So the market sees the dollar as firm unless more bad economic news is in hand.

Morris Armstrong, a Girozentrale Vienna vice president, said there was ''very, very good commercial demand for the dollar,'' pointing to importers, big corporations and other non-investment currency players.

Other New York dollar rates: 1.3210 Swiss francs, up from 1.3165; 5.3100 French francs, up from 5.2980; and 1,182 Italian lire, up from 1,181.60.

The British pound eased to $1.8565 from $1.8585.

In Europe, the dollar closed stronger as Persian Gulf tensions eased and the currency market concluded U.S. interest rates would hold steady.

''The perception is that peace will be given a chance,'' said George Magnus, an analyst with S.G. Warburg Securities. ''So the market is unwinding down from an initial flight into Swiss banks and sterling.''

But the dollar can be expected to continue soft despite feelings U.S. interest rates would not come down in the near future, Magnus warned.

In London, the pound kept sliding against the dollar, reflecting the market's annoyance with British hesitation over bringing sterling into the exchange rate mechanism of the European Monetary System.

Britain's pound sterling ended at $1.8505 vs $1.8560.

The dollar rose in Frankfurt, to 1.5925 German marks from Monday's close of 1.5825, and in Zurich, to 1.3305 Swiss francs from 1.3185.

The U.S. unit moved up in Paris, Brussels and Milan, to, respectively: 5.3420 French francs vs. 5.2800, 32.74 Belgian francs vs. 32.48, and 1,188.25 Italian lire vs. 1,175.40.

Earlier in Tokyo, the dollar inched up from the 11-month low it set against the yen the previous day. Cautious dealers bought the dollar on fears it might have been oversold, lifting it to 139.85 yen vs. 139.43.

But Daiwa Bank dealer Tsuyoshi Kojima said investor sentiment toward the U.S. currency remained bearish, given U.S. economic prospects.

Gold closed lower in Zurich, to $380.50 an ounce from $385.35, and in London, to $381 an ounce from $385.25.

Republic National Bank in New York closed cash gold at $381.50 an ounce, up from $379.25 Monday. The New York Commodity Exchange settled contract gold at $380.50 an ounce, aheady from $378.60.

Silver rose in Zurich, to $4.80 an ounce from $4.7850, and in London, to $4.82 an ounce from $4.79.

Republic closed cash silver at $4.81 an ounce, up from $4.80. Comex silver ended at $4.777 an ounce, up from $4.755.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 11) UPI - The auto industry, fearing Middle East oil jitters may stampede Congress into ''panic'' energy conservation measures, launched a major lobbying effort Tuesday to halt a Senate bill to raise fuel economy standards for cars.

In a rare show of unity, U.S. and foreign automakers held a joint news conference to denounce the bill, which would require car manufacturers to increase the average fuel efficiency of their fleets to 40 miles per gallon by 2001, up from the current 27.5 mpg.

The automakers also released letters to Congress from Energy Secretary James Watkins and Transportation Secretary Samuel Skinner expressing the Bush administration's strong opposition to the bill. The White House budget office also issued a statement saying President Bush's senior advisers would recommend he veto the bill.

The letters echoed the automakers' main argument that the bill would effectively require the production of more smaller, lighter cars. The result, they said, would be reduced safety, lower sales, fewer jobs for auto workers and less choice for Americans at the car lot, particularly for those seeking big cars.

That argument was disputed by Sen. Richard Bryan, D-Nev., main sponsor of fuel economy bill, at a House hearing where environmentalists and a congressional expert on cars said better fuel economy is possible with current technology and without major ''down-sizing.''

Bryan noted that when Congress first enacted fuel economy requirements in 1974, automakers sounded the same dire warnings about consumers being stuck with small cars, with Ford saying most Americans would have to drive a compact Pinto or smaller car.

''These predictions would come as a surprise to (Americans) today,'' Bryan told a House interior subcommittee.''I think it is fair to say that not many are driving around in cars smaller than Pinto.''

Peter Blair, a car expert with Congress's Office of Technology Assessment, said the U.S. car fleet could average 38 miles per gallon by the 2001 with only modest additional technology development.

The industry's public relations campaign comes as the Senate prepares to take up Bryan's bill, which was approved by the Senate Commerce Committee on a 14-4 vote April 3. Bryan said Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell of Maine has promised to try to bring his bill to the floor this week if time permits.

Meanwhile, 13 House members wrote to House Speaker Thomas Foley, D- Wash., seeking a commitment that the House will vote on Bryan's bill or similar legislation before Congress quits for the year.

The fuel economy legislation has received a major boost from the Persian Gulf crisis, which has re-ignited national concern over America's heavy dependence on foreign oil, which reached record levels earlier this year.

Supporters of the fuel economy bill say the nation will not be able to wean itself from imported oil unless motor vehicles - the largest single oil-using sector - become more efficient.

However, automakers charged Bryan's bill is technologically unfeasible unless new cars were made much smaller and lighter than current models, which already are 1,000 pounds lighter than in the 1970's.

Beyond further size reductions, ''there is no secret or magic technology on the shelf to drastically increase fuel economy,'' said Thomas Hanna, president of the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association of the United States.

Hanna acknowledged the industry had a credibility problem in making those arguments, given its warnings in the 1970's about inevitable down- sizing.

''I recognize we have a problem,'' Hanna said. ''Manufacturing companies have done better than they thought they would (in meeting current fuel economy standards).''

Still, Al Slechter, Chrysler's government affairs director, told reporters the public must realize that ''we are at a different plateau than we were in 1975.''

''In 1975, we had fat cars,'' he said. ''(Today) we are getting about everything we can get.''

ORLANDO, Fla. (SEPT. 11) UPI - The average price of gasoline sold nationwide rose 2.1 cents a gallon in the past week, to the second highest level since the Persian Gulf crisis began, the American Automobile Association said Tuesday.

The AAA said the average price of regular gasoline sold at self- service pumps rose to $1.294 a gallon, up 21.9 cents since Aug. 1, the day before Iraq invaded Kuwait and sent the crude oil prices soaring.

Although the average price nationwide rose since last Wednesday, it is still below the high of $1.307 reached on Aug. 29, the association said.

The AAA said gas prices in the Middle Atlantic states, the Midwest and the Southwest rose the fastest during the past week.

Price increases were smallest in the Southeast, the AAA said.

The AAA calculates the average price based on a nationwide spot check of gasoline stations conducted by Computer Petroleum Corp. of St. Paul, Minn.

SAN FRANCISCO (SEPT. 11) UPI - Airline passengers, disgruntled and stranded by overbooked flights, have the power to sue airline companies in state courts for the inconvenience, a federal appeals court ruled Tuesday.

Deregulation of the airlines did not wipe out the rights of the victims of overbooking to take their complaints to state courts around the country, according to the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

The decision held that federal laws regulating airline rates, routes and services do not preempt state law claims that airlines must act in good faith and deal fairly with customers.

The ruling could have broader implications for the airline industry if it allows consumers to challenge other service-related problems regulated by states, according to Alan B. Morrison, attorney for William West, a Northwest Airlines, Inc. rider bumped from a Great Falls, Montana, flight.

Morrison said some states have been attempting to regulate such things as advertising by airlines but have been put off by claims that federal law preempts state power to issue regulations.

Northwest Airlines, based in Minneapolis, contended the Federal Aviation Administration has the sole authority to regulate rates, routes and service.

Northwest maintained that ''services'' included boarding practices. The airline also argued that all state laws that affect airline services, even tangentially, would be preempted by federal regulation.

The appeal court rejected that claim as overbroad and sided with West.

Judge Dorothy Nelson wrote, the Montana state law simply imposes ''a duty on all persons entering into contracts to act with good faith and fair dealing. The fact that this duty is applicable to airlines as well as the general public does not invoke federal preemption,'' she wrote.

West now may take his claim back to state court in Montana to pursue a suit against Northwest.

West was on a flight from Great Falls to Arlington, Va., when he was bumped.

Northwest had decided to reduce the size of the aircraft to be used in the flight from a Boeing 727, which carries 146 passengers, to a DC- 9, which carries 78 people.

Although Northwest offered West an alternative flight arriving the next day at 3 a.m. he chose to delay his business trip for two weeks.

West is seeking damages for the loss of business and inconvenience and ''in large part to teach the airline a lesson,'' Morrison said.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 11) UPI - The nation's crude-oil and gasoline inventories rose last week, the American Petroleum Institute reported Tuesday, indicating that the day of reckoning from the Persian-Gulf crisis has yet to arrive.

Distillate heating oil supplies also rose a whopping 5 million barrels in the oil industry's survey for the week ended Sept. 7.

Crude oil inventories rose 2.1 million barrels to 374.3 million barrels from 372.2 million barrels in the prior week and remained well above year-ago levels of 338.6 million barrels.

Crude oil imports edged up to 6.9 million barrels a day from 6.8 million barrels a day in the previous week and were substantially higher than year ago imports of 6.5 million barrels a day.

Because it takes tankers five to six weeks to reach the United States from the Gulf, analysts have said the effect of Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of oil-rich Kuwait and the Aug. 6 U.N. embargo of Iraqi and Kuwaiti crude would not be felt on U.S. crude imports until mid September.

Gasoline supplies increased to 211.1 million barrels from 210.5 million barrels in the prior week but remained below year-ago levels of 218.4 million barrels.

Gasoline imports increased to 261,000 barrels daily from 192,000 barrels daily in the previous week but were less than year-ago imports of 272,000 barrels daily.

Stocks of unleaded gasoline, which accounts for 90 percent of the domestic market, also increased to 163.0 million barrels from 162.3 million barrels a week earlier and remained higher than year-ago levels of 157.6 million barrels.

Gasoline production held steady at 7.3 million barrels daily, the same level as in the previous week but higher than year-ago output of 7.2 million barrels daily.

U.S. refineries operated at 93.5 percent of capacity last week, compared with 92.0 percent a week earlier and 92.0 percent a year ago.

Imports of refined products edged up to 2.0 million barrels daily from 1.9 million barrels daily in the preceding week but were less than year-ago imports of 2.1 million barrels daily.

Inventories of distillate - used for home-heating oil and diesel fuel - rose 5 million barrels to 131.7 million barrels from 126.7 million barrels a week earlier and were well above year-ago levels of 119.8 million barrels.

Distillate production slipped to 3.0 million barrels daily from 3.1 million barrels daily in the preceding week and was below year-ago output of 3.1 million barrels daily.

Distillate imports fell to 242,000 barrels a day from 354,000 barrels a day in the previous week but were less than year-ago imports of 379, 000 barrels a day.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 11) UPI - Customs officials in Saudi Arabia are confiscating pictures of naked women and some religious materials from mail sent to U.S. troops in the desert kingdom, Gen. Colin Powell said Tuesday.

The acknowledgement came during questioning by Sen. James Exon, D- Neb., a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said that some mail containing pornographic material, pictures of ''naked women'' and religious materials had been confiscated from the mail sent to American GIs in Saudi Arabia.

Under Saudi customs, no pornographic material, religious items ''contrary to'' the Islamic faith, alcohol, or pork or pork byproducts may be sent into Saudi Arabia via the mail.

Powell said servicemen and women who took Bibles with them when they shipped out for Operation Desert Shield most likely still have them, but that Bibles or other religious items sent through the mail could be confiscated by Saudi customs officials.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 11) UPI - Defense Secretary Dick Cheney told Congress Tuesday the U.S. military operation in Saudi Arabia will cost about $15 billion in the 1991 budget year, but he expects ''about half of that'' to be offset by other nations.

Members of Congress, however, expressed anger at what they called an ''appalling ... insulting'' lack of financial or military support for Operation Desert Shield from two key U.S. allies - West Germany and Japan.

Cheney and Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, testified before the Senate Armed Services Committee in their first congressional appearance since the U.S. military operation began Aug. 7.

Powell, repeating the word ''well'' for emphasis, disclosed that ''we have well, well in excess of 100,000'' ground and naval forces in Saudi Arabia and the surrounding region. The buildup will continue until the Pentagon is satisfied American troops are there in sufficient numbers to face the threat posed by Iraqi forces, he said.

''We are not there yet. ... We need to continue our buildup for some time to come,'' Powell said, adding that this has been ''the largest, most complex deployment of U.S. forces since World War II.''

Powell said there were about 173,000 Iraqi troops in occupied Kuwait, and a Pentagon spokesman said there were another 92,000 Iraqi troops in southern Iraq, along with 2,200 tanks.

Senators were unanimous in support of the American involvement in trying to deter Iraqi aggression against Saudi Arabia, but they were anxious to hear about the expected cost and how much financial support U.S. allies might provide.

Cheney said the U.S. military operation will cost $2.7 billion through Sept. 30, the end of fiscal 1990, and an additional $15 billion through fiscal 1991 - if there is no fighting.

''If conflict occurs, these costs would multiply manifold,'' he said in his statement.

Referring to financial help by U.S. allies and Arab nations in the region, Cheney said: ''I don't want to leave anybody with the impression that the total costs to the United States are going to be offset, but I think a significant amount will be.''

''The estimated $15 billion addition cost that we came up with for 1991. ... We think we can offset about half of that from these other sources,'' Cheney added.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., said he was ''appalled'' that it took the OPEC countries a month to decide to increase oil production to make up for the shortfall produced by the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait Aug. 2.

Kennedy said he also found it ''enormously distressing'' that West Germany had agreed to pay as much as $8 billion to house Soviet troops who remain in what is now East Germany after the Oct. 3 unification.

Sen. William Cohen, R-Maine, agreed and described Japan's offer of $1 billion to help support Operation Desert Shield ''a mere bagatelle. ... They've got to do more.''

Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., said Japan and West Germany were expected to ''pick up a significant amount of the burden'' and he repeatedly pressed Cheney as to whether he agreed with that statement.

''The responses we have gotten have been more than we've ever gotten before'' from other nations, Cheney replied in his second attempt at an answer.

''But,'' he added, ''it may well be inadquate.''

NEW YORK (SEPT. 11) UPI - Almost two-thirds of the U.S. companies that export products expect to achieve higher sales abroad in coming months, according to a survey released Tuesday.

Among those anticipating higher exports over the next 12 months, 71 percent said they expect to increase exports to Western Europe, according to the Dun & Bradstreet Corp.-conducted survey.

Another 52 percent expect to increase exports to Japan, and almost 30 percent said they expect to increase exports to Eastern Europe or the Soviet Union.

''These three areas, namely Western Europe, Japan and the Soviet Union, including Eastern Europe, are undergoing radical structural changes, which should make their markets more open to imports from the United States,'' said Joseph W. Duncan, D&B corporate economist and chief statistician.

The survey showed 64 percent of the exporting companies surveyed in June expect sales to increase over the next 12 months.

Another 33 percent said they expect sales to remain the same and 3 percent forecast a decline, the survey showed.

Of the nation's largest export companies, which includes those with more than 10,000 employees, 75 percent said they expect export sales to continue to grow, the survey showed.

''The D&B survey shows that the export sector should remain strong and may even pick up a bit of strength in the months ahead,'' said Duncan.

''The relatively weak U.S. economy has been growing primarily because of external demand, meaning that the U.S. has been satisfying the needs of other countries,'' he continued.

Recent developments in the Middle East will have a negative impact on the U.S. merchandise trade deficit because of higher fuel costs, he noted.

The manufacturing sector accounts for more than 56 percent of the exporting companies in D&B's sample of 5,000 firms.

Transportation and public utilities ranked a distant second at 19 percent.

The sample of 5,000 companies is drawn from a D&B database of more than 9 million U.S. companies, the New York-based business information company said.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 11) UPI - The first official attempts at human gene therapy won final approval from the National Institutes of Health Tuesday, and researchers expect to start the historic tests in sick children by month's end.

As expected, NIH Acting Director William Raub followed the lead of an NIH advisory panel, which in July endorsed two plans to use gene therapy to treat children with depressed immune systems and cancer patients.

The gene therapy project in immune-suppressed children technically could start immediately because the Food and Drug Administration had ''no objections'' during its standard 30-day review period, the FDA's Dr. Henry Miller said.

However, the NIH researchers said they agreed not to start treating the youngsters until they received a verbal go-ahead from top FDA officials, which they anticipated within days.

''It could start this week. We're ready to go within a few days,'' after getting the FDA nod, said Dr. W. French Anderson, who heads the NIH team that plans to use gene therapy to treat children stricken by the extremely rare immune disorder that afflicted the famed Texas ''bubble boy.''

Anderson said he definitely expects to treat the first patient before the end of the month.

The FDA is still reviewing the proposal of Dr. Steven Rosenberg of the National Cancer Institute, who applied two weeks ago to use gene therapy to enhance another experimental therapy in patients suffering from melanoma, a rare, deadly type of skin cancer, Miller said.

Jeremy Rifkin, president of the non-profit Foundation on Economic Trends in Washington, criticized the plan to use gene therapy in children.

''We feel the experiment is premature and we question whether it has any redeeming value as an experiment,'' said Rifkin, who for 13 years has called for tighter regulation of genetic research to prevent misuse.

Rifkin noted the current enzyme replacement drug is marginally effective to very effective in the sick children, and even the researchers caution that gene therapy might trigger cancer or cause antibiotic resistance.

''Technology is rushing way ahead of the willingness of the government to make sure it is not abused and does not run amuck,'' he said.

Every person has about 100,000 genes bearing the instructions for everything from eye color to the risk of developing certain diseases. Gene therapy involves inserting genes with correct information into cells that contain defective genes, or putting in new genes that code for disease-fighting substances.

Although the first two government-sanctioned plans for gene therapy involve relatively rare diseases, the work could pave the way for development of a new breed of treatments for a wide range of illnesses.

In their work, Anderson, Michael Blaese and Kenneth Culver want to correct a childhood immune system deficiency, caused by a flawed gene's failure to code for an enzyme called adenosine deaminase, by inserting correct copies of the gene into patient's blood cells.

The disease affects no more than 20 children worldwide at any given time, and in the past, some affected youngsters lived in plastic bubbles to guard against life-threatening infections. Now, most such children undergo bone marrow transplants or receive injections of the missing enzyme.

Anderson's team plans to perform gene therapy on three to four children annually who do not have siblings who can donate bone marrow and who are not responding well to enzyme replacement.

The proposal has gone through more than three years of review, responding to critcs who fear gene therapy could lead to ethically questionable attempts at genetic engineering.

HOLLYWOOD (SEPT. 11) UPI - Moviegoers have paid more than $3.5 billion so far this year at the domestic box-office, nearly matching last year's record-setting pace.

The final total for 1989's domestic box-office receipts topped $5 billion.

With the suprise hit ''Ghost'' and courtroom drama ''Presumed Innocent'' helping to keep sales from lagging in the late summer, the year-to-date box office total reached $3.51 billion over the weekend, according to Daily Variety.

This compared with $3.56 billion for the same period last year. In 1988, the total at the same juncture stood at $3.18 billion.

The top 10 movies of the weekend, led by ''Ghost'' and horror- thriller ''Darkman,'' drew $26.6 million during the three days, off 42 percent from the four-day total of $45.5 million registered over the Labor Day weekend.

The lukewarm performance reflected the fact that no major new releases made it into the top 10.

For the week, the total domestic box-office reached $82.4 million, off from the $91.5 million of the year-ago week. In 1988, the corresponding weekly figure was $88.2 million.

During the weekend, ''Ghost'' became the second-highest grossing movie of the year, as it has now taken in $133.4 million in nine weeks. It trails Disney's ''Pretty Woman,'' which has sold $170.3 million in 26 weeks and was still showing at 872 screens last week.

New Line Cinema's ''Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles'' has taken in $133 million in 24 weeks, while Paramont's ''Hunt for Red October'' has grossed $120.6 million in 28 weeks.

Carolco's ''Total Recall,'' which was the leading summer release until a few weeks ago, earned $117.2 million in 15 weeks and Fox's ''Die Hard 2'' pulled in $111.1 million in 10 weeks.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 11) UPI - The New York Stock Exchange Tuesday approved implementation of two phases of a plan to develop off-hours trading.

The phases are known as crossing sessions, one of which will allow traders to execute securities trades on closing prices from 4:15 p.m. to 5 p.m. The other allows traders to cross program trades based on aggregate prices from 4:15 p.m. to 5:15 p.m., the exchange said.

Under review are auction pricing sessions and continuous 24-hour trading, the exchange said.

''The off-hours trading plan reflects the NYSE's commitment to provide innovative services for its customers and position the exchange competitively in the evolution of a 24-hour marketplace,'' said Richard A. Grasso, president and chief operating officer.

The board also approved a series of rules for off-hours trading, which refers to order entry and execution of trades after the exchange's regular hours of 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m., the exchange said.

The proposed rules will be sent to the Securities and Exchange Commission for approval.

The exchange's board of directors also approved the start of a market for trading unregistered securities under the SEC's new rule 144A, which was adopted in April and eases restrictions on trading unregistered securities in the private placement market.

The new system for trading unregistered securities could be implemented in early 1991, the exchange said.

In addition, the exchange approved nine officer appointments and promotions, including three executive vice presidents: David L. Domijan, Catherine Kinney and Edward Kwalwasser.

Appointed senior vice presidents were Charlotte J. Lee and Salvatore Pallante.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 11) UPI - An administratiive law judge for the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission issued findings of fact Tuesday saying the Iroquois natural-gas pipeline is needed to meet the Northeast's energy needs.

Judge Walter Aspin, ruling after evidentiary hearings held in August, said the pipeline is needed to meet projected demand in the region and would not displace U.S. natural-gas supplies. The judge said some suppliers of liquified natural gas and fuel oil could be displaced, however.

Overall, the judge said: ''Current and projected increasing annual and peak demands for natural gas, and demands by existing, on-line and planned electric generators and cogenerators, will not be met by currently available supplies and service and by alternative energy sources. There is a need for the project.''

The 370-mile pipeline is supposed to carry 575.9 million cubic feet of Canadian natural gas per day to 20 gas utilities and power generators in Connecticut, Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey, New Hampshire and Rhode Island.

Opponents have questioned the need for the pipeline and charged its construction could hurt the environment.

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (SEPT. 11) UPI - About 200 National Guardsmen and other military people and state employees will be used to search wooded areas near the apartments where five University of Florida students were found stabbed to death.

The 10-square-mile area also is near the Gainesville apartment of one of the suspects in the case, Edward Humphrey, 18, a freshman at the university. Witnesses have told investigators Humphrey liked to go into the woods by himself.

Authorities would not say whether they were searching for anything specific.

''We're just going to explore it and see what happens,'' police Lt. Sadie Darnell said. ''We don't know everything we need to know about every suspect.''

But Darnell acknowledged that the search was an attempt to ''either connect (Humphrey) as a suspect or rule him out as a suspect.''

The 200 searchers, troops called out by the National Guard, other military units and the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, were expected to begin their grid search of the woody, swampy areas later this week, Darnell said. She said they would use dogs.

The area to be searched is in southwest Gainesville, near where five college students were found stabbed to death two weeks ago.

Christina Powell, 17, and Sonja Larson, 18, were found dead in their apartment on Aug. 26. Christina Hoyt, 18, was found dead the next day. All three had been stabbed to death and mutilated. Tracy Paules, 23, and Manual Tabouda, 23, were found stabbed to death in the apartment they shared on Aug. 28.

Darnell would not say whether investigators believed the massive search would uncover evidence that the killer might have removed from the crime scenes.

Shortly after the last victims were found, members of the 175-member serial killer task force searched Hogtown Creek, which runs behind Humphrey's apartment, but authorities have refused to comment on any evidence recovered.

Humphrey remained in the Brevard County Detention Center Tuesday on $1 million bond, charged with aggravated battery in the beating of his grandmother on Aug. 30, two days after the last two Gainesville victims were found.

Authorities have refused to identify Humphrey as their prime suspect, saying instead that he is one of eight.

''This search and everything that has led up to now does not denote that Edward Humphrey is the suspect,'' Alachua County Lt. Spencer Mann said.

(SEPT. 11) UPI - Canada has mounted a massive hunt for a Boeing 727 that ditched in the northern Atlantic Ocean with 18 people aboard. The Peruvian airplane left Iceland earlier and was reportedly on its way to Miami. The plane's pilot radioed a mayday, saying the craft was low on fuel before going down 180 miles southeast of Newfoundland. There was NO immediate word of casualties.

Turkey says it is aware of an Iraqi troop build-up near its southeastern border and is- in the words of the nation's defense minister- ''ready to counter any attack.'' Earlier reports said Iraq had moved about 30-thousand troops from the Iraq-Iran border to areas closer to Turkey. However, there was NO immediate confirmation of the reports from Turkish sources. .

Israel also says it is ready for any possible Iraqi moves. Prime Minister

Shamir says Iraq may attack Israel if war breaks out to show the Arab world that it can defeat Israel. But Shamir says Israel is prepared for any Iraqi assault. Israel's defense minister says he expects more U-S aid in light of the gulf crisis.

Lawmakers raised a stink today over the on-going census count. At a House subcommittee hearing today in Washington... Democratic Representative Martin Frost of Texas said the Census Bureau ''has done an excellent job of counting white suburbanites,'' but NOT minorities. AMMAN, Jordan (SEPT. 11) UPI - For Chalam Milla, the long journey from Kuwait - with its six days of waiting in the desert on the Jordanian border - was nearly over.

The 32-year-old secretary had what tens of thousands of Asian refugees stranded in Jordan desired - a plane ticket home.

''We are very happy really to be leaving,'' said Milla, who had worked in a furniture company before the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait. ''We never suffered like this in our lives. This is a very good lesson for all of us. Now we know what suffering is.''

Hundreds of Indians, Pakistanis and Filipinos stood in noisy lines at the International Fair grounds tuesday waiting for buses to take them from the makeshift refugee camp on the outskirts of Amman to the airport.

Once a Jordanian policeman gave them permission to board a bus, the refugees scrambled to load their bulging suitcases on top of the vehicle and piled in.

The estimated 1,500 refugees who left the sprawling fair grounds were among 6,000-7,000 displaced persons, mostly Asians, to leave Amman Tuesday for home.

Relief officials overseeing the repatriation of thousands of workers who fled Kuwait and Iraq expressed guarded optimism that the tide may be beginning to turn.

''Things are looking good,'' said Regina Boucault, spokeswoman for the International Organization for Migration, which is overseeing transportation for the refugees. ''But nobody knows what will happen on the other side of the (Iraqi) border.''

IOM plans to evacuate 31,500 people by Sept. 20. The organization scheduled 107 flights out of Amman after $30 million was pledged by the international community.

About 68,000 Asian refugees are in Jordan with as many as 15,000 entering the country every day, according to relief officials.

''The international effort is becoming more effective,'' said Maroofi Yahya, deputy chief of the IOM Amman office. ''It looks better because of improved coordination and awareness.''

If the number of incoming refugees continues to drop, officials hope they can begin to reduce the total number of expatriates languishing in the Hashemite kingdom.

But those who departed Tuesday left tens of thousands of refugees behind living in squalid, cramped conditions in hastily built camps.

At the fairgrounds, 19,749 people from eight Asian countries spend the hot September days waiting in line for food, water and their turn to return home.

''The movement of evacuation is accelerating a little bit, but it is still not as it should be,'' said Hisham Al Ish, volunteer spokesman at the fair grounds, adding that Jordan would like most of the refugees sent home by Oct. 1 when the rainy winter weather starts.

Most of the refugees now are in tents, but several hundred still have only sheets and blankets rigged on poles to shelter them. A few thousand are camped inside the large exhibition hall.

Although the conditions are primitive, the refugees say they are much better than those in the camps on the Iraqi border, where food and water are scarce and there is little shelter available.

The smell of human excrement and garbage pervades much of the camp and people must wash where they can. Behind the exhibition hall, a man in a brown sarong washed his bare chest, using water from a yellow bucket while nearby nearly 75 people stood in line waiting to use the bathrooms. Those who cannot wait climb a hill behind the nearly 20 acres of fair grounds to find a secluded spot.

Officials say the refugees are depressed that they cannot leave, but add there have been few problems of fights or violence. No outbreaks of serious diseases have been reported, they said.

(SEPT. 11) UPI - Canadian transportation officials say the color of a Peruvian 727 is slowing the search for the jetliner that ditched in the northern Atlantic Ocean. Officials say the craft's white color makes it difficult to spot from the air. The plane with 18 Peruvians aboard ditched about 180 miles south of Newfoundland this afternoon... after apparently running low on fuel.

President Bush tonight will give a nationally broadcast speech expected to spell out the dangers and the opportunities of the Middle East crisis. Bush is optimistic that Iraq will give in... but he is expected to maintain that it will NOT happen quickly or easily. The White House says Bush will address the federal deficit by emphasizing the need to get the U-S ''domestic house in order.''

Defense Secretary Cheney estimates that the tab for keeping U-S troops in Saudi Arabia will be 15-BILLION dollars for fiscal year 1991. Cheney told Congress today he expects about half of that to be paid by other nations. Senators were UNanimous in support of the deployment. But some were outraged at what they called an ''appalling'' lack of financial or military support from two key U-S allies- West Germany and Japan.

The State Department says Iraq will allow American men to leave Kuwait if they were born in Arab countries. The department terms the move an ''important development'' and has chartered two more Iraqi Airways jetliners to get Americans out of Kuwait... one on Wednesday and one Friday. (SEPT. 11) UPI - South African President Frederik de Klerk says during talks today with Nelson Mandela, he reiterated ''deep concern'' about violence between rival black groups. Mandela earlier warned that the bloodshed is threatening talks to end the nation's racial conflict.

The National Institutes of Health today gave its final approval to the first official attempts at human gene therapy. The historic tests on sick children are expected to begin by the end of the month. But the Washington-based NON-profit Foundation on Economic Trends criticized the plan as premature, calling instead for tighter regulation of genetic research to prevent misuse.

A judge in Chicago today rejected a last-ditch effort to prevent the execution of convicted double-murderer Charles Walker. The head of the Florida Governor Bob Martinez is adding a note of caution to the frenzy surrounding the state's Lotto jackpot, which has climbed to 90- Million dollars. Martinez says he's worried that people may ''over- extend themselves trying to win'' the prize that could total 100-Million dollars by week's end. A 90-Million-dollar prize would be the second- highest jackpot in U-S lottery history. The drawing is Saturday night .

(SEPT. 11) UPI - Showers and thunderstorms doused east of the Rockies Tuesday, tornadoes hit a remote area in Wisconsin and the Southwest sizzled in a suffocating heat wave.

The precipitation fell over parts of Wisconsin, Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Tennessee and Alabama.

The National Weather Service said tornadoes hit an area in northwest Wisconsin Tuesday. No injuries were reported. Authorities were assessing the extent of property damage.

Temperatures remained hot over portions of the Southwest, reaching into the upper 90s and 100 degrees over southern Arizona and southeast California.

Workers in the Arizona Department of Education building in Phoenix were sent home Tuesday because the air conditioning broke down. The temperatures in the building were in the 90s and it was rising well into the 100s.

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia (SEPT. 11) UPI - A Peruvian Boeing 727 with 15 people aboard ditched in the northern Atlantic Ocean Tuesday about 180 miles south of Newfoundland, Canadian aviation authorities and airline officials said.

There were no immediate reports of casualties. Canadian Coast Guard planes and ships planned to search through the night for the aircraft.

''There has been no location. We're continuing to search all night until we find her,'' Coast Guard spokesman Chip Chase said in a telephone interview from Halifax, Nova Scotia.

''It's in the water right now,'' said a spokesman of Canada's Transportation Safety Board in Ottawa.

The airplane owned by Faucett Airlines of Peru left Malta earlier Tuesday and refueled in Reykjavik, Iceland, before heading for Gander airport. The plane was due to land in Miami later in the day.

Faucett Airlines officials originally said 18 people were aboard the aircraft, but later changed the number to 15 because three people left the plane when it refuelled in Iceland.

Faucett spokeswoman Betty McDaniels said those aboard included crew members, mechanics and their families and all were Peruvians.

Another company spokesman said the plane was equipped with lifeboats and lifevests, ''all emergency things for a ditching.''

David Owen, the Board's Atlantic regional manager, said Canadian search and rescue authorities on Canada's east coast have mounted a search for the jetliner, and a Coast Guard spokesman in Halifax said the search was hampered by the plane's white color, which makes it difficult to spot it from the air.

The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation reported the plane ran low on fuel after it wandered far off its intended course. The plane was to refuel in Gander, Newfoundland before heading to Miami.

Lloyd Brown, regional marine superintendent of the Canadian Coast Guard, said that the plane's pilot last radioed authorities at 2:20 p.m. EDT.

''A mayday was issued. The aircraft was low on fuel,'' said Brown, who was unable to confirm whether the plane wandered off course.

Faucett Airlines of Peru is a registered company that was established in 1928.

''The pilot said he was ditching,'' said Brown. The plane, with 18 people on board, went down 180 miles southeast of Cape Race, Newfoundland, he said.

Brown said search and rescue officials have mounted a massive hunt over a wide area for the plane with two Aurora aircraft from Greenwood, Nova Scotia, two Labrador helicopters from Gander, Newfoundland and a Buffalo aircraft dispatched from Summerside, Prince Edward Island.

Other aircraft are on standby, according to Brown, while Coast Guard and commercial ships have also responded to the mayday.

There was good visibility in the area of the crash, Brown said, and winds were from the southeast at 10 to 15 miles per hour.

A spokesman for the Canadian Coast Guard said the plane was equipped with emergency locator transmitters.

''We had one hit from a satellite located over England which gave us a position for the search,'' and another position was provided by a commercial airline travelling over the north Atlantic which picked up the Peruvian jet on its radar and followed its approximate course.

However, the two positions were quite far apart, according to the spokesman, forcing search planes to cover an area of 40,000 square miles.

Bill Johns, another spokesman for the Canadian Coast Guard in Halifax, said the plane could sink, immediately break up on impact or it might float for minutes or hours.

''The tail may break up, but the wreckage would be there. A 727 is a big airplane,'' Johns said.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 11) UPI - Backed for the moment by the American people, President Bush vowed Tuesday to drive Iraq from Kuwait through concerted international action and hailed the ''new partnership of nations'' that has risen to oppose the aggression of Saddam Hussein.

''We stand today at a unique and extraordinary moment,'' Bush said in a nationally televised speech to a joint session of Congress. ''The Persian Gulf crisis, as grave as it is, also offers a rare opportunity to move toward an historic period of cooperation.''

Touting American resolve and the emergence of ''a new world order'' from the tragedy of the first major conflict of the post-Cold War era, Bush laid out the challenges and the vital interests at stake in the 5-week-old showdown in the Middle East.

America, he said, ''must defend common vital interests'' - not the least of which is access to oil - and take the lead in standing up to those who flaunt ''the rule of law'' and pursue aggression against their neighbors.

In the case of Kuwait, he insisted that Iraq ''is literally trying to wipe a country off the face of the Earth'' while in the process grabbing control of 20 percent of the world's known oil reserves. ''We cannot permit a resource so valuable to be dominated by one so ruthless,'' he said. ''And we won't.''

''In the face of tyranny, let no one doubt American credibility and reliability. Let no one doubt our staying power,'' he declared. ''We will stand by our friends. One way or another, the leader of Iraq must learn this fundamental truth.''

The speech afford Bush the chance to renew his prediction that Iraq ultimately will capitulate under the weight of U.N.-ordered economic sanctions, while making clear that repulsing Iraqi aggression will not be done quickly or easily.

To those concerned that the United States is being forced to go it alone in the gulf, foresaken by friends and allies, Bush noted that he has sought from the outset ''to fashion the broadest possible international response'' to the Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait and said, ''The level of cooperation and condemnation of Iraq is unprecedented.''

The catalyst for the speech was Sunday's summit in Helsinki between Bush and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev, which ended with a historic show of superpower solidarity squarely directed against Saddam.

Though their embrace of shared goals masked continued differences over the means to achieve them, Bush remained buoyed that the United States and the Soviet Union, for years protagonists in such regional conflicts, may now cooperate in the post-Cold War world to prevent or resolve them.

''Clearly, no longer can a dictator count on East-West confrontation to stymie concerted U.N. action against aggression,'' he said. ''A new partnership of nations has developed.''

Bush acknowledged that the cost of American leadership abroad ''can be steep,'' but welcomed material and financial contributions pledged by Japan, European allies and moderate Arab states to support the U.S.-orchestrated stand against Saddam and nations that suffer from a cutoff of trade with Iraq.

Hours before, Defense Secretary Dick Cheney disclosed that the United States, one of more than two dozen countries with forces committed to the faceoff against Iraq, had ''well in excess of 100,000'' soldiers, sailors and airmen in the Persian Gulf region at a cost running around $50 million a day and estimated at $15 billion for fiscal 1991.

It was economic pressure rather tha military threats, however, that Bush portrayed as the most potent weapon against Saddam.

With U.S. and other warships patrolling shipping lanes to and from Iraq, he contended Iraq ''is feeling the heat'' from a trade embargo denying it oil revenues and imports of vital goods, including military spare parts and industrial equipment.

Despite what the White House earlier called ''small seepages'' and ''some small infractions around the edges,'' including overland shipments of food from Jordan and the arrival of some goods by air, Bush said, ''these sanctions are working.''

''I cannot predict just how long it will take to convince Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait. Sanctions will take time to have their full intended effect '' he said. ''We will continue to review all options with our allies, but let it be clear: We will not let this aggression stand.''

Bush spoke with compassion for the thousands of Americans and other foreign nationals trapped in Iraq and Kuwait at the time of the invasion and since held as hostages, but said their plight will not influence American policy.

''America and the world will not be blackmailed,'' he said.

The defense of his response to the gulf crisis was timely, coming two days after the Helsinki summit, but not politically crucial.

Although several members of Congress advised Bush over the last few weeks to use such a high-profile forum to explain his motivations and objectives polls have not detected any urgent need for a bold appeal for public support.

A new Washington Post-ABC News poll showed Tuesday that support for Bush's handling of the gulf crisis has remained high and even increased over the past month to an overall approval rating of 81 percent, though many Americans remain wary of where events might lead.

The poll found sharp divisions over the use of force to push Iraq out of Kuwait, the likelihood of war and the prospect of a permanent American military presence in the region even if the current conflict ends peacefully.

On balance, Americans appear to share Bush's view the United States has a right and responsibility to lead the international effort against Iraq, if concerned about the costs and levels of participation by Japan and European allies.

It is the uncertain duration of the U.S. intervention in the gulf that has some politicians worried. Bush, however, has been careful to avoid speculation on the probability or consequence of a protracted standoff devoid of hostilities.

''Let me thank all Americans, especially those in this chamber, for your support for our forces and their mission,'' he said. ''That support will be even more important in the days to come.''

Bush had held out slim hope of using the speech to announce progress in deficit-reduction talks with Congress, which continued through a fifth day Tuesday with reports of narrowed differences but agreement not yet in hand.

With some sources forecasting success within 48 hours, Bush said he was ''pleased with recent progress,'' but emphasized that ''now it is time to produce'' a deal to cut the deficit by $500 billion over five years.

''In the final analysis,'' he said, ''our ability to meet our responsibilities abroad depends upon political will and consensus at home.''

Though Bush has addressed the gulf crisis in numerous speeches, news conferences and interviews over the past five weeks, Tuesday night marked his first prime-time appearance before the American people to detail his aims and objectives.

Along with praise for a revitalized United Nations, he saluted the morale of the American troops in the desert of Saudi Arabia and the waters of the Midele East. ''I wish I could say their work was done,'' he said, ''But we all know it is not.''

To date, the Persian Gulf conflict has been played out not with arms but images. And in what may turn out to be an escalation of that war of the airwaves, Bush will videotape an 8- to 10-minute message Wednesday for possible broadcast on Iraqi television.

The White House seized on an invitation Thursday from Baghdad as a chance for Bush to provide his view, unfiltered by Iraqi censors, to the Iraqi people just as Saddam has spoken to Western audiences through interviews and official televised statements.

There are strong doubts, however, that his message, set to include a desire for peace with Iraq's people if not its leader, will be shown. Since the original invitation was for an interview, it was not at all clear the offer of access would apply to a videotaped speech.

The White House, however, will exploit the full public relations value of the message in any event. If the Iraqis do not air it, the tape will be widely distributed here and in the Arab world. Saddam will once again be painted by the White House as a tyrant hiding the truth from his own people and one who cannot be taken at his word.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 11) UPI - Highlights of President Bush's address to a joint session of Congress on the crisis in the Persian Gulf:

The Challenge: ''The test we face is great - and so are the stakes. This is the first assault on the new world we seek, the first test of our mettle. ... America and the world must defend common vital interests. And we will.''

Objectives: Unconditional withdrawal of Iraqi troops from Kuwait, restoration of Kuwait's legitimate government, the security and stability of the oil-rich gulf and the protection of U.S. citizens abroad.

U.S.-Soviet stand: ''I am pleased that we (the United States and the Soviet Union) are working together to build a new relationship. ... Clearly, no longer can a dictator count on East-West confrontation to stymie concerted U.N. action against aggression.

''A new partnership of nations has begun.''

How long will operation last: ''I can't predict how long it will take to convince Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait. Sanctions will take time to have their full intended effect. We will continue to review all options with our allies, but let it be clear: We will not let this aggression stand.''

''Let no one doubt our staying power. We will stand by our friends.''

What is at stake: ''Vital issues of principle are at stake. Saddam Hussein is literally trying to wipe a country off the face of the Earth. Vital economic interests are at risk. We cannot permit a resource (oil) so vital to be dominated by one so ruthless. And we won't.''

The hostages: ''The United Nations has demanded the release of all foreign nationals held hostage against their will, and in concentration of international law. It is a mockery of human decency to call these people 'guests.' They are hostages, and the whole world knows it.''

''Of course, our hearts go out to the hostages and their families. But our policy cannot change. And it will not change. America and the world will not be blackmailed.''

The sanctions: ''Iraq is beginning to feel the heat. They are cut off from world trade, unable to sell their oil. And only a tiny fraction of goods gets through.''

Burden sharing: ''We are prepared to do our share and more to help carry that load; we insist others do their share as well. The response of most of our friends and allies has been good.''

Budget deficit: ''To revitalize our leadership capacity, we must address our budget deficit, not after election day, next year, but now.''

''With or without an agreement from the budget summit, I ask both houses of the Congress to allow a straight up-or-down vote on a complete $500 billion deficit reduction package, not later than Sept. 28.''

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 11) UPI - Buoyed by support at home and abroad, President Bush vowed Tuesday to drive Iraq from Kuwait through concerted international action and hailed the ''new partnership of nations'' that has risen to oppose the aggression of Saddam Hussein.

''We stand today at a unique and extraordinary moment,'' Bush said in a nationally televised speech to a joint session of Congress. ''The Persian Gulf crisis, as grave as it is, also offers a rare opportunity to move toward an historic period of cooperation.''

Touting American resolve and the emergence of ''a new world order'' from the first major conflict of the post-Cold War era, Bush laid out the challenges and responsibilities at stake in the 5-week-old Persian Gulf crisis.

America, he said, ''must defend common vital interests'' - not the least of which is access to oil - and take the lead in standing up to those who flout ''the rule of law'' and pursue aggression against their neighbors.

In the case of Kuwait, he insisted that Iraq ''is literally trying to wipe a country off the face of the Earth'' in a bid to control 20 percent of the world's known oil reserves. ''We cannot permit a resource so valuable to be dominated by one so ruthless,'' he said. ''And we won't.''

''In the face of tyranny, let no one doubt American credibility and reliability. Let no one doubt our staying power,'' he declared. ''We will stand by our friends. One way or another, the leader of Iraq must learn this fundamental truth.''

Interrupted frequently by applause, Bush renewed his prediction that Iraq

ultimately will capitulate under the weight of U.N.-ordered economic sanctions, while making clear that repulsing Iraqi aggression will not be done quickly or easily.

To those concerned that the United States is being forced to go it alone in the gulf, foresaken by friends and allies, Bush noted that he has sought from the outset ''to fashion the broadest possible international response'' to the Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait and said, ''The level of cooperation and condemnation of Iraq is unprecedented.''

In the Democratic response, House Democratic leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., signaled no change in the broad bipartisan backing Bush has enjoyed agreeing the situation constitutes ''a cause worth standing and fighting for.''

''We are now in the Persian Gulf not simply for oil or to save emirs and kings,'' he said, ''but to defend the most fundamental values of a more stable and decent world.''

At the same time, Gephardt called on wealthy U.S. allies, particularly Japan and West Germany, to ''respond to our potential sacrifice of lives with at least a financial sacrifice of their own'' by making bigger contributions to the gulf effort.

The catalyst for the speech was Sunday's summit in Helsinki between Bush and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev, which ended with a historic show of superpower solidarity squarely directed against Saddam.

Though their embrace of shared goals masked differences over the means to achieve them, Bush was optimistic that Washington and Moscow, for years protagonists in such regional conflicts, may now cooperate in the post-Cold War world to prevent or resolve them.

''Clearly, no longer can a dictator count on East-West confrontation to stymie concerted U.N. action against aggression,'' he said. ''A new partnership of nations has developed.''

Bush acknowledged the cost of American leadership ''can be steep,'' but welcomed material and financial contributions from Japan, European allies and moderate Arab states to support the U.S.-orchestrated stand against Iraq and nations that suffer from curtailed economic relations with Baghdad.

Hours before, Defense Secretary Dick Cheney disclosed that the United States, one of more than two dozen countries with forces committed to the region, had ''well in excess of 100,000'' soldiers, sailors and airmen deployed at a cost running around $50 million a day and estimated at $15 billion for fiscal 1991.

It was economic pressure rather than military threats, however, that Bush portrayed as the most potent weapon against Saddam.

With U.S. and other warships patrolling shipping lanes, he contended Iraq ''is feeling the heat'' from a trade embargo denying it oil revenues and imports of vital goods, including military spare parts and industrial equipment.

Despite what the White House earlier called ''small seepages'' and ''some small infractions around the edges,'' including overland shipments of food from Jordan and the arrival of some goods by air, Bush said, ''these sanctions are working.''

''I cannot predict just how long it will take to convince Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait. Sanctions will take time to have their full intended effect '' he said. ''We will continue to review all options with our allies, but let it be clear: We will not let this aggression stand.''

Bush spoke with compassion for the thousands of Americans and other foreign nationals trapped in Iraq and Kuwait at the time of the invasion and since held as hostages, but said their plight will not influence American policy.

''America and the world will not be blackmailed,'' he said.

The defense of his response to the gulf crisis was timely, coming two days after the Helsinki summit, but not politically crucial.

Although several members of Congress advised Bush over the last few weeks to use such a high-profile forum to explain his motivations and objectives polls have not detected any urgent need for a bold appeal for public support.

A new Washington Post-ABC News poll showed Tuesday that support for Bush's handling of the crisis has remained high and even increased over the past month to an overall approval rating of 81 percent, though many Americans remain wary of where events might lead.

The poll found sharp divisions over the use of force to push Iraq out of Kuwait, the likelihood of war and the prospect of a permanent American military presence in the region even if the current conflict ends peacefully.

On balance, Americans appear to share Bush's view the United States has a right and duty to lead the international effort against Iraq, if concerned about the costs and levels of participation by Japan and European allies.

It is the uncertain duration of the U.S. intervention that has some politicians worried. Bush, however, was careful to avoid speculating on the probability or consequence of a protracted standoff devoid of hostilities.

''Let me thank all Americans, especially those in this chamber, for your support for our forces and their mission,'' he said. ''That support will be even more important in the days to come.''

Bush had held out slim hope of using the speech to announce progress in deficit-reduction talks with Congress, which continued through a fifth day Tuesday with reports of narrowed differences but agreement not yet in hand.

With some sources forecasting success within 48 hours, Bush said he was ''pleased with recent progress,'' but emphasized that ''now it is time to produce'' a deal to cut the deficit by $500 billion over five years.

''In the final analysis,'' he said, ''our ability to meet our responsibilities abroad depends upon political will and consensus at home.''

Though Bush has addressed the gulf crisis in numerous speeches, news conferences and interviews over the past five weeks, Tuesday night marked his first prime-time attempt to fully detail his aims and objectives.

Along with praise for a revitalized United Nations, he saluted the morale of the American troops in the desert of Saudi Arabia and the waters of the Middle East. ''I wish I could say their work was done,'' he said, ''But we all know it is not.''

To date, the Persian Gulf conflict has been played out not with arms but images. And in what may turn out to be an escalation of that war of the airwaves, Bush will videotape an 8- to 10-minute message Wednesday for possible broadcast on Iraqi television.

The White House seized on an invitation Thursday from Baghdad as a chance for Bush to provide his view, unfiltered by Iraqi censors, to the Iraqi people just as Saddam has spoken to Western audiences through interviews and official televised statements.

There are strong doubts, however, that his message, set to include a desire for peace with Iraq's people if not its leader, will be shown. Since the original invitation was for an interview, it was not at all clear the offer of access would apply to a videotaped speech.

The White House, however, will exploit the full public relations value of the message in any event. If the Iraqis do not air it, the tape will be widely distributed here and in the Arab world. Saddam will once again be painted by the White House as a tyrant hiding the truth from his own people and one who cannot be taken at his word.

A major upset could be in the works in today's Democratic mayoral primary in Washington D-C. Early returns in the race to choose a likely successor to Marion Barry show Sharon Pratt Dixon with a substantial lead over her four opponents- all veteran politicians. DENVER (SEPT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Hamilton Oil Corp. Wednesday announced that the United Kingdom Department of Energy has given formal approval for development of the Bruce field located in Quadrant 9 of the U.K. sector of the North Sea.

The Bruce field spans three blocks, 9/8A, 9/9A and 9/9B, and is approximately 240 miles northeast of Aberdeen, Scotland. It is the largest development currently underway in the U.K. North Sea with estimated reserves of over 2.5 trillion cubic feet of natural gas and 220 million barrels of liquids.

Natural gas production from the Bruce field will be sold to British Gas plc (90 percent) and Corby Power Ltd. (10 percent). The natural gas will be transported via the Frigg pipeline system and delivered to St. Fergus. The liquids production will be transported via a new 24-inch pipeline which will join the Forties pipeline system about 144 miles south of the Bruce field.

Full development of the Bruce field is estimated to cost up to 1.5 billion pounds. Production is scheduled to start in October 1993. Average production levels will reach 80,000 barrels of liquids and 520 million cubic feet of natural gas per day in 1994. Development drilling in the Bruce field is currently in progress and contracts for various project components are being awarded.

REDMOND, WA (SEPT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Microsoft Corp. announced

Wednesday a marketing promotion that will enable millions of spreadsheet users and users of Microsoft Windows applications to easily access Microsoft SQL Server, and to share a common database on a local area network (LAN).

The Microsoft announcement allows current users of SQL Server, and those who purchase SQL Server between now and Dec. 31, 1990, to obtain several key software packages free of charge: Lotus Development Corp.'s new interface software packages that link SQL Server to LotusR 1-2-3; and Pioneer Software Q+E, a general query and reporting tool that can link SQL Server to Microsoft Excel and other applications designed for the Windows graphical environment version 3.0.

''For the first time, users of the industry's leading spreadsheets as well as a large number of Windows applications can share access to Microsoft SQL Server databases,'' said Dwayne Walker, senior product manager at Microsoft for SQL Server. ''With this program, Microsoft is making network computing easier, especially for existing PC applications found in many organizations today.''

Lotus DataLens Links 1-2-3 Spreadsheets to SQL Server

The Lotus DataLens Driver for SQL Server links Lotus 1-2-3 to the SQL Server environment, allowing users to query, extract and update data on the network database. The Lotus DataLens driver links 1-2-3 Release 3, 3.1 and 1-2-3/G users to SQL Server. Also included in the program is Lotus SQL, an add-in that provides complete data access to SQL Server from 1-2-3 Release 2.01 and 2.2.

DataLens, a Lotus-developed technology, is designed to provide a consistent and transparent means by which users can easily move data into their applications for analysis and manipulation.

''The Lotus DataLens Driver for SQL Server links the powerful database facilities built into 1-2-3 directly to tables in SQL Server,'' said Tad Staley, DataLens product manager for Lotus Development. ''Using familiar 1-2-3 commands, our users can access data in SQL Server transparently, as though it were on the spreadsheet.

''With its array of administrative tools preserving data integrity, SQL Server is a particularly good complement to 1-2-3. Using the Lotus Data Access Products, our users get the best of two worlds: the powerful data analysis capabilities of Lotus 1-2-3 coupled with the data integrity and control of SQL Server.'' tool that allows users to browse through databases and easily change, add or delete records in the database; and also to select, sort and join databases or files, easily extracting information from numerous sources.

Pioneer Q+E Software Links Windows 3.0 Applications to SQL Server

Developed by Pioneer and licensed by Microsoft, Q+E version 2.5 supports SQL Server, and links Microsoft Excel for Windows and other Windows applications to external databases, including dBASE-compatible databases and ASCII text files in addition to SQL Server. Q+E works well with Microsoft Excel. When Q+E is installed, needed commands are automatically added to the Microsoft Excel data menu, allowing Microsoft Excel users to query SQL Server right from their spreadsheet.

Q+E allows Microsoft Excel users to browse or sort data before importing it into the spreadsheet, allows several files to be viewed on screen at once, and provides continuous, real-time updating of SQL Server data in the Microsoft Excel spreadsheet.

''Q+E provides a powerful, easy-to-use interface to the system administration functionality of SQL Server for any Windows 3.0 application '' said Richard Holcomb, vice president at Pioneer Software. ''With Q+E, users can access the server data to create dynamic linked spreadsheets or documents.''

Q+E allows any version 3.0-based application that supports dynamic data exchange (DDE) to access SQL Server.

Q+E is available from Pioneer Software, and Microsoft Excel for Windows with Q+E version 2.5 is available as an integrated package from Microsoft. The Microsoft program announced today provides a copy of Q+E as a stand-alone product, for use in linking any Windows environment version 3.0 application to SQL Server. It is also useful alone as a SQL Server query and edit tool.

Microsoft Corp. (NASDAQ: MSFT) develops, markets and supports a wide range of software for business and professional use, including operating systems network products, languages and application programs, as well as books, hardware and CD ROM products for the microcomputer marketplace.

LONGMONT, CO (SEPT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Staodyn Inc. (NASDAQ:SDYN) Wednesday reported that the company anticipates a loss of $275,000-$300,000 for the fiscal second quarter ending Sept. 1, 1990.

Sales for the quarter were down 18 percent from the same period last year. ''We have initiated the necessary steps to turn the sales picture around, but it may take the rest of the year. Changes in the market, plus our own mistakes, make the achievement of the earlier 20 percent increase impossible.

Medical professionals who will prescribe this product are also prescribers of TENS and muscle stimulation. The new product will be used by patients who are also prime candidates for the company's wound healing product, to be submitted to the FDA for approval in late 1990.

''We are in active marketing partner discussions with two large divisions of multi-billion dollar medical companies. They are both enthusiastic about the Dermapulse wound healing technology,'' Gibson said.

Staodyn is a leading manufacturer of medical electronic products, primarily TENS (Transcutaneous Electrical Nerve Stimulation) devices used for the relief of chronic and acute pain, and NMES (Neuromuscular Electrical Stimulation) devices used in physical and sports medicine for muscle re-education and rehabilitation.

The company has been engaged in an extensive clinical investigation using electrotherapy for wound care, which when approved for sales within the United States, is likely to become a major portion of the company's business.

EL MONTE, CA (SEPT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Marshall Industries (NYSE:MI) Wednesday reported estimated operating results for its first fiscal quarter ended Aug. 31, 1990.

The company estimated net sales for the first quarter to be about $146 million compared with $127 million for the same period a year ago. Net income was estimated to be approximately $4.9 million, or 58 cents per share, vs. $4.7 million, or 50 cents per share, in the first quarter of the prior year.

The estimated results for the quarter ended Aug. 31, 1990, include a gain of 3 cents per share related to the sale of a facility. The current year's net income per share figure also reflects 845,000 fewer shares outstanding as the result of the repurchase of company stock in November and December 1989.

The company expects to release final results for the first quarter early next week.

ANAHEIM, CA (SEPT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - A name change from Replatec Co. to Green Tree Plastics Technology Inc., a start-up company, was announced Wednesday by the firm's co-founders -- William Baskind, president, and Vice President G.P. ''Skip'' Humphrey Jr.

Baskind said: ''The new name was selected because it more accurately describes the company's activities. The former name, Replatec, was changed because it was not available.''

Green Tree will produce a line of ''HI-MOD'' plastic lumber to replace items made of chemically treated and other lumber. The new environmental laws regarding toxic materials create an opportunity for use of plastic lumber products. Green Tree Plastics lumber products have been in laboratory development for over 2 years and are now ready for production.

Baskind noted, ''Several municipalities now mandate the use of plastic lumber to avoid toxic hazards of chemically treated lumber, especially the problems they represent to the environment by leaching into the water supply.''

HI-MOD plastic lumber is totally resistant to many devastating wood-eating insects such as termites and other wood borers. Wood rot is also no longer a problem.

This material has two advantages, first, it reduces plastic waste materials entering land fills. Second, it opens an opportunity to produce usable products from the waste stream.

This creates a chance for sheltered workshops to produce saleable products for the community and industry. These include park benches, playground equipment, fence stakes and posts, fruit tree supports and other secondary structural items.

Markets for ''HI-MOD'' plastic lumber already exist and include agriculture, civil engineering, marine, horticulture, garden products and special industrial items that can use this type of material as a wood substitute.

What makes ''HI-MOD'' plastic unique is its special manufacturing process which integrates the various heretofore imcompatible plastic materials into a uniform, integrated mass, making it the strongest wood substitute available. Products can be made by extruding or by injection molding method.

SAN FRANCISCO (SEPT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - URS Corp. (NYSE:URS) Wednesday reported revenues for the fiscal third quarter ended July 31, of $27.7 million a 19 percent increase over revenues of $23.3 million in the like 1989 period.

Loss from continuing operations in the third quarter was $400,000, or 12 cents per share, as compared to a $7.5 million loss, or $8.54 per share, in the 1989 period.

The 1989 loss included a $2.3 million write-down in the company's investment in its former international subsidiary. Net loss for the period was also $400,000, as compared to a net loss of $8.9 million in 1989 which included $1.4 million in losses from discontinued operations.

The company said improved performance in the 1990 third quarter resulted from increasing revenues, significantly lower general and administrative expenses, and lower interest costs due to lower debt.

Increased revenues in the fiscal third quarter resulted primarily from activities related to U.S. Navy environmental engineering and remediation work in the Northwest and Alaska, two U.S. Environmental Protection Agency contracts, civil engineering at the new Denver International Airport and hospital design and architectural work in Southern California.

At the end of the third quarter, the company's backlog of signed contracts was $123 million, a 70 percent increase over the $72 million in signed contracts at the beginning of 1990.

Revenues for the nine months ended July 31 were $73.5 million, three percent ahead of the prior year's $71.7 million. Loss from continuing operations, which included a one time $3.2 million charge related to the company's financial restructuring, was $5.5 million, or $2.62 per share.

This is compared with a $12.6 million loss from continuing operations, or $14.35 per share, in the first nine months of fiscal 1989.

Net loss for the nine months was $15.2 million, or $7.28 per share, which included a $9.7 million loss from discontinued operations due primarily to the shutdown of the company's Mitchell Management Systems subsidiary.

This compares with net income of $11.2 million, or $12.88 a share, in the 1989 nine-month period, which included a $5.3 million charge to discontinued operations and a $29.1 million extraordinary gain from the exchange of a new series of subordinated debentures and common shares for previously issued convertible subordinated debentures.

As a separate matter, the company also announced that it has reached a settlement with IBM relating to matters resulting from the discontinuation of Mitchell Management Systems.

LOS ANGELES (SEPT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Steven L. Isenberg, associate publisher of Newsday, will join the Los Angeles Times as executive vice president, marketing, effective Jan. 1, 1991, announced David Laventhol, publisher and chief executive officer.

Isenberg, 49, will succeed Don Clark, 64, who will continue as an executive vice president during 1991 to ensure an orderly transition.

''Steve Isenberg is one of Time Mirror's most talented newspaper executives and brings a special dimension of skills to this challenging assignment,'' Laventhol said.

Isenberg will be responsible for advertising, circulation, promotion and marketing research as well as the marketing operations of The Times' daily regional editions in Orange County, San Diego and the San Fernando Valley. He will report to Laventhol.

''Don Clark has led The Times' marketing departments with great distinction during the past three years,'' Laventhol said. ''Under his leadership, The Times has had record-breaking years in circulation and revenues.''

''Don was classified advertising director for seven years prior to his current assignment,'' Laventhol added. ''In that capacity, his accomplishments included the complete reorganization of the sales, administration and operation departments within classified and many record-breaking years in revenue and linage at America's largest classified advertising department.''

Isenberg has been associate publisher of Newsday, a Times Mirror newspaper, since September 1986, where he has special responsibilities for New York Newsday. Prior to that, Isenberg was publisher of the Stamford Advocate and Greenwich Time, two Times Mirror newspapers in Connecticut. He began his newspaper career with Newsday in 1982 as assistant to the publisher.

Isenberg previously practiced law in New York and served as chief of staff and assistant to former Mayor John V. Lindsay.

With this new assignment, Isenberg returns to Los Angeles, where he grew up and attended local public schools. He received a bachelor's degree in English from the University of California at Berkeley. He also holds a bachelor's and master's degree in English language and literature from Worcester College Oxford, England, and a J.D. from the Yale Law School.

He is a member of the executive board of the College of Letters and Sciences at the University of California at Berkeley; the senior advisory board of the Joan Shorenstein Barone Center on the Press, Politics and Public Policy at Harvard University's John F. Kennedy School of Government; and the Council on Foreign Relations.

Clark, who has been with The Times for 37 years, was named to his current position in 1988. He joined the newspaper as an automotive division sales representative in classified, subsequently serving in a variety of management positions in the department. He was promoted to director of classified in 1981.

RIVERWOODS, IL (SEPT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Sears Mortgage Corp. (SMC) announced Wednesday that it has acquired the $6.7 billion residential mortgage-servicing portfolio of Southeast Mortgage Co. (SEMCO) and five of SEMCO's loan-origination offices in Florida.

Pursuant to a formula agreed upon by the parties, the purchase price for the SEMCO assets will result in a payment in excess of $100 million.

The five Florida loan-origination offices are located in Ft. Lauderdale, Ft. Myers, Jacksonville, Kendall/Miami and Lake Worth (West Palm Beach). Prior to the acquisition, SMC had nine loan-origination offices in Florida. Some 28 SEMCO loan officers will also move to SMC as part of the acquisition.

Additionally, beginning Nov. 1, SMC will operate a servicing facility in the SEMCO headquarters building in Miami. It will be staffed by approximately 25 former SEMCO employees who will provide collection and customer-service functions for the combined Florida and Georgia SMC mortgage-loan servicing portfolio, a total of some 83,000 loans.

Each SMC office will offer a complete line of conventional, FHA and VA mortgage loans, including 15- and 30-year fixed-rate as well as adjustable loans. Jumbo loans will also be offered.

SMC offices will offer a variety of mortgage-loan programs, including: ApprovalFirst (sm), which provides the home shopper with approval for a specific monthly home payment before house hunting; Sears National Accelerated Processing (SNAP), which guarantees 14-day processing on conventional loans, given certain documentation; and a personalized computer analysis to compare mortgage options.

With the acquisition, SMC's portfolio will include more than 190,000 mortgage loans totaling nearly $14 billion, and the company's network of branches in 33 states will include 100 retail mortgage-origination locations.

IRVINE, CA (SEPT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - In an effort to meet the continuously increasing demand for its products, Toshiba America Information Systems Inc. (TAIS) Wednesday announced plans to further expand manufacturing for both its laptop personal computers (PCs) and state-of-the-art ''surface mounted'' printed circuit boards (PCBs) at its headquarters facilities in Irvine.

The announcement was made Wednesday by Kiichi Hataya, president of TAIS.

Beginning Dec. 1, TAIS will increase laptop production capacity to 25,000 units each month, up from the present 15,000. Additionally, the company will increase production capacity of its PCBs to 5,000 sets per month effective Oct. 1. Hataya estimates that by April 1991, production of the PCB boards will double to 10,000 sets per month.

The expansion in production equipment and capabilities is part of the company's ongoing corporate strategy of increased domestic manufacturing capabilities.

In April, the company announced a $9 million investment for leasehold improvements and start-up costs to initiate surface mounting of PCBs for use in TAIS business-related products. The PCB is a fundamental part of a laptop computer, integrating semiconductors and other electronic components on a single board.

The company initially began production of its PCBs in April at 1,000 sets per month and laptops in August 1987 at 5,000 per month.

To meet the specific needs of the American marketplace, the company has also expanded research and development activities at its Irvine headquarters where product innovations are being conceived that increasingly reflect U.S. market thinking and demands.

By integrating TAIS' innately American, market-driven approach to product development with the technological expertise of the company's parent, Toshiba Corp., TAIS is hoping to exceed $1 billion in sales in 1990, according to Hataya.

With headquarters in Irvine and 1989 sales exceeding $900 million, TAIS manufactures and markets a wide range of business and information-oriented products in the United States. The current product mix currently manufactured in the United States includes laptop and desktop computers, plain paper copiers, facsimile systems, electronic key telephones and PBX systems and cellular mobile phones.

Toner and developer products for copying systems are manufactured at the company's Mitchell, S.D., plant. TAIS also markets printers and disk drives.

TAIS is an independent operating company, owned by Toshiba America Inc., a subsidiary of the $29 billion Toshiba Corp., world leader in high-technology products with 71 major subsidiaries worldwide.

HAYWARD, Calif. (SEPT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Larry Harikian M.D., president and chief executive officer of Occupational Medical Corporation of America Inc. (NASDAQ:OMCA) Wednesday announced the operating results for the fourth quarter and year ended June 30.

Fourth quarter results are an after-tax loss of $72,221 or 3 cents per share compared with an after-tax profit of $452,689 or 18 cents per share for the corresponding quarter of fiscal year 1989. Fourth quarter loss from continuing operation was $8,469 vs. income of $452,689 for fiscal year 1989. Earnings and loss per share are based on the average number of shares outstanding of 2,519,550 shares.

OMCOA also announced the closing of CHx, its medical bill review company. Due to uncertainties in the market caused by current and impending lawsuits filed against other review companies and a longer than expected start-up period, OMCOA has decided to close CHx. The closing of CHx resulted in a loss from discontinued operations net of tax effect of

Year end results are an after-tax profit of $135,340 or 5 cents per share compared with an after-tax profit of $1,452,519 or 58 cents per share for fiscal year 1989. Income from continuing operation was $224,445 vs. $1,452,519. Loss from discontinued operation (CHx) net of tax was $47,616. Loss from disposal of discontinued operations totaled $41,489. Earnings and loss per share are based on the average number of shares outstanding of 2,519,550 shares.

Revenues for the fourth quarter of fiscal year 1990 were $1,647,048 compared with $1,959,875 for the corresponding quarter of fiscal 1989. Revenues for the year ended June 30 were $6,521,063 compared with $7,207,045 for the year ended June 30, 1989. The aftermath of the Oct. 17 earthquake and the absence of an orthopedist for the second half of the year account for a substantial portion of the reduction in the Bay Area Clinics. An orthopedist was hired in July 1990.

Expenses for the quarter ended June 30 were $1,617,331 compared with $1,415,886 for the corresponding quarter in fiscal year 1989. Expenses for the year ended June 30 were $5,998,377 compared to $5,424,526 for the year ended June 30, 1989. Lawsuit settlement losses amounted to $56,821 for the fourth quarter and $138,241 for the year ended June 30.

OMCOA operates 8 occupational medical centers and three rehabilitation centers in the state of California, Oregon and Washington.

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (SEPT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Software Publishing Corp. Wednesday announced its intention to enter into a co-development agreement with Micro Decisionware Inc. of Boulder, Colo.

The two companies intend to collaborate to develop connectivity products that will work in conjunction with Software Publishing's recently announced InfoAlliance product and Micro Decisionware's Database Gateway product.

Using Micro Decisionware's gateway technology, the co-developed products will provide InfoAlliance users with access to data located on IBM and other mini and mainframe computers.

Kevin Conway, vice president and general manager of Software Publishing Corp.'s information access division, said, ''With InfoAlliance, we're addressing the problem of data accessibility. Micro Decisionware has the technology and expertise to help us link InfoAlliance users to critical data sources located on mini and mainframe systems.''

Said John Quinlan, president of Micro Decisionware, ''Software Publishing has taken an important step toward connecting users with the data they need. We believe that together we can take the next step and link organizations with an even wider range of data sources.''

The first product in the new PC software category of datasource integration, InfoAlliance leverages OS/2 PM technology and client/server processing to enable PC users on a network to access and manipulate data from various sources throughout the organization. InfoAlliance integrates data through a graphical information interface and includes an application generator.

As part of the co-development agreement, Software Publishing and Micro Decisionware plan to share in training, marketing, sales and support activities for the jointly developed products.

Software Publishing Corp., one of the original personal computer software companies, is a leading international supplier of business productivity software for the IBM Personal Computer and compatibles. The company currently develops and markets a wide range of decision-critical software for accessing and presenting information, including the market-leading Professional and Harvard series and the recently introduced InfoAlliance products.

SAN JOSE, CA (SEPT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Ramtek Corp. Wednesday announced that its net revenues for the fiscal year ended June 30 were $17,600,000 as compared to $19,271,000 (including $3,100,000 for non-recurring sales of technology) for fiscal year 1989.

The company reported a loss before extraordinary credit of $444,000, or 10 cents per share, for fiscal year 1990 as compared to a loss of $180,000, or 5 cents, for fiscal year 1989.

Net income was $11,647,000, or $2.68 per share, which included an extraordinary item of $12,091,000, or $2.78 per share, related to a gain from the company's emergence from Chapter 11. The company had net income of $217,000, or 5 cents per share, which included an extraordinary item related to the utilization of a net operating loss carry forward of

Jim Swanson, president, said: ''Fiscal year 1990 was a year of significant milestones for Ramtek as it emerged from Chapter 11 and introduced its new product, the Millennium.

The Millennium product is a high resolution, high performance system designed to provide UNIX-based workstations with powerful image processing capability for remote sensing, geophysical, medical and other image processing applications. Excluding the sale of technology, the company's revenues from products and services increased 9 percent between fiscal years 1990 and 1989.

Ramtek Corp., headquartered in San Jose, designs and manufactures high-performance imaging and graphics display systems and peripherals.

SUNNYVALE, CA (SEPT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Setting aside protests initiated by unsuccessful bidders, the state of California has authorized the award of the first major statewide fingerprinting equipment contract to Identix Inc. (NASDAQ:IDXX) of Sunnyvale.

The action follows an ''intent to award'' announcement by the state's Department of Justice on June 28.

The CAL-ID Live-Scan equipment contract, which is the largest fingerprinting equipment contract ever awarded, calls for Identix to provide up to 600 of its TouchPrint fingerprint scanning systems to California state, county and city law enforcement authorities. The state will pay the majority of costs for cities and counties that install the machines.

''California has always been a leader in applying high-tech solutions to law enforcement problems,'' commented Fred Wynbrandt, California assistant director of the Division of Law Enforcement. ''The installation of the TouchPrint system will significantly enhance our ability to more quickly and accurately identify suspect individuals' fingerprints on a statewide basis.''

The TouchPrint system allows law enforcement authorities to electronically scan and print fingerprints at the point of booking. Simultaneously, the fingerprints can be transmitted over telephone lines to a computer system for identification matching in a fraction of the time it currently takes through manual processing.

According to Identix President Randy Fowler, the contract is expected to contribute up to $40 million to Identix revenues over the next five years. ''The contract is significant not only to Identix but to the industry overall,'' said Fowler. ''It confirms that this technology provides real solutions to law enforcement problems.''

The first TouchPrint systems are scheduled to be installed in next month in Sacramento and Los Angeles County.

Fowler added: ''California is often on the leading edge, so we expect that other states will be issuing requests for proposals for similar applications over the next few years.''

Identix Inc., located in Sunnyvale, designs, manufactures and markets a family of identity verification systems that combine high accuracy with user friendliness.

PURCHASE, N.Y. (SEPT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - John A. Georges, chairman and chief executive officer of International Paper, Wednesday announced the appointment of three vice presidents.

Newland A. Lesko was named vice president - coated papers, Paul T. Stecko was named vice president - manufacturing, Hammermill and pulp divisions and David A. Bailey was named staff vice president and director - quality management.

Lesko joined International Paper in 1967 and has held several positions in the company's coated papers business, including mill manager of the Androscoggin mill near Jay, Maine.

He most recently served as staff vice president and director - quality management.

In his new position, Lesko is repsonsible for the coated papers business marketing and manufacturing activities.

His responsibilities include operations at the Androscoggin mill and the Hudson River mill in Corinth, N.Y. as well as coated paper operations at the Pine Bluff mill in Pine Bluff, Ark.

He will report to Dana G. Mead, executive vice president - pulp and paper businesses.

Stecko joined International Paper in 1977 and has held positions in the company's procurement operations and white papers business, including manager of the company's Ticonderoga mill in Ticonderoga, N.Y. He most recently served as manufacturing manager - Hammermill division.

In his new position, Stecko will continue to be responsible for manufacturing operations at the Erie mill in Erie, Pa., the Lock Haven mill in Lock Haven, Pa., the Oswego mill in Oswego, N.Y., and the Riverdale mill near Selma, Ala. He will continue to report on those duties to Jeffrey F. Kass, vice president - Hammermill division.

International Paper, headquartered in Purchase, is a worldwide producer of paper and forest products. The company is a major producer of wood pulp, printing and writing papers, paperboard and packaging products, and wood products.

The company also operates specialty products businesses and distributes paper and wood products. International Paper has manufacturing operations in 22 countries and exports its products from the United States to more than 100 nations.

LOS ANGELES (SEPT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - California Beach Restaurants (NASDAQ:CALB) reported its first quarterly results since changing its name from IHV and its acquisition of several major California restaurants.

The company recently announced the acquisition of Gladstone's 4 Fish and R.J.'s the Rib Joint as the first step in the development of a series of Southern California waterfront restaurants. Robert Morris, founder, and Richard Stevens completed the purchase after acquiring control of IHV, a small public company, in June of 1989.

Revenues for the quarter ending July 31, 1990, were $5,723,631 compared with $464,710 for the prior year. Income from operations increased to $697,267 from $148,114. Net income for the quarter ended July 31, 1990, was $73,594 vs. $111,153. Increased interest expense, amortization of goodwill and and covenant not to compete, income taxes and start-up costs impacted the net earnings.

California Beach Restaurants has entered into an amended letter of intent with Grand American Inc. (''Grand American'') to acquire a subsidiary of Grand American which owns the leasehold for a restaurant to be built on the waterfront in Santa Monica, Calif.; and a management contract to manage a restaurant in Marina del Rey, Calif.; as well as options to acquire five restaurants owned by Grand American or its affiliates at various locations in California.

The purchase price for this subsidiary is $1 million which the company will pay by way of issuing its seven-year subordinated convertible debentures bearing interest at the rate of 10 percent per annum and convertible into the Registrant's common stock at $1.50 per share.

If this transaction is consummated, California Beach Restaurants would be required to expend approximately $1 million to furnish, equip and open the Marina del Rey and Santa Monica Pier restaurants, which amount would probably be expended during the current fiscal year. It is anticipated that this amount would be borrowed from the company's current lender.

The company also set Oct. 9 at 10 a.m. for its annual meeting to be held at Gladstone's 4 Fish located on the Pacific Ocean at the western termination of Sunset Boulevard. Gladstone's, the largest volume independent restaurant in California, anticipates record gross income in fiscal year 1991, according to a company spokesperson.

LENEXA, KS (SEPT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Syntro Corp. (NASDAQ/NMS:SYNT) announced Wednesday that the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office has issued an official notice of allowance for a patent on PRV/Marker, a novel veterinary vaccine manufactured and marketed by Syntro's animal health subsidiary, SyntroVet Inc.

PRV/Marker provides a unique combination of efficacy, safety and diagnostic features to combat pseudorabies, a serious and economically important disease of swine.

''Since its introduction in 1988, PRV/Marker has captured a significant market share,'' said Dr. J. Donald Todd, Syntro's president and chief executive officer. ''The patent underscores both the product's uniqueness and Syntro's ability to apply our advanced technology to the marketplace.''

Todd added that it is extremely rare for a veterinary vaccine to benefit from strong patent protection.

This will be the second patent resulting from Syntro's success in custom designing pseudorabies vaccines, and several additional patent applications are pending. Syntro's first patent dealt with the elimination of disease-inducing genes from wild-type pseudorabies viruses as a means of developing safe and effective vaccines.

PRV/Marker was the subject of a recently resolved patent dispute involving Syntro, SyntroVet and The Upjohn Co. In March 1989, Upjohn filed suit against Syntro and later against SyntroVet claiming that PRV/Marker infringed an Upjohn patent relating to a virus with a gene deletion.

Upjohn and Syntro announced in August that they had agreed to settle their dispute by cross-licensing each other under their respective patents related to pseudorabies vaccines under terms described by Syntro as positive for the company.

Syntro Corp., founded in 1981, is a Lenexa and San Diego-based biotechnology company engaged in the development and commercialization of technology in the health sector. SyntroVet, a wholly owned animal health subsidiary of Syntro, was established in 1985 to manufacture and market products resulting from Syntro's research program.

SANTA ANA, CALIF. (SEPT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - B/E Avionics Inc. (NASDAQ:BEAV) Wednesday announced record results for its fiscal year and fourth quarter ended July 29.

For the 12-month period, BEA posted its highest revenues ever reaching $22,944,000, a gain of 36 percent vs. the 1989 full year pro forma combined level of $16,900,000. The company acquired the Avionics Division of EECO, Incorporated in August 1989. For year-to-year comparability, the 1990 actual results have been compared with 1989 pro forma operations, which assume that this acquisition had occurred on August 1, 1988.

Fiscal year 1990 operating earnings of $4,889,000 advanced to a new record while reversing the $86,000 pro forma combined loss for 1989. Net income and earnings per share in fiscal 1990, after extraordinary charges, were $1,590,000 and 29 cents vs. losses of $2,415,000 and 50 cents in 1989.

The excellent gains reflected the strong revenue growth and a substantial increase in gross margin during 1990 to 50 percent vs. the prior year's 37 percent.

As of July 29, 1990, BEA's stockholders' equity reached $16,193,000 compared with the 1989 fiscal year-ending level of $2,331,000. Average 1990 and 1989 shares outstanding were 5,425,000 and 4,813,000, respectively.

Fourth quarter revenues for 1990 were $5,456,000, ahead by 22 percent vs. the 1989 pro forma combined level of $4,464,000. Fourth quarter 1990 operating earnings rose to $994,000 vs. a $91,000 operating loss in 1989. The gains again are due primarily to both the strong revenue growth and a substantial increase in gross margin from 33 percent in 1989 to 51 percent in 1990.

Fourth quarter net income and earnings per share of $54,000 and one cent in 1990 after the extraordinary charges associated with prepayment of all of the company's institutional debt were up from losses of $645,000 and 13 cents in the 1989 final quarter.

As previously announced while fourth quarter earnings were positively affected by the elimination of interest expense, the company recorded a one-time, extraordinary charge in the quarter equal to $723,000 (after taxes), or 14 cents per share on a fiscal year basis. The charge related to the prepayment at face value of all the company's institutional debt, which had been booked with an original issue discount. Proceeds from BEA's initial public offering of common stock in April were used early in the fourth quarter for the debt retirement.

''We are extremely pleased with our full year results. They are in line with our own aggressive expectations and keep us well on target to achieve our growth objectives,'' said BEA chairman and chief executive officer Amin J. Khoury.

''In 1990, we strategically positioned ourselves for the future with our

EECO acquisition, our IPO and our debt elimination. The company's financial position is solid. Our installed base representing over 4,000 planes -- by far the industry's largest -- rose to $81 million during the year and represents a 70 percent share of all PCU installations.''

With more than 150 commercial airline customers, B/E Avionics Inc. is the world's leading supplier of passenger control units for in-plane audio and video entertainment and service systems.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - The Dun & Bradstreet Corp. announced Wednesday that it has signed an agreement with Goskomstat, the State Committee on Statistics of the USSR, to market data on Soviet businesses to firms in the West.

''The information made available by this agreement will help Western firms to evaluate emerging business opportunities in the Soviet Union,'' said Charles W. Moritz, chairman and chief executive officer of The Dun & Bradstreet Corp.. ''We're delighted to be able to offer directory and trade data on Soviet businesses as part of the expanding global information resources of Dun & Bradstreet.''

James E. Rutter, executive vice president responsible for D&B's worldwide Business Information Group, added, ''We're pleased that this agreement has been successfully concluded, during this period of dramatic transition in the USSR.''

Discussions between D&B and Goskomstat were initiated in early 1988 by Joseph W. Duncan, vice president, corporate economist and chief statistician for D&B. Duncan also negotiated the final agreement for D&B. The formal contract is with the Information & Publishing Center of Goskomstat.

The information to be published by D&B will be offered in four directories. The Directory of Operational Joint Ventures will include the names and addresses of all operational joint ventures, in both Russian and English. Information on the types of activities in which the firms are engaged also will be provided, as defined by standard statistical classifications. Data on the scale of each activity will be defined by such measures as employment, assets and/or export sales.

The Directory of the Largest 500 Machinery Enterprises in the USSR will be a general directory of the 500 largest Soviet manufacturing businesses, with data on names and addresses in both Russian and English, standard classification codes on their activities, and characterizations of scale based on employment, assets, and/or sales.

The Directory of USSR Enterprises Involved in Export will provide the names and addresses of Soviet export enterprises, including data on the commodities, products or services exported, as well as the volume of exports when available.

Finally, D&B will publish USSR Import and Export Trade Statistics, a reference publication containing annual historical Soviet import and export trade statistics for 1988, 1989 and 1990, and quarterly data for 1991 forward.

The data will be provided in a time series format, containing the export or import product code, the starting date of the time series, an indication of whether the data are price- level data or ratio data, the price date of the currency on which the data are issued and the data themselves. In addition, for each import and export product code provided the English name, followed by a description in English of the import and export data, are included.

Publication of the directories will commence in the fourth quarter of 1990.

The Dun & Bradstreet Corp. is the world's largest marketer of business information and related services, with worldwide operating revenue of $4.3 billion in 1989.

ROCKY HILL, CT (SEPT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Ames Department Stores Inc. (NYSE:ADD), Wednesday reported a loss of $152.5 million, or $4.15 per share, including non-recurring charges of $73.1 million for the second quarter ended July 28.

For last year's second quarter, the loss was $11.1 million, or 38 cents per share.

Ames said the loss for the quarter, before non-recurring charges, was $79.4 million which was significantly less than the company's earlier expectations.

The non-recurring charges primarily consisted of non-cash provisions including: $40 million for the estimated adjustment of pre-petition accounts payable amounts during the bankruptcy claims filing process; a $20 million additional reserve for inventory markdowns anticipated in connection with previously announced special promotions; and a $9.1 million write off of certain management information systems installed as part of the Zayre stores consolidation and deemed no longer beneficial.

Ames reported total sales for the quarter of $563.3 million, a 33 percent decline from last year's adjusted total. The 1989 adjusted sales, excluding sales from 221 stores closed during this year's second quarter, totalled $852 million.

Stephen L. Pistner, Ames' chief executive officer, said, ''We began the second quarter with a poor in-stock position on seasonal merchandise and had suspended circular advertising. However, the $79.4 million loss before non-recurring charges, was significantly less than we had anticipated because of better-than-expected summer clearance sales.

''We essentially restarted the business during the quarter. Our most important priorities were to restore the flow of merchandise to our stores and to resume our advertising program,'' he said. ''We achieved both by the end of the quarter.''

Ames resumed weekly circulars July 29, Pistner said, because of dramatically improved stock positions and vendor shipments.

April 25. The company sought court protection to restructure its business and finances. Ames operates 461 discount department stores in 17 Northeastern states.

NATCHEZ, MISS. (SEPT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Callon Consolidated Partners L.P. (NASDAQ/NMS:CCLPZ) announced Wednesday that at a special meeting of voting unitholders held on Sept. 10, 1990, an amendment to its partnership agreement revising the investment objectives and policies of the partnership was adopted by a majority of its voting unitholders.

Approximately 87 percent of the units voted were in favor of the amendment. The amendment to the partnership agreement became effective Sept. 10, 1990.

As a result of the amendment, the business and purpose of the partnership will be expanded to allow the acquisition of oil and gas properties for cash, supplemented by borrowings, and the drilling of development type wells, thereby changing the character of the partnership from a depleting entity to an ongoing operation engaged in the acquisition, development and production of oil and gas properties.

Based on current levels of the partnership's cash flow, the expected annual budget for such activities is $3.5 million.

Callon Petroleum Co., the general partner of the partnership, is actively engaged in the acquisition of producing oil and gas properties for its own account and on behalf of institutional investors. It is anticipated that the partnership will participate in some of such future acquisitions. In addition to acquiring producing properties, the partnership will actively seek development drilling opportunities.

As of Dec. 31, 1989, the partnership's oil and gas reserves were estimated at 2.8 million barrels of oil and 8.6 billion cubic feet of natural gas. Using prices in effect at that time ($20 per barrel of oil and $1.52 per thousand cubic feet of natural gas), the estimated present value (using a 10 percent discount factor) of future cash flow from such reserves was $30 million.

The partnership has made cash distributions during every quarter since its formation in April 1987. An aggregate of $19 million has been distributed to unitholders. The partnership's latest quarterly distribution of 15 cents per unit was paid on Aug. 31, 1990.

The partnership produces oil and natural gas from domestic onshore properties located primarily in the Gulf Coast region. The partnership's 5.9 million depositary receipts for units of limited partnership interest trade on the NASDAQ National Market System under the symbol CCLPZ.

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (SEPT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Qintex Entertainment Inc. (QEI) (NASDAQ:QNTXQ) Wednesday reported court approval of the sale of the company's entertainment assets to RHI Entertainment Inc. for approximately $42.4 million and the assumption of certain obligations of QEI.

The sale includes the QEI library, accounts receivable, development projects and substantially all other programming assets.

The entertainment assets sale to RHI is subject to obtaining further bankruptcy court orders approving the transfer of contracts and other rights of QEI. The company believes that these approvals can be obtained prior to the end of October 1990. The purchase price is subject to final adjustments at closing.

The company has earlier reported court approval for the sale of QEI's interest in HR Broadcasting Inc. (HRBC). HRBC owns two television stations that are being sold to ABRY Communications for over $40 million, of which QEI will receive approximately $20 million for its interests. The ABRY transaction is scheduled to close following transfer of FCC licenses, which is expected to occur in November 1990.

The assets sales were approved in U.S. Bankruptcy Court by Judge Lisa Fenning. Qintex filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection in October 1989.

NEWPORT BEACH, CA (SEPT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - American Express Travel Related Services (NYSE:AXP) Wednesday announced that the company will place Airline Computerized Ticketing (ACT) electronic ticketing machines (ETMs)in its prime corporate sites.

According to Joanne Stewart, chief executive officer of ACT, the move by American Express/Eastern Region makes the company the first to install the Orange County-based firm's revolutionary airline self-ticketing machines.

''American Express has always been at the forefront in developing sophisticated technology to assist our clients,'' said James Yasinski, vice president of business travel operations, Eastern Region. ''We have been testing this product since 1989 and we're delighted that the first installations on customer premises will take place within our Eastern Region,'' he said.

The ACT ETMs provide a computerized airline self-ticketing network that allows travellers to electronically receive airline tickets, boarding passes and itineraries in 25 seconds from anywhere in the country and to be able to make last-minute, trouble-free changes around the clock.

Commented Jim Thompson, vice president of facilities and automation, ''The ACT ETMs are a tool that move American Express into a whole new generation of customer-service technology.''

BOSTON (SEPT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - The Boston Bancorp (NASDAQ:SBOS) announced Wednesday that its Board of Directors has authorized the Company to purchase up to an additional 600,000 shares of its outstanding commons stock under its current stock repurchase program.

Repurchases will be made from time to time over the next 12 months in open market or privately negotiated transactions based on then current market prices.

No shares will knowingly be purchased from directors or officers of the Company or from persons who hold in excess of 5 pct. of its outstanding shares.

In February 1990 the Board authorized the purchase of up to 300,000 shares of common stock, of which approximately 249,600 have been acquired to date.

Richard R. Laine, Chairman and CEO, stated, ''The Board of Directors continues to consider Boston Bancorp's stock to be an attractive investment. Our objective in increasing the number of shares sought in the repurchase program is to improve the overall return to our shareholders by increasing the earnings per share of those shares of Boston Bancorp stock that remain outstanding after the repurchases, as well as enhancing market value generally.''

Boston Bancorp, which presently has 6,821,922 shares of common stock outstanding, is the holding company for South Boston Savings Bank, a Massachusetts-chartered, FDIC-insured savings bank headquartered in South Boston, Massachusetts. On July 31, 1990, Boston Bancorp had total assets of $1.6 billion and stockholders' equity of $97.3 million. Boston Bancorp reported consolidated net income of $10.655 million for the nine months ended July 31, 1990.

SHELTON, CT (SEPT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Shelton Bancorp Inc. (NASDAQ:SSBC) the parent company of Shelton Savings Bank, announced Wednesday that its board of directors has voted to increase the amount of the company's common stock repurchase plan from 3.5 percent of total issured shares, to 10 percent, or 113,742 shares.

As the company had purchased 39,800 shares prior to this increase, the maximum number of shares that the company may repurchase within the next 12 months is 73,942 shares.

The company's president and treasurer, Kenneth E. Schaible, stated that ''Highly publicized earnings problems at banks throughout the region have shaken investor confidence, causing a drop in the market price of most New England bank stocks. Despite the fact that Shelton Bancorp has been profitable for 32 straight quarters, the market price of our stock has recently fallen below its June 30, 1990, book value of $12.71 per share.''

Schaible added that, ''After reviewing other investments and given our strong capital position, we felt that an increase in our stock repurchase plan would be in the best interest of both the company and its stockholders.''

Shelton Bancorp Inc. is the parent company of Shelton Savings Bank, a Connecticut-chartered, FDIC-insured savings bank. Since its founding in 1919, Shelton Savings Bank has specialized in retail banking, with specific emphasis on residential mortgage lending.

The bank is headquartered in Shelton and operates five full service offices within eastern Fairfield and southwestern New Haven counties. The company has issued 1,137,420 shares of common stock, and 1,097,620 shares are outstanding.

SANTA ANA, CA (SEPT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Novadyne Computer Systems Inc. has named Hans J. Kintsch vice president and chief financial officer effective June 30.

In his new role, Kintsch will be responsible for directing all accounting, banking, treasury and financial-reporting functions for Novadyne. In addition, Kintsch will be responsible for contracts and administration as well as management information systems (MIS).

Novadyne is one of the largest independent field service and computer-systems-distribution organizations in North America, with over 1000 professionals located in over 100 offices.

Kintsch has spent the past 14 years in the financial and management arenas. He joined Novadyne (previously McDonnell Douglas Field Service Co.) in 1985 as controller, where he directed all accounting functions, developing and implementing a general ledger and inventory-control system which merged three divisions' accounting into one.

From 1979 to 1985 Kintsch was the vice president of finance for the Breagen Corp., a $30 million corporation where his responsibilities included streamlining the accounting and MIS groups, automating the general ledger system and installing on-line accounts-payable processing systems.

Kintsch started his career at Cal Comp in 1973, where he worked until 1979 as divisional accounting manager.

Graduating from the University of California at Irvine (UCI) in 1973, Kintsch earned a master's of science degree in administration. He received a bachelor's of science degree in 1971 from UCI.

Born in Austria in 1948, Kintsch moved to the United States at age eight. He presently resides in Anaheim Hills with his family.

Novadyne provides on-site repair and maintenance services on mainframes, minis, CAD/CAM workstations, PCs, micros and peripherals and communications networks. Revenues in 1989 exceeded $100 million.

DALLAS (SEPT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Bytex Corp. (NASDAQ:BYTX), based in Southborough, Mass., Wednesday announced a price reduction and introduced several new options for its industry leading local-area network (LAN) protocol analyzer, the Bytex ATS 1000.

The ATS 1000 is currently being exhibited at NetWorld Booth 2843.

Along with the price reduction, several new options include a lower-cost configuration of the base system; a remote option; and lease and rental programs.

''Now customers can enjoy superior functionality and performance at reasonable prices and in a variety of configurations,'' says Joseph S. Skorupa, Bytex director of LAN marketing. ''During the past few months, we invested significant time in talking with our customers about their LAN analyzer requirements.

''In the course of those discussions, we learned that in addition to highly reliable and fully functioning products, customers require flexible purchasing and packaging options in order to meet the challenges of a rapidly changing LAN environment. Today's announcement demonstrates Bytex's singular willingness and ability to meet all requirements.''

Base System Price Reduction

Bytex has improved the affordability of the ATS 1000 by lowering the price on existing base systems from $17,995 to $16,995. Base systems include a portable microcomputer with detachable keyboard and monitor, a network interface, turn-key system software and an ATS 1000 system diskette with pre-defined data collection and analysis applications. New Configuration

Bytex now offers a lower-cost configuration of the base system. Customers may purchase the ATS 1000 system without the detachable keyboard and monitor for $13,995. The new configuration allows customers to recycle keyboards and monitors while savings $3,000 off the price of the an ATS 1000. Remote Option

A new remote option allows organizations with geographically dispersed LANs to manage multiple LANs from a central location.

With the installation of the remote unit and a communications link, users can access the complete suite of ATS 1000 applications and features as if working with a locally installed ATS 1000 or IBM PC-AT or PC-compatible.

The remote option, available now for $15,390, includes an ATS 1000 system without keyboard and display monitor, ATS remote option software, PC AnyWhere and ATERM software, two Fastcomm FDX Series modems and a DB-25 to DB-25 cable.

LEASING PROGRAM

The new ATS 1000 leasing program allows customers to lease systems at fixed monthly rates over either 36 or 48 months.

Benefits of the program include improved cash flow and debt capacity (leased equipment is generally treated as an operating rather than a capital expense), flexibility in mitigating the risk of product obsolescence, and easy budgeting and protection against inflation. Rental Program

Additionally, a rental program is now available. Users may rent the ATS 1000 for $175 per day for a minimum of five days with an option to purchase. Up to 50 percent of rental payments may be applied toward the purchase of an ATS 1000.

Bytex is the world's leading supplier of fault-tolerant electronic matrix switching systems and related data communications products. The company recently entered the LAN marketplace with the acquisition of Vance Systems Inc. of Chantilly, Va. Vance Systems originally developed and marketed the ATS Series of LAN protocol analysis systems.

CHICAGO (SEPT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Aon Corporation (''Aon'') announced Wednesday that it has advised Corroon & Black Corporation (''Corroon'') of its interest in acquiring Corroon in a negotiated transaction for $40 per share in cash or approximately $840 million.

Corroon is currently a party to a Merger Agreement with Willis Faber p.l.c. (''Willis'') providing for a stock-for-stock transaction. The Merger Agreement is currently scheduled to be submitted to a vote of the stockholders of Corroon on September 28, 1990. Based upon market quotations for Willis shares and exchange rates as of September 11, 1990, the consideration to be received in the pending transaction with Willis has a current value of $33.49 per share on an ''equivalent share basis.''

Under the terms of the Merger Agreement with Willis, Corroon is permitted to participate in negotiations with, and provide information to, any third party which proposes a transaction which the Board of Corroon ''reasonably believes will result in a Superior Proposal.'' Corroon is also permitted to terminate the Merger Agreement in order to accept a superior proposal, but must first give Willis 45 days notice.

In a letter (a copy of which is attached to this press release) delivered earlier today from Patrick G. Ryan, Chairman of Aon, to Richard H. Miller, Chairman of Corroon, Mr. Ryan stated, ''We are not interested in pursuing any transaction which is opposed by your Board of Directors. Nevertheless, we believe that your Board will conclude, as our Board and financial advisors (Salomon Brothers Inc and William Blair & Company) have concluded, that $40 in cash per share from Aon Corporation represents a superior proposal to the proposed merger with Willis.''

Mr. Ryan added, ''The many excellent professionals of Corroon and our brokerage subsidiary, Rollins Burdick Hunter Group, Inc., would together create one of the four largest brokerage firms in the world - sharing the same culture, enhancing the career prospects of executives at all levels in both our firms, providing the highest standards of quality service to all clients, enjoying instant access to world markets and generating combined annual brokerage and related revenues approaching $1 billion.''

Aon Corporation is an insurance holding company listed on the New York, London and Midwest Stock Exchanges with assets in excess of $9.8 billion. Revenues for fiscal 1989 exceeded $2.3 billion, with net income of $232 million. Shareholders' equity at June 30, 1990 totaled $1.5 billion. Aon subsidiaries have operations throughout the United States and Canada, as well as Europe and the Pacific. In addition to Rollins Burdick Hunter Group, Inc., the principal subsidiaries of Aon Corporation are Combined Insurance Company of America, The Life Insurance Company of Virginia, Ryan Insurance Group, Inc. and Union Fidelity Life Insurance Company. -0- CONFIDENTIAL BY MESSENGER Mr. Richard M. Miller Chairman of the Board and Chief Executive Officer Corroon & Black Corporation Wall Street Plaza New York, New York 10005 Dear Dick:

We are aware that Corroon & Black Corporation (''Corroon'') has called a special meeting of its stockholders to be held on September 28, 1990 to consider and vote upon an Agreement and Plan of Merger dated as of June 1, 1990 (the ''Merger Agreement'') among Corroon, Willis Faber p.l.c. (''Willis'') and one of its affiliates, providing for the conversion of each common share of Corroon currently outstanding (together with certain related rights) into the right to receive 7.8 shares of Willis, as represented by ADRs. Based upon market quotations for Willis shares and exchange rates as of September 11, 1990, the consideration to be received in the proposed merger has a current value of $33.49 per share on an ''equivalent share basis''.

We have recently reviewed the proxy materials distributed by Corroon in connection with such special meeting and certain other publicly available information regarding Corroon. As a result of this review, we believe that there are significant potential advantages from a combination of Corroon and our insurance brokerage subsidiary, Rollins Burdick Hunter Group, Inc. ("RBH"), as well as significant potential benefits to be derived by our respective stockholders, customers and employees. A combination of our two organizations would create one of the largest insurance brokerage and risk management service firms in the United States. More importantly, it would create a U.S.-based firm which would be undoubtedly one of the premier professional organizations in our industry in the world. This fine organization would preserve both the Corroon and Rollins names.

With this in mind and so that you may consider an alternative transaction, the Board of Directors of Aon Corporation has authorized me to express to you our interest in acquiring all of the outstanding common shares of Corroon for $40 per share in cash, or approximately $840 million. The funds to enable us to complete this transaction would come from cash on hand and borrowings which we believe we can demonstrate to your satisfaction are readily available to us.

We contemplate structuring the transaction as a cash merger which could, if you wish, be preceded by a cash tender offer. Our transaction would be subject to the negotiation, execution and delivery of a definitive written agreement customary for the acquisition of a public company. Based upon our review of the Merger Agreement, we do not anticipate any significant difficulty in negotiating a mutually acceptable definitive written agreement. Financing would not be a condition.

We are not interested in pursuing any transaction which is opposed by your Board of Directors. Nevertheless, we believe that your Board will conclude, as our Board and financial advisors (Salomon Brothers Inc and William Blair & Company) have concluded, that $40 in cash per share from Aon Corporation represents a superior proposal to the proposed merger with Willis for the following principal reasons: CONTACT: Aon Corporation, Chicago

NEW YORK (SEPT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - The Blackstone Advantage Term Trust Inc. (NYSE:BAT) September 1990 monthly update:

Distribution Information: Amount Payable Date Record Date Declaration Date ------ ---------- ---------- $0.0813 Sept. 28, 1990 Sept. 14, 1990 Sept. 4, 1990 T o The Blackstone Advantage Term Trust's investment objective is to manage a portfolio of high quality securities that will return $10 per share to investors on or shortly before Dec. 31, 2005 while providing high monthly income.

o The fixed income markets reacted negatively to the events in the Middle East in August following quiet trading in July. From the end of June to the close of August, 30-year Treasury bonds rose from an 8.40 percent yield to more than 9.00 percent. Fears that higher oil prices could aggravate inflationary pressures caused investors to reduce their holdings of longer maturity assets and instead purchase shorter maturity securities which caused a steepening of the yield curve.

o Due to this development, the value of the Trust's investments decreased from a net asset value of $9.66 on June 29 to $9.41 on August 31. This is a decrease of 2.59 percent compared to the June month-end valuation. This decrease is less than the decline in overall fixed income markets due to a combination of the steepening yield curve and the narrowing of mortgage yield spreads to the treasury yield curve.

o The Trust continued to distribute its high monthly dividend of 8.13 cents per share which was earned fully from investment income.

ELMSFORD, NY (SEPT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - AFP Imaging Corp. (NASDAQ: AFPC) Wednesday reported increased profits for the fourth quarter and twelve months ended June 30.

The company reported record sales of $48,292,005 for the twelve months of fiscal 1990, compared to $45,449,978 for the twelve months ended June 30, 1989, an increase of 6 percent.

The company reported a net profit of $422,359, or 8 cents per share, for the year, compared to a net loss of $191,962, or 4 cents per share. This is the third consecutive quarter of profitability.

For the quarter ended June 30, the company reported record net sales of $13,360,283 compared to $11,535,505 in the fourth quarter fiscal 1989. The company reported a net profit of $315,689, or 6 cents per share, for the current quarter compared to a net loss of $26,639, or 1 cent per share in the comparable period last year.

The fourth quarter net profit is after a one-time and nonrecurring $500,000 charge to reduce inventory for slow moving items. The company does not anticipate that any further reserves or write-offs will be required.

The company has continued to improve profitability through increased medical and dental processor and accessory sales. The new, lower cost, molded units have been well received.

Management is continuing their efforts to contain expenses and believes the company has made significant improvements from the prior year. With increasing competition and technological changes in the industry, the company has found its market niche and has aggressively pursued it. The company is continuing to seek out additional new equipment and accessory items to add to its growing base of imaging products as it is also reviewing new treatment and diagnostic product areas for future offerings.

AFP Imaging designs, manufactures and markets equipment and systems to hospitals radiologists, cardiologists, dentist and other medical specialists used to generate, record, process and view hard copy diagnostic images under the AFP and DENT-X trademarks. The company also provides a broad line of pre-press image making equipment to the international printing and graphic arts industry under the LOGETRONICS, FOROX and KENRO brands. AFP products are distributed worldwide by three different dealer networks.

WESTBORO, MASS. (SEPT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Visual Technology Inc., a Hambrecht & Quist Co., Wednesday became the first manufacturer to break the $1000 price barrier for a true X terminal with the introduction of its X-14/ES Display Station priced at U.S. $995.

Ronald A. Smith, president and chief executive officer of Visual, said, ''Market demand for a low-cost, sophisticated X Window System solution is exploding. Visual has taken the leadership position by providing the first true X Display Station for under $1000.''

Carmen T. Reitano, Visual's vice president of channel marketing, commented, ''The X-14/ES represents Visual's continuing commitment to provide our team of authorized resellers with the largest range of affordable solutions of their end users. This sets a whole new price/performance threshold, giving more people benefits of seamless file access on disparate networked computers. Breaking the $1000 price barrier significantly increases the size of the market for X terminals by helping end user organizations either begin or expand their use of this graphic networked display technology.''

The Visual X-14/ES Display Station is a small footprint, low-cost networked X graphic display terminal that complies fully with the X11R4-X server specification recently announced by the X Consortium, the industry-recognized X standards group at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The X-14/ES provides a powerful yet economical alternative to an entry level character based terminal. It supports the X Window System, DECwindows, OSF/Motif, OPENWindows, OPEN LOOK, Open Desktop, and Xview.

Visual Technology Inc., founded in 1978, is the price, performance and technology leader in the X terminal marketplace. In 1988 Visual shipped the world's first X terminal, the Visual V640 X Display Station. The company offers a full line of hardware and software X technology solutions including the X-14/ES, X-15, X-15 Turbo, X-19 and X-19 Turbo X Display Station models.

DALLAS (SEPT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - The X.400 Application Program Interface Association (XAPIA), an association of leading computer and communications vendors, and X/Open, the international open systems organization, Wednesday jointly announced the availability of specifications for electronic messaging applications development.

These programming interface specifications enable software developers to write electronic mail applications that are based on international standards, and that can operate independent of computer system, operating system, or communications network.

The specifications announced today cover X.400 messaging, X.500 directories, and object management. They are:

-- Messaging Gateway Application Program Interface (API) Version 2; an API providing definitions for interfacing proprietary mail systems to an X.400 Message Transfer Agent. This is an update to the XAPIA specification published in June 1989 and adds support for the CCITT 1988 series of recommendations.

-- Messaging Application API; an API that enbles X.400 messaging capabilities such as submission, delivery, and retrieval to be incorporated directly into non-messaging applications such as word processing and spreadsheets.

-- Directory Services API; an API that enables global mail directories based on the X.500 standard to be accessed from within these same applications.

-- Object Management API; an API used by the other APIs to provide tools for manipulating complex information objects, such as messages and the results of directory inquiries.

These specifications are the culmination of over a year of work by the XAPIA member companies, including more than six months of collaborative work with the X/Open organization on the X.500 and object-management APIs. The work between the 25 XAPIA member companies and with X/Open was managed by Jim White of Rapport Communication Inc., technical coordinator for the XAPIA.

''The definition of these APIs represents a major step forward implementing global electronic messaging systems,'' said Ed Owens, XAPIA chairman. ''The XAPIA member companies and X/Open worked cooperatively and aggressively to produce specifications as standards that will be widely embraced by the industry.''

''X/Open's work in the development of these APIs demonstrates our commitment to open networking communications specifications and the creation of an integrated open operating environment,'' said Petr Janecek, manager of Connectivity Strategy at X/Open and chairman of its X/Network committee.

''These APIs will help provide implementations of an open platform for portable electronic mail systems that allows easy access to a broad range of directory services. As the focal point of the open-systems groups, X/Open, along with the XAPIA, will ensure that these standards are maintained and that they are widely accepted by the world's largest vendors and electronic mail suppliers.''

X/Open and the XAPIA intend to submit the joint API specifications to the IEEE and to work with the IEEE toward the approval of the API specifications as IEEE standards.

''The electronic messaging end-user community is encouraged by the work of XAPIA and X/Open on these specifications,'' said Don Gilbert, chairman of the Electronic Mail Association's Interconnect Committee and Information Systems Director of the American Petroleum Institute.

''The definition and rapid adoption of practical standards by major providers of electronic mail products is extremely important to the many organizations implementing systems for broad internal and external communication.''

The XAPIA plans to continue its established defect-reporting process to monitor and facilitate implementation of the published specifications. In addition, the association is planning further work including the development of an API for electronic data interchange (EDI); defining a subset of functionality for non-messaging applications requiring a basic messaging capability; and an API to the X.400 P7 protocol for retrieving stored messages.

The X.400 Application Program Interface Association was formed in January 1989. Current members are: AT&T, Banyan Systems Inc., British Telecommunications plc., cc:Mail Inc., Data Access Corp., Data Connection Ltd. Digital Equipment Corp., Enable Software Inc., GSI/Danet Inc., Hewlett-Packard Co., Indisy Software Inc., Lotus Development Corp., Microsoft Corp., NCR Corp., Novell, NTT America Inc., OSIware Inc., Retix, Soft-Switch Inc., Sun Microsystems Inc., US Sprint Communications Co., Tandem, TITN Inc., Touch Communications Inc., and 3Com Corp.

X/Open Co. Ltd., founded in 1984, is an independent, non-profit corporation made up of international computer systems vendors, user organizations and software suppliers who are investing business, technical and marketing resources in the specification of the X/Open Portability Guide (XPG), a vendor and product independent, open operating environment based on de facto and international standards.

X/Open members currently include AT&T, Bull, Digital Equipment Corp., Fujitsu Ltd., Hewlett-Packard, Hitachi Ltd., International Business Machines, ICL, NCR Corp., NEC Corp., Nixdorf, Nokia Data, Olivetti, Open Software Foundation, Philips, Prime Computer, Siemens, Sun Microsystems, Unisys, and Unix International Inc.

SAN DIEGO (SEPT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - U.S. Sprint, the nation's second-largest independent long-distance company, and American Healthcare Systems (AmHS), one of the nation's largest healthcare alliances, have signed a major three-year agreement valued at more than $36 million.

The contract calls for U.S. Sprint to design and implement a Virtual Private Network (VPN) linking AmHS's nearly 1,100 facilities across the United States as well as providing public pay phone, patient calling and employee benefit-related services.

''Our contract with U.S. Sprint will benefit our shareholders' facilities by providing the most modern and efficient long-distance network available at very competitive prices,'' said Deborah Kloman, project manager of telecommunications for AmHS.

''When an organization with the reputation and geographic diversity of AmHS selects our services, we take that as a confirmation of the excellence and innovation U.S. Sprint has worked to build into our people, our network and our products,'' said John Polumbo, regional national account director of U.S. Sprint. ''We are extremely pleased to welcome AmHS to our growing list of major customers.''

U.S. Sprint is a unit of United Telecommunications Inc., a diversified telecommunications company with headquarters in Kansas City, Mo.

AmHS represents facilities in 46 states and Washington, D.C., with combined revenue of more than $18 billion. AmHS operates one of the nation's largest healthcare group purchasing programs and is involved in a healthcare capital fund, liability insurance, a national research and educational institute, a capital finance corporation and a wide range of healthcare businesses.

ANAHEIM, CA (SEPT. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - General Automation Inc. (ASE:GA) announced Wednesday that Larry Michels, president and co-founder of The Santa Cruz Operation Inc. (SCO), has joined its board of directors.

SCO is a privately held business that sells the Unix System V/386 and Xenix operating systems, along with the Open Desktop interface, to value-added resellers. These operating systems provide the industry-leading multiuser, multitasking business-system capability for industry-standard microcomputers.

It is believed that SCO's 300,000-plus licenses account for 80 percent of the desktop Unix market. Larry Michels is a well-recognized authority within the computer industry, particularly in the Unix market, and is a leading industry strategist.

In making the announcement, Len Mackenzie, General Automation's president, commented: ''We are delighted that someone of Larry's stature and experience has joined our board.

''Over the last 20 months, beginning with our involvement with Sanderson Electronics, there have been several significant and positive changes in the General Automation company and I see this appointment as a further stage in this development.

''It is obvious that our strategy to address the Unix market and our ability to meet our customers' needs, on a global basis, will be dramatically enhanced with Larry's guidance, counsel and involvement. Clearly, I have to be very excited when the founder of the leading Unix supplier joins forces with one of the foremost Pick-based companies, and I look forward to working with Larry.''

General Automation designs and manufactures computer systems for the database-oriented business-systems market. Its systems, related applications software and field-service capability are distributed through a multinational network of computer marketing and service-support companies in the United States, United Kingdom, Europe, Latin America and the South Pacific/East Asia (SGA).

General Automation's proprietary GA/Maxial Hotel Property Management system is presently installed in 14 countries. Annual revenues of the multinational group are now in excess of $100 million.

BEIJING (SEPT. 12) - China has made promising oil finds in northwestern Xinjiang province and announced the opening of a new offshore oil and gas well in the East China Sea.

The official China Daily said more than 20 exploratory wells had tapped oil and dozens of others appeared promising in Xinjiang's Tarim basin, considered China's richest oilfield.

The state-run China National Oil and Gas Corp. estimated last year that the 560,000 square kilometer (224,000 square mile) basin harbored some 10.1 billion tonnes in petroleum reserves, or a sixth of the country's total.

The official New China News Agency (NCNA) meanwhile reported that a new offshore oil and natural gas well had been opened some 400 kilometers (250 miles) southeast of Shanghai in the East China Sea.

The well, the 19th tapped since China began offshore oil exploration in 1974, has a capacity of 210 cubic meters of oil and 269,000 cubic meters of gas per day, the agency said.

China has said it would soon allow foreign oil companies access to the East China Sea. They are currently limited to the Bo Hai Gulf and the South China Sea.

Foreign firms are still not authorized to exploit China's onshore fields, the source of more than 99 percent of the 136 million tonnes (2.7 million barrels per day) of crude oil produced by China last year.

China, a net exporter of oil, does not appear to be significantly affected by the Gulf crisis which has pushed the international oil price to above 30 dollars per barrel from 21 dollars before Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

CANBERRA (SEPT. 12) - The Australian Government will redeem 515 million U.S. dollars in outstanding bonds on the United States market as the next stage of its foreign debt redemption program, Treasurer Paul Keating said Wednesday.

Mr. Keating said in a statement that U.S. merchant bank Salomon Brothers would tender for the bonds.

Australia expected to redeem a significant amount of the targetted bonds ahead of their maturity dates, he said.

The tender was "another step in the government's overall strategy of using surpluses to repay both foreign currency and domestic debt," Mr. Keating said.

As a percentage of gross domestic product, Canberra's external debt has fallen from 5.8 percent at June 30, 1986 to 1.8 percent at June 30, 1990, the treasurer said.

SINGAPORE (SEPT. 12) - Singapore Aerospace (SA), a defense company recently floated as part of the government's privatisation program, has announced its third joint venture in a month to penetrate the U.S. and European markets.

The company, which specialises in aircraft maintenance and modification, will invest six million U.S. dollars in a venture to overhaul engines on Boeing 727 aircraft before they are leased or sold to airline operators worldwide.

A statement issued Tuesday said SA would take up a 20 percent stake in the V-One Aircraft Leasing Company, a tie-up with International Aircraft Services, Valsan Partnership, Christiana Bank and Bank Brussels Lambert Aviation.

It said the deal was aimed at giving SA a "strategic foothold" in the engineering and aircraft management markets of the United States and Europe, but provided no other details.

There was no indication where the company would be based. SA officials were unavailable for comment.

Singapore Aerospace, an aviation arm of the government-run Singapore Technologies, last month announced plans to buy a 20 million U.S. dollar installation in the southern U.S. state of Alabama to service Boeing 747 jets and grab a foothold in the American market.

It announced plans last week to form a 50-50 joint venture with Britain's Aviation Group to create Qualitair Rotables Services, which will specialise in the management and supply of spares for Boeing 737 aircraft.

SA, which was listed on the local stock market last month, has said it would use part of the flotation proceeds of about 145 million Singapore dollars (82 million U.S.) to invest in companies "at current attractive prices."

TOKYO (SEPT. 12) - BMW Japan Corp. anticipates record sales in Japan this year, corporate president Hans-Peter Sonnenbonn said here Wednesday.

Speaking at a news conference unveiling a new coupe sport model, the BMW 850-I, Sonnenbonn said the sales situation continued to be rather ''favorable'' this year.

Sonnenbonn said BMW japan estimated total sales volume to amount to around 34,000 units by the end of the year, a 15 percent increase over last year.

In addition, he said, 4,000 units also will be registered by parallel importers, bringing total sales to a record of around 38,000 units.

The BMW 850-I, employing the 5-litre, 12-cylinder eingine, is the second 12-cylinder automobile made in Germany after the BMW 750-I, introduced in 1986.

The new coupe will be priced at 14.5 million yen (103,570 dollars) as of November due to the depreciation of the Japanese yen against the Deutschmark, the president explained.

BMW A.G.'s total production of 850-I cars next year will be limited on 11,000 units worldwide, of which 1,300 units or 12 percent are allocated for Japan, he said.

Moscow (SEPT. 12) - The Soviet parliament began deliberations here Wednesday on Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev's economic reform strategy which combines the approaches of embattled Premier Nikolai Ryzhkov and radical economist Stanislav Shatalin.

The Soviet leader was to unveil details of the scheme for a 500-day transition period to a free enterprise economy.

In stressing the urgency of making the transition, Gorbachev indicated Tuesday that he leaned more towards Shatalin's ideas, but said it was up to parliament to hammer out the differences between his and those of Ryzhkov, whose proposals he called unconvincing.

''We must make an effort to come to a unified document,'' Gorbachev told parliament. ''We are coming closer to this solution.''

Gorbachev said he was ''personally more impressed by the Shatalin project'' in which the interests of the individual Soviet republics are given greater consideration.

''If what is at stake is a real plan to stabilise the financing, the money in circulation, the ruble and the market, then one must accept Shatalin's ideas,'' the Kremlin leader said.

''Just how our society will look in the period ahead will depend on which choice we make,'' Gorbachev said.

JAMMU, India (SEPT. 12) - Six Moslem militants were among 12 people killed in continuing violence in India's northern Kashmir state, where Moslems are campaigning for secession, officials said Wednesday.

All the killings were reported overnight Tuesday.

The six militants were shot dead by security forces in Kashmir's Uri sector when they sneaked into India from neighbouring Pakistan, an official spokesman said in this winter capital of Jammu and Kashmir state.

The killings came hours after at least 29 people were killed when Moslem militants travelling in a bus fought a fierce gunbattle with security forces in the Kashmir valley.

Moslem separatists also shot dead four civilians and two paramilitary troopers elsewhere in Kashmir, India's only Moslem-majority state, which borders Pakistan and China.

One soldier of the paramilitary Central Reserve Police Force (CRPF) was killed in a gunbattle with militants in Srinagar, the urban hub of the homeland campaign and Kashmir's summer capital.

Two security personnel and eight civilians were wounded in the fight.

Another CRPF trooper wounded in an earlier gunbattle also died late Tuesday, the spokesman said.

At least 1,576 people have died this year in the Moslem secessionist campaign in Kashmir. India accuses Pakistan, with which it has fought two wars over Kashmir, of arming and supporting the militants.

Pakistan, which disputes Kashmir and controls one-third of the province, denies the charges, but gives overt moral support to the militants.

BEIJING (SEPT. 12) - At least 74 people were killed and 352 injured when Typhoon Dot ripped through China's southeastern province of Fujian last weekend, a local official said Wednesday.

Officials had earlier put the death toll at 60.

The typhoon affected more than 4.2 million residents and destroyed 45,000 houses, a foreign ministry spokesman in Fujian said by telephone.

Typhoon Cecil had killed 43 people and injured 135 last week in neighbouring Zhejiang province, where 159 people also died and 538 were injured in two typhoons last month.

Separately, the People's Daily said Wednesday that forest fires in August had killed one person and injured about 15 in drought-stricken Sichuan province in the southwest.

The newspaper added that Guizhou and Hunan provinces and Guangxi region in the south were also hit by drought and were at risk of fires.

The English-language China Daily said Tuesday that Hubei and Hunan provinces in the south were suffering the most serious drought in 10 years and added that more than 3.2 million hectares (7.9 million acres) of farmland were threatened.

The semi-official China News Service said in early September that 737,000 hectares (1.8 million acres) of farmland had totally dried up in the southern province of Guangdong.

KUALA LUMPUR (SEPT. 12) - Syarikat Telekom Malaysia Bhd. (STM), Malaysia's privatised telecommunications company, said Wednesday it would float 470.5 million shares next month despite uncertainty in the Middle East.

STM chairman Rashdan Baba told a news conference that the company had been given approval to issue 470.5 million new par value shares of one dollar each (37 U.S. cents) priced at five dollars (1.85 U.S. dollars).

Mr. Rashdan said that the company had decided to go ahead with the listing despite uncertainty over the Gulf crisis because it felt that the Malaysian economy was fundamentally strong and telecommunications stocks were generally very resilient.

Details of the allocation of the share issue and the dates of the offer, which represents 23.9 percent of the company's enlarged share capital, and the listing, expected in early November, would be announced later, he said.

Deputy Prime Minister Ghafar Baba said last month that the government had decided to sell an unspecified number of STM shares to foreign investors at a price higher than that fixed for local buyers.

The company's issued and paid-up capital would be increased from the current level of 500 million dollars (185 million U.S.) to 1.5 billion dollars (556 million U.S.) through a two for one bonus issue to its current shareholder, the Ministry of Finance Inc.

This will be further increased to 1.97 billion dollars (729 million U.S.) with the new share issue.

Mr. Rashdan said the proceeds of the issue would be used to pre-pay 1.8 billion dollars (667 million U.S.) of the company's borrowings from the government, as well as add to its working capital and fund its expansion programme.

He said STM's loans from the government totalled 3.9 billion dollars (1.44 billion) at the end of last year.

The company has forecast a pre-tax profit of 550 million dollars (204 million U.S.) for this year and 900 million dollars (333 million) in 1991. It made a pre-tax profit of 365 million dollars (136 million U.S) last year.

STM is the first public utility entity and the largest government corporation to go public. It was corporatised in 1987 to prepare for public listing.

HONG KONG (SEPT. 12) - China has signed joint venture agreements totalling over 1.3 billion U.S. dollars at the four-day Fujian Investment and Trade Symposium, with its rival Taiwan heading the list, a newspaper reported here Wednesday.

Of the 1.356 billion U.S. dollar contracts signed for 723 projects, foreign investments stood at 1.037 billion U.S. dollars, the Wen Wei Po said.

It added that Taiwan topped the list of investors with contracts worth 621 million U.S. dollars, despite Taipei's recent legislation limiting Taiwan investment on the mainland.

The symposium, which closed Tuesday in Xiamen, one of China's four major special economic zones in eastern coastal Fujian province, was attended by nearly 1,500 foreign businessmen from 28 countries and regions including Hong Kong, Macau and Taiwan.

The report said Hong Kong and Macau shared second place in amounts invested, totalling 498 million U.S. dollars.

Southeast Asian countries accounted for 6.29 per cent of the investments, and other countries 11.6 per cent, including the United States, Britain and Western Europe.

During the first day of the symposium, contracts worth a total of 170 million U.S. dollars were signed with foreign investors from Hong Kong, Taiwan, the United States, Japan, the Philippines and Macau in the fields of light industry, textiles, construction, electronics, machinery, metallurgy and petrochemicals, Wen Wei Po said.

JEDDAH, SAUDI ARABIA (SEPT. 12) - Saudi Arabia has donated five million dollars to help Bangladeshi and other Moslem refugees living in Jordan after fleeing Iraq and Kuwait, the Saudi Press Agency said Wednesday.

The offer of assistance by King Fahd has been communicated to the international organizations concerned, the agency said.

Tens of thousands of refugees, most of them from South Asia, are living in precarious conditions in several overcrowded transit camps around Amman and on the Iraqi-Jordanian border, often short of food and water.

HANOI (SEPT. 12) - Total foreign investment in Vietnam, mainly from Europe, has doubled in the past year to surpass 1.2 billion dollars, official figures released here Wednesday showed.

Investment in Vietnam amounted to 636.8 million dollars in the previous year. Hanoi started allowing foreign investment in December 1986.

Foreign experts said that investment could see a major rise -- mainly from so far relatively wary Asian countries -- if a solution is reached to the war in Cambodia, where Hanoi backs the Phnom Penh government.

"Vietnam has given approval up to now for 183 foreign firms to invest in the country, with a total capital of more than 1.2 billion dollars," the State Committee for Cooperation and Foreign Investment reported.

"Thirty other foreign investment projects in different sectors are currently being studied," the committee added, without specifying the amount involved.

According to a study by Western experts, two thirds of the investment -- mostly in oil exploration, agriculture and marine products -- was made by European countries.

Britain topped the list of capitalist nations investing in Vietnam last year, accounting for 30.01 percent, followed by France with 21.44 percent, and the Netherlands with 19.03 percent, the study said.

The three focused their investment on oil exploration, it added.

The study revealed that Asian investment in the same period remained weak -- save for India and Australia accounting for 10.99 percent and 9.08 percent respectively -- with Japan representing only 0.03 percent of the total.

South Korea accounted for 0.72 percent, Singapore 0.54 percent, Thailand 1.11 percent and Hong Kong 5.63 percent.

Asian countries' lack of investment and the non-existence of American capital in Vietnam is a result of the Cambodian civil war and a U.S. economic embargo imposed on Hanoi after its December 1978 invasion of Cambodia.

But a breakthrough agreement between the warring factions reached Monday in Jakarta that adopted a U.N. peace framework could lead to peace in Cambodia, one of Washington's preconditions for restoring ties with Hanoi.

Meanwhile illegal trade between Vietnam and other Asian countries is flourishing, with contraband reaching southern Vietnam in the first six months of 1990 worth 100 million dollars and 24 tonnes of gold, official reports say.

Experts expect an influx of Asian investment in Vietnam after a resolution in Cambodia, starting with Thailand.

Thai Prime Minister Chatichai Choohavan said in 1988 that he wanted to turn the battlefields of Indochina into economic markets.

Such efforts would also be helped by a return of aid from international lending organizations to Vietnam, frozen since Hanoi's invasion of Cambodia.

Vietnam can expect a substantial quantity of such aid once the Cambodian issue is resolved, as its total debt to these bodies at present amounts only to some 300 million dollars.

GOTHENBURG, SWEDEN (SEPT. 12) - The Swedish Volvo and French Renault auto companies might buy the Czechoslovak Skoda or Tatra car manufacturers, the Goeteborg Posten newspaper reported on Wednesday.

The managing director of Volvo Pehr G. Gyllenhammar and the head of Renault Raymond Levy were due to be members of a delegation which would visit Prague within the next few days during an official visit by French President Francois Mitterrand, the report said.

Renault has for long had its eyes on Skoda while Volvo would prefer the two companies to buy Tatra, the report said.

Skoda produces about 200,000 cars per year and Tatra about 5,000. Volvo and Renault have established a close corporate relationship.

The Volvo management was quoted as saying that "it is quite normal that the two partners should participate jointly in preparing a possible project to buy an auto company".

Seoul (SEPT. 12) - Floods spawned by two days of torrential rainfall have claimed at least 70 lives and left more than 66,000 people homeless in South Korea, with the toll expected to rise Wednesday.

The sun was out in Seoul Wednesday for the first time since the weekend, but the rain-swollen Han River was still a record 11.27 metres above flood stage.

The river breached a 5-metre-high dam west of the capital early Wednesday, putting over 5,000 hectares of rice paddies under water, police said.

Some 45,000 farmers were forced to leave their homes early Wednesday, and a short time later only rooftops were visible above swirling brown flood waters.

Hundreds of volunteers paddled through the waters in rubber boats in search of people and livestock overtaken by the flooding.

Torrential rainfall and gusty winds gave the South Korean capital its worst pounding since the devastating rain storm of 1984. Schools were closed and many neighbourhoods experienced flooding.

JOHANNESBURG (SEPT. 12) - A blast rocked the offices of the ruling National Party (Np) in the South African capital Pretoria early Wednesday, causing damage but injuring no-one, party officials said.

The party's regional secretary, Danie Labuschagne, said commercial explosives had been placed in a drum near the window of the office, situated in the suburb of Waterkloof.

This is the third attack on Np offices this year.

White supremacists opposed to the government's reform policies and its negotiations with the black liberation movement, the African National Congress (Anc), were suspected of planting bombs at Np offices in Johannesburg in July.

PRAGUE (SEPT. 12) - Czechoslovakia is looking into "the possibility of providing military assistance to Egypt and medical aid to Saudi Arabia," President Vaclav Havel said in an interview Wednesday with AFP.

He said Prague had "firmly and unambiguously" condemned Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait and was resolved "to take part in the embargo against Iraq despite the enormous sums that country owes us and which we could otherwise exchange for the oil which we so sorely need."

He said Czechoslovakia "knows only too well from past experience where policies of appeasement and concessions to the forces of evil are likely to lead".

In this respect, he said visits which French President Francois Mitterrand and British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher will make here this week took on "a symbolic importance" almost 52 years to the day since the Munich agreement of September 29 1938 by which France and Britain endorsed Hitler's seizure of Sudetenland.

The visits would "close the book on an unhappy chapter of our history even if this is not their main purpose" President Havel said.

On relations with France, he said a "broad political consensus" was not reflected in the development of economic ties where he said West Germany was leading the field in cashing in on Czechoslovakia's economic reforms.

"This has nothing to do with any political desire on our part but results from their dynamism and sometimes more advantageous offers..... After all, business is business."

However he said Czechoslovaks should avoid allowing their country to become "once again the private reserve of a single country. We want balanced political and economic relations with European and non-European powers."

President Havel said that as part of its "opening up to Europe" Czechoslovakia was hoping to be chosen as the site of the permanent headquarters of the Conference for Security and Cooperation in Europe (CSCE).

The decision to set up a permanent secretariat was taken at a summit of the 35 CSCE states (all Europe excluding Albania plus the United States and Canada) in Paris last November.

He said his government already had in a mind a palace near the Prague presidency to house the CSCE staff. But he said Prague "can just as well host any other specific organisation created under the Helsinki process, for example an environmental centre or a body concerned with democracy and free elections".

On domestic policy, he said he was "following very closely" the preparations and first stage of privatisations in Czechoslovakia. The rules "will shortly be finalised" for the first phase which concerns small firms nationalised by the communists. "We must create conditions favourable to the former owners and workers" of privatised inns, restaurants, shops and workshops, and "avoid a takeover by traffickers and people who got rich under the communists".

On municipal elections scheduled for November 23 and 24, President Havel said the purpose was above all to "install decentralised administrations and competent and honest officials".

This was "more important than the percentage of votes" obtained by the ruling coalition, the president said.

BANGKOK (SEPT. 12) - Vietnam, which has opened its doors to foreign investment, will stage its first international ruby auction in Hanoi next month, a Thai company official said Wednesday.

''The ruby comes from a previously undiscovered source,'' said Steve Reynolds, who is organizing the unprecedented auction for B.H. Mining Company, a Thai firm.

B.H. Mining signed a joint venture with the Vietnamese government in December, 1988, for a gem mining concession in Luc Yen district, about 270 kilometres north of Hanoi.

''We were the first mining company to sign a deal with the Vietnamese government,'' said Frits Ariesen, general manager of B.H. Mining.

Although so far the company has failed to discover any huge single deposits of rubies, precious stones indigenous to Southeast Asia, enough gems have been found to hold an auction in late October. A firm date had not yet been set.

''The amount of ruby rough we will be offering for sale is quite sizeable. The total weight is 225 kilograms which is equal to 1,125,000 carats,'' said Reynolds.

Vietnam opened its doors to foreign investment in late 1987, when it passed a foreign investment code.

So far the communist country has licensed 183 foreign investment projects with total capital of nearly 1.21 billion dollars, the Vietnam News Agency (Vna) reported Wednesday.

''Investors whose total investment exceeds 100 million dollars are from Britain, Canada, Holland, Hong Kong, France and Australia. Most of them invest in oil and gas exploration,'' said Vna.

A u.S.-led embargo prohibits American and to some extent, Japanese companies from investing in Vietnam.

LAHORE, Pakistan (SEPT. 12) - Pakistan's interim government Wednesday filed two new complaints against ousted premier Benazir Bhutto as police arrested a second of her ministers.

The complaints, filed in a special court in Lahore on behalf of President Ghulam Ishaq Khan, concern a land deal and allotment of a contract for liquified petroleum gas.

Official sources said hearings were to start Saturday in a special court headed by Justice Rashid Aziz Khan, who must decide whether the complaints carry enough weight to merit filing charges against the former premier.

The single-judge court is already handling a case of alleged illegal bank transactions by Ghulam Mohammed Maneka, formerly a minister in Ms. Bhutto's 20-month government.

The government Monday filed two complaints against Ms. Bhutto in a special court in Karachi in connection with the appointment of a consultant for an Asian Development Bank power project and awarding of a contract for the export of cotton at below-market prices.

If convicted, Ms. Bhutto could be disqualified from participating in politics for seven years, officials said.

Of the cases filed Wednesday, one involves the sale of 287 acres of valuable land in the capital Islamabad for a nominal price on which a hotel was to be built, the sources said.

The other involves the alleged awarding of liquefied gas contracts to favorites, they said.

According to the official Associated Press of Pakistan (APP), the cases filed in Karachi involve alleged decisions by Ms. Bhutto that would have caused a loss of more than 9.17 million dollars in foreign exchange to the public exchequer.

In a related development, police Tuesday arrested a second minister from Ms. Bhutto's ousted government as he went to register his candidacy for Pakistan's October 24 elections, official sources said Wednesday in Quetta.

Baz Mohammad Khetran was accused of misappropriating four million rupees (180,000 dollars) during his term as minister for environment and local governments, they said.

Another former minister, Mohammed Akbar Lasi, was arrested September 1 on charges of misappropriating government funds.

At least seven of Ms. Bhutto's former ministers are facing corruption charges, along with her businessman husband Asif Ali Zardari who has been accused of illegal financial dealings.

Ms. Bhutto has expressed no confidence in the courts and said the accountability process was aimed at keeping her Pakistan People's Party out of next month's elections.

SEOUL (SEPT. 12) - Malaysia's Prime Minister Mahathir Mohamad met with South Korean President Roh Tae-Woo here Wednesday and agreed the two countries should increase bilateral economic cooperation, a presidential spokesman said.

During an hour-long meeting at the Blue House, South Korea's presidential residence, they agreed the two countries should cooperate especially in joint development of resources, he said.

They also agreed that Kuala Lumpur and Seoul should strengthen bilateral cooperation in international fora, including the United Nations, and make joint efforts for the security and prosperity of the Asia-Pacific region.

Dr. Mahathir, who arrived here Tuesday on a four-day official visit, earlier met with Prime Minister Kang Young-Hoon.

PARIS (SEPT. 12) - A Chinese dissident group in exile has expressed concern over the fate of a Chinese pilot sent back to China after he landed a plane in the Soviet Union in a bid to defect.

The Federation for Democracy in China, in a statement released here Tuesday, said it had no further news of Fan Baoyu, an air force pilot who landed a MiG-19 in Vladivostok last month and was expelled by Soviet authorities on August 29.

The pilot had said he was hoping to seek political asylum in the United States.

The Federation for Democracy in China "strongly condemned" the Soviet decision to order the pilot home where it said he could face the death penalty.

The organization in exile called the Soviet move a "serious blow to human rights principles" and said it would have preferred to see the Soviet Union "treat the affair in a humanitarian way."

The group said its spokesman had lodged a protest before the second International Human Rights Conference held in Leningrad early this month.

MANILA (SEPT. 12) - A bomb exploded inside a church-run Manila university Wednesday, causing slight damage and no injuries, the school's chief security officer said.

The blast came about 17 hours after an explosion in an army camp triggered fears of a renewed bombing campaign by suspected rebel soldiers.

Night-time blasts rocked government and private targets in late August but died down early this month after the military intensified patrols.

The explosive device which went off Wednesday had a timing device and was planted on a table inside the main building of the University of Santo Tomas, damaging the table, university security supervisor Alfonso Cuarteron said.

"It was meant to frighten people," he said over radio station DZMM, adding that the school had been receiving "almost daily" telephoned anonymous bomb threats prior to the blast, the 24th recorded in and around the capital in the past month.

Mr. Cuarteron said classes were not disrupted.

Meanwhile, army chief Major General Guillermo Flores Wednesday blamed right-wing military rebels for a bomb blast which damaged a tennis court and a car parked inside the Fort Bonifacio army headquarters in suburban Manila late Tuesday, the official Philippine News Agency said.

The army camp blast occurred two days after the military foiled an attempt by military renegades to steal a cache of firearms from a military hospital armory in preparation for a new coup attempt.

President Corazon Aquino has weathered six coup attempts in the past four years.

BEIJING (SEPT. 12) - Nine criminals were executed after being condemned to death in Shanghai between September 7 and 10, the city's Liberation Daily reported.

Six of the criminals were thieves, two were murderers and one was a pimp, according to the newspaper's Tuesday edition, which reached Beijing Wednesday.

The newspaper said the pimp, Yao Wenjie, had spent three years in prison and with two accomplices forced 12 women to work as prostitutes in the southeastern provinces of Guangdong and Fujian.

The activities earned them 30,000 yuan (6,330 U.S. dollars), it said.

White slavery is one of the "six vices" identified in an ongoing anti-crime drive. The others are pornography, drug trafficking and abuse, gambling, "feudal superstitions" and prostitution.

The anti-crime drive has led to at least 1,000 executions since it was launched in May, according to reports in the official press.

MADRID (SEPT. 12) - The closure of Iraqi pipelines through Turkey has already cost Ankara four billion dollars, Turkish President Turgut Ozal said in an interview published in the Spanish press Wednesday.

He told the Madrid daily ABC that Turkey "is not planning to ask the West for compensation" but he noted that if Ankara had not agreed to comply with U.N. sanctions, "Iraq could survive the embargo".

Mr. Ozal said Western governments were "the main beneficiaries of our losses. How and to what degree they will provide compensation depends on them."

He said if the embargo continued to be enforced in its present form "the risk of war may recede."

The Turkish leader said war against Iraq should be a "last resort" and he believed there was a "99 percent chance of peace".

On Turkey's chances of joining the European Economic Community (EEC), Mr. Ozal said he believed Turkey was better placed for this than such countries as Poland or Czechoslovakia.

The latter "have a long way to go before they reach the same level of democracy and readiness (for EEC membership) as ourselves," he said.

In a related development, Turkish Cypriot leader Rauf Denktash arrived Wednesday in Ankara to discuss the application by the Cypriot government in Nicosia to join the EEC.

Mr. Denktash is leader of the breakaway Turkish Republic of Northern Cyprus which only Turkey recognises.

Mr. Denktash noted that under an agreement signed in London in 1960, Cyprus "may not join an economic union of which Turkey is not a member". If Cyprus were allowed to join the EEC, this would signify EEC acknowledgement of the partition of Cyprus, said Mr. Denktash quoted by the Turkish semi-official agency Anatolia.

JERUSALEM (SEPT. 12) - Foreign Minister David Levy Wednesday hailed what he called a new climate of confidence between Israel and the United States and expressed the hope that Moscow would soon resume ties with the Jewish state.

"The excellent talks I had with President George Bush and Secretary of State James Baker established a new climate of confidence between Jerusalem and Washington," Mr. Levy said on his return from a nine-day visit to the United States.

The Israeli foreign minister particularly welcomed what he said was Washington's view that "there should be no link between resolving the Gulf crisis and other problems," in an apparent reference to the Palestinian issue.

Last week, during his trip, Mr. Levy said he had obtained promises that Washington would continue to ensure Israeli military superiority in the Middle East and "work for an end to Arab belligerence against Israel."

Turning to Israel's relations with the Soviet Union, Mr. Levy told reporters at Ben Gurion airport that he hoped diplomatic ties broken off by Moscow in June 1967 would be restored soon.

He said he would be meeting in two weeks time with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze as well as with Mr. Baker at the opening of the United Nations General Assembly in New York.

Mr. Levy did not rule out a role for Moscow in the peace process, after the normalisation of its ties with Israel, but reiterated his government's opposition to the Soviet call for an international Middle East peace conference.

KUALA LUMPUR (SEPT. 12) - Malaysia Airlines (MAS) and All-Nippon Airways (ANA), one of Japan's three major airlines, will jointly launch two services a week between Kuala Lumpur and Nagoya from November.

A statement issued by the Japan Information Service here Wednesday also said that Japan Airlines would increase flights between Tokyo and Kuala Lumpur from five to six a week from November 1991.

MAS will also increase flights between Kuala Lumpur and Fukuoka from two a week to three a week from April next year.

TOKYO (SEPT. 12) - Japan's exports to Iraq and Kuwait plunged in August as the impact of trade sanctions began to bite, but imports from the two countries fell less sharply, the Finance Ministry said Wednesday.

Exports to Iraq tumbled 78.3 percent from a year earlier to nine million dollars and were also down sharply from 43 million dollars in July, the ministry said.

Shipments of Japanese goods to Kuwait plummetted 86.6 percent to seven million dollars, down from 62 million dollars the previous month.

"Japanese companies started to limit sales of goods to those nations in early August before Tokyo issued the trade embargo," a ministry official said.

The government banned Japanese companies from trading with the two nations in mid-August following Iraq's invasion of Kuwait on August 2.

The ban had less impact on imports, however.

Imports from Iraq dropped only 30.6 percent from a year earlier to 82 million dollars and were up from 60 million dollars in July. Imports from Kuwait fell 32.3 percent to 124 million dollars, down from 215 million dollars the previous month.

"The impact of the trade embargo on imports will be felt after the impact on exports," the official said.

He explained that the latest trade figures included crude oil which was mostly shipped before August and took up to a month to reach Japan.

Japan's overall imports of crude oil came to 1.86 billion dollars in August, down 0.5 percent from a year earlier but up from 1.54 billion dollars in July, the ministry said.

The average price of crude was 16.33 dollars a barrel, down from 17.19 dollars a year earlier but up from 15.40 dollars the previous month.

SEOUL (SEPT. 12) - North Korean President Kim Il-Sung is expected in Beijing Thursday for unannounced talks with Chinese leaders about improved relations with South Korea, the German Press Agency dpa learned Wednesday.

Well-informed North Korean sources told dpa Kim was also expected to discuss the impending normalization of ties between Moscow and Seoul and the warming in relations between China and South Korea.

Kim met secretly with Chinese Communist Party General Secretary Jiang Zemin in China Tuesday, according to a report Wednesday by South Korea's Yonahap news agency.

Their meeting took place in the northeastern Chinese city of Shenyang, the agency said. Yonhap, quoting what it called a reliable source, said Kim and the Chinese leader had discussed inter-Korean prime ministers' talks held in Seoul last week.

The South Korean news agency also said they talked on Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze's visit to Pyongyang earlier this month and the possible establishment of full diplomatic ties between Seoul and Moscow.

Also on the agenda in their talks was their cooperation for the upcoming Asian Games, starting September 22 in Beijing, the agency said.

Kim visited China in November last year and met China's top leader Deng Xiaoping to discuss democratic reforms in East Europe.

SEOUL (SEPT. 12) - South Korea said Wednesday it expected trade partners to allow Seoul to keep protecting its domestic rice market, as concessions on food security would be "complete surrender to foreign pressure."

South Korean rice farmers are so uncompetitive they could not cope with imports, said Kim Jong-Yong, director general for international cooperation at the Ministry of Agriculture.

In other areas South Korea is ready to fully open its markets, he said. But non-trade issues such as the need for self-sufficiency in rice, the most important staple here, had to be considered by trade negotiators currently meeting in Geneva.

The Uruguay Round of multilateral trade negotiations under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) is scheduled to end in December and aims at producing the most far-ranging world trading order ever devised.

"We cannot give up on rice due to its importance for security and its importance to our farmers," Mr. Kim said at a luncheon at the Seoul Foreign Correspondents' Club.

"I don't expect the Uruguay Round to say no in the case of rice. I believe they will positively consider that it is too crucial," he said.

The South Korean government heavily subsidizes its rice industry, buying 80-kilogram (176-pound) bags, or suks, from farmers for around 96,000 won (134 dollars) and selling it to retailers for 55,000 won (77 dollars).

The result has been a surplus expected to reach 11 million suks at the end of the year, Mr. Kim said. But without the subsidies, much cheaper rice from Southeast Asia would flood the market.

"If we fail to secure food security, that means complete surrender to foreign pressure. If we give up that last one, it would mean the total collapse of our agriculture," he said.

LONDON (SEPT. 12) - British conglomerate BTR whose interests include Dunlopillo mattresses and Slazenger sports racquets said Wednesday its taxable profit rose seven percent in the first six months of this year to 530 million pounds (one billion dollars) from 497 million (937 million dollars).

Turnover for the group whose activities range from building materials to auto equipment was up 2.5 percent over the first half of last year at 3.47 billion pounds (6.5 billion dollars) from 3.39 billion (6.3 billion dollars).

The profit improvement came after a strict cost-control exercise which saw the payroll reduced by six percent, or 7,000 jobs.

The figures were in line with market forecasts of profit of between 520 and 550 million pounds, but BTR shares fell 12 pence on the news to 346 pence.

This was largely due to the fact that the group had changed its way of calculating exchange rate fluctuations which had added 14 million pounds to the profit figure, and the fact that interim dividend rose only four percent to seven pence from 6.7.

Earnings per share rose five percent to 17.4 pence from 16.5.

The market also reacted negatively to the announcement of a free isue of warrants to subscribe for ordinary shares.

But BTR said it was confident it could cope with worsening economic conditions provoked by the Gulf crisis because of the diversity of its activities and its markets.

"Priority is being given to the maintenance and improvement of margins," the group said.

The industrial goods, construction and transport sectors showed only a slight profit improvement in the first half, but the electrical division saw operating profit rise 42 percent while that in consumer goods was up nine per cent.

ZURICH (SEPT. 12) - Swissair said Wednesday it was dropping plans to sell its stake in the Swissotel hotel chain to the Japanese group Aoki-Westin because of the uncertain situation on international financial markets.

The two sides had agreed in principle on the sale of Swissair's stake in Swissotel's 17 luxury hotels worldwide in March.

But negotiations were broken off by mutual agreement on Tuesday, Swissair said.

The airline said in a statement it intended to "keep all options open" and had decided not to go ahead wit the sale "in view of recent uncertainty in world financial market conditions."

CANBERRA, Sept 12 (AFP) - The Australian government on Wednesday removed the 2.5 billion dollar (2.04 billion U.S.) ceiling on Australian Wool Corporation (AWC) borrowings to help it protect the wool floor price.

In what was seen as a rescue package, Primary Industries Minister John Kerin also announced measures aimed at forcing the wool industry to make plans to cut production and better manage its current crisis.

The industry had until October 1 to create a plan for managing its potential exposure for the rest of the 1990-91 season, Mr. Kerin said in a statement.

The minister also said he would lead an overseas wool mission to the Soviet Union and China to try to encourage these countries to resume wool purchases.

Despite wool farmers' opposition, Mr. Kerin on May 31 ordered the floor price to be cut from 8.70 dollars (7.10 U.S.) a kilogram to 7.00 dollars (5.71) in an effort to entice foreign buyers back into the market.

The AWC earlier this week asked the government to lift its borrowing limit, claiming that further stockpiling to protect the current floor price would exhaust its funds by December.

KUALA LUMPUR (SEPT. 12) - Matsushita Electric Company (M) Berhad will invest 50 million Malaysian dollars (18.5 million U.S.) to build its fourth manufacturing plant in the country early next year, a company official said Wednesday.

Managing Director Tadashi Akita said the plant would cater to increased export demand and relieve the congestion at its plants in Shah Alam and Bangi in Selangor state.

He said the new plant, to be situated on a 17-acre site, would produce home appliances such as electric fans, rice cookers, gas cookers, blenders, heaters, vacuum cleaners and dry batteries for export to Japan and other countries.

All the products are now manufactured at the main plant in Shah Alam, while refrigerators and washing machines are produced at Bangi. A third plant at Port Klang manufactures electric irons and parts for other products.

Mr. Akita said the company would invest 20 million dollars (7.4 million U.S.) to upgrade its washing machine production at the Bangi plant.

He said the company exported about 5,000 washing machines per month to Japan and 2,000 units per month to West Asia, while another 7,000 units were sold locally.

Matsushita Electric Co. (M) reported a 12.9 percent rise in group pre-tax profit in the year to March to 41.9 million dollars (15.5 million U.S.) on a 10.9 percent increase in turnover to 322.4 million dollars (119.4 million U.S.).

TOKYO (SEPT. 12) - Bank of Japan governor Yasushi Mieno Wednesday welcomed the yen's recent strength as a means of offsetting higher oil prices.

Mr. Mieno told a news conference that the yen's appreciation in recent weeks represented a "correction" from the Japanese unit's sharp decline to more than 160 to the dollar earlier this year.

"It is good that higher oil prices will be offset by a higher yen," he said.

The central bank governor added that the impact of higher oil prices on the Japanese economy would in any case be small compared with previous oil shocks, even if prices stabilized at around 30 dollars a barrel.

The yen rose to a 13-month high in heavy trading in Tokyo Wednesday, hitting 138.25 to the dollar at one stage before closing at 138.30.

Dealers said that life insurance firms and other institutions sold dollars amid fears that the U.S. Federal Reserve Board will let interest rates fall in an attempt to prop up a slowing economy.

ANKARA (SEPT. 12) - President Rauf Denktash of the breakaway Turkish Republic of Northern Cyprus (Trnc) warned here Wednesday that the ''Cyprus problem will be solved on a two-Cyprus basis if the European Community (E.C.) accepts the membership application of the Greek Cypriot government''.

He issued the warning on arrival for talks with Turkish President Turgut Ozal and government officials before the E.C. foreign ministers decide Monday whether to refer the Greek Cypriot application to the E.C. commission.

Denktash said if the Greek Cypriots eventually have their way, there will be a southern Cyprus which is a member of the E.C. and a separate state in the north which is not.

Meanwhile Turkish Foreign Ministry spokesman Murat Sungar said the Turkish side would wait for the decision of the E.C. ministers before adopting countermeasures.

After the Greek Cypriot application to the E.C., Turkey and Trnc agreed on possible lifting of passport requirements for visits, a move that would consolidate the de-facto union between them.

As for the resumption of the U.N.-mediated talks between him and Greek Cypriot President George Vassiliou, Denktash said there would be no point in negotiating any further unless the Greek Cypriots accept Turkey's right to intervene as a guarantor power.

The talks for a federal settlement failed when the two leaders failed to bridge their differences in New York earlier this year.

DHAKA (SEPT. 12) - Nearly 14,000 Bangladeshis who fled Kuwait for Jordan, Saudi Arabia and Turkey have been brought home safely in an international airlift, but they know there is nothing for them here.

"It's nice to be here," said Nizam Uddim, 26, adding with a smile: "But I'm jobless."

He was one of 467 refugees flown in from Amman on the first of five flights arranged by the French government and the Geneva-based International Migrations Organisation.

He had been in Kuwait City eight years, working in a garage for 180 dinars (about 675 dollars) a month. Every month he sent his family in Bangladesh 100 dinars (375 dollars).

Bangladesh is a big exporter of manpower, and at the beginning of the Gulf crisis had 300,000 nationals there, about 80,000 of them in Kuwait and 10,000 in Iraq, according to diplomatic sources here.

According to a snap survey carried out in refugee camps in Jordan, each expatriate was supporting eight to 10 people back home.

They were bringing in 750 million dollars a year for the mother country, and their repatriation could produce a loss of up to 500 million dollars, Finance Minister M.A. Munim told the local press.

That would be a big blow for a country where the average per capita income barely reaches 120 dollars.

"First I want to visit my family," Nizam Uddim said, looking out with no apparent emotion through the window as the Boeing 747 made its approach to the airport. "But I hope to have a chance to get away, in another country. I'm ready to pay for it."

In 1982, he had to pay out more than 1,800 dollars to his boss to get his first two-year contract in Kuwait, to say nothing of the many intermediaries involved.

Now he has to start all over again.

His companion, Mohamad Adul-Awal, 27, who also spent eight years in Kuwait, said everybody needed another chance and would like to have one.

"We all dream about America," he confided.

MANAMA (SEPT 12) - Iraqi soldiers have blown up a private house in Kuwait killing at least 25 civilians, a Bahraini newspaper reported Wednesday.

Al Ayam, citing eyewitnesses who have fled to Saudi Arabia, said the attack was carried out in the district of Rawda late Monday night or early Tuesday morning. Other houses have also been blown up recently, it said.

According to the exiled Kuwaiti news agency Kuna, Iraqi soldiers attacked another private house on Saturday, mowing down 15 Kuwaiti civilians with machineguns. Kuna gave no reason for the attack, which may have been in retaliation for the house having been used as a hide-out for Kuwaiti resistance fighters.

Other sources reported that Iraqi soldiers have been hunting down juveniles at night, whose bodies are found littering the streets during the day. The sources said the victims' relatives were frequently forbidden to bury the corpses.

PARIS (SEPT. 12) - The French government has put anti-terrorist units on top alert and has taken "a certain number of precautions against the danger of attacks linked to the Gulf crisis", French Interior Minister Pierre Joxe said on Wednesday.

In a radio interview the minister, who did not give details of the measures, said that since the beginning of August his experts had appreciated the scale of the danger, and he stressed that there was a high level of international cooperation in the fight against terrorism.

He had urged security forces to be particularly vigilant.

Iraqi Foreign Minister Tarek Aziz, in an interview with the French newspaper Le Figaro on August 31, implicitly threatened France, the United States and Britain with terrorist attacks.

On Friday, officials in Washington said that Iraq had increased its support for various terrorist groups, and particularly for some radical Palestinian groups, and warned Iraq that any attack mounted on Iraqi initiative would be considered with the utmost gravity.

WELLINGTON (SEPT. 12) - Leading world business figures, trade ministers and the media will meet in Germany in October to press the case for reform of the world trading system, New Zealand Prime Minister Mike Moore said here Wednesday.

The meeting will be convened by the Eminent Persons Group on world trade which Mr. Moore coordinates. It includes a number of leading politicians from around the world lobbying for free trade.

Mr. Moore said the meeting will be held in Frankfurt on October 31 and will send a vital signal to the world on the need for progress in the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT)'s Uruguay Round, due to wind up in Brussels in December.

"There are vested interests trying to hold back the momentum of GATT but there are a larger amount of people, businesses and countries with something to lose if the talks fail," Mr. Moore said in a statement.

"While the need for global free trade rules has been widely accepted, it has been the protected minority who have yelled the loudest. Europe's farmers have banded together to stubbornly guard their protection", he said.

ALBUQUERQUE, New Mexico (SEPT. 12) - A small jet crashed here, killing a surgeon and an assistant flying to pick up a donor heart for a patient's second transplant, authorities said.

The plane crashed on a remote mesa west of Albuquerque on Tuesday just after take-off from Double Eagle Airport on a flight to Las Cruces, New Mexico, they said.

Thomas Hoyt, 49, medical director of the transplant program at Presbyterian Hospital, was flying the jet to Las Cruces to pick up a donor's heart at a hospital there, Presbyterian Hospital spokeswoman Teresa Whiteman said.

Bill Cobb, 30, a physician's assistant, was with him when the plane crashed, she said.

Later, it was too late to retrieve the organ, Ms. Whiteman said.

Diane Williams, 43, who was to receive the heart, expressed her condolences to Dr. Hoyt's family. "I am having trouble understanding why he had to die " she said.

"Everybody is devastated," said Bob Luther, administrator of the Presbyterian Hospital. "He obviously was a great human being, a superb person and an outstanding heart surgeon."

SEOUL (SEPT. 12) - North and South Korea will start working-level talks Thursday to discuss Pyongyang's proposal that the two rivals join the United Nations and share a single seat, officials here said Wednesday.

Kim Yong-Hwan, Seoul's top liaison official to inter-Korean prime ministerial talks, sent a message to his Northern counterpart Choi Bong-Chun, accepting his proposal that they meet at the border truce village of Panmunjom.

In the first meeting of prime ministers held here last week, the South told the North that it would study Pyongyang's proposal if it offered details on the plan to share a single seat at the United Nations.

The Korean seat in the United Nations is currently vacant.

The two sides also agreed last week that they would urge their respective Red Cross societies to resume talks on the reunions of families seperated by the division of the Korean peninsula in 1945.

In a related development, the South Korean Red Cross Society on Wednesday refused to accept a letter from the North addressed to dissidents in the South, the society announced.

The letter, whose contents were not known, was from the preparatory committee for a pan-national rally in the North.

The letter will not be helpful in improving North-South ties but only create unnecessary friction, the society was quoted as saying in a message to its Northern counterpart.

South Korean dissidents attacked Seoul authorities for blocking them from going to Panmunjom to attend the pro-unification rally at Panmunjom.

BANGKOK (SEPT. 12) - Bangkok's infamous red light districts could be plunged into semi-darkness under energy saving measures planned by the government, the state-owned Thai News Agency (TNA) said Wednesday.

The energy conservation package, which has to be approved by the cabinet, provides for switching off neon advertising, including signs in Bangkok's notorious red light districts of Pat Pong and Soi Cowboy, at nine p.m., the agency said.

It also includes doubling the road tax on cars of 2,000 cc engine capacity or larger, and stricter enforcement of the speed limit, the agency said.

The measures also call for a 10 percent reduction of energy consumption by government agencies through strict control of vehicle usage, the installation of more facsimile transmission machines and greater use of the postal service.

Thais will be encouraged to use public transport more, while traders will be urged to use rail and river services for freight transportation in a bid to cut use of trucks by some 25 percent, THA said.

Government offices were also instructed to install the more economical fluorescent lighting, switch off air-conditioning for one hour during the lunch break and regularly service their air-conditioners to save energy.

A government official said Prime Minister Chatichai Choonhavan had already ordered air conditioning at Government House to be switched off at noon Wednesday, and other ministries had followed suit.

BONN (SEPT. 12) - A woman has been held in East German psychiatric hospitals for more than 20 years while her identity was used as a cover for an East German spy who rose to the key post of secretary to a former West German economy minister, the weekly magazine Quick reported Wednesday.

The woman is Sonja Lueneburg, whose identity was reportedly used by the secretary of the same name who worked for the former West German economy minister, Martin Bangemann, in Bonn from 1975 to 1985.

The "spy" Sonja fled Bonn in 1985 at the same time as the double-agent Hans-Joachim Tiedge, a senior member of the West German secret service. Quick said she was now in hiding in the Soviet Union.

The magazine published photographs of both women, the real Sonja today a ravaged old woman with serious mental problems who has lost the will to live and has never been told the truth about her passport, the magazine said.

The saga started in 1950, before the erection of the Berlin Wall in 1961. A native of East Berlin, she married a West German and settled in West Berlin. The marriage fell apart, but in 1966 she met a Frenchman, remarried and moved to Paris.

When this marriage also broke up, she moved back to East Berlin with her mother, despite the Wall.

On her arrival, however, authorities confiscated her passport and unbeknownst to her, a spy with her same name turned up in West Berlin a month later.

Quick said the real Sonja was forced into retirement at 42 and kept under surveillance. She tried to contact the French Embassy in hopes of returning to the west.

One morning in 1968, two men in civilian clothing arrived at her home and took her to a psychiatric hospital for "schizophrenia", according to the magazine, which said she was medicated, given shock treatment and has remained hospitalized ever since, today living on a monthly pension of 100 Deutsche marks (60 dollars).

Her sister, who also lives in East Germany, reportedly learned that Sonja's identity had been used by the spy when the stories of the spy's escape to the east hit the newspapers in 1986. She kept it to herself until this year, fearing reprisals, the magazine said.

BANGKOK (SEPT. 12) - Phnom Penh Prime Minister Hun Sen Wednesday arrived in Bangkok in search of a motor and sail for the Cambodian ship of state.

''The boat has been built, the passengers are on the boat, but we are in need of a motor and sail,'' he said upon arrival at Bangkok airport.

Hun Sen and the three Cambodian resistance factions at a meeting this week in Jakarta unanimously endorsed a United Nations-sponsored plan to set up a Supreme National Council (Snc), including all four factions, to represent Cambodian sovereignty with a ''Namibia-style'' solution in the war-torn country.

Thai Prime Minister Chatichai Choonhavan, a key participant in efforts to resolve the Cambodian conflict, promising to change the battlefields of Indochina into marketplaces, invited Hun Sen to Bangkok upon his return trip from Jakarta.

''I am meeting with Chatichai to discuss how to start the boat and how to make it sail,'' said Hun Sen, in reference to the Snc.

A major question in the setting up of the Snc involves Prince Norodom Sihanouk, the head of the resistance movement, who refused to attend the Jakarta talks, reportedly for health reasons.

At a press briefing in Bangkok the prince's son Ranaridh indicated that Sihanouk could be persuaded to become chairman of the Snc and act as chief representative of Cambodia in the U.N.

Hun Sen and Chatichai are scheduled to meet informally at the Thai prime minister's house.

LONDON (SEPT. 12) - The British government is expected to announce soon that it is sending a "significant" number of soldiers to the Gulf to dig in under the desert sun and strengthen U.S. forces.

The government will announce within a few days that it is sending additional forces, probably comprising soldiers, to join the British naval and air force presence in the Gulf, sources close to the government said Wednesday after a ministerial meeting.

No official statement was made after the meeting, but well-informed sources said that agreement in principle on the deployment of ground troops was assured and that decisions were being studied on which units to send.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said Thursday that she intended to send additional forces to the Gulf.

Observers said that the time being taken to decide on which units should be sent was evidence of the complexity of the operation.

This has raised much speculation on the options available for the despatch of troops and, or of additional naval and air units.

Defence experts said the deployment of troops would be as much a political as a military decision to show that Britain stood shoulder to shoulder with the United States which has asked its allies to send ground forces.

But such a move could provoke political disagreement since the stationing of ground forces could be considered to be more offensive than defensive. The move could also raise questions over the cost, and would pose technical problems.

One question concerns the number of military personnel who could be deployed.

The chiefs of staff are believed to be studying the despatch of an entire brigade of 4,000 soldiers. A brigade could be withdrawn from the British Army on the Rhine, and would have to be supported by more than 100 tanks.

Another option would be to send a unit of 2,000, or of 1,000 men, and about 50 tanks or units of light infantry.

PARIS (SEPT. 12) - After year's of problems with its Superphenix plant at Creys-Malville, France's fast-breeder reactors were in more trouble Wednesday with the breakdown of the Phenix plant at Marcoule in south eastern France.

The incident marks a further setback for the state EDF electricity board whose Superphenix plant, the biggest breeder-reactor in Europe, has been halted for several months for repairs. The plant, which was hailed as milestone in nuclear technology, has operated at full power for only 175 days since it went into service in January 1986, according to a recent report.

Nuclear safety officials on Wednesday said the fault at the Marcoule reactor was "on the basis of a first analysis" due to a bubble of argon gas in the reactor core. This had caused a reduction of power and led to the automatic shut-down of the reactor on Sunday.

The incident had been given a Number-2 gravity rating on a six-grade scale of nuclear accidents, officials said.

The Marcoule plant, which went into service in 1973, had to be shut down three times last year after similar breakdowns. On one occasion it was out of action for three months.

The Superphenix plant in the Alpine region of eastern France, commissioned as the "jewel" of the French nuclear industry, has been plagued by problems from its inception. It has produced only 1,300 megawatts of electricity in nearly four years and at a price far higher than conventional nuclear plants.

SAO PAULO (SEPT. 12) - Antonio Eustaquio, the man who discovered a mass grave of people believed butchered by Brazil's military rulers, has gone into hiding with his family, newspapers reported here Wednesday.

Eustaquio, his wife and two children have not been seen for two days. Threatening telephone calls have plagued Eustaquio, who is administrator of the Dom Bosco Cemetery in the city district of Perus.

He had reported to police finding a grave with 1,700 skeletons in it, most believed to be people killed during the country's dictatorship from 1964 to 1985. Sao Paulo Mayor Luiza Erundina has ordered special protection for the Eustaquio family.

The Sao Paulo state government has meanwhile retracted a request to the state forensic laboratory Iml to identify the remains. Relations of the victims protested that Iml falsified death certificates for the military. A university will do the job instead.

TAIPEI (SEPT. 12) - Taiwan has pledged to contribute 100 million U.S. dollars to share the cost of the U.S. build-up in the Gulf against Iraq, the Chinese-language United Evening News reported here Wednesday.

In a dispatch from Washington, the paper quoted sources as saying that Taiwan Vice Foreign Minister Chen Chien-jen, who is currently visiting Washington, was expected to finalize details of the contribution with U.S. officials before leaving the U.S. capital on September 18.

President George Bush was "gratified and commended" Taiwan for the contribution, the paper added.

The United States switched diplomatic recognition from Taipei to Beijing in 1979 but remains Taiwan's largest trading partner and main arms supplier.

Taiwan's foreign ministry and the American Institute in Taiwan, which represents U.S. interests here in the absence of diplomatic relations, denied knowledge of the report.

But Feng Tai, deputy director of the Department of West Asian Affairs of the Foreign Ministry, said it has been the "intention of this government to help countries in the Middle East."

Taiwan Foreign Minister Fredrick Chien said last week that Jordan would be the first to receive aid, if any, from the island.

Last month, Jordan helped evacuate close to 200 Taiwan nationals stranded in Kuwait following the Iraqi invasion of the oil-rich emirate on August 2.

LUSAKA (SEPT. 12) - Rebels of the Mozambique National Resistance (RENAMO) killed two Zambians and seriously injured two others when they ambushed and torched two trucks in eastern Zambia on Monday, a government minister said Wednesday.

Secretary of Defence and Security Alex Shapi said the government was now contemplating using troop-escorted convoys on the road to Eastern Province, which has been the scene of a number of RENAMO attacks in the past three months.

In the latest ambush, "the rebels waylaid the trucks ferrying maize from eastern province to lusaka then opened fire, killing the two men, and set the grain and the vehicles on fire," said Mr. Shapi.

He said the government would increase patrols in the border area with mozambique "although of late the bandits have become elusive because they are moving in small groups which makes it difficult to monitor their whereabouts".

Two months ago, the rebels burnt seven Zambians to death on the same road after waylaying and setting ablaze seven vehicles.

They reportedly left pamphlets at the scene saying the attack was to avenge the deaths of RENAMO fighters killed by Zambian soldiers who had pursued them into Mozambique after attacks on Zambian border villages.

TAIPEI (SEPT. 12) - Taiwan economic and financial authorities are to provide small- and medium-sized firms easier access to loans to help them tide over the island's economic slowdown, officials said Wednesday.

The measures, effective immediately, were approved at a meeting Tuesday between Central Bank Governor Samuel Shieh, Finance Minister Wang Chien-shen and Economic Minister Vincent Siew, they said.

Under the package, greater access to a total of 85 billion Taiwan dollars (3.11 billion U.S.) in loans - mainly from the Central Bank - is expected to alleviate local businessmen's financial strains, the officials said.

The Bank of Taiwan on Wednesday lowered its prime lending rate by 0.25 percentage points to 10 percent annually to support the government's efforts to spur economic activity. Other banks are expected to follow suit.

The reduced rate, meant to cushion manufacturers' debt burden, is the lowest since the Central Bank launched across-the-board credit-tightening measures in May last year to check inflation and money supply growth.

In addition to injecting more liquidity into domestic banking institutions, under fire for being too conservative in lending, the Central Bank is also considering a relaxation of its ceiling of loans against land mortgage in effect since February 1989, the officials said.

Vice Economic Minister Chiang Pin-kun said Wednesday that his ministry would soon propose the appropriation of 10 billion Taiwan dollars (366.3 million U.S.) to finance small- and medium-size firms in upgrading their operations.

The Council for Economic Planning and Development has said it would include the development of the enterprises in the country's national construction plan in the next six years.

PARIS (SEPT. 12) - British and French farmers' representatives on Wednesday agreed to urge Brussels to adopt a package of emergency measures to prevent tensions over meat imports escalating into a full-scale "trade war".

Speaking after talks here between the French and British farmers' unions, the chairman of the French FNSEA federation Raymond Lacombe said both sides had agreed that financial measures were needed in addition to tighter controls on meat imports from eastern Europe.

The talks were the first face-to-face negotiations between the British National Farmers' Union (NFU) and FNSEA since French farmers began hijacking foreign meat imports in June to protest the fall in lamb and beef prices.

"West European farmers are paying the bill for German unification," Mr. Lacombe told a news conference here, complaining of lower-priced beef and lamb from East Germany which has been blamed for depressing the market in France.

Commenting on the French breeders' violent protest actions, during which more than 200 British lambs were burned alive, Mr. Lacombe said that he did not support violence, "but I cannot condemn men and women who are in distress".

French President Francois Mitterrand had on Tuesday in the southwest Dordogne region criticised the French breeders' "excesses" but said that the government would try to "understand the cause" of their actions.

The NFU chairman, Sir Simon Gourlay, said at Wednesday's news conference that the French farmers' actions had not been allowed "to cloud, or overshadow" the negotiations.

He expressed satisfaction at the "tremendous increase" in French government efforts since last week to "keep trade rolling".

Sir Simon noted that threats of a British boycott of French products were "receding". "We are not going to solve the problem by retaliating," he said, but added that he "fully understood" such action taken at local initiative.

The British union leader said that in addition to the immediate measures outlined Wednesday, the European Economic Community should also consider longer-term solutions to satisfy the farmers protesting the lack of a long-term policy which would provide economic stability.

Mr. Lacombe said the chairmen of farmers' unions from the 12 EEC countries would meet in Brussels Friday before formally submitting their demands to European commissioners.

He added that the union representatives had not calculated the costs of the package to Brussels, but argued that due to administrative savings there was plenty of spare cash available.

In a further sign that both Britain and France had decided to cooperate over the crisis, two other British farmers' delegations were holding talks in Cherbourg and Calais in northern France on Wednesday.

ZURICH (SEPT. 12) - Swissair said Wednesday it was dropping plans to sell its 49 percent stake in the Swissotel hotel chain to the Japanese group Aoki-Westin because of the uncertain situation on international financial markets.

The two sides had agreed in principle on the sale of Swissair's stake in Swissotel's 17 luxury hotels worldwide in March.

But negotiations were broken off by mutual agreement on Tuesday, Swissair said.

The airline said in a statement it intended to "keep all options open" and had decided not to go ahead with the sale "in view of recent uncertainty in world financial market conditions."

One of the main reasons was the strengthening of the Swiss franc against the yen since March, which had seen the price in Swiss franc terms rise 15 per cent, said Swissair spokeswoman Susanne Bilger.

"We have tried to renegotiate, but have not found a solution," she said, without giving any figure for the purchase price.

The uncertain situation on world financial markets and financing difficulties in the U.S. property sector, had also left Aoki-Westin less interested in embarking on major investments, Mrs. Bilger said.

Swissair had acquired the 49 percent stake in Swissotel from Nestle last year through its subsidiary Swissair Participations.

It could now decide to retain the stake, seek another buyer, or sell off part of it, Mrs. Bilger said.

Swissair made a loss of 99 million Swiss francs (75 million dollars) in the first half of the year.

ADDIS ABABA (SEPT. 12) - President Mengistu Haile Mariam said Wednesday that the Ethiopian government's main pre-occupation was the threat to peace posed by continuation of war in the north.

Addressing a mass rally at Revolution Square here to mark the 16th anniversary of the revolution which overthrew the monarchy in Ethiopia, the president said government forces have been locked up in a protracted war against the Eritrean People's Liberation Front (EPLF).

He said the EPLF wants to seize Ethiopia's Red Sea coastal province of Eritrea in the war which has lasted more than 28 years.

Another guerrilla group, the Tigre People's Liberation Front (TPLF), has also in recent months launched attacks.

The government says the TPLF's objectives are to spread civil war in the country, declare Tigre a republic and facilitate the secession of Eritrea.

Lieutenant-Colonel Mengistu said war against the guerrillas had forced a virtual halt to development because it had tied up resources and government attention.

The critical issue was the theat to Ethiopian unity which should be averted by all means, Col. Mengistu argued and called on his people to stand up and "save Ethiopia".

On the EPLF's attack against Ethiopia's Red Sea port of Massawa last February and its subsequent closure, Col. Mengistu said Massawa had been a target of Ethiopia's foreign enemies in the past and accused EPLF of being a tool of external Ethiopian enemies whose intention was to strangle it by denying it an outlet to the sea.

Col. Mengistu accused both the EPLF and TPLF guerrillas of spreading false propaganda about being concerned with peace and the well-being of the people and dismissed what he called their attempt to put the blame on his government for all the problems the country faced.

Rather than engaging in such sterile propaganda, he said, they should "present whatever issues they have at a peaceful forum in the presence of observers" and the conclusion reached would be submitted to the people for decision.

Col. Mengistu did not elaborate the precise issues that would be submitted to the people or how they would decide on the issues.

Col. Mengistu dismissed as self-serving rebel claims that Ethiopia's problems would be solved if the government "stepped aside", meaning its relinquishing power.

"If that indeed were the case, there would be no sense in choosing to suffer the painful conflagrations of war", he said.

BEIJING (SEPT. 12) - The Chinese Government plans to lease millions of hectares (acres) of pastureland to herdsmen for up to 15 years to prevent the depletion of land resources, the official China Daily reported Wednesday.

The reform, effective immediately, is designed to make herdsmen responsible for the land and will be implemented gradually, the daily quoted Li Shoude an Agriculture Ministry official, as saying.

The English-language newspaper quoted Mr. Li as saying the plan was crucial for the maintenance and even the survival of over-grazed and neglected pasture.

Under the terms of the reform, herdsmen will pay an annual rent of three to 15 yuan (60 U.S. cents to 3.2 U.S. dollars) per hectare (2.47 acres) under 10 to 15-year contracts with the government, the newspaper said.

It said they would have the option of renewing the contracts and of raising livestock on the leased plots for as long as they want.

However, the reform will only be introduced gradually, area by area, because most herdsmen lead nomadic lives, the newspaper said.

It did not say how many shepherds would be involved, but quoted Mr. Li, the deputy director of the ministry's grassland division, as saying that the plan would probably take "more than 10 years to be implemented nationwide."

Over-grazing and desertification have cost China about 660,000 hectares (1.63 million acres) of pasture annually in recent years.

The newspaper added that the lease system was introduced in 1985 in Inner Mongolia, where 53 million hectares (130.9 million acres) of pasture - or 84.9 percent of the region's usable land - had been leased to herdsmen.

PARIS (SEPT. 12) - France's expeditionary force in the gulf is costing it about 150 million francs (nearly 30 million dollars) a month, the army's chief spokesman said Wednesday.

The cost includes the aircraft carrier Clemenceau, which is being used as a helicopter carrier -- there are 42 helicopters on board -- along with 200 paratroopers and a land-based helicopter unit made up of six helicopters and 100 men, said the spokesman, General Raymond Germanos.

Not included in the cost are the 4,000 troops based in Djibouti and the personnel aboard the French fleet in the Indian Ocean, he said.

Britain spent about 140 million dollars to send fresh forces to the Gulf and these are costing about two million dollars a day.

JERUSALEM (SEPT 12) - The United States will provide Israel with 10 CH-53 military transport helicopters and 60 F-16 fighters, U.S. Ambassador to Israel William Brown, said Wednesday.

Mr. Brown, speaking in Hebrew during a ceremony to deliver two U.S.-made Apache helicopters at a base in southern Israel, said he hoped Israel would also obtain Stinger shoulder-fired missiles, as well as equipment to improve the performance of F-15 aircraft and additional materiel for the army and air force.

"Israel is an important ally of the United States, on which we can rely, as well as a stabilizing element in the region," he said.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, who attended the ceremony, said the Israeli army and air force "would be victorious in the first stages of combat if Israel is attacked".

Fear of attack has been triggered by Baghdad's August 2 invasion of Kuwait and threats that it could incinerate parts of Israel with chemical weapons if the Jewish state launched a preemptive strike on Iraq.

The two Apache combat choppers, from a total order of 18 costing 350 million dollars, arrived in Israel on Tuesday. They are to be assembled by Israeli air force technicians.

Israel becomes the first foreign recipient of the Apache, which can reach speeds of 360 kilometers per hour (225 miles) and can function both night and day.

TOKYO (SEPT. 12) - Japan will become the world's most aged society by 2025 with more than one in four people aged 65 or older, a population institute said in a survey released Wednesday.

The survey by Tokyo's Nippon University Population Research Institute found that in 2025, 26.55 percent of the people here will be at least 65 years old, compared with 12 percent now.

The ratio would surpass that in Switzerland, which is expected to rise to 25.9 percent, the institute added.

LONDON (SEPT. 12) - The British balance of payments on current account showed a deficit of 4.9 billion pounds (9.2 billion dollars) in the second quarter, representing an increase of 300 million pounds on the first quarter figure of 4.6 billion pounds (8.6 billion dollars), official figures showed on Wednesday.

The figures were a seasonally-adjusted revision of statistics published earlier which put the second quarter deficit at 4.3 billion pounds and the first quarter deficit at 4.7 billion pounds.

The deficit for the first half of the year totalled 9.6 billion pounds compared with 19.1 billion pounds for the whole of last year and a governmental target of 15 billion pounds for this year.

Between April and June the trade balance showed a deficit of five billion pounds compared with 5.8 billion pounds in the first quarter, and invisible earnings from financial services resulted in a surplus of 57 million pounds compared with 1.2 billion pounds. The oil account showed a surplus of 600 million pounds.

The surplus on invisible earnings in the second quarter was significantly below the 600 million pounds initially estimated. But the central statistical office, which published the figures, said that the figures for this factor, which were frequently incomplete, were likely to be matched overall by substantial errors and omissions.

COLOMBO (SEPT. 12) - A senior Sri Lankan government official returned home Wednesday after seeking Baghdad's permission to airlift food to thousands of Sri Lankans stranded in Iraqi-occupied Kuwait.

Labour Minister G.M. Premachandra, who visited Kuwait and Iraq during a one week Middle East tour, told Agence France-Presse that Colombo had also asked approval from Baghdad to airlift the stranded workers home direct from Kuwait.

"We have requested the Iraqi government to allow us to airlift food to Kuwait and also to help us evacuate our workers," Mr. Premachandra said.

"We are waiting for a response. If they agree we could evacuate the Sri Lankans (from Kuwait) in about a month's time."

More than 80,000 Sri Lankan workers have been trapped in Kuwait following Iraq's August 2 invasion of the tiny emirate. Thousands of other Sri Lankans have fled Kuwait to neighbouring states in an attempt to return home.

Mr. Premachandra said that during his visit to Kuwait, he found that there was a severe shortage of food, a fact which he had stressed in his talks with Iraqi officials.

"They (the Iraqis) are considering our request to airlift food to Kuwait," Mr. Premachandra said, adding "our aircraft would be allowed to land either in Kuwait or Iraq."

He proposed that if charter flights of the national carrier, Air Lanka, are allowed to evacuate Sri Lankans from Kuwait, Basra and Baghdad, medicine and food for remaining workers could be airlifted on the same flights.

An Air Lanka spokesman here said the carrier was ready to give top priority to any evacuation plan aimed at bringing back Sri Lankans direct from Kuwait.

Meanwhile, a Foreign Ministry statement said the Sri Lankan mission at the United Nations has made representations to the Security Council to ensure that Sri Lankans would be given priority "in the event of mass repatriation becoming necessary."

The four-page statement also said the European Economic Community (EEC) has provided Sri Lanka with a bilateral grant for the repatriation of stranded Sri Lankans from the Middle East.

The Air Lanka spokesman said the first EEC-funded Air Lanka charter arrived in Sri Lanka on Tuesday carrying 232 passengers from Amman where more than 4,000 Sri Lankans are being accomodated at refugee camps.

Mr. Premachandra described the camps as "very crowded" but said Sri Lankan officials were attending to the welfare of their stranded nationals in Jordan.

During his visit to Kuwait, Mr. Premachandra met more than 5,000 Sri Lankans, mostly housemaids, who have pitched camp at a school near the Sri Lankan embassy.

The Foreign Ministry said the U.N.-sponsored International Organisation for Migration (IOM) has so far provided 11 charter flights bringing 1,980 Sri Lankans from Amman to Colombo.

"It is expected that IOM charters will come to Sri Lanka every other day carrying 180 (passengers) on each flight."

To expedite the repatriation process in Jordan, which has the largest number of Sri Lankan refugees, Colombo has set up a temporary resident mission in Amman to assist the Sri Lankan consulate there.

Hundreds of Sri Lankan refugees are in camps in Riyadh and to a lesser extent in Cairo, Abu Dhabi, Ankara and Teheran. Colombo is also hoping to evacuate 250 Sri Lankans from Cairo by a charter funded by a church agency.

According to the Foreign Ministry, it has contacted Sri Lanka's missions abroad and shipping agents in Colombo to charter aircraft and vessels to bring back the country's refugees.

"The Foreign Minister (Harold Herat) also expects to meet members of the diplomatic corps to seek further assistance to meet the present crisis in regard to Sri Lankan refugees in the various capitals," the statement added.

A total of about 4,500 Sri Lankans have already been flown home on special Air Lanka and IOM-organised flights.

If the Gulf crisis is not resolved, Sri Lanka will lose at a conservative estimate about five million dollars a month in foreign exchange remittances from its nationals working in Kuwait. Following the U.N. trade embargo on Baghdad, the country also lost 20 per cent of its tea exports to Iraq which annually buys 2,500 million rupees (62.5 million dollars) worth of tea.

JERUSALEM (SEPT. 12) - Violent clashes have broken out between rival Palestinians in the Israeli-occupied territories, where the Gulf crisis has deeply split factions in the Palestinian uprising, Arab sources said Wednesday.

The sources said dozens of Palestinian militants have been wounded in the past few days in a series of fights between PLO supporters and members of the Sunni Moslem fundamentalist group Hamas in the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

The attacks, involving brutal fist-fights and attacks with knives, axes and steel bars that have terrorised refugee camps, have been accompanied by death threats against Palestinian figures and vicious propaganda campaigns.

The PLO-backed Unified Leadership, the main underground coordinator of the 33-month old Palestinian uprising, is sympathetic to Iraq and believes the priority in the Gulf crisis is a withdrawal of Western forces from the region.

Hamas -- already opposed by the nationalist, secular PLO for its religious fundamentalism -- wants on the other hand an Iraqi pullout from Kuwait.

"We demand before anything else that the Iraqi forces withdraw immediately from Kuwait," senior Hamas leader Abdel Aziz Rantisi told Agence France-Presse.

For Dr. Rantisi, who was released from an Israeli jail last week, the Iraqi invasion is the same "as Israel's occupation of the Palestinian land."

The split on the Gulf crisis appears to have ruined 18 months of efforts by Palestinian leaders to patch up differences between the two sides and form a common front in the struggle against Israeli occupation.

In the West Bank camp of Tulkarm Sunday and Monday, about 20 Palestinians were wounded in pitched knife and axe battles between masked activists loyal to Hamas and Fatah, the mainstream PLO group, the sources said.

Tension has been even higher in the Gaza Strip, where Hamas has the support of 30 per cent of the population. Large groups of demonstrators have clashed in the Jabaliya and Bureij camps in the past few days, witnesses said.

On Saturday, a nurse at the Ahli hospital in the Gaza Strip was stabbed and struck with metal bars by a group of 10 Hamas militants who entered the facility's operating room, the Palestinian sources said.

MOSCOW (SEPT. 12) - Top officials in the Russian republic have urged the Soviet parliament to withdraw Soviet military experts from Iraq and to cancel a bilateral friendship and co-operation treaty, the Soviet TASS news agency reported on Wednesday.

The call was made by the committee for international affairs and external economic relations of the Russian federation parliament.

Recent official Soviet statements have said that about 150 Soviet military advisers were still in Iraq.

The Russian parliamentarians called on the Soviet federal parliament, the Supeme Soviet, to "urgently examine the question of the friendship and co-operation treaty with Iraq", signed in 1972.

They expressed support for the position of the government and for the statement made in Helsinki by Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev and U.S. President George Bush insisting on the withdrawal of Iraqi troops from Kuwait.

"The committee considers immoral the continuation of any contact in the military field with the aggressor -- it is necessary rapidly to recall all Soviet military experts who are now in Iraq," the Russian deputies said.

The position taken by the Russian parliament is more radical than that adopted by the Supreme Soviet which on Tuesday expressed approval of the action of the government and said that the evacuation of Soviet nationals from the region of the crisis should be continued, without referring specifically to military experts.

The Russian parliament has no constitutional powers over foreign policy.

HANOI (SEPT. 12) - Total foreign investment in Vietnam, mainly from Europe, has doubled in the past year to surpass 1.2 billion dollars, official figures released here Wednesday showed.

Investment in Vietnam amounted to 636.8 million dollars in the previous year. Hanoi started allowing foreign investment in December 1986.

Foreign experts said that investment could see a major rise - mainly from so far relatively wary Asian countries - if a solution is reached to the war in Cambodia, where Hanoi backs the Phnom Penh government.

"Vietnam has given approval up to now for 183 foreign firms to invest in the country, with a total capital of more than 1.2 billion dollars," the State Committee for Cooperation and Foreign Investment reported.

"Thirty other foreign investment projects in different sectors are currently being studied," the committee added, without specifying the amount involved.

According to a study by Western experts, two thirds of the investment - mostly in oil exploration, agriculture and marine products - was made by European countries.

Britain topped the list of capitalist nations investing in Vietnam last year, accounting for 30.01 percent, followed by France with 21.44 percent, and the Netherlands with 19.03 percent, the study said.

The three focused their investment on oil exploration, it added.

The study revealed that Asian investment in the same period remained weak - save for India and Australia accounting for 10.99 percent and 9.08 percent respectively - with Japan representing only 0.03 percent of the total.

South Korea accounted for 0.72 percent, Singapore 0.54 percent, Thailand 1.11 percent and Hong Kong 5.63 percent.

PARIS (SEPT. 12) - The BP France oil company on Wednesday reported a 72 per cent fall in profits in the first half of this year compared with the same period in 1989, attributing the reduction to notional losses on stock valuations before the Gulf crisis.

The managing director Raymond Bloch said that fluctuating oil prices had caused considerable stock losses, and reported a net consolidated profit of 186 million francs (35 million dollars) compared with 725 million francs (136 million dollars) in the first half of 1989. He said this was a "satisfactory" outcome if stocks were excluded.

The value of stocks fell by 770 million francs (145 million dollars).

For the first time since 1986 the company had made a first-half profit on oil operations, to the extent of 170 million francs, compared with a loss of 165 million francs one year earlier.

This had been achieved through a major programme of restructuring, particularly concerning the French distribution network, and at least 200 badly sited service stations of low profitability were due to be closed, out of a total of 1,200 at the end of 1989.

Mr. Bloch said that the Gulf crisis and its effect on the prices of oil products had not yet caused the French subsidiary of British Petroleum to revise its strategy, and that the effect on profits at the end of the year was unclear because of volatility in the price of oil.

Finance director Pierre Dupont said that profits would be higher as oil prices rose.

Mr. Bloch said that some governments were mistaken in considering that they might release oil from strategic reserves if shortages arose. There was no shortage now, but if tension worsened and oil markets ran into severe difficulties, the use of stocks might be justified to steady prices.

Although stocks held by BP of 1.8 million tons were greater than the level of 1.2 million tons, equivalent to 90 days of sales, required by the state, he said that his company and other oil companies would not deplete stocks.

Oil companies would decide to use stocks only if the government removed the 90-day requirement, he said.

TEHERAN (SEPT. 12) - Iran signed no commercial accord with Iraq to help it circumvent a U.N.-backed embargo during a weekend visit here by Iraqi Foreign Minister Tareq Aziz, an informed government source said Wednesday.

Mr. Aziz ended an unprecedented visit to Teheran on Monday receiving assurances only that severed Iranian-Iraqi ties would be resumed, the official media reported.

Iran and Iraq fought a bitter eight-year war that ended with a United Nations-sponsored cease-fire in August 1988. They only severed ties in 1987.

A foreign ministry communique issued at the end of Mr. Aziz's visit said nothing about the possibility of Iran providing its former foe with food and medicine to beat the U.N. sanctions, which were imposed after Iraq invaded Kuwait on August 2.

But the English-language daily Teheran Times, considered close to President Ali Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani, said Wednesday that Iranian officials had begun studying the issue and were convinced that "Moslem Iraqi people should not pay for the mistakes of their government."

"But once Iran finalizes its decision and starts shipping food and medicine to Iraq, political circles here believe, Iraq will have an outlet in its present strapped position," the paper said.

DURBAN, South Africa (SEPT. 12) - Senior South African Communist Party (SACP) member Billy Nair was released from security detention on Wednesday after suffering a heart attack, police said.

The SACP claimed he had been assaulted at the start of his term in detention under section 29 of the Internal Security Act (ISA) on July 23, and said it was holding the government responsible for Mr. Nair's health.

Mr. Nair suffered the heart attack on Tuesday while in a local hospital where he underwent an operation to his knee, state-run radio said.

Police were not sure whether he will be charged, the radio added.

"The stressful conditions of indefinite detention (provided for by the ISA) and treatement meted out to him are responsible for the heart attack," SACP spokesman Essop Pahad told Agence France-Presse.

Mr. Pahad said he believed Mr. Nair was currently in an intensive care unit at a local hospital.

The government had come "within a hair's breadth of being implicated in yet another Section 29 tragedy", Mr. Pahad said.

"Under the Pretoria Minute there was no reason for the continued detention of (another SACP member) Mac Maharaj and all the other political detainees " Mr. Pahad said.

The Pretoria Minute is an accord reached on August 6 between government and the black nationalist African National Congress, of which Mr. Nair is also a member, which paves the way for constitutional negotiations.

LONDON (SEPT. 12) - Rebels of the National Patriotic Front of Liberia (NPFL) on Wednesday said they had taken control of the small Spriggs Payne airport in Monrovia, in a Liberian radio broadcast monitored by the British Broadcasting Corporation (BBC).

The rebels, led by Charles Taylor, added that they were holding the J.F. Kennedy hospital in the Liberian capital.

The BBC reported that Mr. Taylor's forces, coming from the east, were moving in on the executive mansion of president Samuel K. Doe, who was reported killed Monday by a rival rebel group led by Prince Johnson.

Mr. Johnson's forces were meanwhile closing in on the executive mansion from the west. The BBC said that Doe loyalists were firing back from the building.

The BBC had no details of troop movements by the five-nation peacekeeping force sent into Liberia by the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS).

BRUSSELS (SEPT. 12) - The European Community's Council of Ministers Wednesday granted special powers to the E.C. Commission to begin implementing Community law in East Germany immediately upon German unification on October 3.

The European Parliament, which approved the move Tuesday in Strasbourg, plans to pass it on second reading Thursday.

About 80 per cent of E.C. legislation will then apply to former East German territory. The remaining laws, primarily in the areas of agriculture and the environment, are to take effect at times to be arranged later.

The accelerated integration procedure was necessitated by the imminent unification of the Germanys. The normal process would have taken too long, making East German territory a legal ''grey zone''.

Meanwhile, foreign ministers Sten Andersson of Sweden and Kjell Magne Bondevik of Norway said Wednesday they were considering applying for E.C. membership by 1993. The remarks came at the conclusion of a two-day meeting of the Nordic Council in Molde, Norway.

Finnish Foreign Minister Pertti Paaslo indicated a few weeks ago that the dissolution of the political blocs had removed the main obstacle to his country's joining the E.C.

Iceland's foreign minister did not attend the meeting. The fifth member of the Nordic Council, Denmark, already belongs to the E.C.

BEIJING (SEPT. 12) - Coal production fell for the first time this year in August after weak demand from industry forced smaller mines to cut output, an official report said Wednesday.

Coal output fell 2.8 percent in August on a year-on-year basis to 85.84 million tons, the China Daily said, adding that production for the first eight months of the year was up 4.2 percent to 688.7 million tons.

The coal industry began to feel the effects of an economic austerity plan in July, when production rose only 1.9 percent.

China produced a record 1.04 billion tons of coal last year.

Electricity production, a government priority, increased significantly in August to 53 billion kilowatt hours, a five percent increase from the same month in 1989, the paper said.

It rose 6.3 percent in the first eight months of the year to 403 billion kilowatt hours.

LONDON (SEPT. 12) - U.S. and Saudi Awacs, the crucial surveillance aircraft being used in the Gulf crisis, are being jammed by French-made equipment used by Iraq, according to the Financial Times which said Washington had asked Paris for help in the matter.

The report said U.S. military chiefs depended heavily on these airborne early-warning radar planes made by the Boeing company to keep track of Iraqi movement, and were concerned by the development.

Though U.S. electronic experts were studying ways to avoid the jamming by the sophisticated French-made equipment, the Bush administration has asked France to supply direct information, the paper said.

But it was uncertain whether -- or how much -- France would cooperate in giving details on the jamming equipment, which was supplied by Thomson-CSF, the state-owned military electronics group.

In the past, the "Americans have been generally willing to share sensitive electronic technology with the British and Germans, but have withheld access to the French", the paper said.

France is not part of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) integrated military command.

The report added that U.S. military experts initially thought the jamming of the Awacs' surveillance equipment was due to Soviet-made material, but "attention soon turned to France, which for years has ranked second only to the Soviet Union as a military supplier to Iraq."

The Financial Times noted that the Thomson-CSF group is one of the biggest French suppliers of military equipment, while adding that the company "refuses to comment on its links with the Baghdad regime".

At least 16 of its employees are said now to be held hostage in Iraqi-occupied Kuwait.

In France, some 26 Iraqis are now under special government surveillance, including "eight who were on a recent training course in radar countermeasures at Thomson's Brest plant", the Financial Times said.

TEHERAN (SEPT. 12) - The leader of the Iranian revolution, Ayatollah Ali Khamenei, Wednesday lashed out here against the U.S. military presence in the Gulf and against its allies in the region for inviting American troops into their countries.

''Confronting the aggression, ambitions and schemes of the U.S. to encroach upon the Persian Gulf is considered Jihad (holy war) and any one killed for this purpose is a martyr,'' the Iranian New Agency Irna quoted him as saying.

Khamenei vowed that Moslem nations would never allow Washington to set up a security and defence system in the Gulf.

''The U.S. must have learnt a lesson from past events... The Americans must have remembered how a number of committed Moslem youths drove them out of Lebanon,'' he said in an allusion to bloody bomb attacks in 1983 and 1984 which prompted U.S. forces to pull out from this country.

The Iranian leader reiterated his opposition to what he called ''Washington's outrageous policies'' and stressed that preserving the security in the Gulf rested solely with regional states.

He indirectly criticised Saudi Arabia, Bahrain, the United Arab Emirates,

Qatar and Oman by saying: ''Those government defending themselves with the help of foreigners have humiliated their nations.''

Colombo (SEPT. 12) - Suspected members of the rebel Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam (Ltte) shot dead four Tamil youth for allegedly providing information to the army in the Batticaloa district of eastern Sri Lanka, military sources said Wednesday.

The bullet riddled bodies were dumped on a street in the heart of Batticaloa town after they had been shot dead on the previous day.

Following the incident troops, launched a house-to-house search in the district Wednesday morning.

In a related development, representatives of opposition political parties who visited refugee camps in the eastern province over the weekend told the government Wednesday that urgent steps should be taken to provide more food and medical supplies to these refugees displaced in the north-east war which has entered its fourth month.

The representatives - who met a ministerial committee appointed by President Ranasinghe Premadasa to look into the problems of over one million persons displaced by the war between government troops and Tamil rebels in the north-east of the country - also pointed out a series of shortcomings in these refugee camps.

KARACHI (SEPT. 12) - Ousted Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto of Pakistan on Wednesday filed papers seeking candidacy in the October 24 elections as a special court here began hearing corruption charges against her.

Ms. Bhutto filed nomination papers from her ancestral town of Larkana, 350 kilometers (210 miles) north of here before a home crowd chanting slogans, witnesses said.

She described the two cases against her in Karachi Monday and two in Lahore Wednesday as "deplorable."

The cases, filed on behalf of President Ghulam Ishaq Khan who dismissed her government on August 6 citing abuse of power, seek to disqualify Ms. Bhutto from the elections.

Rejecting the charges Ms. Bhutto lashed out at the caretaker government, which she dubbed as an "anti-people" group working against the national interest.

"Just to damage the Pakistan People's Party which believes in democracy, freedom and the federal system, the so-called champions of Pakistani ideology in the Islamic Democratic Alliance (IJI) have sided with those who do not believe in federation," said Ms. Bhutto.

The cases filed here on Monday allege an attempt to change the consultancy contract for a Karachi power project to be financed by the Asian Development Bank, while the second deals with a cotton sale contract to Rally Brothers Ltd. for below-market rates.

Justice Wajihuddin Ahmed, hearing the government attorney, observed that some of the documents mentioned in the reference were missing.

He asked the counsel for the state to supply copies of the documents and adjourned the proceedings until Tuesday when the second case concerning the cotton export deal will also be heard.

Ms. Bhutto said here Monday she would challenge these charges in court as they were "without any basis."

BAGHDAD (SEPT. 12) - Iraq lashed back at U.S. President George Bush on Wednesday, accusing him of using lies and distortions to pursue a goal of world domination.

Iraqi Foreign Minister Tareq Aziz, responding to Mr. Bush's remarks to Congress and the American people on Tuesday, charged that the address "confirmed American imperialist tendencies."

"The speech is the archetypical discourse of an arrogant and imperialist government that seeks to dominate the world through lies and distortion," he charged.

Mr. Bush, describing Iraqi President Saddam Hussein as "ruthless," vowed that Iraq's seizure of Kuwait August 2 was destined to fail in the face of a new partnership of nations that could point to a new world order.

The foreign affairs commentator for the official Iraqi News Agency wrote that the address showed Mr. Bush's determination "to rule the world alone" and revealed "beyond the slightest doubt that aggressive tendencies and evil continue to dominate the spirit of the man."

The president chose to ignore "the policies of intervention and aggression of the United States, which were apparent in Grenada, Panama and Nicaragua " the commentator stressed.

Citing Iraq's control of 20 per cent of the world's oil resources, after the capture of Kuwait, Mr. Bush asserted: "We cannot permit a resource so vital to be dominated by one so ruthless."

Mr. Aziz responded: "Before August 2 Iraq had 10 per cent of world oil reserves and did not threaten the interests of anyone, including the United States -- which bought a third of the Iraqi output."

"What then has changed now that Iraqi resources amount to 20 per cent of world reserves?" he asked.

Mr. Aziz also dismissed U.S. claims that Iraq had threatened Saudi Arabia.

"American satellites can uncover the truth and the U.S. military itself has noted the defensive nature of Iraqi military preparations (on the Saudi border)," he said.

NEW DELHI (SEPT. 12) - The Kashmir Valley was paralysed Wednesday by a mass closure of shops following an outcry that the Indian security forces in the area were harassing bus drivers and conductors.

In a related development, authorities stopped over 10,000 Hindu students holding a ''long march'' by bus from entering the mountain valley from the plains for fear of a bitter Hindu-Moslem communal flareup in the area, the United News of India news agency said.

The call to down shutters in Kashmir came a day after over 30 suspected Moslem militants were burned to death when a bus in which they were travelling caught fire following an encounter with Indian security forces, according to Uni.

The incident occured Tuesday at Thueen town when the paramilitary Border Security Force flagged down a bus on a random check. As soon as the vehicle stopped four radicals reportedly stepped out of it and opened fire.

The security forces returned fire as a result of which the bus caught fire.

Uni said that although the transport union did not issue a special appeal for a closure, shops and business houses closed as a mark of protest.

NICOSIA (SEPT. 12) - Lawyers from seven Arab countries will participate in a trial held in Baghdad of U.S. President George Bush "for crimes against humanity," the official Iraqi News Agency (INA) reported Wednesday.

Citing leading Iraqi attorney Hamed Raoui, INA said the trial would take place in the first half of October and would be attended by attorneys from Jordan, Yemen, Libya, Algeria, Mauritania, Tunisia and Palestine.

Three working groups of legal experts have been selected to prepare the indictment, which will include legal, political and economic sections, INA said.

The measure is in reaction to the Western -- notably U.S. -- military buildup in the Gulf, sparked by Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait, in addition to sweeping U.N.-backed sanctions against Baghdad.

Arab and international figures have been invited to participate in the trial, Mr. Raoui said, adding that the steering committee had received "several complaints against the American president for his crimes against the Arab people and his attempts to wipe out the human race in several parts of the world."

Iraqi lawyers earlier this month announced that they would hold a "public trial" of Mr. Bush "in accordance with the Human Rights Charter."

On September 2, British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher denounced Iraqi President Saddam Hussein as a "loser" with no regard for human life and said he should face a Nuremberg-style trial at the end of the Gulf crisis.

Her criticism of Mr. Hussein was sparked by Baghdad's move to hold foreigners hostage in Iraq and Kuwait to deter a possible attack by the United States and its Western allies.

CHERBOURG, France (SEPT. 12) - The French navy has boarded an Iraqi container ship in the Channel to enforce a U.N. military and trade embargo voted in the wake of the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, authorities said here Wednesday.

It was the first time that an Iraqi vessel in French waters had been intercepted under the August 6 embargo. The French navy and other naval authorities had received instructions to ensure the embargo was enforced off French coasts at the beginning of this month.

The navy boarded the Bahamas-registered Gur Mariner, belonging to the Iraqi Lines company, off Cherbourg in the southern Channel to check documents as the vessel was on its way to Rotterdam after being refused entry to Port Said in Egypt under the international embargo.

Eighteen per cent of world trade transits via the Channel.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 12) - U.S. Defence Secretary Dick Cheney has confirmed here reports that the Pentagon has formulated plans for a possible attack on Iraq, while President George Bush again urged Baghdad to pull out its troops from Kuwait.

Cheney late Tuesday told the Senate's armed services committee that Bush would order an American military action against Iraq only after an Iraqi ''provocation''. He did not say what kind of Iraqi action would be considered a provocation.

The defence secretary added that in case of war, U.S. forces in the Gulf would not take into consideration the possiblity of Soviet military advisers or civilian experts working at strategic sites in Iraq.

Cheney vowed that more U.S. troops would be deployed in the Gulf and the chief-of-staff of the U.S. armed forces, General Colin Powell, said 160,000 troops were involved in Operation Desert Shield to defend Iraq from a feared Iraqi attack against Saudi Arabia.

Powell said 75,000 troops were now deployed in Gulf Arab states, 30,000 to 40,000 were nearby on ships and the rest were on their way to the crisis region.

Bush reiterated the U.S. objectives in the Gulf, namely that Iraq must withdraw from Kuwait completely, immediately and without condition, that Kuwait's legitimate government be restored, and that stability in the Gulf be assured.

Speaking to both houses of Congress, he proclaimed a ''new partnership of nations'' following his summit meeting with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev in Helsinki last Sunday. A dictator (Iraqi President Saddam Hussein) could no longer count on confrontation between West and East, he added.

In New York, the members of the United Nations Security Council were still divided on whether and under what conditions food deliveries to Baghdad should be permitted despite the embargo imposed against Iraq because of its August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

JAMMU, India (SEPT. 12) - Hundreds of Hindu students were arrested Wednesday when police halted a banned march into the Kashmir valley dubbed as a bid "to save Kashmir" from Moslem secessionists, police said.

Thousands of Moslems meanwhile closed shops and universities to protest the deaths of 29 Moslem bus passengers killed Tuesday in the crossfire between security forces and Moslem militants in the Kashmir valley, police reported.

The would-be marchers, of the Akhil Bharatiya Vidyarthi Parishad (ABVP), were taken into custody in the garrison town of Udhampur, 64 kilometers (40 miles) from the winter capital, they added.

Witnesses said dozens protesting the government ban on the 180-kilometre (112-mile) march to Srinagar, the state's violence-torn summer capital, were injured and a curfew had been imposed in Udhampur.

A spokesman of the ABVP, the student wing of the pro-Hindu Bharatiya Janata Party, said that 300 party activists had been jailed out of the 10,000 who took part to challenge the militants in India's sole Moslem-majority state.

As an apparent state government compromise, seven ABVP members have reportedly been flown into Srinagar to unfurl the Indian flag as a symbolic protest even though a Moslem militant warned against doing so.

Tuesday's slaughter on a Srinagar-bound bus carrying 54 people triggered calls for an enquiry in parliament in New Delhi Wednesday.

Twelve of those who died were caught in the crossfire in a fight between four Moslem militants and border security forces while nine burned to death when explosives carried by the militants caught fire.

Meanwhile 12 people, including six militants shot dead by para-military forces were reported killed Wednesday, taking the death toll in the bloody secessionist campaign to 1,576 since the beginning of the year.

India has accused Pakistan, which controls one-third of the valley and disputes India's control over the rest, of aiding the militants.

Pakistan has denied the charge but professes sympathy with the Moslem militants.

LONDON (SEPT. 12) - Talks under way here between member nations of the International Cocoa Organization (ICCO) are focussed on a proposal to fund research and promotion schemes for the product throught the sale of a small part of the organization's cocoa stock.

On the third day of a week of talks Wednesday, ICCO council chairman Peter Baron, who made the proposal, said that it had received "a positive response from delegates" although he added that there were "significant technical difficulties to be overcome."

The ICCO holds some 246,000 tons of cocoa, the remnant of its role as a market stabilizing organization before operations were suspended in February 1988.

In the absence of a consensus on a way to revive the ICCO's market regulating operations, many delegates now see research and promotion as its future role.

Baron said funding for his scheme would require only one or two thousand tons of the stock to be sold.

The cocoa industry is without doubt in need of a promotional boost.

According to commodities brokers Gill and Duffus, low prices are already boosting consumption and curtailing production.

But the latest ICCO forecasts indicate that supply will exceed demand for the sixth year running this year, and that world cocoa stocks will reach

1.1 million tons by the end of 1990, equivalent to more than six months' consumption.

NEW DELHI (SEPT. 12) - Bodo tribesmen from the far northeast Wednesday pressed demands for a separate state within the Indian union, saying that if ongoing talks here broke down, Assam state would "burn again."

"Nothing less than a separate state will do," Sansuma Khunggur Bwiswmutiary, president of the powerful All Bodo Students Union (ABSU), said at a press conference during a day's suspension in the tripartite talks.

"These will be the last (talks)," he said, repeating an earlier warning that if this session of negotiations between the Bodos, the Assam government and the central government broke down, the Bodo would not return to the table.

The session is the eighth held since August last year to try to solve the Bodo tribal fight for a separate state to be carved out of oil-rich Assam which borders Bhutan and Bangladesh and whose hills are dotted with tea estates.

So far the Bodo have won New Delhi's recognition that they need more autonomy, but no definite plan to implement a greater degree of self-government.

KABUL (SEPT 12) - Renewed fighting between mujahedeen resistance fighters and government forces was reported from several Afghan provinces Wednesday breaking a temporary lull in the conflict in Afghanistan.

A government spokesman said the mujahedeen had attacked government security posts in the provinces of Zabul, Paktiya, Nangahar and Gazni, but give no exact details.

Saudi mercenaries and Afghan rebels launched a joint attack on southern Gazni province, but government troops managed to repulse the assault, he said without giving details of the casualties.

Afghan government troops also repulsed a similar rebel attack with artillery fire and aerial fire in southern Zabul province and halted a mujahedeen advance in Paktiya in the country's east, the spokesman added.

He said an army convoy carrying food and ammunition had reached western Badgis province, which witnessed fierce combat between government forces and rebels belonging to the Jamiat-i-Islami.

The army has launched a mopping-up operation in Badgis, which borders the Soviet Union, to flush out the mujahedeen assault troops, the spokesman said, adding that the battle situation in the area had improved for the government.

Mujahedeen guerrillas led by Ismail Khan launched a frontal assault in Badgis in the beginning of the month in an effort to capture provincial capital Qalayi Naw, but the attack reportedly failed.

The spokesman said the rebels also attacked the war-shattered eastern province of Nangarhar, bombarding security belts with rocket fire. The local Jalalabad garrison had ordered retaliatory attacks on mujahedeen posts.

BUCHAREST (SEPT 12) - Romania's former state security police chief General Julian Vlad ordered his men not to fire on anti-Ceausescu demonstrators here, witnesses said Wednesday on the third day of his trial for alleged complicity in genocide.

Colonel Octavian Nae of the Fifth Securitate Directorate, among the first witnesses to take the stand, told the Supreme Court that Gen. Vlad had instructed him on December 22: "Don't shoot, spare human lives ... There has already been enough bloodshed!"

Col. Nae, then responsible for the security of Nicolae Ceausescu, who fled the capital with his wife Elena that day as a mass protest against his regime turned into an uprising, added that Gen. Vlad gave the order before the couple's helicopter took off.

The 59-year-old general, head of the Securitate for two years, pleaded not guilty on Tuesday. He is accused of carrying out orders by Mr. Ceausescu to fire on demonstrators between December 17 and 22 in the western city of Timisoara and in Bucharest.

Another witness, Colonel Florea Lazarescu, said the Securitate could on December 22 have turned Palace Square in front of the headquarters of the communist party's central committee into "Tiananmen Square", a reference to the crackdown on protest in Beijing on June 4 last year.

"But Gen. Vlad gave orders not even to fire warning shots and to allow the demonstrators free access to the central committee headquarters," testified Col. Lazarescu, head of the technical service of the Fifth Directorate.

The colonel however added that armed civilians had been given orders to "fire on everything that moves" by Securitate Colonel Emil Radulescu and Dumitru Mazilu, a former official to the United Nations sacked by Mr. Ceausescu in 1988 and taken in for questioning by the Securitate last December 21.

"The young people did not know how to handle weapons. Some of them were drunk and killed each other," Col. Lazarescu said. The witnesses said Gen. Vlad had on the night of December 22 tried to find out who had done the shooting and confined his forces to barracks.

Last August, the public prosecutor announced that Gen. Vlad and four officers including Col. Radulescu would be tried for the "illegal arrest" of Mr. Mazilu, who was released on December 22.

The trial continues Thursday.

LONDON (SEPT 12) - A new contract on high-protein soya flour will be opened on the Baltic Futures Exchange (BFE), James Gray, a spokesman for the London futures market, said Wednesday.

The market's current contract, on soya flour with a lower protein level, will be maintained for the time being, he added. If dealers' interest turns mainly to the new contract, the old one could be gradually phased out.

The high-protein soya must conform with specifications set down in the contract. This stipulates a minimum protein and oil level of 49 percent, a maximum fiber level of 3.5 percent, a maximum humidity level of 13.5 percent, and maximum sand and silica levels of 3.5 percent.

The soya flour must also come from either Europe or the United States.

The flour is one of the main components used in making feed for poultry and pork production.

BFE said the new contract is aimed primarily at European dealers, to help them cover financial risks in a "very volatile" feed market.

Like the old market, transactions will be made in pounds sterling and involve lots of 20 tonnes.

MOSCOW (SEPT. 12) - Deputies of the Soviet parliament Wednesday got down to studying draft economic reform programmes, working in some 15 committees to choose between one by Prime Minister Nikolai Ryzhkov and a more radical one by Stanislav Shatalin, economic adviser to President Mikhail Gorbachev.

They are expected to need several days before they can meet in full session to take a decision.

The crucial debate on the pace of economic reform and moves toward a free market erupted with a stormy session of parliament Tuesday which saw Mr. Ryzkhov threatening to resign if his government's proposals were not implemented and Mr. Gorbachev banging his fist on the table to restore order.

The Soviet leader expressed a preference for the shock programme of Mr. Shatalin, who co-chairs a special economic reform commission with the president of the Russian Federation, Boris Yeltsin. Their 1,500-page plan calls for wide-ranging privatisation and a lifting of price controls.

Mr. Ryzkhov's plan, already rejected by the Supreme Soviet or parliament in June, calls for some price rises but under state control and accompanied by measures to soften their social impact. The prime minister argued for it in the light of failure to agree on other plans.

Mr. Gorbachev does not want the Ryzhkov government to resign for the meanwhile however, and persuaded the deputies to vote overwhelmingly for keeping the present prime minister in his job.

The president wants to maintain the present government until a new treaty between the various Soviet republics is signed, which should be in December, although analysts expect the deputies finally to go for an amended version of the Shatalin plan.

Tuesday's stormy session underlined the subtle role Mr. Yeltsin is playing, for at the same time the parliament of the Russian Federation adopted the Shatalin programme. That vote by the most important component of the Soviet Union puts the Supreme Soviet before something of a fait accompli.

Mr. Yeltsin simultaneously asked deputies of the Russian Federation to drop their demand for Mr. Ryzhkov's resignation, and this could be seen as a concession by Mr. Yeltsin to Mr. Gorbachev in exchange for implementation at Soviet Union-level of the Shatalin programme.

VIENNA (SEPT 12) - Albania has decided to raise the salaries of its lowest-paid workers, fixing a minimum wage of 450 lek (64 dollars) a month the Albanian news agency ATA said in a report monitored here Wednesday.

All wages of below 450 lek a month will be raised by 20 percent from October 1, with a guaranteed minimum of 450 lek, according to a decision by the government.

Those earning between 450 and 550 lek (64 and 78 dollars) a month will see their wages increased by 10 percent.

As a result of the increases, the average wage will stand at 570 lek (81 dollars) a month, ATA.

The increases will affect some 480,000 workers in industry and other sectors and 162,000 agricultural workers, and are aimed at "encouraging the working population to improve productivity and increase production."

Prime Minister Adil Carcani had in May launched an economic reform programme, criticising the hold of central planning on the country's economy.

He also stressed the need to motivate workers to "produce more and better and not to produce for the sake of producing as in the past."

The economic reform plan, due to go into effect next year, is aimed at decentralising decision-making power in economic matters so as to "lead Albania on the road to progress without turning away from socialism."

LONDON (SEPT 12) - The deficit in Great Britain's balance of payments rose higher during the second quarter than had been expected, government figures released Wednesday show.

The deficit increased to 4.9 billion pounds, about 800 million pounds more than anticipated. A smaller than expected surplus in commercial services transactions was given the blame. (The dollar-pound cross rate was pegged at 1.85 Wednesday).

The surplus in commercial services transactions from April to June was 57 million pounds, as compared to government estimates of 900 million pounds.

The reason for the decrease in the surplus was said to be smaller net revenues from travel and sea transportation. A spokesman for the export council for commercial services expressed doubt at the reliability of the government's figures.

PARIS (SEPT 12) - The French navy has inspected an Iraqi freighter in the English Channel, the first such action in this part of the world involving the international economic boycott of Iraq, reports said here Wednesday.

They added that the Bahamas-registered ''Gur Mariner'' was checked off Cherbourg by policemen and later allowed to proceed.

The freighter was returning with its original cargo of containers from the Mideast to Rotterdam, The Netherlands, after an international fleet off Port Said forbade it to pass through the Egyptian Suez Canal, the reports said.

MARSEILLES, France (SEPT. 12) - About 300 guns, assault rifles and rocket-launchers were illegally brought into France by police working at the French Embassy in Lebanon, court sources said here Wednesday.

Twenty-four people, including 13 police officers and two para-military gendarmes, have so far been charged in connection with the arms trafficking and a total 120 weapons along with ammunition retrieved, the sources said.

The investigation is currently focusing on whether some of the weapons were collectors' items and if they were sold to gangsters.

French police responsible for the security of diplomats in Beirut allegedly bought weapons over a five-year period in Lebanon which were sent to France aboard military planes. Investigators suspect that some of the weapons were used in hold-ups on armoured security vehicles.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 12) - Despite major progress toward a negotiated settlement in Cambodia, non-lethal U.S. aid to the non-communist Cambodian resistance must continue until peace is actually achieved, a top administration official told Congress Wednesday.

Robert Kimmitt, the under secretary of state for political affairs, made the remarks while briefing a congressional committee on the diplomatic efforts that led to Monday's acceptance of a U.N. peace plan by Cambodia's four warring parties.

"As we make diplomatic progress ... It is vital that the United States sustain our current non-lethal aid program for the non-communist organizations of Prince (Norodom) Sihanouk and the Khmer People's National Liberation Front (KPNLF) until an overall settlement is actually achieved," he said.

The amount of the covert aid to these two groups, which are allied with the communist Khmer Rouge in a U.N.-recognized coalition, is classified but is believed to be on the order of 50 million dollars per year.

"Cutting off aid to the non-communists (as some congressmen have suggested) would undercut their position and our credibility just as the diplomatic process appears to be moving toward a conclusion," Mr. Kimmitt said.

He told members of the House of Representatives' Asian and Pacific Affairs subcommittee that allegations that some of the U.S. aid was being diverted to the Khmer Rouge or was enhancing their combat capacity were unfounded.

"I assure you that we will immediately cease our material support for any non-communist resistance organization if reliable intelligence demonstrates that the legal prohibition applies," he added.

Mr. Kimmitt described as a "major step ... toward a comprehensive political settlement" Monday's decision by the four Cambodian parties in Jakarta to accept the peace plan crafted by the five permanent members of the U.N. Security Council last month.

The Hanoi-backed Phnom Penh Government and the tripartite resistance formed a 12-member Supreme National Council (SNC), with an equal number of representatives for the two sides.

Under the peace plan, the U.N. is also to play a major role in administering Cambodia during the transition to free and fair elections.

Addis Ababa (SEPT. 12) - Ethiopian President Mengistu Haile Mariam has called on the People's Liberation Fronts of Eritrea (Eplf) and Tigray (Tplf) to put an end to the bleeding and suffering of the people and present their grievances at the negotiating table in the presence of international observers.

In a speech marking the 16th anniversary of the Ethiopian revolution,

Mengistu told 30,000 to 40,000 people assembled Wednesday at the vast Revolution Square in Addis Ababa that the fundamental and pressing problem confronting the Ethiopian people at present was the threat to peace and national unity as a result of separatist and terrorist activities in the northern part of the country.

The Eplf has been fighting for 29 years for an independent state of Eritrea, while the Tplf has been fighting for 15 years for the overthrow of the government.

Preliminary peace talks with the Eplf collapsed last November in Nairobi and with the Tplf last December in Rome.

Last February, the Eplf started a major offensive which brought almost all of Eritrea with the exception of the provincial capital Asmara under its control.

The simple fact was that the government considered the defence of national unity and the security of the people to be of utmost importance, while the enemy was just as resolutely committed to bringing about the country's fragmentation, Mengistu declared.

For the first time since the government abandoned Marxism-Leninism last March, Mengistu did not use Marxist vocabulary as at earlier anniversaries and the usual sea of red flags was also absent.

Young officers deposed ageing Emperor Haile Selassie on September 12, 1974. After several bloody purges among themselves, Mengistu emerged two-and-a-half years later as Ethiopia's new strongman. dpa wo 121845 sep 90

MOSCOW (SEPT. 12) - Main points of the German reunification treaty signed here Wednesday by the two Germanies and the World War II allies of the Soviet Union, United States, Britain and France:

ARTICLE 1 - The united Germany shall comprise the territory of the Federal Republic of Germany, the German Democratic Republic and the whole of Berlin ... The united Germany and the Republic of Poland shall confirm the existing border between them in a treaty that is binding under international law ... The governments of the FRG and GDR shall ensure that the constitution of the united Germany does not contain any provision incompatible with these principles.

ARTICLE 2 - ... According to the constitution of the united Germany, acts tending to and undertaken with the intent to disturb the peaceful relations between nations especially to prepare for aggressive war, are unconstitutional and a punishable offence ...

ARTICLE 3 - The Governments of the FRG and the GDR reaffirm their renunciation of the manufacture and possession of and control over nuclear, biological and chemical weapons. They declare that the united Germany, too, will abide by these commitments ...

The Government of the FRG, acting in full agreement with the government of the GDR, made the following statement on 30 August 1990 in Vienna at the negociations on Conventional armed forces in Europe: "The governement of the FRG undertakes to reduce the personnel strength of the armed forces of the united Germany to 370,000 (ground, air and naval forces) within three or four years ...

AMMAN (SEPT. 12) - More than 17,500 foreigners, Asians for the most part, have been flown out of Jordan since early Tuesday, while during the same period some 15,000 entered the country from Iraq, official sources said here late Wednesday.

They said an estimated 40,000 refugees remained stranded in Jordan but added that international air and sea operations to repatriate them were continuing.

On Monday United Nations officials said there were some 74,000 people waiting to leave Jordan.

The number of refugees staying in makeshift transit camps at the Ruweished border post 270 kilometers (170 miles) east of here had declined to 21,059 on Wednesday from more than 50,000 on Saturday, according to official Jordanian sources.

More than half a million people fleeing Iraq and Kuwait have passed through Jordan on their way home since August 5, three days after the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

LAHORE, Pakistan (SEPT 12) - A special tribunal here indicted a former minister close to ousted premier Benazir Bhutto on Wednesday for recommending that a power plant contract go to Mistubishi, even though the Japanese firm was not the lowest bidder.

Tareq Rahim, former parliamentary affairs minister in Ms. Bhutto's deposed government, has been summoned to appear in court on September 22, the official Associated Press of Pakistan (APP) said.

If he fails to do so, he will be "judged guilty" of having tried to influence the national Water and Power Development Authority (WAPDA) into awarding a contract to Mitsubishi, the news agency said.

The project involved a 300-megawatt power plant in the southern city of Guddu, and Mitsubishi's offer "was not the lowest," APP said, quoting the petitioner who acted in the name of President Ghulam Ishaq Khan.

If Mr. Rahim's "written" recommendation to the head of WAPDA had been acted on, the state would have lost 90 million rupees (4.13 million dollars), APP said.

The former minister's lawyer said meanwhile that the letter in question had no signature, date, or destination.

If convicted, Mr. Rahim faces disqualification from public life for seven years and a ban on running in scheduled October 24 general elections under rules established last month after parliament was dissolved and the government ousted.

However, the same tribunal, presided over by Judge Munir A. Sheikh, on Wednesday declared as "inadmissable" a complaint against former oil minister Jehangir Badar, which was also filed in the president's name.

DHAKA (SEPT 12) - Bangladesh President Hussain Mohammad Ershad left here Wednesday for Ankara to oversee the evacuation of Bangladeshis stranded in Turkey after fleeing Kuwait and Iraq, officials said.

Mr. Ershad was accompanied by Foreign Minister Anisul Islam Mahmud. They are to visit Diyar Baker, a Turkish town near the Iraqi border where more than 10,000 Bangladeshis were waiting in camps for repatriation, the officials said.

During his two-day visit, Mr. Ershad will also have talks with Turkish President Turgut Ozal on the repatriation of Bangladeshis as well as the Gulf crisis.

A Foreign Office spokesman told reporters here Wednesday that the president would fly to Saudi Arabia from Turkey to hold talks with King Fahd.

Dhaka sent a military contingent to Saudi Arabia last week.

Turkey has been operating 17 chartered flights from Adana and Diyar Baker to airlift Bangladeshi refugees back to Dhaka.

The Foreign Office spokesman also said that the United Nations was expected to name a coordinator for relief operations in the Gulf, adding that the step was "timely and appropriate."

Dhaka, he said, considered Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev's proposal for an international conference on the Gulf crisis "useful for finding a solution to the problem which was going beyond all proportions."

Bangladesh, which backed U.N. Security Council resolutions against Baghdad, had some 80,000 of its nationals, mostly workers, in Kuwait and at least another 10,000 in Iraq at the time of the August 2 Iraqi invasion of the tiny emirate.

More than 40,000 Bangladeshis have since fled Kuwait and taken shelter in neighbouring Saudi Arabia, Jordan and Turkey, officials here said.

Since evacuations began on August 22, more than 18,000 had been airlifted to Dhaka by early Wednesday.

France meanwhile was exploring the possibility of chartering two ships to evacuate Bangladeshi and other South Asian nationals in Jordan and Turkey refugee camps, the Bangladesh's official BSS news agency said.

French Minister for Humanitarian Action Bernard Kouchner told BSS in Paris Wednesday that his country would also make available two more aircraft for the evacuation, according to the agency.

Bonn (SEPT. 12) - The West German government denied Wednesday that it had hired any former East German ''Stasi'' secret service agents.

Minister of State Lutz Stavenhagen told parliament that the Bonn government had stopped all intelligence work in East Germany in spring, adding that there could be no comparing West Germany's intelligence service with the ''Stasi''.

He was reacting to accusations by the main opposition Social Democrats that Bonn had hired former Stasi agents, and that East Germany's Interior Minister Peter-Michael Diestel was shielding former Stasi agents and still giving them key jobs.

The Christian Democrats of Chancellor Helmut Kohl countered that the Social Democrats were merely trying to thwart Diestel's chances in forthcoming elections in East Germany, in which he is candidate as Prime Minister of the new state of Brandenburg.

In East Berlin, 24 civil rights campaigners who have been occupying the former Stasi headquarters announced they were going on hunger strike to press their demands for East Germans to be allowed access to former Stasi files, and that these files not be removed to Bonn after German unity on October 3.

The ruling Council of Ministers meanwhile demanded that a commission supervising the dissolving of the Stasi apparatus should immediately demand from Diestel's interior ministry and other ministries a list of former Stasi officers still believed to be on active service, or in service until recently.

A left-wing faction announced that it would be tabling a motion in the Volkskammer - East Germany's parliament - Thursday demanding that Diestel resign because he had failed properly to supervise the dissolution of the Stasi. The motion was expected to get majority support.

ABIDJAN (SEPT 12) - Fighting was continuing Wednesday in the Liberian capital Monrovia, where the two rebel factions were trying to extend their territory before the arrival of a provisional government set up by the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS).

The National Patriotic Front of Liberia (NPFL) of Charles Taylor said Wednesday in a radio broadcast that it had taken control of the small Spriggs Payne Airport in Monrovia and a hospital and was moving in on the presidental Executive Mansion from the east, according to the British Broadcasting Corp. (BBC).

The rival rebel force led by Prince Johnson was reported by the BBC to be moving in on the building from the west.

Forces loyal to President Samuel Doe, killed Monday by the Johnson faction, were said to be returning fire from the presidency.

In Lagos, a high-level delegation of Nigeria's military government set out Wednesday on a "fact-finding mission" to Liberia, described as "confidential", a reliable source there said. The exact destination of the mission was not disclosed.

There has not been any formal assent from the warring parties to the setting up of a provisional government, and no assurance that the peace-keeping force sent into Liberia by ECOWAS will be better able to ensure its security than it did that of Mr. Doe, kidnapped under its nose by the Johnson forces Sunday.

Named to head the interim administration is political science professor Amos Sawyer, who backed Mr. Doe in his early years in power and oversaw the drawing up of a constitution. He later returned to the opposition with his Movement for Justice in Africa (MOJA), which fought President William Tolbert.

According to an officer of the Nigerian contingent of the ECOWAS force, its largest component, Mr. Taylor's forces are observing some kind of truce with the peace-keeping force.

Prince Johnson, a breakaway rival of Mr. Taylor's, has said he is prepared to work with the provisional government. But on Monday he also declared himself interim president. Mr. Taylor has for his part been calling himself Liberia's president since July.

TEHERAN (SEPT 12) - Iran is capitalizing on the Gulf crisis -- playing the EEC against Iraq -- by threatening to circumvent a United Nations embargo on Baghdad if efforts to resume normal ties with the community bog down.

As Iran and Iraq agreed Monday to resume diplomatic ties severed in the eight-year Gulf war, the European Economic Community announced it was "very close to an agreement" to resolve the Salman Rushdie affair, which triggered the current rift between Teheran and the 12 European states.

Analysts here said the unprecedented visit by Iraqi Foreign Minister Tareq Aziz, who met his Iranian counterpart Ali Akbar Velayati on Sunday, could have yielded better results if the impending Iran-EEC rapprochement had not claimed equal attention.

Mr. Aziz left Teheran on Monday with only the assurance of restored Iran-Iraq relations, despite a dramatic peace offer made by Iraqi President Saddam Hussein on August 15.

The two countries, whose war began in September 1980, did not formally sever relations until October 1987. They agreed to a United Nations-monitored cease-fire in August 1988.

Progress toward a permanent peace accord was held up until August 15 this year when Mr. Hussein, hoping to enlist Iranian support in his standoff with the West, agreed to accept Iran's terms for a formal conclusion to the conflict.

The Iraqi decision led to an exchange of prisoners of war and made possible Mr. Aziz's visit. Iran and Iraq have swapped 66,248 POWs since August 17 under Red Cross supervision.

The official communique on Mr. Aziz's visit from the Iranian Foreign Ministry made no reference to Teheran's willingness to help Baghdad elude a United Nations embargo, which was imposed to protest Baghdad's August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

And a government source told Agence France-Presse that no agreement on the issue had been signed between Teheran and Baghdad during the visit by Mr. Aziz.

But the English-language Teheran Times, considered close to President Ali Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani, reported that such assistance may be forthcoming.

Nairobi (SEPT. 12) - A report dealing with the assassination of former Kenyan foreign minister Robert Ouko will not be published, the country's current foreign minister said here Wednesday.

Wilson Ndolo Ayah told the British Broadcasting Corporation that the report will be used as material for future Kenyan police investigations about the murder which occurred on February 16.

Superintendent John Troon and two other colleagues from London's Scotland Yard were asked to investigate the case and spent several weeks in a region in western Kenya, where Ouko's charred body was found with a bullet in the head.

The report is still at the British High Commission, or embassy, in Nairobi. Kenya's Attorney-General, Mathiew Muli, said he wanted Troon to deliver the document personally to him.

Kenya's press has been eagerly waiting for the report to be published and has speculated it would confirm that Ouko's murder was politically motivated.

NEW DELHI (SEPT. 12) - Sikh militants wounded five passengers when they opened fire on an express train in Punjab while 16 people died in violence elsewhere in the northern state, the Press Trust of India (PTI) said Wednesday.

Sikh militants fired on the Frontier Mail as it passed through Beas-Rayya en route to Amritsar from Bombay late Tuesday, PTI said.

A child and four other passengers were injured, it added.

The news agency said 16 people died in violence linked to the Sikh separatist campaign in the last 24 hours, including four members of a farmer's family shot dead by militants at Batala in Punjab's Gurdaspur district.

More than 1,700 people have died so far this year in Punjab in violence linked to the Sikh campaign for an independent homeland in Punjab.

NEW DELHI (SEPT 12) - Eleven Bhutanese nationals of Nepalese descent launched a one-day hunger strike here Wednesday, alleging violation of human rights and discrimination by the Bhutanese government.

"We want the Indian government to speak for us and highlight the atrocities inflicted on us by the Bhutanese government," Bhutan Peoples Party (BPP) general secretary D.K Rai said.

The strikers demanded the unconditional release of political prisoners, judicial reforms, freedom of press and religion and equal rights for all ethnic groups in the country.

While expressing support for Bhutan's King Jigme Singye Wangchuk, Mr. Rai said they wanted to change the "absolutist" monarchy to a "constitutional one on the lines of the Nepalese system."

The tiny Himalayan mountain monarchy of Bhutan, bordering the eastern Indian states of Assam and West Bengal, is inhabited by 1.4 million people the majority being Buddhists but with some 25 per cent Hindus of Nepalese origin.

The government has denied any human rights abuses or racial discrimination pointing to several administrative posts held by nationals of Nepalese origin.

The BPP spokesman alleged that 10,000 Bhutanese had so far "escaped to India to escape the Bhutanese army atrocities," a figure which was denied last week by Bhutanese and Indian officials here who put the number at a few hundred.

Bhutan, which under a treaty with India "coordinates" its foreign relations with New Delhi, is one of the seven members of the South Asian Association for Regional Cooperation.

BELGRADE (SEPT. 12) - Police arrested 52 people in the central Yugoslavian republic of Bosnia and Herzogovina on Tuesday and Wednesday to stop clashes between Serbs and Moslems, Tanjug news agency reported.

The town of Foca, with more than 10,000 inhabitants, has been tense for several months in light of a prolonged strike in a transport enterprise, which risks degenerating into ethnic clashes.

A state of emergency was imposed on Monday.

On Tuesday, police using truncheons and tear gas broke up a gathering of several hundred Serbs defying a ban against demonstrations.

Tanjug said that 43 Serbs and nine Moslems had been arrested in the past two days.

Moslems make up more than 40 per cent of the republic's population of some 4.5 million. Most of them are descendants of Serbs and Croats converted to Islam during centuries of Ottoman domination.

Police also prevented clashes Wednesday between Serbs and Moslems at Novi Pazar, 180 kilometres (about 110 miles) south of Belgrade, as several thousand Moslems held a counter-demonstration to match a rally by supporters of the Serbian Renewal Movement, Tanjug said.

In all, Moslems constitute some 20 per cent of Yugoslavia's 23 million people.

PARIS (SEPT 12) - The 1991 French defense budget will rise by 3.3 percent overall compared with this year, according to the draft budget unveiled here Wednesday.

But the equipment budget has been rolled back by six billion francs (1.14 billion dollars) over an original plan, in accordance with an economy ministry directive, to keep the equipment increase at 1.03 percent.

Based on a projected inflation rate of 2.8 percent, the defence budget increase is of less than one percent.

France's defence budget, the largest after education and totalling 238.4 billion francs (45.4 billion dollars) next year, makes up 18.6 percent of civilian and military spending in the overall budget.

The 1991 defence budget was prepared amid accelerated disarmament moves after the political upheavals in eastern Europe but before the August 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

It calls for increased operational spending, excluding pensions, to rise to 91.4 billion francs (17.4 billion dollars), up 4.6 percent compared to 3.53 percent this year.

The funds were earmarked as the French army is about to embark on a modernisation plan providing for troop cuts of some 9,750 men, mostly among conscripts.

A total 2.14 billion francs (4 million dollars) were set aside for salary increases.

The defence budget is a transitional one, as legislation on France's military programme runs to 1993.

But the planned equipment adjustments, out of a total equipment budget of 103 billion francs (19.6 billion dollars) could hit certain programmes already under way such as the new Rafale fighter bomber aircraft and an additional aircraft carrier for the fleet to be called the Charles de Gaulle.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 12) - When Mayor David Dinkins came to office early this year he promised to be tough on crime and bring new racial harmony to New York.

But for many New Yorkers, a record-breaking crime wave sweeping America's largest city seems to be more than the new executive can handle.

"David Dinkins, do something!" blared a newspaper headline recently, while its inside pages were filled with the gory details of a typical day in the Big Apple.

The latest details include a 22-year old man stabbed through the heart by a rebuffed panhandler, 10 children hit by stray bullets in two months and nightly assaults on taxi drivers -- not to mention the headline-seeking Zodiac serial killer and the young Utah tennis fan knifed by a group of teenage robbers during a visit to the city to see last week's U.S. Open tennis championships.

A vexing cocktail of problems for the city's first black mayor, who's election last November brought hopes for long-sought-after racial harmony in this proverbial melting pot.

The summer-long trial of three black youths sentenced this week for raping and severely beating a white woman jogger in Central Park underscored the wide racial chasm still splitting the city.

Even if newspaper reports carefully avoid mentioning skin color of victims and assailants, the photographs relentlessly bring home the fact that the majority of arrests involve blacks or hispanics from the ghettos.

To top it all off, an opinion poll in this week's Time magazine announced that six out of 10 New Yorkers would move out of the city if given the chance.

Mr. Dinkins quickly counterattacked by questioning the poll's accuracy and accusing the publication of painting an overly bleak picture.

As the criticism mounts, the Harlem-raised, 62-year-old mayor seems increasingly bent on defying the city's reputation as crime capital of the world by flaunting himself in non-stop public appearances.

NICOSIA (SEPT. 12) - Iraq's supreme religious authority on Wednesday issued a decree calling on Moslems to wage jihad, or holy war, to rid the Gulf of the U.S. military presence, the Iraqi news agency INA reported.

The deployment of U.S. forces in Saudi Arabia "sullies the holy places and does harm to the honor and dignity" of Moslems, the agency said in a dispatch received here.

The United States has stationed 100,000 air and ground forces in Saudi Arabia, where the sacred Islamic cities of Mecca and Medina are located, in the aftermath of Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Saudi Arabia requested the deployment to help defend itself against a possible attack from Iraqi forces in Kuwait. Iraq repeatedly denied that it initended to move into Saudi Arabia.

Wednesday's fatwa, or religious decree, was issued by a group of ulema, senior Moslem theologians.

Earlier in the day Iranian Spiritual Guide Ayatollah Ali Khamenei called on Moslems to combat the U.S. presence in the Gulf and said such a struggle would constitute holy war.

DAMASCUS (SEPT 12) - Syrian President Hafez al-Assad on Wednesday denounced the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait as "unforgivable."

"The invasion of Kuwait, its annexation and suppression are a terrible catastrophe (for the Arab nation) and an unforgivable mistake," Mr. Asaad said at a military ceremony.

"In the face of so grave an event, Syria cannot stand by with its arms folded, without taking a stand," he asserted.

Syria, at an Arab summit August 10, eight days after the invasion, supported a resolution -- backed by 12 of the Arab League's 21 members -- that condemned the Iraqi move and approved the deployment of Arab forces in Saudi Arabia.

Even before the Gulf crisis, Syria had been Iraq's principal rival for stature in the Arab world.

PARIS (SEPT 12) - As rebel factions battled to gain ground in Liberia on Wednesday before an interim government team arrived, the United Nations was set to place the West African nation on the list of least developed countries (LDCs).

Informed sources close to a U.N. conference here on the LDCs said the decision that Liberia will become the 42nd such nation had already been taken and should be ratified within the next two or three weeks by the U.N. General Assembly.

Iron ore is Liberia's principal resource, accounting for more than 70 per cent of foreign exchange income, but the mines based mostly in northeastern Nimba county have been shut down by the civil war that began last December with a rebel incursion.

Liberian President Samuel Doe was reported killed on Monday by one of the rebel factions. Delegates from an interim government set up under the auspices of the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS) left the Gambian capital Banjul on Tuesday, officials there said.

BRUSSELS (SEPT 12) - The European Community Commission Wednesday proposed making some 1.6 billion dollars aid available for Egypt, Turkey and Jordan between now and the end of 1991.

Half would come from E.C. funds and half in voluntary contributions by E.C. states. The commission said the money would be to compensate the three allied countries hardest hit by a stop in trade with Iraq following the imposition of sanctions.

In Strasbourg, the European Parliament called on the 12 E.C. states to join the United Nations and humanitarian organisations in starting an airlift of refugees from occupied Kuwait to their homelands.

JOHANNESBURG (SEPT 12) - Nineteen workers were killed Wednesday in an explosion in a goldmine 2,000 metres (6,600 feet) underground and another 18 miners were injured in the blast, mine officials said.

A further 86 people were overcome by gas and under observation, the medical superintendent of the Val Reefs mine, 180 kilometres (110 miles) from here, said.

Three of the injured were critical and eight were described as in serious condition.

The Val Reefs mine is owned by the giant Anglo-American Corporation (AAC).

Divisional manager Nap Mayer said it was difficult to determine the cause of the explosion. Explosive experts were investigating, as was a government mining engineer, he said.

The blast occured in a newly opened-up area and so production was not affected he added.

The National Union of Mineworkers (NUM) said the "racist attitude of government and mine bosses" were at the root of "the annual carnage" in South African mines.

It severely criticised the attitude of managers of the Anglo-American Corporation towards Wednesday's casualties as "insensitive and arrogant".

The NUM was upset at not being "treated as one of the main parties involved" and invited to join management executives who went underground for an on-site inspection after the blast, the union statement said.

Its officials have however been invited to visit the scene Thursday morning.

"It is shocking to learn of this tragic incident hardly two weeks after 10 mineworkers died at AAC's President Steyn Gold Mine. In Klerksdorp alone, 92 mineworkers lost their lives since January this year," the NUM statement said.

It added that black mineworkers were "forced to work in places they considered dangerous" and that despite the "excessively high annual death rates", no commission into mine safety had been held since 1963.

"The mine inspectorate treated accidents superficially without probing into deeper health and safety of the mines in general, and the law is extremely inadequate on health and safety issues," the NUM said.

Laws governing mine health and safety were "outdated and heavily biased against workers".

The union called on the government and the Chamber of Mines to establish a national forum where the union could address such problems.

SANAA (SEPT 12) - Yemeni President Ali Abdallah Saleh on Wednesday pledged his country's support for any Arab state that comes under attack by foreign forces.

"In the past, we contributed with our blood to the defense of the Arab nation. We are now prepared to do even more for any Arab country that is the victim of foreign aggression," he told a meeting organized by the General Union of Yemeni Women on means to confront foreign intervention in the Gulf region.

Yemen has not backed Arab League and United Nations Security Council resolutions condemning the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait August 2.

There have been several public demonstrations here to denounce the deployment of U.S. and Western forces in the Gulf that followed the Iraqi invasion.

LAGOS (SEPT 12) - A military court here has sentenced to death 29 suspected coup plotters following a failed April 22 coup attempt against the government of General Ibrahim Babangida, reliable sources said here Wednesday.

The sentences have yet to be confirmed by the military government's Armed Forces Ruling Council, to which the court submitted its verdict Wednesday, the sources said.

Forty-two people have already been executed, on July 27, in connection with the abortive coup after being sentenced by the same military court.

The court on Wednesday also sentenced 11 people to life imprisonment and nine others to lesser prison terms, the sources said.

Those executed in July included the leader of the plotters, Major Gideon Orkar eight other officers and 33 other ranks, including seven ex-servicemen.

LIMA, (SEPT 12) - Beijing wants an immediate withdrawal of Iraqi troops from Kuwait and a peaceful solution to the Gulf crisis, Chinese Foreign Minister Qian Qichen said here Wednesday.

Wrapping up a three-day visit to Peru, Mr. Qian told reporters Iraq's August 2 invasion and subsequent annexation of Kuwait constituted "impermissible acts."

"We favor a peaceful solution within the framework of the U.N. Security Council and the Arab world," Mr. Quian said.

He also announced that Beijing would provide the Peruvian Government with a credit totaling 6.3 million dollars for small, yet-to-be-defined projects and an in-kind grant of 630,000 dollars worth of products.

BUDAPEST, (SEPT 12) - Ganz-Hunslet Budapest, a Hungarian-British joint venture is set on vying to win a slice of the underground railway construction projects in Taipei and Kaohsiung, Taiwan's two largest cities, the Hungarian news agency MTI reported Wednesday quoting company General Director Harold A. Codd.

Ganz-Hunslet came out just Monday with its latest product, a brand new six-carriage underground train of which the first was put into service in Budapest.

Until now exclusively Soviet-made underground trains were used in the Hungarian capital. Compared to them the Ganz-Hunslet new low-consumption train saves 17 per cent of electricity.

Ganz-Hunslet was set up nine months ago with a starting capital of 701 millon forints (11.5 million dollars) with 51 per cent staked by British Hunslet, and 49 per cent shared among Hungarian shareholders, such as Budapest Bank, Hungarian Credit Bank and the State Development Institute.

BAGHDAD (SEPT 13) (AFP) - President Saddam Hussein has authorized the return of a U.S. student held in Iraq after receiving a letter from the young man's mother, official sources said Wednesday.

The mother of Thomas Hart Eiwald, in a letter which is to be made public Thursday, asked the Iraqi leader to release her son who suffers from asthma, the sources said. The letter was sent in care of the Iraqi Embassy in Washington.

Mary Eiwald wrote that she was in favor of understanding between Arabs and Americans and had written poems and organized meetings to help U.S. citizens learn more about Islamic civilization, the sources said.

Mr. Hussein on August 31 ordered the release for health reasons of six Americans detained in Kuwait following an intervention by U.S. Democratic politician Jesse Jackson.

WASHINGTON, (SEPT 12) - The U.S. House of Representatives, exasperated by the sluggish response of American allies in the Gulf crisis, passed legislation Wednesday to force them to pay a greater portion of the overall defense bill.

By a 370-53 vote, the House approved an amendment to a 283 billion dollar defense bill that would require Japan to pay all costs of stationing 50,000 U.S. troops in that country.

The United States now spends 4.5 billion dollars a year, with Japan contributing 2.9 billion dollars, to maintain the U.S. force in Japan.

For each year that Japan does not pay the full cost, 5,000 U.S. troops would be withdrawn, under the terms of the amendment, which still must be reconciled with the Senate version of the defense bill.

"Collective security means collective responsibility," said Representative David Bonior, a Michigan Democrat who sponsored the amendment.

He said Wednesday's vote sent a clear message to Japan, and other U.S. allies.

"This is a wake-up call," he said. "This is a real wake-up call for the new world order."

Japan has drawn heavy criticism during congressional debate in recent days on the defense budget for fiscal 1991, which begins October 1.

But other allies have been slapped for reluctance to respond to the U.S. call for assistance in stopping Iraqi aggression in the Gulf.

The House agreed to prohibit use of any Defense Department funds for building a new air base at Crotone, Italy, for the 401st Tactical Air Wing of F-16 jet fighters.

WASHINGTON (SEPT 12) - State Department officials Wednesday sprang to the defense of U.S. ambassador to Iraq April Glaspie amid allegations that she misread signals in late July that Iraq planned to invade Kuwait.

Ms. Glaspie, who left Baghdad for Washington via London one day before Iraqi forces rolled into the oil-rich emirate August 2, has been on consultations with the State Department since her return here.

One week before the Iraqi invasion, the ambassador held a meeting with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein and his foreign minister, Tareq Aziz, during which the Kuwaiti-Iraqi border dispute was discussed.

Allegations that Ms. Glaspie, a 48-year-old career diplomat, was warned of an imminent Iraqi invasion during the July 25 meeting in Baghdad were aired in an ABC television documentary late Tuesday.

ABC cited a transcript of that meeting provided by the Iraqis that purported to show that Mr. Hussein made it clear to the U.S. envoy that he would use force if upcoming Saudi-sponsored talks between the two sides did not meet his demands.

In an interview with the New York Times published Wednesday, Ms. Glaspie said: "Obviously, I didn't think, and nobody else did, that the Iraqis were going to take all of Kuwait. Every Kuwaiti and Saudi, every analyst in the Western world was wrong too. That does not excuse me. But people who now claim that all was clear were not heard from at the time."

NEW YORK, United Nations (SEPT 12) - Iraq refused Thursday to allow international organizations to distribute food to hundreds of thousands of foreign workers stranded in Iraq and Iraqi-occupied Kuwait.

Iraq's Ambassador to the United Nations, Abdul Amir al Anbari said that allowing international organizations to distribute the food is "not only humiliating, but demoralizing for the population."

Mr. al Anbari had met earlier with U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar after a U.N. sanctions committee failed to find a way to allow food to be delivered to stranded foreigners without breaching the trade embargo against Iraq.

The United Nations imposed the trade embargo following the August 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

The committee was said to be torn between those countries intent on a no-exceptions embargo and those -- primarily India, Sri Lanka and the Philippines -- who wanted to get food to a large number of their expatriate workers stranded in tent cities within the embargoed region.

Yemen and Cuba, the two security council members that abstained from all anti-Iraq resolutions, favored food shipments but opposed any stipulation that they go only to foreign workers.

The other 13 members were said to be concerned that any food entering Iraqi-controlled areas would likely not go to foreigners, and would more probably be channeled to the Iraqi military.

After days of discussing the dilemma, the sanctions committee sent the matter to the Security Council for consideration Thursday. With the exception of Cuba and Yemen, council members have supported international control over food distribution.

Meanwhile, an Indian ship was waiting to deliver 10,000 tons of food to some 175,000 Indian nationals in Iraq and Kuwait.

"Some members of the security council are holding this ship as a hostage. We will cooperate with India," said Mr. Al Anbari. "Food distrtibution will be through Iraqi authorities."

San Salvador (SEPT. 12) EFE - Salvadoran government and leftist rebel representatives open a fresh round of peace talks Thursday amid fears that an ongoing row over the future of the Armed Forces may spark a new wave of violence in the decade-old civil war.

The government +has not moved even a milimeter+ on the issue of the Armed Forces, said guerrilla negotiator Salvador Samayoa on Tuesday.

But Samayoa and the other Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front (FMLN) rebel delegates to the five-day talks in Costa Rica have indicated they may soften their stance of demanding the disbandment of the Armed Forces and the formation of a civilian police force.

"It is a proposal for negotiation, which means it cannot be rigid," Samayoa told EFE by phone from Mexico, where the FMLN team Monday ended two days of preliminary talks with delegates from El Salvador's major political parties.

"We think the (Costa Rica) meeting could mean an advance in the negotiation process," Samayoa said.

"But it does not depend only on us," he added.

Even if the rebels modify their proposal that the Armed Forces be disbanded, they are bound to insist on a purge of senior military officers who human rights groups claim run right-wing death squads.

The paramilitary death squads are held responsible for more than half the estimated 75,000 deaths in the civil war.

In order to stave off a second successive failure in the U.N.- sponsored series of monthly negotiations, both sides are expected to seek agreement this week on less contentious issues, such as electoral and judicial reform.

Observers reckon failure would bring dangers of a new military offensive by both sides.

The FMLN last November called off peace talks after a trade union headquarters was bombed, and days later launched its largest-ever offensive.

On its side, the Army has in recent weeks stepped up its raids on rebel positions.

But in an apparent concession to the rebels, the right-wing government has reshuffled its military high command over the past 10 days, removing or demoting several hardliners.

"The government's position is to give some concessions to the FMLN" at the Costa Rica talks, said Deputy Security Minister Col. Inocente Montano on Tuesday.

But President Alfredo Cristiani has said, "We are in no way going to discuss the existence of the Armed Forces."

This week's Costa Rica meeting will be the fifth round of talks since negotiations were resumed in May.

The two sides had agreed to work for a cease-fire agreement by September 15, but this is now considered way beyond reach.

Both sides will doubtless bear in mind the possibility of the U.S. government cutting its proposed military aid package for the 12 months from October 1, currently set at some dlrs 85 million.

Opposition Democrat legislators in Washington have proposed a 50 per cent cut in the package, but have said it could be fully restored if the FMLN either withdraws from the peace process or steps up its armed campaign.

The U.S. Congress is to debate the issue later this month.

Washington has throughout the 1980s backed the Salvadoran government to the hilt in its anti-insurgency campaign, but the country's appalling human rights record has brought a review of policy in recent months.

NICOSIA (SEPT 12) EFE - U.S. Secretary of State James Baker is to set aside Washington's long-standing condemnation of Syria for allegedly supporting international terrorism as he seeks in his trip to Damascus Thursday to consolidate Syrian support against Iraq.

Washington has alleged that Syria supported the 1988 bomb attack on a Pan Am commercial jet which exploded over the Scottish village of Lockerbie killing hundreds of people.

But the main item in Baker's agenda of talks with Syrian President Hafez Al Assad is to further capitalize on the Syrian president's personal and political antagonism towards his Iraqi counterpart Saddam Hussein.

Syria has condemned Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait and sent troops to Saudi Arabia to join a U.S.-spearheaded military intervention in the Gulf.

According to U.S. officials, Washington considers important Syria's support in making Iraq back off given Al Assad's political astuteness and his ability to wreak havoc from afar.

Damascus has become the center for anti-Saddam opposition groups an in the event of the Gulf conflict dragging on, the United States would prefer Saddam to be overthrown internally rather than through a costly and bloody war.

Washington knows well that there is no love lost between Saddam and Al Assad, who supported Iran in the 1980-88 Gulf War and wants to wrest undisputed leadership of the Baath party from the Iraqi president.

In exchange for Syrian support, U.S. diplomats in the region have hinted that Washington might be prepared to remove Syria from its black list of countries supporting terrorism.

But an agreement would still have to be reached over Syria's alleged links with Ahmed Yibril's Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command, which is widely believed to have carried out the Lockerbie attack.

Syria has recently agreed to send more troops to the Gulf and the Iraqi news agency INA claimed Tuesday that Al Assad had offered U.S. warplanes the use of Syrian airspace.

But Al Assad's greatest use to Washington may lie in Damascus' support for the anti-Saddam opposition front drawn from the five main Kurdish rebel groups, leftists and Islamic fundamentalists and dissident members of Saddam's Baath party.

In a recent statement released in Damascus, the opposition front pledged to set up a government-in-exile and to "coordinate joint action to depose the dictator (Saddam)."

STRASBOURG, FRANCE (SEPT 12) EFE - Italian Prime Minister Giulio Andreotti Wednesday called on Iraq to respect the United Nations Security Council decisions on the Gulf crisis in a bid to avoid war.

During a European Parliament meeting on the Gulf situation, Andreotti said it was Iraq's responsibility to heed Security Council resolutions and avoid "the tragic risk of a devastating war."

Among other Gulf resolutions, the Security Council has demanded Iraq's evacuation of Kuwait and the release of all foreign hostages by Iraqi authorities.

During the debate, Andreotti and European Commissioner Jacques Delors said they wanted the European Community to send a message of solidarity to all Arab countries so that new links can be forged between Europe and the Arab world.

Italy currently holds the six-month-long presidency of the EC.

Delors emphasized the importance of aiding countries badly hit by the U.N. trade embargo of Iraq and of giving help to the hordes of refugees which have swarmed into Jordan following Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

The EC last week decided to send dlrs 19 million to aid the worst-affected countries, most of which will go to Egypt, Jordan and Turkey, and pledged that a further dlrs 39 million would be added soon.

Delors said that if Iraq is defeated or persuaded to leave Kuwait, Western policy towards the Middle East must change so as to "achieve a greater development throughout the region."

MADRID (SEPT 12) EFE - Angry residents of a working-class area of the Spanish capital, whose homes have been threatened with expropriation by the city council, Wednesday declared their neighborhood an independent kingdom and said they would ask the United Nations to recognize it as a separate nation.

At a news conference, the "provisional government" of the "Kingdom of Belmonte" presented its 33-article constitution, its program of government flag, and coin.

The kingdom is made up of the areas of Cerro Belmonte, Villamil and Pena Chica on the northern outskirts of Madrid, where 60 families face compulsory purchase orders on their houses.

The homes are then to be demolished to make way for the building of a new housing complex.

The provisional government's spokeswoman Esther Castellanos said Wednesday that it would ask the United Nations Decolonization Committee for recognition of its statehood.

She said that the throne of Belmonte would be offered to Spain's King Juan Carlos, but added that the government would be willing to rejoin Spain "as soon as the expropriation order is annulled."

The fledgling nation's economy will be based on income earned from a casino, duty free shops and tourism.

Its currency, the belmonte, is to be worth between dlrs 30 and 50, the price the city council has offered residents per square meter for their homes.

The provisional government, whose mandate will run for a year until free elecions are held, is to set up eight ministries including ministries to encourage ecology, folklore and art.

The constitution is based on "justice, equality, political pluralism and happiness" and expressly forbids the compulsory purchase of any house.

Any other Madrid residents who feel aggrieved by the council will be offered political asylum if they explain their grouse and sing the new nation's anthem which makes a disparaging reference to Madrid Mayor Agustin Rodriguez Sahagun.

Rodriguez Sahagun and six other municipal officials have been declared "persona non grata" by the kingdom.

The city council has set a period of a year in which to hold dialogue with the residents as it says the houses they are to be moved to will not be built for 12 months.

Twenty-four of the neighborhood's residents last month spent a 10-day visit in Cuba after they symbolically requested political asylum in the communist-ruled island.

The Cuban government paid the expenses of the trip for 12 of the group and partially funded the other 12.

The residents were treated to a meal with Cuban President Fidel Castro but only one has said he would take up Castro's offer to live in Cuba.

Their visit took place amid a diplomatic row between Spain and Cuba over Cuban asylum-seekers who had taken refuge in the Spanish embassy in Havana.

NICOSIA (SEPT 12) EFE - Iraqi Oil Minister Isam Abdar-Rahim ash-Shalabi met with ambassadors of Third World countries in Baghdad Wednesday to discuss Iraq's recent offer of free oil to developing countries, the Iraqi state news agency INA reported.

Without giving details on which ambassadors the minister met, INA, citing ash-Shalabi, said Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's "generous offer" Monday would consolidate the policies the country held towards the Third World.

"The current crisis stems from the difficulty these (developing) countries have in obtaining oil together with the rise in crude prices," said ash-Shalabi.

The INA report, monitored in Nicosia, said Iraq was willing to satisfy the petroleum demands of developing countries regardless of their stance towards the United Nations-ordered trade embargo with Baghdad.

The U.N. imposed the sanctions following Iraq's August 2 invasion and subsequent annexation of its oil-rich neighbor Kuwait.

Meanwhile, the Amman daily Ad Dustour reported Jordanian Energy Minister Thabet Tahir has welcomed Saddam's offer and said the oil supply would help his country which he said "had been severly hit by the economic impact of the Gulf crisis."

Jordan, in a tug-of-war over its relations with both Baghdad and Washington, has been reluctant to strongly criticize Saddam while at the same time it has vowed to uphold the U.N. embargo.

Since Monday, the country's media has called on developing countries to take up Saddam's oil offer and has slammed the anti-Iraqi postures of United States, Britain and Saudi Arabia claiming the conflict was between rich and poor countries.

In contrast the Saudi press denounced the offer as "an hypocritical act of desperation."

"There is no doubt that Saddam Hussein does not want to help the Third World," wrote the Asharq al-Awsat.

Saudi Oil Minister Hisham Nazer said the offer contradicted Iraq's traditional demand to up oil prices, which would be harmful to developing countries.

Saudi Arabia, one of the world's major oil producers, has emerged as Iraq's principal opponent in the region following its decision to allow U.S. forces onto its territory to deter any possible Iraqi aggression following the invasion of Kuwait.

NEW DELHI (SEPT. 12) XINHUA - DESPITE THE PRESENT GULF CRISIS, INDIA HAS BEEN ABLE TO GET ITS FULL IMPORT QUOTA OF 1.7 MILLION TONS OF CRUDE PER MONTH FROM VARIOUS SOURCES TO KEEP ITS OIL REFINERIES FULLY OPERATIONAL, LOCAL PRESS REPORTED TODAY.

ACCORDING TO OFFICIAL SOURCES, EGYPT HAS FOR THE FIRST TIME IN THE LAST TWO OR THREE MONTHS SUPPLIED 710,000 TONS OF CRUDE, AND THE IMPORT PICTURE FOR THIS MONTH CONTINUED TO BE PROMISING WITH BAHRAIN AGREEING TO SUPPLY MORE THAN 200,000 TONS AND THE SOVIET UNION MAKING AVAILABLE OVER 3,500 TONS OF CRUDE.

THESE ARRANGEMENTS ARE IN ADDITION TO THE NORMAL CRUDE SHIPMENTS BEING MADE FROM IRAN, WHICH HAD LAST MONTH PROVIDED 1.4 MILLION TONS.

IN 1989-90, INDIA PRODUCED 34 MILLION TONS OF CRUDE OIL, AND IMPORTED 19.9 MILLION TONS FROM ABROAD, OUT OF WHICH ABOUT FORTY PERCENT CAME FROM KUWAIT AND IRAQ.

WELLINGTON (SEPT. 12) XINHUA - WOMEN IN NEW ZEALAND WILL TAKE PART IN THE ARMY'S REGULAR FORCE CADET SCHOOL FOR THE FIRST TIME FROM JULY NEXT YEAR, ACCORDING TO AN OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT TODAY.

THE INCLUSION OF WOMEN IN REGULAR CADET TRAINING SHOWED THE ARMY'S COMMITMENT TO EQUAL EMPLOYMENT, SAID MAJOR GENERAL BRUCE MELDRUM, LOCAL PRESS REPORTED.

WOMEN'S ARMY CORPS WAS DISBANDED IN 1976. BUT SINCE THEN THE ARMY HAS BEEN INTEGRATING WOMEN INTO ALL BRANCHES OF THE SERVICE EXCEPT COMBAT TRADES AND THE REGULAR FORCE CADET SCHOOL, THE GENERAL SAID.

HE SAID THE ARMY INTENDED INTRODUCING WOMEN CADET IN 1990 BUT THIS WAS DELAYED BECAUSE RECRUITING WAS TEMPORARILY STOPPED DUE TO COST CUTTING.

BUDGET CUTS ALSO SHORTENED MILITARY TRAINING COURSE FROM 12 TO SIX MONTHS, HE SAID.

WARSAW (SEPT. 12) XINHUA - THE NUMBER OF JOBLESS IN POLAND HAD SWOLLEN TO 820,000 BY THE END OF AUGUST, A FIGURE DOUBLING THE EARLIER OFFICIAL ESTIMATES AND PUSHING THE NEW ESTIMATES UP TO ONE OR 1.2 MILLION FOR THIS YEAR.

THE LATEST FIGURE OF THE JOBLESS, WHICH ACCOUNTED FOR ABOUT 4.5 PERCENT OF POLAND'S TOTAL WORK FORCE, WAS DISCLOSED BY LABOR AND SOCIAL POLICY MINISTER JACEK KURON IN A TELEVISED SPEECH TUESDAY EVENING.

KURON CALLED ON THE LOCAL GOVERNMENTS TO SHARE THE BURDEN BY MAPPING OUT WHAT HE CALLED "LOCAL PROGRAMS" TO REDUCE THE DETERIORATING UNEMPLOYMENT

ACROSS THE COUNTRY.

THE GOVERNMENT, FOR FEAR OF CONFRONTING A RESULTING SOCIAL UNREST, HAS ALREADY PROVIDED THE UNEMPLOYED WITH A MONTHLY RELIEF FUND OF 350,000 ZLOTY (ABOUT 36 U.S. DOLLARS) PER PERSON.

HONG KONG (SEPT. 12) XINHUA - THE MARKET DEVELOPMENT OF AUTOMOTIVE INDUSTRY IN INDONESIA IS VERY PROMISING THIS YEAR, LOOKING AT THE SALES RECORD DURING THE FIRST SEVEN MONTHS, THE "INDONESIA TIMES" REPORTED TODAY.

AGUS SUSANTO, GENERAL MANAGER OF MARKETING OF PT MULTI-FRANCE MOTOR, WAS QUOTED AS SAYING THAT THE SALES OF BOTH COMMERCIAL AND PASSENGER CARS IN INDONESIA DURING THE FIRST SEVEN MONTHS WAS 50 PERCENT MORE THAN THAT IN THE SAME PERIOD LAST YEAR.

"THE FIGURE IS EXPECTED TO INCREASE CONTINUOUSLY TILL THE END OF THE YEAR " HE ADDED.

PT MULTI FRANCE MOTOR OF ASTRA GROUP WILL PRESENT ITS PEUGEOT 405 SR AS OF NEXT MONTH TO MEET THE DEMAND OF CAR CONSUMERS IN INDONESIA AND TO COMPLETE THE CURRENT PEUGEOT 405 SR ALREADY ON THE ROAD. THE COMPANY'S PLANT WILL PRODUCE 300 UNITS OF BOTH TYPES NEXT MONTH.

THE SALES OF PASSENGER CARS IN THE COUNTRY SHOWED A 75 PERCENT INCREASE BETWEEN JANUARY AND JULY THIS YEAR, SUSANTO SAID, ADDING THAT "PEUGEOT ITSELF MADE A 35 PERCENT SHARE OF THAT AMOUNT."

ACCORDING TO THE PLAN, PEUGEOT WILL PRODUCE 250 UNITS MONTHLY FOR INDONESIAN CONSUMERS.

DATA FROM THE ASSOCIATION OF THE INDONESIAN AUTOMOTIVE INDUSTRY NOTED THAT 177,698 UNITS OF CARS WERE PRODUCED LAST YEAR AND, DURING THE FIRST SEVEN MONTHS THIS YEAR, 95,812 UNITS WERE SOLD.

IN THE FIRST SEVEN MONTHS THIS YEAR, 143,943 UNITS WERE SOLD, REPRESENTING A 50-PERCENT INCREASE. THE TOTAL AMOUNT OF CARS TO BE SOLD THIS YEAR IS EXPECTED TO REACH 250,000 UNITS, THE PAPER SAID.

DHAKA (SEPT. 12) XINHUA -- BANGLADESH WILL LOSE 5 MILLION U.S. DOLLARS BY NOT ALLOWING IRAQ TO IMPORT ITS TEA IN COMPLIANCE WITH THE TRADE EMBARGO IMPOSED BY THE UNTIED NATIONS, ACCORDING TO TEA EXPORTERS.

THE TOTAL QUANTITY OF IRAQI ORDER FOR BANGLADESHI TEA THIS YEAR WAS 3,000 TONS, FOR WHICH SALE AGREEMENT HAD ALREADY BEEN SIGNED AND A LETTER OF CREDIT OPENED.

IT IS LEARNED THAT BANGLADESH MAY REQUEST THE WORLD BODY TO REPLENISH THE LOSS IN ITS TEA EXPORT INCURRED DUE TO THE U.N SPONSORED EMBARGO.

MEANWHILE, THE GULF CRISIS HAS BEGUN TO TRIGGER A DOWNTREND IN THE PRICE OF TEA ON LOCAL MARKET. THE PRICE OF ONE KILOGRAM OF TEA AT THE TEA AUCTION HELD LAST WEEK IN THE PORT OF CHITTAGONG WAS BELOW 50 TAKA (ABOUT 1.42 U.S. DOLLARS). IT DROPPED BY AT LEAST TWO TAKA IN A WEEK.

BESIDES, THE GULF CRISIS HAS ALSO OFFSET THE POSSIBILITIES OF EXPORTING SUBSTANTIAL QUANTITY OF TEA TO SEVERAL NEW BUYERS IN THE REGION.

BANGLADESH HAD A BUMPER HARVEST OF 46,000 TONS OF TEA THIS YEAR. TEA IS ONE OF THE COUNTRY'S MAJOR EXPORT ITEMS.

WELLINGTON (SEPT. 12) XINHUA - THE NEW ZEALAND GOVERNMENT IS MOVING TO LIBERALIZE AIR SERVICES BETWEEN NEW ZEALAND AND FIJI WHICH WILL HAVE FLOW-ON BENEFITS FOR LINKS TO OTHER PARTS OF THE PACIFIC AND ASIA.

ACCORDING TO NEW ZEALAND TRANSPORT MINISTER BILL JEFFRIES, THIS IS AMONG LIKELY RESULTS FROM THE LATEST AVIATION TALKS BETWEEN OFFICIALS OF THE TWO GOVERNMENTS.

IN A STATEMENT TODAY, THE MINISTER SAID, "THE BENEFITS ARE GREATER OPPORTUNITIES FOR AIR LINKS BETWEEN THE PACIFIC AND ASIA INCLUDING SOUTH KOREA."

UNDER THE ARRANGEMENTS REACHED DURING THE TALKS, AIR NEW ZEALAND AND AIR PACIFIC WILL EACH BE ABLE TO OPERATE AS MANY SERVICES BETWEEN THE TWO COUNTRIES AS THEY CONSIDER COMMERCIALLY APPROPRIATE.

AIR PACIFIC, AS WELL AS ITS CURRENT SERVICES TO AUCKLAND, NORTH ISLAND, WILL HAVE THE OPPORTUNITY TO SERVE WELLINGTON AND CHRISTCHURCH IN SOUTH ISLAND. FLIGHTS TO EITHER ONE OF THESE CITIES WILL BE IN ALLIANCE WITH AIR NEW ZEALAND.

THE ARRANGEMENTS WILL ALSO ALLOW AIR NEW ZEALAND TO GAIN ACCESS BEYOND FIJI, IN PARTNERSHIP WITH AIR PACIFIC, TO THE FAST GROWING TOURISM SOURCE AND TRADE CENTER OF SEOUL ONCE A BILATERAL AGREEMENT IS CONCLUDED WITH SOUTH KOREA, JEFFRIES SAID.

BEIJING (SEPT. 12) XINHUA - THE BEIJING ZOO HAS SUCCEEDED IN ARTIFICIALLY INCUBATING AN IBIS, A NEARLY EXTINCT SPECIES LISTED FOR TOP-PRIORITY PROTECTION BY THE CHINESE GOVERNMENT.

TODAY THE ZOO DIRECTOR LI YANGWEN SAID THE IBIS HATCHED JUNE 10 THIS YEAR AND ITS WEIGHT HAS NEARLY REACHED THAT OF AN ADULT IBIS AFTER CAREFUL BREEDING.

IBISES WERE ONCE DISTRIBUTED IN THE SOVIET UNION, JAPAN, KOREA AND CHINA. BUT SINCE THE 1960S THEY HAVE DISAPPEARED FROM THE SOVIET UNION AND KOREA, AND ONLY TWO ARE KNOWN TO BE ALIVE IN JAPAN.

LI SAID THAT IT WAS THOUGHT UNTIL RECENTLY THAT THE BREED WAS ALSO EXTINCT IN CHINA, BUT A STUDY GROUP FROM THE INSTITUTE OF ANIMALS OF THE CHINESE ACADEMY OF SCIENCES FOUND SEVEN IBISES IN SHAANXI PROVINCE IN 1981.

AS A RESULT OF CAREFUL REARING OF THE RARE BIRDS, CHINA NOW HAS 40 IBISES.

NEW DELHI (SEPT. 12) XINHUA - INDIA'S TEXTILE EXPORTS DURING THE THE FIRST FOUR MONTHS (APRIL-JULY) OF THE CURRENT FINANCIAL YEAR INCREASED BY 37 PERCENT OVER THE SAME PERIOD LAST YEAR.

THE MAXIMUM INCREASE IN THIS SECTOR HAS BEEN ACCOUNTED FOR BY COTTON YARN, READYMADE GARMENTS, COTTON FABRICS AND MADE-UPS AND, ON A COMPARATIVELY SMALL SCALE, WOOL AND WOOLLENS.

ACCORDING TO OFFICIAL SOURCES, THE ONLY FALL THAT HAS BEEN NOTICED IS IN JUTE, WHERE PROVISIONAL EXPORTS IN THE FOUR MONTHS WERE PLACED AT 690 MILLION RUPEES (40 MILLION U.S. DOLLARS), AGAINST 820 MILLION RUPEES (48.2 MILLION U.S. DOLLARS) IN THE CORRESPONDING PERIOD OF LAST YEAR.

THE PRODUCTS WHICH SHOW A VERY POSITIVE TREND ARE READYMADE GARMENTS AND TEXTILES, THE SOURCES SAID.

IN THE CASE OF READYMADE GARMENTS, AGAINST A TARGET OF 39 BILLION RUPEES (2.3 BILLION U.S. DOLLARS) FOR THE YEAR, EXPORTS DURING APRIL-JULY HAVE GONE UP TO 14.18 BILLION RUPEES, SHOWING AN INCREASE OF 56 PERCENT OVER THE CORRESPONDING PERIOD LAST YEAR.

IN THE CASE OF COTTON FABRICS AND MADE-UPS, THE EXPORTS HAVE INCREASED BY 41.6 PERCENT TO 4.37 BILLION RUPEES (257 MILLION U.S. DOLLARS) OVER THE SAME PERIOD LAST YEAR.

BUT INDIAN PRESS HELD IT IS TOO EARLY TO SAY WHETHER THE TARGET OF 88.2 BILLION RUPEES (5.18 BILLION U.S. DOLLARS) FOR THE CURRENT YEAR WILL BE ACHIEVED, BECAUSE ALL DEPENDS ON THE INTERNATIONAL ECONOMIC SCENARIO, ESPECIALLY AFTER THE GULF CRISIS.

LAGOS (SEPT. 12) XINHUA - A 10-POINT CODE OF CONDUCT WAS ISSUED HERE YESTERDAY FOR ALL RANKS OF THE NIGERIAN POLICE FORCE TO RAISE ITS EFFICIENCY AND PUBLIC IMAGE.

SPEAKING AT THE LAUNCHING CEREMONY, INSPECTOR-GENERAL OF THE POLICE ALIYU ATTA SAID THAT THE CODE OF CONDUCT WILL BE DISPLAYED AT ALL POLICE STATIONS AS GUIDELINES IN DAILY PERFOR- MANCE FOR THE POLICE.

THE 10-POINT CODE DEMANDS THAT A POLICEMAN CONSIDER HIMSELF AS A SERVANT INSTEAD OF A MASTER OF THE PUBLIC.

THE CODE OF CONDUCT ALSO REQUIRES THE POLICEMEN TO RESPECT THE DIGNITY OF INDIVIDUALS THEY CONTACT, BOTH AT AND OUTSIDE THE POLICE STATIONS AND BOTH WHEN ON AND OFF DUTY.

A POLICEMAN IS NOT ALLOWED TO "KNOWINGLY OR RECKLESSLY USE FIREARMS IN A MANNER THAT WILL ATTRACT NEGATIVE PUBLICITY TO THE FORCE AND HE MUST NOT ENGAGE IN CORRUPT PRACTICES".

MEANWHILE, AN ASSISTANT INSPECTOR-GENERAL TOLD JOURNALISTS THAT THE POLICE ARE DETERMINED TO ENSURE THAT BAIL FOR SUSPECTS IS FREE.

HE CALLED ON THE PUBLIC TO STOP OFFERING BRIBES TO POLICEMEN SO AS TO MINIMIZE CORRUPTION AMONG THE POLICE IN THE COUNTRY.

OTTAWA (SEPT. 12) XINHUA - HOUSING STARTS ACROSS CANADA FELL IN AUGUST TO THE LOWEST LEVEL IN FOUR AND A HALF YEARS AS A RESULT OF HIGH INTEREST RATES, CANADA MORTGAGE AND HOUSING CORPORATION REPORTED TUESDAY.

TOTAL HOUSING STARTS ACROSS THE COUNTRY SLIPPED IN AUGUST TO 163,000 UNITS ON A SEASONALLY ADJUSTED ANNUAL BASIS -- THE LOWEST LEVEL SINCE THE BEGINNING OF 1986. THE FIGURE ALSO MEANT A DECLINE OF 7 PERCENT FROM JULY AND A 24.8 PERCENT DROP FROM A YEAR EARLIER.

THE CORPORATION'S CHIEF ECONOMIST MARK BURCHINSHAW ATTRIBUTED AUGUST'S PERFORMANCE TO HIGH MORTGAGE RATES IN THE FIRST SEVEN MONTHS OF 1990 AND A DETERIORATION IN CONSUMER CONFIDENCE.

IN ITS EFFORT TO FIGHT INFLATION, THE BANK OF CANADA HAS BEEN PURSUING A HIGH INTEREST RATE POLICY, WHICH HAS BEEN LARGELY BLAMED FOR SLOWING THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE CANADIAN ECONOMY. THE CENTRAL BANK'S TREND-SETTING INTEREST RATE IS NOW 12.82 PERCENT.

THE MORTGAGE AND HOUSING CORPORATION WARNS THE SLUMP WILL DEEPEN IN THE MONTHS TO COME AS LONG AS INTEREST RATES REMAIN HIGH. MEANWHILE, HOME-BUILDING INDUSTRY LEADERS SAID THE DOWNTURN HAS ALREADY LED TO THOUSANDS OF LAYOFFS ACROSS CANADA.

THE CONSTRUCTION INDUSTRY IS CANADA'S LARGEST BUSINESS. ROUGHLY 7 PERCENT OF THE PEOPLE EMPLOYED IN THE COUNTRY ARE DIRECTLY ENGAGED IN CONSTRUCTION ACTIVITY. BESIDES, AN EVEN GREATER NUMBER ARE ENGAGED IN PRODUCING, TRANSPORTING AND MERCHANDISING CONSTRUCTION MATERIALS AND EQUIPMENT.

VANCOUVER, CANADA (SEPT. 12) KYODO - JAPAN IS HOPING FOR A LAST-MINUTE

SOLUTION BY SATURDAY TO A DISPUTE WITH THE UNITED STATES OVER AMORPHOUS METALS, INTERNATIONAL TRADE AND INDUSTRY MINISTER KABUN MUTO SAID HERE TUESDAY.

HE SAID JAPAN WILL RESPOND POSITIVELY TO THE ISSUE OF TESTING AMORPHOUS METALS MADE BY ALLIED-SIGNAL INC., AN AMERICAN COMPANY, TO SMOOTH THEIR ENTRY INTO THE JAPANESE MARKET.

''BUT THERE IS NO ROOM FOR COMPROMISE ON A SPECIAL EXTENSION OF THE PATENT'' FOR ALLIED-SIGNAL, MUTO SAID.

HE SAID HE WILL EXPLAIN THE JAPANESE STAND TO U.S. TRADE REPRESENTATIVE CARLA HILLS IF SHE RAISES THE MATTER DURING A BREAKFAST MEETING WITH HIM ON WEDNESDAY.

''WE WILL DO OUR BEST TO RESOLVE THE ISSUE,'' MUTO SAID. HILLS HAS UNTIL SATURDAY TO DECIDE WHETHER OR NOT SHE WILL ACCEPT THE RE-FILING OF AN UNFAIR TRADING PETITION BY ALLIED-SIGNAL UNDER THE SECTION 301 OF THE 1988 U.S. TRADE ACT.

U.S. OFFICIALS SAY SHE WILL ACCEPT THE PETITION TO LAUNCH A SEVEN-MONTH INVESTIGATION INTO ALLIED-SIGNAL'S ALLEGATIONS THAT JAPAN HAS DENIED THE COMPANY FAIR ACCESS TO ITS MARKET FOR AMORPHOUS METALS, USED FOR A NEW GENERATION OF ELECTRICAL TRANSFORMERS.

MUTO AND HILLS ARE HERE TO ATTEND A THREE-DAY MEETING OF TRADE MINISTERS FROM 12 ASIAN-PACIFIC NATIONS.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 12) KYODO - MOTOROLA INC. CHAIRMAN GEORGE FISHER SAID TUESDAY THE U.S. COMPANY WILL STRENGTHEN ITS BUSINESS TIES WITH TOSHIBA CORP. OF JAPAN IN THE FUTURE.

BOTH COMPANIES ARE CURRENTLY PLANNING TO JOINTLY MANUFACTURE MICROPROCESSORS AND DYNAMIC RANDOM ACCESS MEMORY (DRAM) CHIPS DENSER THAN ONE MEGABIT IN JAPAN, FISHER INDICATED IN AN INTERVIEW WITH KYODO NEWS SERVICE.

MOTOROLA AND TOSHIBA SET UP A JOINT VENTURE IN 1989 TO MANUFACTURE ONE-MEGABIT DRAMS.

A MICROPROCESSOR IS THE BRAIN OF A COMPUTER. A DRAM IS AN INTEGRATED CIRCUIT USED TO STORE INFORMATION USED IN COMPUTERS, OFFICE EQUIPMENT AND HOUSEHOLD APPLIANCES.

REFERRING TO JAPAN'S TELEPHONE MARKET, FISHER SAID A JAPANESE FIRM, NIPPON IDOU TSUSHIN CORP. (IDO), WILL START CELLULAR PHONE SERVICE USING MOTOROLA'S ANALOG PORTABLE TELEPHONE THROUGHOUT JAPAN. IDO HAS BEEN OPERATING CELLULAR PHONE SERVICES SINCE OCTOBER 1988 UNDER THE NIPPON TELEGRAPH AND TELEPHONE CORP. (NTT) SYSTEM.

ORIGINALLY, MOTOROLA'S PORTABLE TELEPHONE WAS RELEGATED TO BE USED ONLY IN THE KANSAI DISTRICT AND WESTERN JAPAN. HOWEVER, UNDER A 1989 ACCORD BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND JAPAN, IDO HAS HAD TO MAKE CHANGES TO THE SYSTEM TO ENABLE MOTOROLA'S PHONE TO BE USED.

FISHER VOICED HOPE THAT MOTOROLA'S SYSTEM WILL BE USED IN A BURGEONING DIGITAL PORTABLE PHONE SERVICE AS WELL.

HE EXPRESSED CONCERN THAT THE SHARE OF FOREIGN MICROCHIPS IN THE JAPANESE SEMICONDUCTOR MARKET IS STILL BELOW THE TARGET ALLEGEDLY SET UNDER THE 1986 U.S.-JAPAN SEMICONDUCTOR AGREEMENT, WHICH EXPIRES NEXT AUGUST. THE BILATERAL AGREEMENT SHOULD BE EXTENDED, HE SAID.

THE U.S. SAYS THAT UNDER THE AGREEMENT, THE FOREIGN SHARE OF SEMICONDUCTORS IN THE JAPANESE MARKET IS TO INCREASE TO 20 PERCENT BY NEXT YEAR.

JAPANESE OFFICIALS HAVE ARGUED THAT THEY DID NOT GUARANTEE FOREIGN MANUFACTURERS A 20 PERCENT MARKET SHARE IN THE AGREEMENT BY 1991. U.S.

OFFICIALS HAVE SAID THAT JAPAN PROMISED FOREIGN SEMICONDUCTOR MAKERS 20 PERCENT OF THE JAPANESE MARKET IN A SPECIAL SIDE LETTER TO THE AGREEMENT.

FOREIGN SEMICONDUCTORS, DURING THE APRIL-JUNE PERIOD, INCREASED THEIR MARKET SHARE TO 13.3 PERCENT, 0.3 PERCENTAGE POINT UP FROM THE PREVIOUS QUARTER, ACCORDING TO WORLD SEMICONDUCTOR TRADE STATISTICS DATA.

SEOUL (SEPT. 12) KYODO - NORTH AND SOUTH KOREA AGREED TO HOLD WORKING-LEVEL TALKS ON UNITED NATIONS MEMBERSHIP IN THE TRUCE VILLAGE OF PANMUNJOM ON THURSDAY, A SPOKESMAN FOR THE SOUTH KOREAN NATIONAL UNIFICATION BOARD SAID WEDNESDAY.

SOUTH KOREA HAS ACCEPTED A PROPOSAL FOR THE TALKS MADE BY NORTH KOREA'S SENIOR LIAISON OFFICIAL, CHOE BONG CHOON, EARLIER IN THE DAY, THE SPOKESMAN SAID.

NORTH KOREAN PRIME MINISTER YON HYONG MUK AND HIS SOUTH KOREAN COUNTERPART KANG YOUNG HOON, AGREED TO CONTINUE NEGOTIATIONS ON THE U.N. MEMBERSHIP ISSUE DURING THEIR HISTORIC MEETING IN SEOUL ON SEPTEMBER 5 AND 6.

THE GOVERNMENT IN SEOUL HAS ARGUED FOR SEPARATE, SIMULTANEOUS ENTRY INTO THE U.N. FOR BOTH KOREAS, WHILE PYONGYANG HAS INSISTED THAT THEY SHOULD SHARE A SINGLE SEAT IN THE WORLD BODY.

THE OFFICIALS OF NORTH AND SOUTH KOREA ARE EXPECTED TO DISCUSS PROCEDURAL MATTERS CONCERNING THE NEGOTIATIONS ON THE U.N. MEMBERSHIP ISSUE.

TOKYO (SEPT. 12) KYODO - JAPAN'S IMPORTS OF MANUFACTURED GOODS JUMPED 8.1 PERCENT IN THE FIRST HALF OF THIS YEAR OVER A YEAR AGO TO 55.18 BILLION DOLLARS DUE MAINLY TO BRISK SHIPMENTS FROM THE UNITED STATES AND EUROPE, THE JAPAN EXTERNAL TRADE ORGANIZATION (JETRO) SAID WEDNESDAY.

THE TOTAL FOR THE JANUARY-JUNE PERIOD PUSHED UP THE NATION'S RATIO OF MANUFACTURED GOODS TO ALL IMPORTS TO AN ALL-TIME HIGH 51.0 PERCENT, JETRO SAID.

IMPORTS OF MANUFACTURED GOODS SUCH AS AIRCRAFT AND COMPUTERS FROM THE U.S. POSTED A 15.7 PERCENT EXPANSION TO 15.61 BILLION DOLLARS, AND THOSE OF BRAND NAME CLOTHES AND AUTOMOBILES FROM THE 12-NATION EUROPEAN COMMUNITY CLIMBED 26.1 PERCENT TO 14.57 BILLION DOLLARS.

IN CONTRAST, IMPORTS FROM ASIAN COUNTRIES, EXCLUDING CHINA, DECLINED 3.4

PERCENT TO 12.47 BILLION DOLLARS BECAUSE OF SLUGGISH SHIPMENTS FROM NEWLY INDUSTRIALIZING ECONOMIES (NIES), JETRO SAID.

''NIES LIKE SOUTH KOREA AND TAIWAN ARE LOSING THEIR INTERNATIONAL COMPETITIVENESS DUE TO THEIR CURRENCIES' ADVANCES AGAINST THE U.S. DOLLAR AND THE YEN AND RISING LABOR COSTS,'' A JETRO ANALYST SAID.

TOKYO (SEPT. 12) KYODO - ANTI-OLYMPIC GROUPS FROM CANADA AND JAPAN JOINED HANDS WEDNESDAY TO OPPOSE HOLDING THE OLYMPIC GAMES IN THEIR HOME LANDS SHORTLY BEFORE THE INTERNATIONAL OLYMPIC COMMITTEE (IOC) EXECUTIVE BOARD MEETING AND GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

''BREAD, NOT CIRCUSES, TORONTO'S ANTI-OLYMPIC COALITION'' IS RALLING AGAINST TORONTO'S BID TO HOST THE 1996 GAMES AND ''THE ANTI-NAGANO-WINTER-OLYMPICS PEOPLE'S NETWORK'' OPPOSES HOLDING THE 1998 WINTER OLYMPICS IN NAGANO.

AT A JOINT PRESS CONFERENCE HERE, JAN BORROWAY, FORMER CANADIAN OLYMPIC FIELD HOCKEY PLAYER AND A SPOKESWOMAN FOR THE GROUP REPRESENTING 56 SMALL PARTIES, SAID SHE AND DAVID KIDDE, WHO ALSO PARTICIPATES IN ANTIPOVERTY MOVEMENTS, CAME TO TOKYO TO TELL THE IOC OFFICIALS THAT OPPOSITION IN TORONTO IS GROWING AND GETTING STRONGER.

TORONTO IS AMONG THE SIX CITIES CAMPAIGNING TO HOST THE 1996 OLYMPICS AT THE IOC TOKYO SESSION. THE OTHER FIVE CITIES ARE ATHENS, ATLANTA, MELBOURNE, BELGRADE, AND MANCHESTER.

''IN AN OPINION POLL CONDUCTED THIS WEEK IN TORONTO, LESS THAN HALF OF THE CITIZENS SUPPORT THE OLYMPICS. AND 47 PERCENT SAY NO TO HOLDING THE GAMES IN TORONTO,'' BORROWAY SAID.

BESIDES ENVIRONMENTAL HURDLES, THE GROUP CLAIMS THAT THE MAJOR REASON FOR OPPOSING TO THE 1996 OLYMPICS IS THAT TORONTO IS IN THE MIDST OF SEVERE HOUSING AND POVERTY CRISES.

''TWENTY-FIVE THOUSAND PEOPLE ARE HOMELESS AND 15,000 HAVE TO LINE UP AT FOOD BANKS,'' SAID BORROWAY. ''PUBLIC MONEY AND ENERGY SHOULD BE DEVOTED TO SOLVING THESE PROBLEMS.''

HOWEVER, BURROWAY AND KIDDE SAID THEY ARE NOT OPPOSED TO THE OLYMPICS ITSELF.

''WE'RE NOT ANTISPORTS. WE BELIVE THAT ALL PEOPLE, MEN, WOMEN, CHILDREN, THE DISABLED...EVERYBODY MUST HAVE EQUAL ACCESS TO SPORTS,'' KIDDE SAID.

BORROWAY SAID DURING THEIR STAY IN TOKYO UNTIL NEXT TUESDAY THEY WILL TRY TO CONTACT IOC OFFICIALS DAILY AND REQUEST MEETINGS WITH THEM.

THEY ARE ALSO SCHEDULED TO TAKE PART IN DEMONSTRATIONS WITH THE NAGANO GROUP.

TETSUO HONDA, SECRETARY GENERAL OF THE NETWORK CONSISTING OF 23 SMALL GROUPS, SAID THE NATURAL ENVIRONMENT WILL BE GREATLY HARMED BY HOSTING THE OLYMPICS IN THE CENTRAL JAPAN CITY.

ALTHOUGH NAGANO CITY OFFICIALS EXPLAINED THAT EXISTING FACILITIES WILL BE USED IF THEY HOST THE WINTER GAMES, HONDA SAID THE VENUE IMPROVEMENT CONSTRUCTION WORKS HAVE ALREADY BEGUN AND ARE DAMAGING THE AREA.

HONDA ALSO SAID THE BIDDING CAMPAIGN IS BEING CARRIED OUT IN AN UNDEMOCRATIC WAY.

''THE OLYMPICS IS A PUBLIC EVENT, BUT SO FAR, THERE HAVEN'T BEEN ANY MEETINGS TO EXPLAIN THE PLANS NOR HAVE THERE BEEN OPPORTUNITIES TO DISCUSS THE PROBLEMS WITH THE PUBLIC,'' HONDA SAID.

''SOME SAY THE OLYMPICS WILL INCREASE INCOME FROM TOURISM, BUT ACTUALLY, WE DON'T THINK THAT WILL DIRECTLY BENEFIT THE CITIZENS THEMSELVES,'' HONDA SAID. ''ALREADY, THE LAND PRICES IN FRONT OF NAGANO STATION HAVE JUMPED BY 85 PERCENT IN ONE YEAR. THIS WILL BE A BURDEN FOR THE CITIZENS.''

SEOUL (SEPT. 12) KYODO - MALAYSIAN PRIME MINISTER MAHATHIR MOHAMAD DECLINED WEDNESDAY TO GIVE AN IMMEDIATE ANSWER TO A REQUEST BY SOUTH KOREA FOR ADDITIONAL OIL SUPPLIES, SOUTH KOREAN OFFICIALS SAID.

IN A MEETING WITH SOUTH KOREAN PRESIDENT ROH TAE WOO, MAHATHIR DECLINED TO IMMEDIATELY ACCEPT THE REQUEST, MADE BY THE PRESIDENT, TO BOOST EXPORTS OF PETROLEUM TO SOUTH KOREA FROM 80,000 BARRELS PER DAY TO 110,000 BARRELS, THE OFFICIALS SAID.

MAHATHIR CITED REASONS CONCERNING MALAYSIA'S CURRENT CAPACITY OF OIL PRODUCTION, THE OFFICIALS SAID.

DURING THE TALKS, ROH HAILED THE BILATERAL RELATIONSHIP, WHICH SOON WILL MARK 30 YEARS OF NORMALIZATION.

ROH URGED MAHATHIR, IN SEOUL FOR A FOUR-DAY OFFICIAL VISIT SINCE TUESDAY, TO GIVE SUPPORT TO STRENGTHEN TIES BETWEEN SOUTH KOREA AND THE ASSOCIATION OF SOUTHEAST ASIAN NATIONS (ASEAN) IN HIS CAPACITY AS THE CURRENT CHAIRMAN OF ASEAN, OFFICIALS SAID.

ROH AND MAHATHIR ALSO DISCUSSED BILATERAL COOPERATION AS WELL AS EXCHANGING VIEWS ON THE GULF CRISIS, CAMBODIAN PEACE INITIATIVES, AND OTHER WORLD TOPICS, THEY SAID.

TOKYO (SEPT. 12) KYODO - PRIME MINISTER TOSHIKI KAIFU MOVED WEDNESDAY TO NAME TWO NEW MINISTERS TO REPLACE TWO MEMBERS OF HIS SEVEN-MONTH-OLD SECOND CABINET WHO RESIGNED EARLIER IN THE DAY DUE TO ILLNESS.

YUJI OSADA, 73, FORMER STATE MINISTER IN CHARGE OF SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY, IS TIPPED TO REPLACE JUSTICE MINISTER SHIN HASEGAWA. HASEGAWA WAS HOSPITALIZED MONDAY AFTER SUFFERING A STROKE THAT LEFT HIM UNCONSCIOUS AND PARALYZED ON THE RIGHT SIDE OF HIS BODY.

FORMER CONSTRUCTION MINISTER YOSHIAKE KIBE, 64, IS THE CHOICE AMONG PARTY LEADERS TO REPLACE SHIGETAMI SUNADA AS STATE MINISTER IN CHARGE OF HOKKAIDO AND OKINAWA DEVELOPMENT.

SUNADA HAS BEEN ABSENT FROM CABINET SESSIONS SINCE LATE AUGUST DUE TO A CHRONIC ILLNESS.

KAIFU WAS WEIGHING THE TWO CHOICES IN A WHIRLWIND ROUND OF DISCUSSIONS WITH LIBERAL DEMOCRATIC PARTY (LDP) SECRETARY GENERAL ICHIRO OZAWA AND FACTION LEADERS.

ONE MAJOR CONSIDERATION IN THE SELECTION PROCESS IS TO MAINTAIN THE BALANCE BETWEEN THE LDP'S MAJOR POLITICAL FACTIONS, POLITICAL ANALYSTS SAID.

KIBE IS AN EIGHT-TERM MEMBER OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES FROM SHIZUOKA PREFECTURE. BOTH HE AND SUNADA ARE MEMBERS OF THE FACTION OF MICHIO WATANABE, A FORMER FINANCE MINISTER.

OSADA IS A FOUR-TERM MEMBER OF THE HOUSE OF COUNCILLORS FROM CHIBA PREFECTURE. LIKE HASEGAWA, HE IS A MEMBER OF THE LDP FACTION LED BY FORMER PRIME MINISTER NOBORU TAKESHITA, THE LARGEST IN THE PARTY.

FROM THE BULLS:

"I have turned bullish intermediate term," says ANDREW ADDISON, publisher of the "Addison Report," a long term bull who had recently been very cautious. "I think that the market has done a very good job of discounting all but the worst with respect to the Middle East situation."

Addison says he sees a number of positive divergences, and was encouraged to see oil stocks remain sluggish during the oil price spike two days ago. "Any close over 2630 would generate a much stronger advance and could take us over 2700." (FNN "World Business Update", 9/12)

FROM THE BEARS:

"I think [that] along about next Monday through the 24th of September, or thereabouts, is the place where the most risk extends in the market, and I'm hoping we're going to see a very major low in the market by the 24th of September, perhaps a low for the entire year," says MICHAEL JENKINS, editor and publisher of "Stock Cycles Forecast." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 9/11)

STEVEN EINHORN, chief strategist at GOLDMAN SACHS & CO., says he is bearish on stocks partially because he is alarmed at the slowing rate of dividend growth. "In 1991, we think dividend growth will be at about 5% on the S&P 500." Measured against their inflation forecast of 5.5%, the inflation-adjusted dividend "growth" will be -0.5% in 1991. That would be the first time since 1984 that real dividend growth turned negative. "If we're right, the powerful dividend thrust of the market is about to disappear." (WSJ, 9/12)

STOCK MARKET:

The mood of the market is "pretty bearish," says ROBERT FREEDMAN, chief portfolio manager for JOHN HANCOCK's mutual funds. "There's not any real interest in buying. ... The low volume is just a reflection of everybody sitting on the sidelines," says Freedman. "It's a trading market rather than an investing market. It's come down so far that a lot of damage has been done to a lot of individual stocks and we need a period of settling down. Investor confidence has been upset, and it'll take some time to rebuild it." He continues, "The most negative thing short term is that the price of oil seems to affect the market on a daily basis. The market hates uncertainty, and we have a lot of that right now. If things get settled, if there's some movement on the budget deficit, that's positive, and if we have some stability on oil prices in the near term, that's positive. Long term, we certainly want to see some stability in interest rates." On a more hopeful note, he maintains that "later this fall, if all these things settle down, I think we could probably have a pretty good rally." (NYT, 9/12)

"Most people are sitting on their hands and are afraid to make a commitment to socks because of uncertainty in the Middle East and the economy," says JEFFREY MALET of PACIFIC CENTURY ADVISERS. He describes himself as "somewhat bearish" because he predicts a weak economy will lead to further earnings disappointments. ("Investor's Daily", 9/12)

KURT SCHULTZ, senior stock-index analyst at REFCO GROUP in Chicago, says the stock market is nervously vulnerable because of the Mideast situation, with much of the jitters showing up first in stock-index futures trading. "Even institutions have a trading mentality," he says, and investors can either trade against one another or hover on the sidelines. "Everyone is afraid to explore new territory. Do you sell at new [intraday] lows? Do you buy at new highs? Not likely." (WSJ, 9/12)

JAMES ANDREWS of JANNEY, MONTGOMERY SCOTT says the market is likely to remain in a fog until there is a development in the Middle East or the U.S. economy spurs investors into action. "You have buyers on one side, sellers on the other, and nobody wants to cross the line," says Andrews. ("USA Today", 9/11)

"The thing I make of this market is that it's aimless, it's wandering and the most significant thing you can see about it is the very light volume you are experiencing," says MONTE GORDON, director of research for the DREYFUS CORP. "It is quite obvious that the market is moving on whims and on rumors without really any regard for the fundamentals. ... It's not a market on which you can make a basic, fundamental decision." He says the only people who should be buying now are those with an investment horizon of 18 to 24 months. He says it will be that long before you see "any stable, disciplined situation. Any investment that you make has to have that perspective in time." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 9/11)

STOCK TIPS:

CENTEX TELEMANAGEMENT fell two points on triple its average volume, but according to ALEX. BROWN & SONS' W. CHRISTOPHER MORTENSON, there is no good rationale for the drop. After investigating the stock, he says "I confirmed my belief that this business is absolutely fine," and reiterated his buy recommendation. The only explanation Mortenson could offer was that there is a substantial short position, which he says could cause sharp, seemingly unexplained drops in the stock price. ("Investor's Daily", 9/12)

STEPHENS INC. recommends TYSON FOODS, an Arkansas-based producer of poultry products. The brokerage says 1990 earnings should grow 19% to $120 million, or $1.81 a share, as the company continues to expand through new products such as kids' meals and microwaveable sandwiches. ("USA Today", 9/11)

"Don't count on AMERICAN TELEPHONE & TELEGRAPH being a good buy anytime soon," writes JOHN KELLER in the "Heard on the Street" column. Wall Street analysts are cutting their earnings estimates on the stock. "The economy is softening and the outlook for improvement in the near term, particularly with the Mideast crisis, isn't good. AT&T isn't immune to this, especially in its equipment business," says JACK GRUBMAN, a PAINEWEBBER analyst. Grubman estimates that AT&T profits have been strained by annual pretax losses of $500 million in computers and office phone systems. JOEL GROSS of DONALDSON, LUFKIN & JENRETTE says, "In a full recession of negative 2%, AT&T could hit the low single digits or even flatten in terms of [revenue] growth." (WSJ, 9/12)

DURR-PHILAUER is a distributor of surgical and pharmaceutical products, and one of ANDREW ADDISON's favorite picks for conservative investors. "They are in an industry that is recession proof and growing," says Addison who likes the company's 20 consecutive years of earnings growth. The stock set a new high one month ago and Addison projects it to move into the low 30s. CONNER PERIPHERAL was down 1-1/2 yesterday but Addison says the stock is "in an excellent buy zone" for more speculative investors. With downside risk at 19, the stock should move back to 30 on the strength of explosive earnings growth, says Addison. (FNN "World Business Update", 9/12)

MONTE GORDON, director of research for the DREYFUS CORP., says investors should be looking out 18 months to two years for stocks to buy. From that perspective, he says he would be a buyer of "issues like WAL-MART and MERCK and DISNEY and P & G and DuPONT and WESTINGHOUSE - companies like that - on the premise that I would buy a little now. I may buy some more as the market goes through some of its decline in here, but I would be building positions" as the oil situation is resolved and the fundamentals of the economy begin to show an uptick. (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 9/11)

Natural gas prices have not moved up with oil prices and there's no reason they should, says DAVID FLEISCHER, industry analyst at PRUDENTIAL-BACHE. "There's a big surplus of natural gas during the off season. During the winter it's a very different story." Natural gas consumption actually declined 25% from 1973 to 1986, but Fleisher is very optimistic about the prospects for the industry over a long term, 3-5 year horizon. He thinks COLUMBIA GAS and ENRON still have room to move up. (CNN "Business Morning", 9/12)

"We're optimistic about the long term for West Germany, but there might be many obstacles in the meantime," says CHARLES DE VAULX, a portfolio manager at the French bank SOCIETE GENERALE. "The bottom line is [the German market] is not a real value opportunity right now," says TOM ROBINSON, chief international stock strategist at MERRILL LYNCH. PENNY DOBKIN, manager of FIDELITY'S EUROPE mutual fund agrees that "you don't want to rush into this market. But you have to separate the next 12 months from the next five years, because the next five years look great." ("USA Today", 9/12)

FALLS CHURCH, VA (SEPT 12) MCS -- A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2) MONEY & ECONOMY.

MONEY & CREDIT:

TREVOR OPPELT of MMS INTERNATIONAL says a possible Fed easing is only one reason the dollar is weak. "Technically the dollar is weak, and the underlying fundamentals for the U.S. economy are still very bearish for the dollar," according to Oppelt. (FNN "Marketwatch", 9/12)

"I don't really think there's too much speculation of an imminent Fed easing," says JULIAN CALLOW of CHASE INVESTMENT BANK in London. But Callow says Greenspan's upcoming Congressional testimony will be watched very closely. (FNN "Marketwatch", 9/12)

Good news on the budget negotiations helped the bond market move higher yesterday in light trading, but many security investors are still cautious. "There have been too many times in the past when unrealistic economic assumptions have been used to achieve budget savings," says DAVID DUERSON, manager of the Government trading desk at the SECURITY PACIFIC BANK in Los Angeles. "Once you have cut through those assumptions you find out you really haven't done very much. But the news was enough to move the market because trading was so thin." He adds, "Positive action on the budget would have a very beneficial effect on business and public psychology irrespective of the economic effects of what is proposed." (NYT, 9/12)

THE ECONOMY:

The COMMERCE DEPARTMENT report released yesterday shows that exports are on the rise. "The very positive thing in the midst of all the gloom and doom in the U.S. economy is that, with the exception of Canada and to some extent Britain, the rest of our trading partners are growing quite strongly." On the negative side, he adds, "Oil is the big clinker." (WSJ 9/12)

"We are in a dividend recession," says ARNOLD KAUFMAN, editor of S&P's "Outlook" newsletter. "There are too few profits, and there's too much debt." (WSJ, 9/12)

Basically, the longer the situation [in the Middle East] is not resolved, the longer and the higher [oil] prices will go," says JAMES O'MEALIA of N.Y. LIFE. He says if the current stalemate continues, the U.S. could face oil shortages this winter. "We could see oil prices reaching 35-40 dollars this winter, with no resolution," according to O'Mealia. (CNBC "World Business", 9/12)

IN WASHINGTON:

The GENERAL ACCOUNTING OFFICE says the FEDERAL DEPOSIT INSURANCE CORP. fund that protects depositors when banks fail is dwindling so rapidly that it could be wiped out by a recession or a single big bank failure. ("The Washington Post", 9/12)

"Not since its birth during the Great Depression has the federal system of deposit insurance faced such a period of danger and uncertainty as it does today," says COMPTROLLER GENERAL CHARLES BOWSHER. "We have a lot of situations out there that could wipe the fund out." Bowsher says there are several billion dollars in losses that banks have yet to report. ("Investor's Daily", 9/12)

"It's an issue of overspending," says U.S. CHAMBER OF COMMERCE President RICHARD LESHER about the budget deficit. He says the budget process has become far too politicized, and thinks the only solution is a "political revolution" that would solve the deficit "by keeping spending in line with revenue." Lesher believes that the budget could be balanced by merely eliminating spending growth, avoiding any actual cuts. ("Investor's Daily", 9/12)

SAN DIEGO (SEPT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Federal court jury of six persons ruled yesterday that Advanced Micro Devices (NYSE: AMD) infringed three patents owned by Brooktree Corp. and also infringed mask work rights of Brooktree under the Semiconductor Chip Protection Act.

This is believed to be the first verdict under the Semiconductor Chip Protection Act since the Act became law in 1984. The Act is intended to protect layouts of circuits in semiconductor chips against unauthorized duplication, thus encouraging innovation, research, and investment in the semiconductor industry. The infringement by AMD involves the mask works of Brooktree in the static RAM cells in the Bt451 and Bt458 chips.

The three patents infringed by AMD describe and protect (1) the static RAM in Brooktree's RAMDAC chips including the Bt451 and Bt458 chips, (2) the digital-to-analog converters (DACs) included in most of Brooktree's DAC and RAMDAC chips and (3) the dual-mode (voltage and current) reference generators in Brooktree's Bt471 and Bt478 chips. Major applications of these chips are in graphics for engineering workstations and high-end personal computers. Brooktree is a recognized leader in such graphic applications.

In its suit, Brooktree is seeking injunctive relief, as well as restitution for damages arising from infringing actions by Advanced Micro Devices. The jury will hear damages evidence beginning today, Sept. 12.

Brooktree designs, manufactures, and markets mixed-signal integrated circuits (IC) products for applications in computer graphics, electronic imaging, and automatic test equipment (ATE). The company is headquartered in San Diego.

PITTSBURGH (SEPT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - In a series of announcements today, the Steel Can Recycling Institute (SCRI) announced the election of William M. Heenan Jr. to the position of president.

Formerly chairman of the board for the SCRI, Heenan officially will assume responsibilities as president on Oct. 1.

The election follows the resignation of Kurt Smalberg, current SCRI president. Smalberg will retain his position through Sept. 30, and will thereafter continue to serve on the SCRI board of directors.

Heenan most recently was general manager of tin mill products for the USS Division of USX Corp. (NYSE: X), a position he assuemd in 1988. He had been with the company for 19 years, initially at the South Works in Chicago. He moved to Pittsburgh headquarters in 1981 as a senior analyst in tin mill products, and was named manager of tin products marketing four years later. Heenan currently is the district chairman for Allegheny Trails Council of the Boy Scouts of America and a member of the board of directors of Keep America Beautiful.

He has served on the SCRI board of directors since August 1988, and was elected to the position of chairman in April 1989. As president, he will oversee the SCRI staff which is implementing a broad-based recycling infrastructure in cooperation with public and private entities throughout the nation.

The SCRI concurrently announced the election of James B. Bruhn, formerly vice chairman of the SCRI board, to the position of chairman, and Lawrence A. Purks, member of the board, to the position of vice chairman.

Bruhn has been with Weirton Steel since 1987, when he joined the company in his current position. He was appointed to Weirton Steel's board of directors in 1990. Bruhn has 25 years of sales experience with the metals industry, primarily in steel. He was formerly with the USS Division of USX Corp. -- where he held sales and marketing positions, including that of general manager of tin mill products; and with Titanium Metals Corporation of America -- where he was vice president of sales and marketing.

The Steel Can Recycling Institute is an industry association with the mission of promoting and sustaining steel can recycling. It is the primary information and technical resource for legislators, municipalities, recyclers, businesses and other entities interested in steel can recycling or in developing steel can recycling programs.

ST. PAUL, MN (SEPT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Ecolab Inc. (NYSE: ECL) and HENKEL KGaA, Dusseldorf, West Germany, announced that on Sept. 11, 1990, they agreed to form a joint venture of their respective European cleaning and sanitizing businesses. In addition, Ecolab will acquire Henkel's cleaning and sanitizing businesses in 18 other countries outside of Europe and expects to acquire Henkel's interest in its cleaning and sanitizing businesses in several other countries.

As previously announced, on Dec. 11, 1989, Ecolab issued $110 million of its Series A Convertible Preferred Stock to Henkel as an initial step in this endeavor. As a result of subsequent negotiations, Ecolab and Henkel have agreed to combine their European cleaning and sanitizing businesses in a joint venture with each partner having a 50 percent economic interest. Henkel will serve as managing partner. The joint venture will have its own manufacturing facilities, its own R&D activity for technical service and product development and will be autonomous from its parents. The joint venture's administrative headquarters will be located in Dusseldorf.

Regulatory approvals are required in various jurisdictions before the agreements can be consummated. It is anticipated that the closing will occur the beginning of 1991.

As a result of the formation of the Henkel-Ecolab joint venture and Ecolab's purchase of Henkel's cleaning and sanitizing businesses in other countries, Henkel will receive 5.6 million shares of Ecolab's common stock and approximately $74 million, subject to adjustment. Henkel will receive an additional $110 million, reflecting its investment in the Ecolab Series A Convertible Preferred Stock, which will be retired concurrently with the closing.

Upon consummation of the transaction, Henkel's resulting equity ownership in Ecolab will represent approximately 19 percent of Ecolab's then outstanding common shares. Henkel's ownership of these shares will be subject to an agreement containing restrictions pertaining to, among other things, maximum share holding, transfer and voting rights. Henkel will be permitted to purchase Ecolab shares in the open market which, including the shares to be received in the transaction, could increase its total position up to a maximum of 26 percent of Ecolab's outstanding common shares. Over time Henkel will have the ability to own up to 30 percent. Henkel will have representation on Ecolab's board of directors proportionate to its Ecolab stock ownership.

Pierson M. Grieve, Ecolab chairman and chief executive officer, commented, "It is with great excitement and anticipation that we announce our agreement with Henkel which culminates 10 months of extensive study, analyses, negotiations, planning and organization.

"The primary change will occur in Europe with the creation of Henkel-Ecolab, owned jointly by both partners. Initially, this business will have approximately $750 million in revenues, solid earnings and cash flow, and employ some 3,500 personnel. Even more important, the joint venture will have the size and breadth of product offerings to permit it to compete vigorously and successfully in the unified European market of 1992.

"In addition, Ecolab's purchase of most of Henkel's remaining worldwide cleaning and sanitizing operations will initially increase Ecolab's revenues by over $50 million in Asia and Latin America and give us new positions in countries where we have not had a presence."

Pierson M. Grieve concluded, "While there will be start-up costs in 1991, we believe the growth of these businesses and the potential synergies will offset them and that there should be no dilution of Ecolab's 1991 per share earnings. Of greater importance, we expect that future years will benefit from increased earnings."

Dr. Helmut Sihler, president and chief executive officer of Henkel, stated "The anticipated successful completion of this transaction is a major step in the development of both companies' marketing opportunities in the European market of 1992. We are pleased to be working with Ecolab in this endeavor."

Ecolab is a leading worldwide developer and marketer of premium cleaning, sanitizing and maintenance services for the hospitality, institutional and residential markets. For the year ended Dec. 31, 1989, Ecolab reported sales of $1.3 billion and earnings of $34.2 million, after preferred dividends, or $1.25 per share, excluding a one-time charge of $31.5 million, or $(1.15) per share. Earnings in 1989 were $2.7 million, or $0.10 per share. Ecolab's shares are traded on the New York Stock Exchange and the Pacific Stock Exchange under the symbol ECL.

Henkel is the world's largest manufacturer of oleochemicals made from natural fats and oils, offers the largest range of adhesives and is a leading producer of metal treatment products. Henkel ranks among the top companies in Europe for detergents and cleaning agents, institutional hygiene and industrial cleaning, personal care and cosmetic products. Sales in 1989 were DM11.6 billion, or $6.2 billion; net earnings were DM404 million, or $217.2 million.

PITTSBURGH (SEPT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - National Intergroup Inc. (NYSE: NII), announced today that, in accordance with its previous announcement, it had amended the terms of its pending tender offer for all outstanding cumulative convertible preference units representing limited partnership interests of Permian Partners, L.P., to extend the term of the contingent value rights ("CVRs") offered thereby for an additional year, until June 30, 1993, and to provide that any deferred payments (as defined) that may become due and payable under the terms of the CVRs will be made at 100 percent during the entire term of the CVRs, rather than in accordance with the declining percentages set forth in the supplement dated Aug. 8, 1990, containing the original terms of the CVRs. The revised terms of the CVRs are set forth in the second supplement dated Sept. 12, 1990, amending the terms of the offer.

In connection with amending the terms of the CVRs, NII also announced that it is extending the tender offer until midnight (New York City time) on Sept. 25, 1990, subject to NII's right to extend the offer further. The tender offer was previously scheduled to expire at midnight (New York City time) on Sept. 11, 1990. NII said that the second supplement containing the amended terms of the CVRs is being filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission today and will be mailed to holders of preference units promptly.

As of the close of business on Sept. 11, 1990, approximately 8,591,001 preference units (including 1,517,799 preference units pursuant to notices of guaranteed delivery) had been tendered and not withdrawn pursuant to the offer. The offer is conditioned upon, among other things, there being tendered and not withdrawn prior to the expiration of the offer at least 7,875,001 of the publicly held preference units, representing a majority of the publicly held preference units.

SHELTON, CONN. (SEPT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - In a statement today, Data Switch Corporation (NASDAQ: DASW) said that IBM's System 390 announcement last week will greatly expand market opportunities for the company's switching products.

"We had anticipated and welcome IBM's announcement of fiber channels and the new switching capability," said Robert G. Gilbertson, president and chief executive officer. "This announcement has stimulated and revitalized what some had considered to be a mature switch market. In fact, we expect that by the mid-1990s, even data centers with a single mainframe will need a switch."

"IBM's announcement of fiber channels and the inclusion of switching as a key component of its new Enterprise System Connect (ESCON) architecture provides substantial growth opportunity for our current switching and fiber extension products, as well as for the new products we have under development," said Gilbertson. "As customers incorporate IBM's new fiber technology, they will require switching solutions for both their current and new channel architectures."

Data Switch is recognized as a market leader in channel extension and switching products, having pioneered the first fiber-optic channel extender in 1985. The company was the first to develop a large-scale dynamic switch for IBM mainframe channels and a "fault-tolerant" channel matrix switch.

LOS ANGELES (SEPT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Mercury Air Group Inc. (AMEX: MAX) today announced the planned addition of 30,000 square feet of mechanized cargo handling facilities to the company's current 20,000 square foot cargo operations at Los Angeles International Airport (LAX).

Already one of the largest LAX-based providers of cargo containerization and palletization services, Mercury Air plans to install highly sophisticated cargo operations and increase its customer base of international airlines through the addition of the new facilities. The expansion project will begin in early January 1991 and is expected to be completed by March 1991.

"The enlarged capacity will enable Mercury Air to rapidly grow as an international air cargo handler. In fact, we are already negotiating for the airfreight cargo business of several additional international airlines based on this expansion," said Seymour Kahn, chairman of Mercury Air Group.

"An important aspect of this project is the steady growth of U.S. air cargo deliveries, particularly from the Far East. In addition, LAX has expanded to handle more international airline companies than any U.S. airport. The new facilities will enable Mercury Air to take advantage of these favorable trends," Kahn explained.

Mercury Air Group Inc. provides fueling, cargo handling, and ground support for commercial, military and general aviation aircraft. These services are handled through the company's main operations at Los Angeles International Airport, five fixed-base operations in Nevada and California and 15 U.S. military bases in America and abroad.

MIAMI (SEPT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Mayor's Jewelers, Inc., said today it is withdrawing its planned initial public stock offering because of the current uncertainty in the stock market.

Sam Getz, Mayor's president, said the company -- a leading upscale retailer of fine jewelry and watches with 21 stores throughout Central and Southeast Florida -- has made "other financial arrangements" to help fund expansion, and that the company will continue to remain private for the foreseeable future.

"We've been monitoring the stock market closely the last several weeks, and decided that expanding our capital base through a public offering became less desirable than other options," said Getz.

TROY, MI (SEPT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Kmart Corporation (NYSE: KM) today unveiled a new retail identity symbol, signaling change and innovation for the 2,300 Kmart store network.

"Kmart has always had a strong and highly recognizable image," said Kmart Chairman Joseph E. Antonini. "We want our retail identity to represent what Kmart's about today. This new symbol keeps Kmart in step with the times and reflects the dynamism and excitement of the company's commitment to renewal. We are particularly delighted to be unveiling this new identity symbol at one of our new prototype stores for the '90s here in Oak Park, Mich."

Kmart Corporation announced in February 1990 an accelerated five- year, $2.3 billion new store opening, enlargement and modernization program. This aggressive program involves building approximately 250 new full-size Kmart stores, enlarging 620 current stores, relocating 280 others and refurbishing the remaining 1,260 to bring their layout and fixturing up to new store standards.

The new red and white logo captures the company's strategic plan for the '90s with the bold red "K" incorporating the word "mart" into the design. The main building sign will be illuminated, carrying more impact. Made of acrylic and aluminum, it will be stronger and easier to maintain than the existing sign.

The identity program created by AGP includes new color, typography, standards and guidelines for all media, including signs, employee apparel, advertising, tags, etc.

Kmart would prefer all stores to have the new retail logo in place today. However, since that is physically impossible, the program will be rolled out in phases. All newly built and expanded stores will carry the new logo in external and internal signage and details. Other stores will have new signage in place as they are refurbished. The company, however, expects the program to be completed simultaneously with the store modernization program in 1995.

Kmart's new retail identity symbol is part of its ongoing program to create more effective communications with its customer base, including marketing and advertising. In 1987, the company reorganized its hard goods buying departments into six well-defined divisions to develop departments with category dominance. They include Kitchen Corner, Bed and Bath Shops, Home Care and Horticulture departments, Apparel and Sporting Goods and Automotive Accessories departments. In early 1988, the company began distributing seven-day-duration ad circulars once a week rather than the previous twice-a-week distribution.

Kmart Corporation serves America with over 4,000 retail outlets in all 50 states in the United States and in Puerto Rico and Canada. Kmart, currently operating 2,331 Kmart stores, is also the parent company for Pay Less Drug Stores, Builders Square, Waldenbooks, PACE Membership Warehouse, Inc. and The Sports Authority. Kmart stock is traded on the New York, Pacific, Midwest and Tokyo stock exchanges. Its trading symbol is KM.

FORT WORTH, TEXAS (SEPT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Texas-New Mexico Power Company today announced that Unit 1 of its lignite-fueled electric generating plant located in Robertson County, Texas, (TNP One) is in commercial operation. Company officials said the unit has satisfied the predetermined requirements for "commercial operation." Texas-New Mexico Power Company is the wholly owned subsidiary of Fort Worth-based TNP Enterprises, Inc. (NYSE: TNP).

"This event marks an important milestone on the history of our company," said James Tarpley, president and chief executive officer of the company. "The technology utilized by TNP One is state-of-the-art and provides clean, cost-efficient generation of power," he added.

TNP One is a two-unit 300 megawatt electric generating station capable of burning natural gas and western coal in addition to its primary fuel, Texas lignite. The facility was constructed under a unique, turnkey contract by a consortium consisting of Westinghouse Electric Corporation, H.B. Zachry Company and Combustion Engineering. Unit 2 is approximately 70 percent completed and scheduled to reach commercial operation in mid-1991.

To this date, TNP One is the largest electric generating facility in the United States to utilize the environmentally superior "circulating fluidized-bed" (CFB) technology. The CFB technology eliminates the need for expensive scrubbers required by "pulverized coal" generating units to remove sulphur. Because of a lower operating temperature, the CFB unit eliminates slagging problems and controls nitrous oxide emissions.

According to company officials, Unit 1 is currently providing a firm and stable supply of electricity to customers.

In another development, the company also announced that, at a pre- hearing conference conducted on Sept. 6 and 7, an administrative law judge at the Public Utility Commission of Texas (PUCT) denied the company's request for interim approval of deferred accounting treatment (DAT) for Unit 1. The company intends to file a motion appealing the administrative law judge's decision directly to the PUCT commissioners, which can be heard as early as Sept. 19.

Texas-New Mexico Power Company, an electric utility serving 90 towns and cities with 200,000 customers in Texas and New Mexico, is the principal, wholly owned subsidiary of TNP Enterprises, Inc.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (SEPT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Qintex Entertainment Inc. (QEI) (NASDAQ: QNTX) today reported court approval of the sale of the company's entertainment assets to RHI Entertainment Inc. for approximately $42.4 million and the assumption of certain obligations of QEI. The sale includes the QEI library, accounts receivable, development projects, an substantially all other programming assets.

The entertainment assets sale to RHI is subject to obtaining further bankruptcy court orders approving the transfer of contracts and other rights of QEI. The company believes that these approvals can be obtained prior to the end of October 1990. The purchase price is subject to final adjustments at closing.

The company has earlier reported court approval for the sale of QEI's interest in HR Broadcasting, Inc. (HRBC). HRBC owns two television stations that are being sold to ABRY Communications for over $40 million, of which QEI will receive approximately $20 million for its interests. The ABRY transaction is scheduled to close following transfer of FCC licenses, which is expected to occur in November 1990.

The assets sales were approved in U.S. Bankruptcy Court by Judge Lisa Fenning. Qintex filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection in October 1989.

DETROIT (SEPT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Mazda officially announced its 1991 line-up in a three-city preview Sept. 11-12, where it unveiled the all-new Mazda Navajo sport utility vehicle and revealed 1991 prices for its extensive line of sport cars, family sedans, minivans and trucks.

The Navajo, powered by a potent 4.0-liter V6 engine, marks Mazda's first entry into the sport utility segment. For the adventurous at heart, the two-door Navajo is comprehensively equipped and features such amenities as power windows and locks, power mirrors, power steering and rear-wheel ABS as standard equipment.

In the minivan category, 1991 brings about the introduction of a leather-trimmed special edition of Mazda's award-winning MPV multi- use vehicle. Included in the special edition are leather-trimmed seating surfaces, leather-wrapped steering wheel, an exclusive Whisper Green Mica/Prestige Silver Metallic two-tone paint treatment and forged alloy wheels.

Family Sedans. For first-time buyers, Mazda's entry-level 323 hatchback continues to offer spacious interior room and numerous standard features in 1991. Completely redesigned for the 1990 model year, the 323 is available in 323 and 323 SE grades, with all models comprehensively equipped including five-speed manual transmission, electronic multi-port fuel injection, rear window defogger, full door trim, rear package tray and locking glove box. SE models add body color bumpers, tinted glass, dual door mirrors, cloth seating and door trim, full wheel covers and all-season tires.

Introduced in 1990, the Protege four-door sedan has set new standards in its first year for spaciousness, performance, value, and sophistication within its class. For 1991, Mazda has replaced the SE model with the new DX which includes upgraded interior appointments for classy comfort. The Protege is also available in luxurious LX and traction-enhancing 4WD models.

For family-car buyers in 1991, Mazda's popular 626 line continues to offer a diverse range of models, including a roomy four-door sedan and an extremely practical five-door with a large, easy-to-load hatchback. The four-door sedan is available in DX and upscale LX models. The five-door sedan is available in upscale LX and the sporty turbocharged GT versions.

ATLANTA (SEPT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Amoco Fabrics and Fibers Co. and Nippon Petrochemicals Co., Ltd., of Japan announced today the formation of a joint venture for the production and marketing of a new nonwoven fabric called CLAF(TM).

The new company, headquartered in Atlanta, is called ANCI for Amoco Nisseki CLAF Inc. Company officials say that the incorportion of ANCI marks the culmination of two years of discussions between Nippon and Amoco.

"The first production line will provide total capacity of approximately 200 million square yards per year," said Frank Andrusko, chief executive officer of ANCI. "This will provide employment for about 100 people, and if this business grows as expected, additional capacity will be required. We are very excited about the market prospects for this product."

CLAF fabric was developed through a proprietary process by Nippon Petrochemicals, a subsidiary of Nippon Oil Co., Japan's largest oil company. It has been successfully marketed in Japan for the last 17 years.

"We are very pleased to have Amoco as our partner in our first joint venture outside of Asia," said Yutaka Katayama, president of Nippon Petrochemical Co., Ltd. "We are looking forward to a long and successful relationship."

According to ANCI officials, CLAF fabric offers outstanding uniformity, strength, and tear resistance, without additional bulk or weight. The fabric will be used primarily as a reinforcement to packaging materials such as paper, plastic or foil. Amoco Fabrics and Fibers Co. will be the exclusive marketing agent for ANCI.

Atlanta-based Amoco Fabrics and Fibers Co., a subsidiary of Amoco Chemical Co., employs more than 7,000 people, primarily in Georgia and Alabama. It is a manufacturer of polypropylene industrial fabrics, fibers and yarns and carpet backings for a variety of textile-related industries.

TAMPA, FLA. (SEPT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Eastern Express today announced to business travelers a deal they can't afford to refuse.

On Oct. 15, the Eastern Airlines subsidiary will become Florida's largest commuter airline with the opening of its Tampa hub and 12 new routes, Eastern Express president Jack E. Robinson announced today in Tampa.

The new routes will link Tampa to Tallahassee, Daytona Beach, Naples, Fort Myers, Fort Lauderdale, Key West, Jacksonville, Melbourne and West Palm Beach, with connections available to flights elsewhere in the state and the Bahamas.

The announcement packs an extra punch to Miami-based Eastern Express' previously revealed plans to begin the "Expressway," also on Oct. 15. The "Expressway" will offer hourly flights between Miami and Tampa from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. daily -- and will be the first and only hourly service in Florida primarily for the business traveler.

Not only will Eastern Express' fares be competitive on the new routes, they will be -- unlike those of competitors -- unrestricted, with no advance-purchase requirements or penalties for last-minute changes.

The fleet of 22 aircraft will include the 35-passenger Saab 340, 19-passenger Beechcraft 1900 and 15-passenger Beech C99.

This expansion will increase Eastern Express' daily flights to 184, serving 14 Florida cities and six Bahamian desitnations -- Nassau, Freeport, Rock Sound, Governors Harbour, Marsh Harbour and Treasure Cay.

The route network will allow connections between and among key Florida and Bahamas destinations, allowing travelers to make roundtrip flights in one business day throughout the state.

LONG GROVE, IL (SEPT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Kemper Corp. (NYSE: KEM) announced today that its management is in talks with its 39 percent stockholder, Lumbermens Mutual Casualty Co., about a long-term joint venture to sell claim and risk management services and expand Kemper's presence in these businesses.

While no binding contract yet exists, the preliminary framework being negotiated calls for Kemper Corp. to contribute to the joint venture the stock of its risk management subsidiary, National Loss Control Corp. (NATLSCO), as of Jan. 1, 1991, following a distribution to Kemper Corp. of NATLSCO's stockholders' equity. The proposed venture would also involve a 30 year agreement under which Lumbermens would commit to continue to provide claim personnel and services to NATLSCO at cost, to continue to refer business to the joint venture and not to separately compete in the claim and risk management service businesses.

Under this joint venture concept, Kemper Corp. and Lumbermens would each have equal control, although the sharing of NATLSCO's profits/losses would be phased in over the next four years. Kemper Corp.'s profit share would decrease from 100 percent in 1990 to 87 1/2 percent in 1991, 75 percent in 1992, 62 1/2 percent in 1993 and 50 percent in 1994 and thereafter. Beginning in 1991, any capital needs of the joint venture would be equally contributed by Lumbermens and Kemper Corp.

While Kemper Corp. management believes some agreement along the above lines is likely, any binding contractual arrangement would be subject to, among other conditions, negotiation of definitive agreements and approval by the boards of both companies. There is no assurance that all conditions will be met, and the negotiated structure may vary from what has been proposed.

In 1989, NATLSCO, with revenue of $74.2 million and net income of $16.1 million, accounted for 2.7 percent of Kemper Corp.'s revenue and 5.2 percent of Kemper Corp.'s consolidated net income. In the first half of 1990, NATLSCO had revenue of $39.1 million and net income of $8.0 million, and Kemper Corp. had revenue of $1.5 billion and a net loss of $72.3 million. Excluding special charges totaling $161.1 million taken in the second quarter, Kemper Corp. would have had net income of $88.8 million in the first half of 1990.

NATLSCO markets claims management, safety, health and laboratory services to companies which self insure and therefore need claims management, and to other companies' risk managers and safety directors who want to keep commercial insurance costs down while reducing injuries and accidents. NATLSCO has approximately 270 employees and also historically has utilized the services of numerous Lumbermens claim department employees at Lumbermens' claims offices nationwide. Nearly 82 percent of NATLSCO's 1989 revenue came from its claim management services, and most of these clients are insureds of Lumbermens.

Kemper Corp., a non-operating holding company, is investor owned. Major subsidiaries operate in life insurance, investment services, reinsurence and property-casualty insurance.

OAK BROOK, ILL. (SEPT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - GTE Airfone and COMSAT Aeronautical Services today announced the signing of a service agreement that will let airline passengers make telephone calls while flying anywhere in the world. The companies will start operating the global, satellite-based aircraft-communications system in mid-1991. Terms and conditions of the agreement were not disclosed.

Under the agreement, GTE Airfone will use COMSAT's network of ground earth stations in Southbury, Conn., and Santa Paula, Calif., to expand passenger telephone service on international flights. COMSAT will also provide the space segment through the International Maritime Satellite Organization (INMARSAT) global satellite network.

Currently, users of the GTE Airfone service can place an Airfone(R) service call while flying over the U.S. and southern Canada, including Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, or within 200 miles of the U.S. coastline. To date, more than 8 million calls have been placed by air travelers using the terrestrial-based Airfone service.

COMSAT Aeronautical Services has been constructing specially equipped ground earth stations for aeronautical communications, both data and voice since 1989. COMSAT also began handling the commissioning process for aircraft seeking approval from INMARSAT for their on-board satellite equipment (known as the Aircraft Earth Station), with the first such commissioning taking place this past August. There are several U.S., as well as European and Asian airlines, currently making plans to equip their planes to provide both data and voice services.

Based here, GTE Airfone includes GTE Railfone, a provider of public telephone access on major AMTRAK routes. It is part of the GTE Mobile Communications Group. The group also includes GTE Mobilnet, which operates cellular systems in nine states serving 34 major metropolitan areas and five rural-service areas; and, the National Markets organization which provides nationwide cellular service.

COMSAT Aeronautical Services is a business unit of the Communications Satellite Corp. (COMSAT), headquartered in Washington. COMSAT is a publicly traded corporation that provides international, domestic, and mobile-communications and entertainment services, and conducts research on advanced communications techniques. In addition to being the largest owner and U.S. participant in the global INMARSAT system, COMSAT also represents the U.S. in the International Telecommunications Satellite Organization (INTELSAT).

PITTSBURGH (SEPT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Charles G. Carson III has been named general manager of tin mill products for the USS division of USX Corp. (NYSE: X), succeeding William M. Heenan Jr., who has been elected president of the Steel Can Recycling Institute here.

The appointment of Carson was announced by Thomas C. Graham, president of USS.

Carson, a native of Dothan, Ala., and a resident of Murrysville, Pa., has served since 1988 as manager of tin mill product marketing, development and technology for USS.

"Chuck Carson has broad-based expertise in all elements of our tin mill commercial efforts -- including product technical development, marketing and promotion strategies, and the industry's increasingly successful steel can recycling campaign," said Graham. "We congratulate Bill Heenan on his election as president of the SCRI -- where he'll do a fine job in a crucial post. We at USS are fortunate to have someone as capable as Chuck Carson ready to move up as general manager of tin mill products," Graham added.

Carson earned a bachelor's degree in chemistry from Williams College and master's and doctorate degrees in metallurgy from the Pennsylvania State University, where he was a United States Steel Foundation Fellow.

He joined USS in 1970 as a research engineer at the company's Research Center in Monroeville, Pa., and progressed through a series of technical and management positions. In 1985, Carson moved to USS Tin Mill Products as manager of product development.

He was next named manager of tin mill product technology and, in 1988, he was promoted to the post as manager of marketing, development and technology, which he leaves to assume his new duties as general manager.

An authority on the technology of tin mill products and production, Carson has presented numerous papers and talks on the technical and marketing aspects of that product line. He is active in a variety of trade associations, and in the domestic steel industry's steel can recycling effort.

HILLSIDE, ILL. (SEPT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Wallace Computer Services, Inc. (NYSE: WCS) today reported record earnings and sales for the fiscal year and fourth quarter ended July 31, 1990. Fiscal year 1990 represented the 29th consecutive year of increased earnings and sales for the company.

Net income for the 1990 fiscal year increased 7.3 percent to $39.6 million from $36.9 million in fiscal 1989. Earnings per share in the 1990 fiscal year were $1.86 compared with 1989 fiscal year earnings of $1.76, a 5.7 percent increase. Net sales for fiscal 1990 were $448.7 million, an increase of 4.6 percent from $429.0 million in the previous year.

For the 1990 fiscal fourth quarter, net income was $10.7 million, a 6.6 percent increase over 1989 fiscal fourth quarter income of $10.0 million. Earnings per share in the 1990 fiscal fourth quarter were 50 cents compared with 48 cents in the previous year's period. Sales for the 1990 fiscal fourth quarter were $112.1 million, a 2.2 percent increase over 1989 fiscal fourth quarter sales of $109.7 million.

"Fiscal 1990 was perhaps the toughest year we have been through, even though we posted our 29th consecutive year of increased sales and earnings " said Ted Dimitriou, chairman and chief executive officer of Wallace.

"Our Business Forms Division, Label Division and Wallace Press performed well although not reaching sales dollar goals. Our TOPS(R) Division and Direct Mail Division posted poor results in fiscal 1990. Results for fiscal 1990 are due to unstable paper prices, a change in the way office products are marketed and severe competitive pricing."

Wallace Computer Services, Inc. is a leader in the computer services and supply industry. The company's products and services include business

AUSTIN, TX (SEPT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - SEMATECH announced today the signing of a contract with Applied Materials, Inc. of Santa Clara, Calif., and National Semiconductor Corp. for an Equipment Improvement Program (EIP) to evaluate Applied Materials' blanket tungsten chemical vapor deposition (WCVD) system.

The long-term scientific study of the WCVD system will be conducted at National Semiconductor's Fairchild Research Center in Santa Clara.

Tungsten hexafluoride is the source gas used in tungsten CVD systems, and is one of the most expensive semiconductor process gases. Tungsten gas is used in deposition -- the process of depositing metals or refractories between the layers of semiconductor wafers for dielectric applications.

U.S. Rep. Norman Y. Mineta (D-Calif.), praised the development. "This is another fine example of SEMATECH's unique ability to work with the U.S. semiconductor industry to help it maintain its technological pre-eminence. It's good news for America, and good news for America's international competitiveness."

"These programs are intended to focus on existing equipment used in semiconductor manufacturing," explained Dr. Turner E. Hasty, chief operating officer of SEMATECH. "SEMATECH studies the current capabilities of selected equipment in the context of immediate and short-term needs of semiconductor manufacturers. SEMATECH then works with the equipment manufacturer to facilitate identified improvements."

"We introduced the Precision 5000 WCVD in 1989. Its selection for this program underscores the significant range of potential applications for this system," said Jim Bagley, president of Applied Materials. "We welcome this opportunity to demonstrate the system's full range of capabilities while working with SEMATECH and National Semiconductor to improve the U.S. semiconductor industry's manufacturing technology."

Klaus Feldmeier, manager of technical support, will act as Applied Materials' project manager on the EIP. He will be assisted by a full-time process engineer and other staff on a part-time basis, said Moris Kori, Applied Materials' product manager for tungsten/metal CVD. Data obtained from the EIP will be shared with SEMATECH members.

SEMATECH, a consortium of 14 American semiconductor manufacturers and the U.S. Department of Defense, has the mission of restoring U.S. semiconductor manufacturing leadership capability.

LOS ANGELES (SEPT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Night Flight Entertainment Inc., (OTC "Pink Sheets") announced today that it has formed a wholly owned subsidiary, Binder Communications Inc., to be run by nationally recognized producer-director Steve Binder, according to Jeff Franklin and Steve Waterman, co-chairmen of Night Flight.

Night Flight also acquired the rights to exclusively distribute certain Binder-produced and or controlled television programs.

"Night Flight's creation of Binder Communications Inc., begins to position Night Flight as an emerging growth entertainment entity," Franklin said. "Also, Binder is a major established independent player in the entertainment industry. This is our first move to build a company of established and profitable entertainment entities."

Night Flight Entertainment Inc., a public company traded in the Pink Sheets, produces television programs for network, cable and syndication. It has an existing, extensive film library containing more than 3,000 hours of programs, many of which have played in worldwide territories on broadcast and cable television including the USA Network. Night Flight will be broadcasting its current weekly two-hour late night show to more than 80 markets in the United States beginning Sept. 29, 1990.

"Night Flight is a proven winner with a proven track record," Franklin said. "We intend to acquire television and motion picture libraries, manage these programs, and secure appropriate distribution and syndication arrangements. Binder Communications is the first line on our blueprint to success."

Franklin is one of the largest independent television producers in America. He also founded American Talent International Ltd., in 1970, one of the top three concert booking agencies in the world, which he sold to International Creative Management in 1985.

Franklin has been an agent for superstars Neil Young, Bob Seger, John Cougar Mellencamp, KISS and scores of others. Franklin was also co-founder of Casablanca Records and Filmworks with Neil Bogart and Peter Guber.

Steve Binder will function as president and chief executive officer of Binder Communications Inc. Binder has produced and directed for more than 25 years. He is widely known in the entertainment industry and has won both Emmy and ACE awards. Examples of his production credits include "Pee Wee's Playhouse," "The Emmy Awards" from 1980 through 1984, several Diana Ross specials including, "Diana Ross in Central Park," and the "Elvis '68 Comeback Special."

DALLAS (SEPT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - American Airlines has denounced a decision announced today by the Federal Aviation Administration that grants United Airlines special scheduling privileges at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport.

American said that the FAA action is a blatant example of unlawful agency favoritism and reflects a flagrant disregard of the agency's legal obligations. American said it would immediately file suit with the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington to overturn the decision.

Since 1969, takeoffs and landings at O'Hare, as well as at JFK, LaGuardia and Washington National, have been regulated by the FAA's High Density Slot Rules. The purpose is to reduce air traffic congestion at these airports by assigning a specific number of slots, or departure and arrival times, during designated half-hour or one-hour intervals.

The FAA's ruling gives United permission to operate at times other than when it holds slots for a period in excess of three months, beginning Oct. 1, 1990, and ending Jan. 15, 1991.

From time to time, during the past several years, the FAA has conducted meetings with all carriers serving a particular slot-controlled airport to formulate industry-wide agreements allowing all carriers certain scheduling flexibility.

"Never, before today," said American, "has the FAA unilaterally granted one carrier, and one carrier only, a special dispensation from the slot rules."

"The FAA's decision blesses a 'sweetheart' deal struck behind closed doors in August between the FAA and United and allows the Chicago-based carrier to leapfrog American's schedules at O'Hare at critical times of the day," said Anne H. McNamara, American's senior vice president and general counsel. "This outrageous action by the FAA gives United, already the dominant carrier at O'Hare, an unfair and illegal competitive advantage."

McNamara said American learned of this secret deal on Aug. 17 and objected the same day. The FAA responded by convening, on less than 24 hours' notice, an "industry" meeting in Washington on Aug. 24. At that meeting, the FAA insisted that American respond in only three and one-half days to a "proposal" from United allowing that carrier to deviate substantially from the slot rules. Further, the FAA refused to permit American or any other carrier to submit any counter-proposals.

"This discriminatory treatment of American and other carriers serving Chicago cannot be justified on any grounds," McNamara said. "While today's action by the FAA is billed as needed to deal with a supposed increase in congestion at O'Hare, it is clearly not American which has caused any problem that might exist. American's schedules are in strict compliance with the high density slot rules. It is United's which are not.

"To the extent that there is any congestion problem at O'Hare, it can be solved very easily, and lawfully, by making all carriers, and not just United's competitors, abide by the FAA's rules," McNamara said. "If the FAA does not believe that strict compliance with its own rules works, then it should follow a lawful process to reshape those rules rather than accord privileged treatment to a single airline."

As confirmation that there has been a pre-existing private arrangement for some time between United and the FAA, American noted that United published on Aug. 27 schedules based upon the FAA, American noted that United published on Aug. 27 schedules based upon the FAA approval which it received today. On Aug. 27, American won a temporary restraining order in U.S. District Court in Fort Worth that compelled United to withdraw those schedules and substitute others that it could lawfully fly.

"Unless this decision by the FAA is vacated immediately, American will suffer severe competitive injury at O'Hare," McNamara said.

SOUTHFIELD, MICH. (SEPT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - D.O.C Optics Corporation (NASDAQ: DOCO) announced today the grand opening of D.O.C SportVision(TM) in Royal Oak, Mich., at the southwest corner of Woodward Avenue and 14 Mile Road.

D.O.C SportVision is a new concept in optical and sports accessories retailing created by D.O.C Optics Corporation. "It's the country's first-ever store devoted exclusively to meeting the needs of pro and amateur athletes, as well as the everyday sports enthusiast with eyewear and accessories designed to enhance performance in all sports, protect eyes from injuries and offer the latest in styles. It's unlike anything else we or any other optical retailer in this country has ever done," explained Richard S. Golden, president and chief executive officer of D.O.C Optics Corporation.

"It's always been D.O.C's history and culture to experiment with breakthrough marketing and retailing concepts that will best meet with customers' needs. D.O.C SportVision maintains that tradition by being the first store concept to completely fulfill the diverse and highly specialized eyewear needs of the sports market," Golden said.

D.O.C SportVision is expected to create a new market demand by bringing together previously fragmented groups of consumers into one product category. Three main consumer niches are expected to make up the store's customer base: (1) The serious athlete or avid sports enthusiast looking for performance, acuity and function; (2) the "trendy" consumer buying designer names and stylish or high-tech products; and (3) the "practical" buyer looking for safety and value.

D.O.C SportVision is an optical retail concept committed to improving its customers' sports vision needs by offering the most innovative products and eyecare. It is owned by Southfield-based D.O.C Optics Corporation, one of the nation's largest optical retailing chains.

D.O.C Optics Corporation's common stock is traded on the over-the- counter market, under the NASDAQ symbol DOCO. Systemwide sales for 1989 were $49,512,000, the highest ever achieved by D.O.C Optics Corporation.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - QVC Network Inc. (NASDAQ: QVCN), has announced that Emmy Award-winning television personality Joan Rivers has selected the QVC cable shopping channel to launch her new line of fashion jewelry.

The announcement was made at a press conference yesterday at New York's Plaza Hotel.

In making the announcement, Rivers said, "I think QVC is a wonderful way for people to shop for great products at terrific prices. I know, because I've shopped with QVC myself and I love it."

According to Joseph M. Segel, QVC chairman and chief executive officer, the Joan Rivers Classics Collection of fine fashion jewelry will be personally introduced by Rivers during a special, three-hour QVC program to be broadcast on Saturday, Sept. 29, from 9 p.m. to midnight, Eastern time (6-9 p.m., Pacific time).

"We're very happy that Joan Rivers has chosen QVC to launch her wonderful jewelry collection," Segel said. "We think her selection of QVC says a lot about televised shopping as a retailing force...and about QVC's position as America's premier cable shopping channel."

Rivers added, "I'm especially excited about introducing my jewelry collection on QVC because I can introduce it myself, in my own words, to women all over America."

The QVC shopping channel is broadcast live, 24 hours a day, seven days a week. QVC currently reaches more than 34 million cable homes as well as nearly 3 million satellite dish owners across the entire United States, from Hawaii to the Caribbean.

ATLANTA, (SEPT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Contel Corp. (NYSE: CTC) today announced that it has signed a letter of intent to sell its Contel Office Communications subsidiary to OPUS Telecom Corp.

Terms of the proposed sale were not disclosed. Contel in June announced it had engaged Atlanta-based Focus Associates Inc. to seek a buyer for Contel Office communications, a subsidiary that serves more than 1,100 customers with more than 50,000 lines in 14 major metropolitan areas. Contel Office Communications is the largest provider of shared telecommunications services to tenants of high-rise office buildings and is a leading manager of customer-owned telecommunications systems.

OPUS Telecom Corp. is a privately held Atlanta-based firm that provides facilities management of telecommunications products and systems for medium and large business customers located primarily in the Southeast U.S.

The proposed sale is subject to the negotiation and execution of a definitive purchase agreement, expected by mid-October, and review by state and federal regulatory agencies. The transaction is expected to close by year-end 1990. No material effect on Contel's consolidated financial results is expected.

Contel, a company with more than $3 billion in revenues and sales, provides a broad range of telecommunications products and services.

AKRON, OHIO (SEPT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - AT&T and TRZ Sports Services, Inc. announced today the introduction of TRZ's Telephone Broadcast Service, an 800 telephone number service that allows fans to listen to live play-by-play radio broadcasts of 30 college and 22 NFL football teams' games during the 1990 season.

TRZ's Telephone Broadcast Service is an interactive voice response service that uses AT&T CONVERSANT(r) 2 Systems technology in conjunction with AT&T 800 service. Through this innovative service, fans dial the specific AT&T 800 number for their favorite team on a touch-tone phone, enter their Visa or Mastercard number and expiration date and are connected to a live broadcast of their team's game from anywhere in the United States or Canada exclusively on the AT&T long distance network.

This past weekend, TRZ handled calls for 26 college games and 17 NFL games during opening of the NFL season. The response to this service was excellent.

TRZ provides the 800 service while fans are billed from 20 cents to 50 cents per minute for the service. Using a declining rate card, fans pay less per minute the longer they listen. The cost of listening to a game for three hours will be $36.50. Fans can get the phone number for their favorite team by calling the TRZ Telephone Broadcast Service Information Line at 1-800-CALL-321 or national newspaper advertisements.

"This service attracts displaced sports fans who move away from home but remain loyal to their old teams, those who are traveling and have access to a pay phone, a car phone or a hotel phone, but have no live access to those games via radio or television," said Thomas Zawistowski, president of TRZ Sports Services, Inc.

"AT&T has been responsive and innovative in their approach to making this technology work for my business," he added. "As a result, this service has the potential to be very successful."

TRZ Sports Services, Inc. is the largest distributor of live telephone broadcast services in the country. TRZ successfully instituted this exciting telecommunications technology last spring during the 1990 National Invitational Tournament and the 1990 NHL Stanley Cup playoffs.

MINNEAPOLIS (SEPT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Infinite Graphics Incorporated today announced year-end results for the fiscal year ended April 30, 990.

The fiscal 1990 year-end results showed a net loss of $2,592,212 or a loss of $1.17 per share on sales of $4,603,719. This is in comparison to a net loss of $1,052,603 or 47 cents per share on sales of $6,049,122 in fiscal 1989.

Sales for the fourth quarter were $823,533 compared to $1,272,554 for the same quarter last year. The company reported a fourth quarter net loss of $1,389,804 or 63 cents per share compared to a net loss of $661,360 or 30 cents per share in the fourth quarter a year ago.

The Engineering Services Division sales increased 1 percent during fiscal 1990, paralleling the general electronics industry. Sales for the Engineering Services Division were $2,672,000 in fiscal 1990 compared to $2,647,000 in 1989. Software Systems Division sales declined 43 percent to $1,932,000 in fiscal 1990 versus $3,402,000 in 1989.

The company realized in the middle of the fiscal year that planned sales for its mechanical software on the MacIntosh platform were not going to materialize. Based upon this, the company implemented expense reductions and focused on generating more revenue from the precision graphics market by opening a sales and small production office in New Hampshire to service the Boston marketplace.

Infinite Graphics Incorporated is a total solutions precision graphics company that has served the engineering and manufacturing marketplace since 1969. Infinite Graphics develops and markets engineering graphics services and products for precision graphics and printed circuit board: manufacturing, design and testing. Headquartered in Minneapolis, the company markets its services and products in the United States, Canada, and Western Europe.

LOS ANGELES (SEPT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - ARCO (NYSE: ARC) announced today it has entered into an agreement with the State of Alaska resolving all major claims relating to royalty issues on ARCO's Alaskan North Slope crude oil production dating back to 1977.

Under the agreement, ARCO will pay the State $287 million. Based on a previously established reserve, the settlement will result in an after-tax charge of approximately $25 million in ARCO's 1990 third quarter.

The settlement agreement resolves all major claims regarding ARCO's North Slope oil production that were raised by the State in ongoing royalty litigation which originated in 1977 with a lawsuit against all North Slope oil producers.

In addition, the agreement provides a methodology for calculating future oil royalties on most of the company's current Alaskan North Slope leases. "This methodology is intended to reduce the potential for future conflict and provide an effective means of resolving issues," said William E. Wade Jr., vice chairman of the board of directors of ARCO Alaska Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of Los Angeles-based ARCO.

"As a result of the settlement negotiations, substantial progress was made not only in resolving the royalty issues in dispute, but also in promoting the development and nurturing of better communications and constructive working relationships between ARCO and the State of Alaska.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - AT&T announced today it has installed public telephones at a temporary tent city at Rhein-Main Air Force Base in West Germany so service men and women stopping over on their way to the Middle East can call home.

Installation of the six telephones in a portable room is part of a contract AT&T won last spring to provide public telephones and AT&T's USADirect(R) Service to military bases in eight European countries. In addition to the six phones for the tent city, up to 18 phones will be installed elsewhere at Rhein-Main.

AT&T said it accelerated work at Rhein-Main and decided to add phones when the base became one of the main refueling stops for planes carrying Middle East-bound service personnel. Until now, callers using the public phones at Rhein-Main had to have a pocketful of German coins -- scarce among those just passing through -- making the phones virtually useless.

But the new phones are set up so service men and women hit only one button to give them instant access to USADirect Service, which directly connects the caller to an AT&T operator in the U.S., avoiding the inconvenience of using foreign coins and the language difficulties of communicating with foreign operators.

"We're delighted to give these men and women a chance to speak to loved ones during their brief stops at Rhein-Main," said Keith Springen, vice president-international, for AT&T Federal Systems. "And this couldn't have happened so fast without a great deal of cooperation between AT&T and the military people who helped get this project moving."

"Being able to call home from a tent city is something service men and women don't expect so they really appreciate it," said Lt. Col. Mike Reagan, Commander, 435th Service Squadron. "We're delighted AT&T moved so quickly to get the phones installed. Now we can offer not only a hot shower and a place to sleep, but a call home."

AT&T was awarded a three-year contract in march by the Army-Air Force Exchange

Service to establish calling centers at U.S. military installations in Germany Italy, the Netherlands, Belgium, Spain, United Kingdom, Greece and Turkey.

PLYMOUTH MEETING, PA. (SEPT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Charter Power Systems Inc. (AMEX: CHP) has announced that net income for its second fiscal quarter, ended July 31, 1990, rose 84 percent to a record $1,372,000 or 24 cents a share, from $744,000 or 13 cents a share, earned in the second quarter of 1989.

Sales for the period increased 6 percent to a record $42.6 million from $40 million in the prior year.

"Although slow economic activity is affecting the industries we serve, technical manufacturing improvements, production and purchasing efficiencies, targeted marketing and sales successes and changes in late 1989 to a new debt structure, all implemented by management, have helped produce the improved results for Charter Power," stated Robert Alvine, the company's chairman and chief executive officer.

For the six months, net income rose 95 percent to a record $2,714,000 or 48 cents a share, up from $1,395,000 or 25 cents a share, compared to the same period in the previous year. Sales for the first half of the fiscal year were a record $83.1 million, 5 percent higher than sales of $79.5 million reported in the first six months of last year.

"The foundation for this strong performance was higher standby power sales for both the three- and six-month periods, coupled with a second quarter increase in motive power sales that offset a decline in the first quarter. Our standby power results were even more impressive, because they were achieved despite our continuing to provide for rebates against current sales as a result of the Round Cell contract extension terms still under discussion with AT&T," Alvine said.

The company's net cash flows provided by operating activities for the six months ended July 31, 1990, were $6,852,000, down moderately from the record performance in the same period a year ago. For the seventh consecutive quarter, long-term debt was reduced, reaching a record low of $43,058,000. This combined with more favorable terms negotiated last year and lower rates, lowered the company's interest expense by 28 percent to $1,115,000 from $1,549,000 during the same period last year.

"Increasing overall economic weakness in the U.S. and Canadian economies is expected to affect second half results, but our enhanced operational effectiveness should mitigate the impact of this weakness on the company's performance," added Alvine.

PLYMOUTH, MINN. (SEPT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - In Home Health, Inc. (NASDAQ: IHHI) today announced that the Arizona State Board of Pharmacy has granted the company's request for a provisional pharmacy license. This will allow the company to provide pharmacy services for home infusion therapies. The infusion pharmacy will be located in the same building as the company's Tempe, Ariz., branch and is expected to begin serving patients around Oct. 15, 1990.

As a result of the growth and expansion in the Phoenix market during fiscal 1990, the company plans to open a second office located in the west area of Phoenix on Oct. 1, making it the 10th branch of In Home Health, Inc. The Tempe branch became the company's largest during fiscal 1990, growing from $700,000 in revenue in fiscal 1988 to over $3.5 million in revenue in fiscal 1990. The new infusion pharmacy will serve both the Tempe and west Phoenix branches.

Richard Smith, MS, RPh will become general manager-Infusion for the Phoenix and Tempe branches effective Sept. 17, 1990. His initial responsibilities will include assisting with the initial pharmacy setup and sales and marketing of infusion services in the Phoenix-Tempe market.

Smith comes to In Home Health, Inc. with more than eight years experience in the management and supervision of a local hospital pharmacy. He started that hospital's infusion team, which is comprised of pharmacist and nurses and has become a model for other hospitals.

Smith has a bachelor of science degree in pharmacy and a masters degree in hospital pharmacy from the University of Arizona, Tucson. He is a member of the American Society of Hospital Pharmacists, the American Pharmaceutical Association, the Arizona Pharmaceutical Association and a fellow of the American Association of Consultive Pharmacists.

In Home Health, Inc. provides quality home health care to people of all ages in their own homes. Home health care is currently a $12 billion industry in the United States and is expected to grow to $30 billion by the mid 1990s.

FORT LAUDERDALE, FLA. (SEPT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Ronald A. Cass, chairman of Hospital Staffing Services, Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: HSSI), today announced that the company's recently acquired home healthcare operation, Alternative Care Medical Services, is experiencing strong growth in its key Florida market. Cass noted that the division, which had annualized sales of approximately $27 million when acquired in July of 1990, is projected to contribute in excess of $35 million to Hospital Staffing Services' revenues in fiscal year 1991. Cass further stated that he expects Alternative Care Medical Services to make a strong positive contribution to the company's profits during fiscal 1991.

Alternative Care Medical Services' strong growth is due, in large part, to significant increases in activity at the division's three South Florida home healthcare offices. Skilled visits from the three offices combined now total approximately 12,000 visits per month, as compared to less than 1,000 visits at the time of the division's acquisition. This unusually rapid increase in activity is largely attributable to a tremendous rise in the amount of Medicare business conducted by each of these offices, which stems from Hospital Staffing's long term position in and familiarity with the South Florida healthcare market.

Hospital Staffing Services also announced that it recently signed an agreement with the Pacific Health Alliance (PHA), an association of approximately 30 member hospitals in Northern California, whereby the company will serve as the primary supplier of local supplemental nurse staffing to PHA member hospitals. In order to meet the current and projected demand, Hospital Staffing has already opened a new staffing office in Sacramento, Calif. and plans to open an office in San Jose, Calif. during September and one in Walnut Creek during November. This will bring the total number of offices in California to seven although additional offices are planned to be opened in fiscal 1991.

Commenting further, Leonard J. Cass, president of Hospital Staffing Services, said, "Alternative Care Medical Services' share of the Medicare market has increased dramatically since we acquired the division two months ago and we expect these increases to continue throughout the next year. Starting from a base of nearly zero, Medicare now accounts for a majority of the business being conducted by each of our South Florida offices. As such, we expect these three offices alone to contribute between $2.5 and $3 million to our total revenues during the five month period from July through the end of our fiscal year. Just as importantly, we were also able to quickly secure Medicare approval to be paid under its 'Periodic Interim Payment' (PIP) system which, by virtue of its bi-weekly payment cycle, materially shortens the payment cycle for Medicare related business. We anticipate substantial Medicare growth in our other Alternative Care offices in fiscal 1991, ultimately reaching 40-50 percent of Alternative Care's total revenues. In addition, it should be noted the Alternative Care Medical Services division is currently generating positive cash flow.

"The agreement we have signed with the Pacific Health Alliance," Cass continued, "actually represents two important new sources of growth for the company. First, we will be able to significantly increase our presence in the temporary nurse staffing business. Second, as we build strong relationships with each PHA member hospital, we hope to expand the home healthcare side of the business as we will be in a position to offer the same high level of care to each hospital's home-bound patients that we will be providing to their admitted patients.

In this respect, it is important to note that, in most instances, the hospital administrator who is responsible for staff relief referrals also has responsibility for home nursing referrals. Our principal thrust for fiscal 1991 will be to increase and consolidate the South Florida and California markets by our ability to present a diversified, but interrelated product offering, including local supplemental staffing, travel nurses and home healthcare services.

"Finally," Cass concluded, "we are proud to report that we have largely completed the process of automating and decentralizing the payroll and billing operations at each of Alternative Care's branch offices. In addition to significantly reducing corporate overhead, it will allow us to lower the average collection time on outstanding accounts receivable."

Hospital Staffing Services, Inc. is a leading professional recruitment and home healthcare services organization specializing in the placement of medical personnel, on a temporary, interim and permanent basis, in hospitals and other healthcare facilities located throughout the United States, Canada and the United Kingdom; and the provision of nursing services to patients at home and in healthcare institutions through a national network of home healthcare offices.

#90255p3980 09/12/1990 ~PR Newswire

BRISTOL, VA (SEPT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Assets of Charter Federal Savings Bank (NASDAQ: CHFD) totaled $918 million at June 30, 1990, as compared with $1.1 billion at June 30, 1989. The reduction in total assets is called for in the Savings Bank's Business Plan. Stockholders' equity was $31.3 million at June 30, 1990 and $38.8 million at June 30, 1989. Book value per share was $8.57 at June 30, 1990 and $10.62 at Juen 30, 1989.

Charter Federal announced a net loss of $6.6 million or $1.81 per share on 3,656,297 average shares outstanding for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1990, as compared with a net loss of $5.3 million or $1.44 per share on 3,653,447 average shares outstanding for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1989. A net loss of $1.2 million or 32 cents per share on 3,656,297 average shares outstanding was incurred in the fourth quarter of fiscal 1990, while $2.7 million or 73 cents per share on 3,653,447 average shares outstanding was lost in the same quarter of fiscal 1989.

"Charter Federal's performance in fiscal 1990 was disappointing, but we are encouraged by the improvements realized in the last six months of the year over the first six months. Of the $6.6 million loss for the year, only $9,000 was lost in the last two quarters," said Chairman and Chief Executive Officer E.L. Byington, Jr. The primary causes of the fiscal 1990 loss were (a) provisions for loan losses and reserves totaling approximately $3.9 million relating mostly to the credit card portfolio which was sold in the third quarter, (b) the loss resulting from an embezzlement scheme, the discovery of which was disclosed in a news release in July 1990, and (c) the continued narrowing of the spread between cost of funds and the yield on earning assets resulting from the high level of competition in Charter Federal's market area and general economic conditions.

With regard to the embezzlement scheme, Byington said that the total aggregate amount lost was approximately $1.5 million, and that because the scheme had been carried out over a period of years, the financial statements for those years, including 1985 through 1989, had been re-stated to reflect the losses incurred through that scheme for each of those years. $450,000 of the total loss was attributed to fiscal 1990 and was recognized during the fourth quarter. "Although generally accepted accounting principles required us to charge off this total loss as soon as it was discovered, the Board and management of Charter Federal believe strongly that the fidelity bond insurance maintained by the Savings Bank should rightly compensate it for the loss, and we are vigorously pursuing all avenues to full recovery of the loss, less the deductible," said Byington.

Charter Federal is continuing to follow the Business plan filed with the Office of Thrift Supervision ("OTS") in March 1990, although the Plan has not yet been acted on by the regulators. The Savings Bank does not presently meet the three new capital standards established by the Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery and Enforcement Act which became law in August 1989. The Board and management continue to be confident that, if OTS approves the Business Plan, and if general economic conditions do not radically deteriorate Charter Federal can be brought into compliance with all regulatory capital requirements by the Plan target date of December 31, 1992. The Plan calls for (a) significant reduction of operating expenses, which have declined noticeably since implementation of the Plan, (b) reduction of assets to $783 million by December 1994, (c) elimination of high cost funding, (d) restructuring of certain high cost operations for greater efficiency, and (e) obtaining an infusion of new capital. "We have made significant progress in pursuit of these goals since the inception of the Plan earlier this year, and we will continue to focus our attention on bringing those goals to full fruition," said Byington.

Charter Federal, which began operation in 1920, is a federally-chartered stock Savings Bank headquartered in Bristol, Virginia, with 34 offices throughout Southwest and Southside Virginia and the Knoxville, Tennessee area.

BOSTON (SEPT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Workingmens Corporation (NASDAQ: WCBK), the parent company of Workingmens Cooperative Bank, today announced results and related financial data for the first quarter ended July 31, 1990. The corporation reported a loss of $7.7 million or $6.42 per share, compared to earnings of $195,000 or 16 cents per share for the same period last year.

The loss for the quarter is due primarily to an increase in provision for possible loan losses by the corporation's subsidiary, Workingmens Cooperative Bank, and writedowns and losses on other real estate owned and acquisition, development and construction loans which amounted to $8.0 million for the quarter. Real estate owned totaled $9.1 million and non-performing loans were $13.5 million at July 31, 1990.

President and Chief Executive Officer John E. McDonald, said, "The additional reserves and writedowns were taken as a result of the continuing review by management of our construction, residential and commercial real estate loan portfolio, our acquisition, development and construction loans and our real estate owned."

"The primary focus of our efforts will continue to be towards the resolution of our non-performing loans and real estate owned. Although we are working diligently to improve the bank's performance, the timely and successful disposition of properties will be dependent upon market conditions which are beyond our control," said McDonald.

Consolidated assets of Workingmens Corporation were $241.7 million on July 31, 1990, as compared to $248.1 million at April 30, 1990. The book value per share was $11.04.

Workingmens Corporation is the holding company for Workingmens Cooperative Bank, a Massachusetts chartered co-operative bank with five offices in Greater Boston. The bank's deposits are insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) and the Share Insurance Fund (SIF) of the Co-operative Central Bank.

Workingmens Corporation is traded in the NASDAQ system under the symbol WCBK.

BOISE, IDAHO (SEPT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - William J. Agee, president, chairman and chief executive officer of Morrison Knudsen Corp. (MK) (NYSE: MRN) today announced that MK has acquired CF Systems Corp., a Boston-based advanced environmental technology firm.

MK purchased CF Systems from Arthur D. Little Inc., Environmental Systems Co. and 17 individual stockholders.

Agee said that CF Systems has developed several technologies for reduction and remediation of hazardous wastes. "This acquisition affords MK the capability of significantly expanding our already major involvement in serving the hazardous waste industry through our Environmental Services Group," Agee said.

The uniqueness of CF Systems' primary technology is the ability to extract harmful contaminants and recycle other products, such as water, oil or grease, back to the manufacturing or refining process by a totally enclosed solvent extraction system operating at ambient temperature.

EPA has designated the solvent extraction system as an acceptable Best Developed Available Technology (BDAT) for remediation of petroleum sludges.

PRINCETON, N.J. (SEPT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - The Liposome Company, Inc. (NASDAQ: LIPO) announced today the appointment of James G. Andress to its board of directors. Andress is the former chairman of the pharmaceuticals group, Beecham Group, Plc and the former president and chief operating officer of Sterling Drug, Inc. He fills a new board seat created through the expansion of the current board from seven to eight members.

Andress began his pharmaceutical career at Abbott Laboratories, Inc., in 1974. During his ten years with the company, he held several positions which included responsibility for the Canadian and the Pacific & Far East operations. He became president, Home Health Care Division in 1981. Andress served as president and chief operating officer for Sterling Drug, Inc. from 1984 to 1988. He left Sterling after its acquisition by Eastern Kodak Co., Inc. to become chairman, pharmaceuticals, of the Beechman Group, Plc (United Kingdom).

Andress currently serves as president and chief executive officer of Information Resources, Inc., a consumer products marketing research company. He also serves as a director for Genelabs, Inc., Redwood, Calif., a biotechnology company.

"Jim Andress is an extremely valuable addition to our board of directors," commented Charles A. Baker, chairman of the board of The Liposome Company. "Two of our key objectives are making the transition into a fully integrated pharmaceutical company and the formation of corporate alliances with major pharmaceutical companies. With Jim's knowledge of all aspects of the business and his contacts throughout the pharmaceutical industry, we expect that he will be a real help to us in meeting these objectives."

Earlier this year, The Liposome Company announced the appointment of Dr. Horst Witzel, former chairman of the board of executive directors of Schering AG, Berlin (West Germany) to its board.

The largest company dedicated exclusively to the development of liposome-based pharmaceuticals, The Liposome Company is primarily focused on developing advanced liposomal drugs for the treatment of cancer and serious infectious diseases.

RIVERWOODS, ILL. (SEPT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Sears Mortgage Corp. (SMC) announced today that it has acquired the $6.7 billion residential mortgage servicing portfolio of Southeast Mortgage Co. (SEMCO) and five of SEMCO's loan origination offices in Florida. Pursuant to a formula agreed upon by the parties, the purchase price for the SEMCO assets will result in a payment in excess of $100 million.

The five Florida loan origination offices are located in Ft. Lauderdale, Ft. Myers, Jacksonville, Kendall/Miami and Lake Worth (West Palm Beach). Prior to the acquisition, SMC had nine loan origination offices in Florida. Some 28 SEMCO loan officers will also move to SMC as part of the acquisition.

Additionally, beginning Nov. 1, SMC will operate a servicing facility in the SEMCO headquarters building in Miami. It will be staffed by approximately 25 former SEMCO employees who will provide collection and customer service functions for the combined Florida and Georgia SMC mortgage loan servicing portfolio, a total of some 83,000 loans.

Each SMC office will offer a complete line of conventional, FHA and VA mortgage loans, including 15- and 30-year fixed rate as well as adjustable loans. Jumbo loans will also be offered.

SMC offices will offer a variety of mortgage loan programs, including: ApprovalFirst(SM), which provides the home shopper with approval for a specific monthly home payment before house hunting; Sears National Accelerated Processing (SNAP), which guarantees 14-day processing on conventional loans, given certain documentation; and a personalized computer analysis to compare mortgage options.

In explaining the acquisition, SMC Chairman and President Walter C. Klein, Jr. said, "Florida is one of the fastest growing residential areas in the country. This acquisition will allow SMC to extend our quality service to many more customers."

Klein explained that "The acquisition is consistent with our strategic plan to reinforce the Coldwell Banker Real Estate Group and the Sears, Roebuck and Co. commitment to building SMC as an industry leader, not only in mortgage loan production, but in mortgage loan servicing as well."

With the acquisition, SMC's portfolio will include more than 190,000 mortgage loans totaling nearly $14 billion, and the company's network of branches in 33 states will include 100 retail mortgage origination locations.

Sears Mortgage Corp., based in Riverwoods, Ill., is a wholly owned subsidiary of the Coldwell Banker Real Estate Group and a business unit of Sears, Roebuck and Co. (NYSE: S).

LONDON (SEPT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Robert Maxwell, chairman of Maxwell Communications, today issued the following statement at the annual general meeting held in the rotunda, Mirror Building, Holborn, London, ECIM 2NE on Wednesday Sept. 12, 1990.

At a well attended meeting of shareholders all resolutions were passed nem. com., and Maxwell speaking to shareholders on currant trading and prospects for the group including what measures the group plans in connection with reducing its present high level of gearing said:

"The company is in excellent health. Less than two months ago in my annual report to shareholders I was able to confirm:

"1. The successful restructuring of debt at interest rates of less than 10 percent and capped.

"2. The early repayment of $575 million of our short-term debt had already taken place.

"3. Our intention to further reduce the debt by sales of non- strategic businesses to the value of $800 million and surplus property to the value of

"I can now confirm that negotiations are well advanced in a number of transactions involving the disposal of non-strategic businesses which we expect to complete very shortly. We shall also shortly by repaying some $400 million of the remaining short term facility provided by our syndicate banks led by Credit Lyonnais had Swiss Bank Corporation on or before its due date Oct. 23, 1990.

"We do not enjoy being a highly leveraged business. We want to get back to being as we always have been, an equity led business.

"Over the last 18 months our achievements have been the successful acquisitions of Macmillan and OAG which have transformed this company from one where in 1988 it derived 2/3 of sales from printing to now being acknowledged amongst the world's top international publishers which has transformed the quality of earnings that MCC now enjoys.

"This has been strongly confirmed in our current trading position. "Our publishing and professional information operations are continuing to trade strongly particularly in North America which businesses now represent over 80 percent of our sales and assets and where profits from these operations are ahead of budget.

"This strength reflects the fact that we derive less than 10 percent of our revenues from businesses dependent on advertising which explains why we are 'bucking the trend' which is affecting many other publishers and provides support to our contention that Maxwell Communications now has arguably the finest quality of businesses in the publishing and professional information services industry.

"We are very confident that the fast changing international environment will present new opportunities to our existing businesses whose managers have the requisite skills and often unique experience to capitalize on these opportunities for the benefit of both shareholders and employees.

"My board and I are determined to bring down the gearing of this company of one to one or below just as quickly as possible and we are confident of being able to do so."

COLUMBUS, OH (SEPT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Lancaster Colony Corporation (NASDAQ: LANC) today reported record annual net sales with net sales for the year ended

June 30, 1990 totaling $504.9 million, a three percent increase over the fiscal 1989 total of $492.2 million. The 1990 net earnings of the company, which were impacted by a pretax litigation charge of $6,750,000, declined to $16,050,000 or $1.36 per share compared to $21,911,000 or $1.81 per share for fiscal 1989. Operating income of the company in fiscal 1990, however, showed improvement over fiscal 1989.

The litigation charge arose from a Sept. 11, 1990 ruling issued by the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington, D.C., involving patent litigation matters. The company is uncertain as to what further avenues of appeal, if any, it may pursue beyond this point. John B. Gerlach, president of Lancaster Colony, stated that the products which were the subject of the litigation are not significant to the company's ongoing business.

The results for the fourth quarter ended June 30, 1990 reflected a sales decrease of two percent compared to the quarter ended June 30, 1989 as current quarter sales totaled $126.2 million compared to $128.4 million a year ago. The current quarter results also include the litigation charge with net income for the fiscal 1990 fourth quarter amounting to $542,000 or $.05 per share vs. $6,226,000 or $.52 per share in the fiscal 1989 fourth quarter. Fourth quarter results were also adversely impacted by certain charges incurred to settle examinations of prior year tax returns.

CLEVELAND (SEPT. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Park Corporation, a Cleveland-based, privately held company, announced today it has signed a letter of intent to purchase Teledyne Ohio Steel, Lima, Ohio, for an undisclosed amount. The purchase will involve, in addition to the real estate and buildings, all the physical assets of the 71.4 acre facility including machinery and support equipment used in the production of iron, forged, and spin cast rolls for the steel industry. Teledyne had previously announced its decision to close the plant because of a decreasing market and declining product prices.

One of Park Corp.'s activities is industrial development, and it has long been active in the Lima, Ohio area. In 1965, Park purchased a facility from G. S. A. which, later, Park completely renovated and sold to Ex-Cell-O Corp. In 1967, Park also acquired the former Davidson Enameling facility in Lima which was renovated and subsequently sold as a continuing operation.

MOSCOW (SEPT 12) TASS - "WITH THE SIGNING OF THIS TREATY THAT DEMONSTRATED THE GOOD WILL OF ALL PARTICIPANTS, THE UNITED GERMANY GAINS SOVEREIGNTY OVER ITS INTERNAL AND FOREIGN AFFAIRS. WE PERCEIVE THIS SOVEREIGNTY AS A DUTY TO EUROPE," WEST GERMAN FOREIGN MINISTER HANS-DIETRICH GENSCHER SAID AT A JOINT NEWS CONFERENCE OF THE SIX-NATION FOREIGN MINISTERS HELD HERE UPON THE SIGNING OF A TREATY ON THE FINAL SETTLEMENT WITH RESPECT TO GERMANY.

GENSCHER EXPRESSED GRATITUDE TO THE PRESIDENTS OF THE USSR, THE UNITED STATES, FRANCE AND TO THE BRITISH PRIME MINISTER FOR THEIR CONTRIBUTION TO THE IMPLEMENTATION OF THIS PROCESS.

"GERMANS WANT THEIR NEW UNITY TO SERVE PEACE," GENSCHER SAID. "IN THE TREATY THAT WE CONCLUDE, WE GERMANS AFFIRM THAT ONLY PEACE WILL EMANATE FROM GERMAN SOIL. THE UNITED GERMANY'S POLICY WILL BE DEFINED BY THE COMMITMENT TO PEACE, FORMULATED IN THE WEST GERMAN CONSTITUTION AND IN THE UNIFICATION TREATY.

"WE WILL MAKE OUR CONTRIBUTION TO PEACE AND STABILITY IN EUROPE IN THIS SPIRIT. THE STATE UNITY OF GERMANY SIGNIFIES A GREAT RESPONSIBILITY FOR US RATHER THAN A DESIRE FOR GREATER POWER," GENSCHER EMPHASISED.

"OUR COMMON TASK IS TO ESTABLISH A NEW EUROPEAN ORDER. OUR RELATIONS WITH EAST EUROPEAN NEIGHBOURS AND ESPECIALLY THE SOVIET UNION ARE ASSUMING NEW IMPORTANCE. THE BULKY TREATY THAT SOVIET FOREIGN MINISTER EDUARD SHEVARDNADZE AND I WILL INITIAL IN MOSCOW WILL SERVE ALL THE AFORESAID. THIS IS A DAY OF JOY, A DAY OF MEMORY AND GRATITUDE FOR US," GENSCHER SAID.

GERMAN DEMOCRATIC REPUBLIC PRIME MINISTER AND FOREIGN MINISTER LOTHAR DE MAIZIERE SAID, IN TURN: "THE GERMAN UNITY OVERWHELMS THE GDR RESIDENTS AND ME PERSONALLY WITH JOY AND SATISFACTION. THE TREATY IS AN HISTORIC DOCUMENT THAT ADDS A STONE TO THE FOUNDATION OF THE EDIFICE OF A NEW EUROPE. OVERCOMING THE DIVISION OF GERMANY HELPS ELIMINATE THE POLARIZATION OF EUROPE. TODAY, EUROPE IS ENTERING ITS AGE OF PEACEABLENESS TRUST AND GOOD NEIGHBOURLINESS."

DE MAIZIERE EXPRESSED CONFIDENCE THAT THE FUTURE UNITED GERMANY WOULD BEGIN DEVELOPING ITS RELATIONS WITH EAST EUROPEAN NEIGBOURS EVEN MORE INTENSIVELY.

MOSCOW (SEPT 12) TASS - ADDRESSING A NEWS CONFERENCE HERE TODAY UPON THE COMPLETION OF THE "TWO PLUS FOUR" MEETING, U.S. SECRETARY OF STATE JAMES BAKER SAID THAT THE UNITED STATES HAD NEVER RULED OUT AND DID NOT RULE OUT NOW THE POSSIBILITY OF USING AN INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE TO SETTLE THE PALESTINIAN QUESTION.

ASKED IF THE FOREIGN MINISTERS NOW IN MOSCOW WERE PREPARED TO SOLVE COLLABORATIVELY THE PALESTINIAN PROBLEM AT THE UNITED NATIONS AS THE GULF CRISIS IS BEING SOLVED, BAKER NOTED THAT OVER SOME TIME IT WOULD POSSIBLY BE RIGHT TO BEGIN THIS PROCESS WITHIN THE FRAMEWORK OF THE GROUP OF FIVE PERMANENT MEMBERS OF THE SECURITY COUNCIL.

SOVIET FOREIGN MINISTER EDUARD SHEVARDNADZE ADDED THAT THE PALESTINIAN PROBLEM WAS DISCUSSED VERY THOROUGHLY AT THE SOVIET-U.S. WORKING SUMMIT IN HELSINKI. HE SAID THE SIDES REACHED THE UNDERSTANDING THAT ACTIVE CONSULTATIONS WOULD BE STARTED AT SOME STAGE TO ADVANCE A GLOBAL SETTLEMENT OF THE MIDDLE EASTERN PROBLEM.

SHEVARDNADZE SAID THAT THIS QUESTION WAS ALSO DISCUSSED AT TUESDAY'S MEETING WITH BAKER. ACCORDING TO SHEVARDNADZE, THEY REACHED THE CONCLUSION THAT WORK HAS TO BE INTENSIFIED BOTH ON THE BILATERAL AND MULTILATERAL BASIS TO REMOVE THE DANGERS AND THREATS EXISTING IN THE MIDDLE EAST AND ACHIEVE A JUST SOLUTION TO THE PALESTINIAN QUESTION.

MOSCOW (SEPT 12) TASS - PRESIDENT MIKHAIL GORBACHEV SAID ON WEDNESDAY WORK ON A COMMON PROGRAMME OF TRANSITION TO A MARKET HAD BEEN COMPLETED AND THE DOCUMENT HAD BEEN SENT TO THE SOVIET PARLIAMENT AND THE PARLIAMENTS OF UNION REPUBLICS.

IN A TELEVISED INTERVIEW, GORBACHEV SAID THE PROGRAMME IS BASED ON THE WORK OF A GROUP HEADED BY ACADEMICIAN SHATALIN. AT THE SAME TIME, HE NOTED THAT THIS IS "A DIFFERENT DOCUMENT", WHICH HAS ACCUMULATED MANY IDEAS CONTAINED IN THE GOVERNMENT PROGRAMME AND OTHER ALTERNATIVE PROGRAMMES.

THE PRESIDENT SAID THE DOCUMENT COMPRISES MANY PROPOSALS, VOICED BY UNION REPUBLICS.

THE CHOICE, WHICH IS TO BE MADE IS "NOT THE CHOICE MADE BY A MAN OR A GROUP OF MEN". IT SHOULD BE MADE BY THE WHOLE COUNTRY, THE PRESIDENT SAID.

ACCORDING TO GORBACHEV, IT WILL BE THE MOST DIFFICULT TRANSITION, COMPARED TO EVERYTHING THAT WAS DONE DURING ALL PERESTROIKA YEARS. HE NOTED TO THE NEED TO ENSURE SOCIAL PROTECTION OF THE POPULATION FROM CHALLENGES THAT IT WILL FACE ESPECIALLY ON THE FIRST STAGE OF THE TRANSITION TO A MARKET.

ASKED ABOUT HIS RECENT TELEPHONE CONTACTS WITH WEST GERMAN FEDERAL CHANCELLOR HELMUT KOHL, GORBACHEV SAID THEY HAD DISCUSSED "SPECIFIC" ISSUES CONNECTED WITH SIGNING A NEW BIG TREATY BETWEEN THE SOVIET UNION AND THE FUTURE UNITED GERMANY.

"ALL THAT WE HAVE ACCUMULATED DURING COOPERATION WITH THE TWO GERMAN STATES, SHOULD BE RETAINED AND DEVELOPED IN RELATIONS WITH THE UNITED GERMANY IN THE INTERESTS OF OUR TWO PEOPLES AND IN THE INTERESTS OF EUROPE AND THE WORLD", GORBACHEV SAID.

HE DESCRIBED AS "IMPORTANT" THE GERMAN LEADERSHIP'S STATEMENT THAT IT VIEWS SOVIET SERVICEMEN WHO WILL TEMPORARILY STAY ON GERMAN TERRITORY AS "REPRESENTATIVES OF A FRIENDLY COUNTRY".

MOSCOW (SEPT 13) TASS - SOVIET FOREIGN MINISTER EDUARD SHEVARDNADZE DESCRIBED THE RESULTS OF THE "TWO PLUS FOUR" TALKS THAT ENDED IN MOSCOW ON WEDNESDAY AS "AN HISTORIC, MAJOR EVENT IN WORLD HISTORY, WHICH IS OF IMMENSE IMPORTANCE TO THE FUTURE OF THE EUROPEAN PEOPLES AND THE SOVIET PEOPLE".

IN A SOVIET TELEVISION INTERVIEW BROADCAST IN THE PRIME TIME EVENING NEWS PROGRAMME VREMYA, SHEVARDNADZE SAID: "I THINK THAT WE HAVE MADE CORRECT, CONSIDERED AND JUST DECISIONS ON THE EXTERNAL ELEMENTS OF BUILDING GERMAN UNITY."

RECALLING THAT A BIG TREATY ON THE PRINCIPLES OF RELATIONS BETWEEN THE UNITED GERMANY AND THE SOVIET UNION WILL BE INITIALLED ON THURSDAY, SHEVARDNADZE EMPHASISED THAT, BY AND LARGE, SUCH STRUCTURES WERE BEING FORMED, WHICH MET THE INTERESTS OF ALL PEOPLE OF THE SOVIET UNION AS WELL AS THE INTERESTS OF ALL EUROPEAN STATES.

"THE ADOPTION OF THESE IMPORTANT AND COMPLEX DECISIONS BECAME POSSIBLE THANKS TO CHANGES THAT HAVE OCCURRED IN EUROPE AND ALL OVER THE WORLD ON THE BASIS OF NEW POLITICAL THINKING, ON THE BASIS OF THE PRINCIPLES THAT BEGAN TO UNDERLIE THE SOVIET UNION'S NEW FOREIGN POLICY," SHEVARDNADZE SAID.

APPRAISING THE "TWO PLUS FOUR" TALKS AND THEIR RESULTS, INCLUDING THEIR IMPORTANCE TO SOVIET-U.S. RELATIONS, SHEVARDNADZE SAID THAT THE MINISTERS WORKED IN THE ATMOSPHERE OF GOOD MUTUAL UNDERSTANDING.

"WE HAVE GAINED A UNIQUE EXPERIENCE, INCLUDING FROM THE POINT OF VIEW OF THE FURTHER IMPROVEMENT OF SOVIET-U.S. INTERACTION," SHEVARDNADZE STRESSED.

(SEPT. 12) UPI - The House voted Tuesday to temporarily keep the Navy from closing a port facility at Staten Island, New York. The move came during debate on the House Armed Services Committee's 283-BILLION-dollar version of the fiscal 1991 defense authorization bill. The panel is expected to vote Wednesday on getting other nations to pay more of the expense of keeping U-S troops based overseas.

A recent survey of mothers with young children has seemingly conflicting results. The Gallup poll of 803 mothers nationwide shows that four out of every five use disposible diapers. And a majority of them support recycling. Yet most of them said they'd rather recycle newspapers and plastics, build a compost pile or join a car pool than switch to cloth diapers. Two diaper industry-funded projects are under way to test the feasibility of reclaiming the paper and plastic used in disposibles.

#90255u0264 09/12/1990 ~United Press International
JOLIET, Ill. (SEPT. 12) UPI - Convicted double-murderer Charles Walker was executed by lethal injection early Wednesday - the first condemned man to be put to death by the state in nearly three decades.

Walker, 50, of Belleville, was pronounced dead 12:12 a.m., 11 minutes after executioners began administering the lethal combination of chemicals.

Walker looked straight at the 23 people witnessing the execution, until he found his minister, Jessie Mathes of the Jesus is the Way Prison Ministry of Champaign and then turned his gaze upward.

''Tell Jessie and tell Vi that I will see them later,'' Walker said to Warden Thomas Roth just before the lethal injection was started. ''You're a good man.''

It was unclear to whom Walker was referring when he mentioned Vi.

Walker appeared nervous, licking his lips frequently and moving his head from side to side four times. He closed his eyes, took four heavy breaths and then appeared to breathe very shallowly for about seven minutes until his breathing stopped altogether.

Walker had said he was ready to die and prefered death to life imprisonment. He was convicted and condemned in 1985 for the deaths of Kevin Paule and Sharon Winker. The couple had befriended Walker while all three were fishing along Silver Creek near Mascoutah. Walker shot the pair after robbing them of $40 for beer.

''I ain't never shed a tear - not for them I killed and not for me,'' Walker said at a 1988 news conference.

Walker was strapped to a gurney in a room that used to house the electric chair, the state's former method of execution. The death appeared peaceful with Walker seeming to be asleep before he stopped breathing.

Corrections spokesman Nic Howell said Mathes had met with Walker throughout the day and spent the final 30 minutes before the execution in Walker's cell.

''Charlie really hasn't changed much day. He's calm. He's collected. He's resigned ... Charlie has thought this thing out. It's something he's been looking for for five years now,'' Howell said.

Hundreds of protesters - both supporters and opponents of the death penalty - gathered outside Stateville Penitentiary as the execution took place.

Last-minute court action Tuesday failed to avert the first execution since 1962 when James Dukes was electrocuted in Chicago for killing a police officer.

Walker, an admitted alcoholic, rejected all appeals on his behalf and the courts ruled if he did not want to appeal his sentence, no one could do it for him.

Walker was served a last meal of fried wild rabbit, biscuits and blackberry pie about 5:30 p.m. He was the lone inmate in the cellhouse housing the execution chamber.

State troopers set up roadblocks and frisked demonstrators, who were then allowed to walk to a fenced-in area outside the prison walls, with death penalty opponents outnumbering those favoring execution by at least four-to-one.

Death penalty advocates cheered loudly as word filtered out that Walker was dead. Those against execution raised their candles in silent protest.

As the number of protesters increased, so did the intensity. Death penalty opponents stood silently with lit candles as execution advocates walked circles around them, singing ''Nah Nah, Hey Hey, Goodbye.''

Earlier in the day, a Cook County judge, the state Supreme Court and the U.S. Supreme Court rejected appeals for Walker.

The Supreme Court rejected an appeal filed by the MacArthur Justice Center. A spokesman for the court said the justices voted 6-1 to reject the request to delay the execution.

Gov. James R. Thompson Monday rejected a clemency petition filed on Walker's behalf, saying he saw no reason for mercy, although he said he would be available should Walker change his mind.

BANGKOK, Thailand (SEPT. 12) UPI - The Khmer Rouge guerrilla group has called on Cambodia government troops to desert because the recent peace agreement means the end of Vietnamese military backing for the Phnom Penh army.

Khmer Rouge radio, in a broadcast Tuesday, said the agreement on a U.N. peace plan signed by the four Cambodian factions in Jakarta this week ''means that the Hanoi authorities must withdraw all their aggressor forces from Cambodia under UN supervision.''

The radio said thousands of Cambodians had been forced to serve the Vietnamese-installed government.

''Since the world community is forcing the Vietnamese aggressors to withdraw from Cambodia, you should quickly flee back home to be with your relatives and wives,'' the broadcast urged.

It refrained from warning of new Khmer Rouge attacks even though the Khmer Rouge leadership has not yet accepted the Cambodian government' s call for a ceasefire.

''If you do not flee, you will one day die either from malaria or from hitting land mines and booby traps,'' it said.

Meanwhile, Vietnam officially welcomed the Cambodian peace agreement and called for the early convening of a major international conference on Cambodia in Paris.

''Vietnam welcomes the Sept. 10 decision of the Cambodian parties in Jakarta in response to the agreement of the five permanent member countries of the UN Security Council on a political solution to the Cambodian issue,'' an official Hanoi radio commentary said Tuesday night.

''Together with countries participating in the Paris International Conference on Cambodia, Vietnam will do its utmost to contribute to the success of the conference and to attaining a comprehensive political solution to the Cambodian issue,'' the radio said.

It said Vietnam supported an early reconvening of the conference which is expected to work out the details of implementing the peace agreement.

The Khmer Rouge are the most powerful of the three groups in the resistance coalition fighting the government. The tough Chinese-backed group was ousted by the 1978 Vietnamese invasion after three and one- half years of radical communist rule that led to the deaths of more than 1 million Cambodians.

TOKYO (SEPT. 12) UPI - Japanese Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu will visit the front-line states in the Persian Gulf crisis in early October and may carry with him an aid package worth up to $2 billion, news reports said Wednesday.

Japan is expected later this week to put a price tag on its promised contribution to the Middle East nations which are bearing the brunt of the burden in carrying out U.N. economic sanctions against Iraq.

No official announcement has been made concerning Kaifu's trip or the Japanese aid, but the Japanese media are widely reporting that Kaifu will offer up to $2 billion to Egypt, Jordan, Turkey, Saudi Arabia and Oman during his visit that begins Oct. 1.

A spokesman in Kaifu's office said the trip has not been set yet and he could not comment on the reports.

The news reports said Kaifu is expected to visit He had originally planned to visit those nations in August but postponed the trip after Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Japan has already pledged to contribute $1 billion to support the international military forces in the Gulf and $22 million to aid refugees in Jordan.

On Tuesday, Japanese officials said they are considering sending up to 2,000 non-combat, unarmed troops and civilians to the Gulf.

(SEPT. 12) UPI - Voters in Rhode Island, Connecticut, New Hampshire and Vermont decided primary elections as two sitting governors opted to retire and two others faced re-election battles in the wake of New England's slumping economy.

In Rhode Island, millionaire business leader Bruce R. Sundlun handily defeated two mayors in the Democratic gubernatorial primary, setting up his third consecutive race against Republican Gov. Edward D. DiPrete.

Unofficial results showed Sundlun with 40 percent of the primary vote compared with 32 percent for Warwick Mayor Francis X. Flaherty and 28 percent for Providence Mayor Joseph R. Paolino.

''Here we go again,'' said DiPrete, whose popularity has plummeted because of perceived mismanagement by his administration and the faltering economy.

''This obviously is reminiscent of 1986 and 1988 ... I'm sure each of us will have a story to tell to the voters of this state, and I look forward to it.''

DiPrete, seeking his fourth two-year term, won the Republican nomination over controversial radio personality Steve White. The talk show host's 31 percent showing in a primary race the governor and the public essentially ignored was further evidence of DiPrete's slip in voter confidence.

In Rhode Island's 2nd House District, political maverick Edward P. Beard, the former housepainter who went to Congress in 1975, lost his bid to regain the seat he held for three terms. Democratic state Sen. John F. Reed of Cranston easily won his party's nomination over Beard and two other opponents.

He'll face Republican environmentalist Trudy Coxe in a race for GOP Rep. Claudine Schneider's seat. Schneider is challenging incumbent Democratic Sen. Claiborne Pell.

In Connecticut, Rep. Bruce A. Morrison won the Democratic nomination for governor, defeating state Rep. William J. Cibes Jr. in the party's first gubernatorial primary in 12 years.

Unofficial results showed Morrison, a four-term congressman, defeating Cibes, who ran on a pro-income tax platform, by nearly a 2-1 margin.

Morrison faces Rep. John G. Rowland, the Republican nominee, and former GOP Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., now an independent, in the race to replace outgoing Gov. William A. O'Neill.

In New Hampshire, anti-abortion GOP Congressman Bob Smith and former Sen.

John Durkin apparently managed to translate their Washington experience into primary victories in the race for retiring Republican Sen. Gordon Humphrey's seat.

The conservative Smith, a three-term U.S. representative, defeated three other opponents with 64 percent of the vote, according to unofficial returns.

Durkin won a much closer race against fellow Democrats Jim Donchess, the mayor of Nashua, and Colby-Sawyer College professor John Rauh.

Gov. Judd Gregg breezed to victory in the Republican primary, and prepared for a challenge from either former state Democratic party chairman Joseph Grandmaison or Senate Minority Leader Robert Preston, who were less than a point apart at midnight Tuesday.

Next door in Vermont, former Gov. Richard Snelling won the GOP primary and will face Democrat Peter Welch. They are vying to replace Gov. Madeleine Kunin, who is retiring after three terms.

PHOENIX (SEPT. 12) UPI - Millionaire businessman and political novice Fife Symington won the Republican nomination for governor of Arizona Tuesday, ending the comeback hopes of the impeached Evan Mecham.

Mecham, making his sixth bid for the office that he held for 15 months before being removed following a 1988 impeachment trial, admitted defeat with less than half the votes counted as Symington held a convincing lead in the five-way race.

With just over half of the votes counted, Symington had 45 percent of the votes to 23 percent for Mecham. Former legislator Fred Koory trailed with 17 percent, former Congressman Sam Steiger had 12 percent and little known Bob Barnes collected less than 2 percent of the votes.

Symington will face Democrat Terry Goddard, a former Phoenix mayor, in the November general election.

Gov. Rose Mofford, Arizona's veteran Democratic secretary of state who was thrust into office when Mecham was convicted by the state Senate, decided earlier this year not to run for a full term.

Speaking at his campaign headquarters in nearby Glendale, Mecham said he lost because he, Fred Koory and Sam Steiger split the ''conservative'' vote allowing the ''liberal'' candidate to win.

He said he would support Symington in the general election.

Symington, speaking to his supporters moments later at a downtown Phoenix hotel, asked support from the four losing candidates, saying the Republicans must be unified in order to return Arizona ''to the paty of progress and prosperity.''

Symington also took his first swipe at Goddard.

''My Democratic opponent is a professional politician, a tax and spend Dukakis liberal Democrat and I am a Goldwater conservative and I'm proud of it.''

Goddard said he was prepared for the ''hardest hitting campaign in the state.''

Symington, a real estate developer and cousin of former Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., was making his first bid for political office. A sharp critic of Mecham's administration, Symington became the first to enter the gubernatorial race and put some $1.4 million into the campaign, more than all the other GOP candidates combined.

Mecham, elected governor on his fifth attempt in 1986, was removed from office in April 1988 when the state Senate convicted him of two of three charges brought by the House. Both legislative chambers were controlled by Republicans.

Mecham, an ultra-conservative, was convicted of improperly loaning money from a governor's protocol fund to his automobile dealership and hindering a criminal investigation. Mecham later was tried but acquitted on criminal charges of violating state campaign finance laws.

Mecham's administration was marked by one controversy after another, including his decision to rescind a paid state holiday to honor slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr. The battle over the holiday is continuing and is to be decided in a referendum vote in November.

MINNEAPOLIS (SEPT. 12) UPI - Democrat Gov. Rudy Perpich defeated a former cabinet member in his fourth bid for governor and Jon Grunseth, a conservative businessman, won the Republican nomination in a three-way primary election.

Mike Hatch, 42, former commerce commissioner, challenged Perpich, 62, who got the Democratic-Farmer-Labor Party endorsement. Hatch conceded Tuesday's race and said he would support his former boss.

Perpich faced a conservative Republican and claimed the DFL was now the centralist political party. ''We have the center back unified with the DFL '' he said.

With 2,693 of 4,131 precincts reporting, Perpich had 119,691 votes to Hatch's 93,799.

In the hotly contested Republican governor's primary race, party- endorsed Jon Grunseth, 44, a St. Paul businessman, defeated state Auditor Arne Carlson, 55, who had been ahead nearly 2-1 in most polls. Darkhorse Doug Kelley, 43, a former U.S. attorney and moderate Republican like Carlson, trailed a distant third.

''When you tally all the votes, the moderates did well, but you cannot divide the moderate vote,'' Carlson said.

Republican Sen. Rudy Boschwitz, 59, easily defeated darkhorse John Zeleniak to win Senate primary by a 7-1 margin. DFL-endorsed Paul Wellstone, 46, defeated state Agriculture Commissioner Jim Nichols, 44. Wellstone claimed victory but Nichols declined to concede.

(SEPT. 12) UPI - Nelson Mandela says pressure is mounting for members of his African National Congress to re-arm its supporters. Mandela met for two hours yesterday with South African President Frederik de Klerk to discuss racial violence. He said the government is NOT crushing black factional violence and the power sharing negotiations could collapse.

About a dozen tornadoes were spotted yesterday in Barron County in northwestern Wisconsin. Property damage was widespread, but NO injuries were reported. Worst hit was the community of Canton. A police chief said the storm system took more than two hours to pass over the town of Rice Lake.

Gunfire broke out during lunch hour yesterday at a high school in San Antonio, Texas. Three students were wounded. A school official says the wounded students accused the attackers of belonging to a gang. A police spokeswoman said a feud was going on among some school groups. Three students were arrested.

Researchers say drinking four or more cups of coffee a day increases the risk of heart attack by about 40 percent. The study involved 100- thousand people who had general checkups at hospitals in northern California. The research team recommends people prone to heart disease cut coffee consumption to less than four cups daily.

Preliminary 1990 census numbers doN'T add up to as many people as earlier estimates projected. Some members of Congress are calling the once-a-decadepopulation head count a failure. They say minorities were undercounted. But Census Director Barbara Bryant told a House hearing yesterday the total will rise as follow-up work continues.

The Reds reliever escaped a few hairy situations Tuesday night to gain his 29th save in Cincinnati's 5-3 victory over the Houston Astros. Myers took over in the eighth with one out and runners on first and third and retired the side without allowing a run.

In the ninth, Myers walked Glenn Davis to load the bases with two outs. Ken Caminiti then grounded back to the mound, but Myers failed to field the ball cleanly. He had just enough time to recover and nail Caminiti at first by a step to end the game.

''I just didn't get a good grip on the ball at first, but I knew I had to relax and get it over to first,'' said Myers, who struck out three and walked three in 1 2-3 innings. ''It was close, but we got him, and that was the big thing.''

The victory gave the National League West-leading Reds a seven-game advantage over the Los Angeles Dodgers and San Francisco Giants who are tied for second.

Cincinnati starter Norm Charlton, 12-7, struck out four and walked three in seven innings. Rob Dibble retired one batter in the eighth.

Loser Jim DeShaies, 6-12, gave up four hits in six innings, striking out three and walking six.

''I had no command of my change-up and I was trying to spot my fast ball '' DeShaies said. ''I was struggling and I didn't have much tonight.''

Cincinnati took the lead for good in the fourth. With the score tied 1-1, Hal Morris, Billy Hatcher and Barry Larkin walked. Morris scored on Mariano Duncan's sacrifice fly and Hatcher took third. Larkin stole second and Sabo singled, scoring Hatcher and Larkin to give the Reds a 4-1 lead.

Myers was also the victim of manager Lou Piniella's mishandled double switch in the eighth. Myers batted fifth and led off the eighth instead of Piniella's intended choice of pinch-hitter Paul O'Neill.

''I guess Skip (Piniella) wanted some power in there batting fifth,'' said Myers, with a tongue-in-cheek chuckle. ''We needed a clutch hit, but they pitched me tough and I grounded out.''

In other National League action, Chicago pounded Montreal 11-6, Pittsburgh pummeled Philadelphia 5-1, New York caged St. Louis 10-8, San Diego blanked Los Angeles 4-0 and San Francisco dropped Atlanta 2- 0.

In the American League it was: New York 5, Texas 4; Milwaukee 4, Boston 2; Detroit 2, Baltimore 1; Cleveland 4, Chicago 3; Toronto 8, Kansas City 4; Seattle 10, Oakland 2; and California 9, Minnesota 0.

-- AROUND THE NL --

Cubs 11, Expos 6

At Chicago, Damon Berryhill, Andre Dawson and rookie Derrick May each hit two-run doubles in a 10-run second inning, sparking Chicago. Rookie Dave Pavlas, 2-0, pitched four innings of relief for the win, giving up three hits and striking out two. Kevin Gross dropped to 8-11 and has lost his last seven decisions. He served up five hits and walked three in one-plus inning.

Pirates 5, Phillies 1

At Philadelphia, pinch-hitter Lloyd McClendon hit a two-run home run to help Pittsburgh win for the ninth time in their last 11 games. Rookie Randy Tomlin, 3-2, who made his eighth major-league start, gave up five hits and one run in six innings in beating the Phillies for the second time this season. Phillies starter Jason Grimsley dropped to 1-2.

Mets 10, Cardinals 8

At New York, Darryl Strawberry's 33rd homer, a two-run blast with one out in the bottom of the ninth inning lifted the Mets. Strawberry's blast scored Tommmy Herr and helped New York remain 3 1-2 games behind the NL East leading Pirates. John Franco pitched the ninth for the win, improving to 5-1.

Padres 4, Dodgers 0

At San Diego, Bruce Hurst hurled a five-hitter, Jack Clark slugged a two-run homer and Tony Gwynn added a two-run triple to pace the Padres to their third straight victory. Hurst, 9-9, who notched his third shutout of the season, has not allowed an earned run in his last 18 innings. The left-hander struck out seven and walked one as he faced just four batters over the minimum.

Giants 2, Braves 0

At San Francisco, Scott Garrelts allowed four hits over eight innings and Kevin Mitchell took the National League home run lead, leading the Giants. Garrelts, 12-10, walked four and struck out eight. Steve Bedrosian came on with two on and none out in the ninth and recorded his 12th save. Atlanta reliever Mark Grant, 2-3, pitched two innings, giving up both runs on two hits.

ATLANTA (SEPT. 12) UPI - Another Roman Catholic priest said he gave money from his charitable fund to a woman whose sexual relationship with former Archbishop Eugene A. Marino led to the priest's resignation.

Officials of the archdiocese of Atlanta said Tuesday the Rev. John Walsh notified Bishop James P. Lyke he gave between $1,000 and $2,000 from his parish assistance fund to Vicki R. Long.

Church officials would not give any details of the payments, and Walsh, pastor of St. Pius X Church in Conyers, said only that he had given his report to the bishop.

There is no indication, officials said, that Walsh was sexually involved with Long, 27, of Riverdale.

The Rev. Peter Dora, spokesman for the archdiocese, said a lay panel has been appointed by Lyke to investigate the fiances of two other parishes, and the archdiocese will audit the Conyers parish.

The panel is headed by Coca-Cola president Donald R. Keough and will talk to pastors in all 63 parishes to find out whether they know of other money given to Long, whose two-year relationship with Marino led to his resignation last summer.

The Rev. Michael Woods, a Sandy Springs priest, also resigned after confessing to an ''intimate'' relationship with Long, who denied the relationship was sexual.

Officials said Woods gave Long a small amount of money from his charitable discretionary funds. They also said the archdiocese paid about $15,000 in medical bills for Long and Marino gave her up to $1,500 a month of his personal money.

Walsh was an assistant pastor to Woods at St. John the Evangelist from June 1979 until June 1983, when Walsh was assigned to St. Jude the Apostle. He was assigned to St. Pius in 1987 and became its pastor in 1988.

Controversy has surrounded Long since the revelation of her affair with Marino, who is in seclusion in a hospital in upstate New York. She claimed she was molested by a nun while working at a Catholic hospital in Columbus Ga., and filed suit against the Rev. Donal Keohane, a Columbus priest, in 1987, alleging that he fathered her daughter, now 4. Blood tests later indicated Keohane was not the father.

(SEPT. 12) UPI - Rain pounded the already saturated Midwest as thunderstorms that produced damaging tornadoes continued while hot weather prevailed in the West and clouds covered the East.

Western and northern Wisconsin took the brunt of storm system that slammed the area Tuesday night and stayed into Wednesday, getting hit with at least 12 tornadoes and heavy rains.

Storms moved eastward Wednesday, extending over from just north of Wausau to Marinette, located on Green Bay, and the strongest storms were in Forest and Florence counties.

About a dozen tornadoes whipped through rural Barron County in western Wisconsin Tuesday night downing telephone lines and damaging buildings while heavy rains caused flooding, but no injuries were reported, authorities said.

Rice Lake Police Chief Emmett Ingstrum said many tornadoes were spotted in the area, but few touched down. One tornado touched down in the nearby village of Canton, which was hit hard by the storms, and there was a report a twister tipped over a trailer home a mile from Rice Lake, Ingstrum said.

Thunderstorms hit the Upper Peninsula of Michigan, southeast Illinois and west central Indiana Wednesday, where torrential rain prompted the National Weather Service to issue flood an urban and small stream flood advisory.

Weak high pressure stalled over the South, keeping the hot weather in the region. Scattered thunderstorms accompanied by scattered hail gave some relief in Alabama, Tennessee, Mississippi and coastal North Carolina.

Hot weather clear skies were common in most of the West, except for low clouds along the coast of Washington and Oregon. In some communities surrounding Los Angeles, temperatures hovered at 100.

Las Vegas registered 107, which is 11 degrees above normal. In Arizona high readings were at near-record levels, and high temperatures were reported throughout Utah, Idaho and Colorado.

Thickening clouds moved through western Pennsylvania, while skies remained mostly clear in western New York and throughout the Northeast Wednesday. Patches of fog developed in several coastal areas.

SALT LAKE CITY (SEPT. 12) UPI - Former state Rep. Genevieve Atwood and former state Sen. Karl Snow easily captured Republican nominations Tuesday in Utah's primary election for Congress.

Atwood, a two-term former state lawmaker who became the nation's first woman state geologist in 1981, beat Salt Lake City businessman and former Rep. Dan Marriott by more than 6,000 votes in the 2nd District race.

In the final unofficial tally, Marriott, who left his House seat after four terms in 1984 in an unsuccessful bid for governor, received 15,711 votes against Atwood's 22,089.

Atwood will face 8-year Rep. Wayne Owens, D-Utah, Independent Party candidate Larry Topham and Eleanor Garcia of the Socialist Workers Party in the November general election.

Marriott said the results were ''skewed'' by independents and Democrats who crossed over to vote for his opponent. Utah election laws do not require voters to register by party.

''The crossover between independents and Democrats proved to be what we lost it by,'' Marriott said, adding he will ''absolutely support'' Atwood in her bid to unseat Owens. ''The enemy is Wayne Owens,'' he said.

In the 3rd District race, Snow defeated businessman and former California state senator and interim lieutenant governor John Harmer by nearly a 2-1 margin. Snow received 29,187 votes to 14,891 for Harmer.

Snow advances to the November general election against Democrat Bill Orton Robert Smith of the American Party and Anthony Dutrow of the Socialist Workers Party. The winner replaces retiring four-term GOP Rep. Howard Nielson.

In the 1st District, Democrat Kenley Brunsdale and Reva Marx Wadsworth of the American Party will face five-term Rep. James Hansen, R-Utah, in the November general election.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (SEPT. 12) UPI - Gunmen fired on a yellow taxi they mistook for a same-colored police vehicle, killing three civilians during factional violence in black townships overnight after attackers fired on a police car and killed a lawman, police said Wednesday.

The attacks south of Johannesburg, in the nation's largest black township of Soweto, coincided with raging battles in three settlements to the east and the death of at least 21 people in clashes between rival groups.

Business Day newspaper reported several policeman saying they were ''too scared'' to go into the townships to quell the fighting, which has defied emergency measures and effective martial law imposed Aug. 26.

The latest violence followed a warning Tuesday from black leader Nelson Mandela that talks aimed at ending white minority rule may collapse if the government fails to crush the wave of internecine strife which has killed some 630 people since flaring Aug. 12.

Police said a gunman fired with an AK-47 assault rifle on the mini- bus taxi, painted the same shade of yellow as police vehicles, outside the flashpoint Nancefield migrant-worker hostel in Soweto.

Another gunman standing by later fired several rounds at the wreck of the vehicle, they said.

The three people died instantly and four were seriously injured, spokesman

Lt. Govindsamy Mariemuthoo said, after ''the attacker obviously made the mistake of thinking the van was police issue.''

Mariemuthoo said a number of attackers earlier ambushed a police patrol vehicle after it was lured into Soweto's Deipkloof squatter camp to investigate a complaint people were carrying AK-47 assault rifles.

''When they arrived, they were told the people had left, but as they were driving down a side road, they hit the ambush,'' he said.

Their vehicle took ''plenty of rounds,'' he added, noting one constable died on the way to hospital and another three were seriously hurt.

Police said at least 21 people died in clashes in Vosloorus, Tembisa, and Thokoza since late Tuesday, many when Zulu hostel-dwellers and supporters of the Inkatha movement rampaged through townships randomly attacking residents - predominantly Xhosa followers of Mandela's African National Congress.

Mandela told President Frederik de Klerk in a two-hour meeting Tuesday pressure was mounting on the ANC to arm its supporters and resume the ''armed struggle'' suspended last month after 29 years.

Despite assurances from de Klerk police were acting impartially and that the government was deeply concerned about the violence, Mandela said Pretoria must use its capacity to bring back calm or face a possible breakdown of fledgling talks between it and the ANC on ending 42 years of white minority rule.

Mandela did not specify steps to be taken, but has branded the three-month renewable emergency measures imposed in the 27 hardest-hit townships straddling Johannesburg ''totally useless.''

He has noted a 51-month-old state of emergency in strife-torn Natal province has failed to stem battles between the ANC and Inkatha, which since 1987 have killed up to 4,000 people.

But Mandela has refused to meet directly with Inkatha President Mangosuthu Buthelezi, charging the Zulu chief is fomenting the conflict to undermine the ANC's preeminent position amonth black movements before formal power-sharing talks with the government.

BEIJING (SEPT. 12) UPI - An underground group of activists from the pro-democracy movement last year, some recently freed from prison, has publicly broken with two exiled student leaders and accused them of ''money grubbing'' in their activities overseas.

The group delivered the criticism in a printed statement obtained this week by United Press International. The statement was relayed by other known activists in last year's student-led protests, some of them associates of the two exiled leaders.

The statement, dated Sept. 9, was attributed to ''former inmates of Qincheng and other prisons, along with Beijing teachers and students who participated'' in the six weeks of demonstrations for greater freedom, crushed by the government June 3-4 1989.

As many as 200 students and intellectuals were once held in the top-secret Qincheng Prison north of Beijing over their activities during the unrest. Most have been released except for about 40 students who may be tried, according to former detainees.

The statement attacked the student leaders Wu'erkaixi and Li Lu, both of whom managed to flee China after the crackdown via an ''underground railroad.'' Both have been prominent in exile dissident activities since then.

The group called both ''unconvertible scoundrels'' and dissociated itself from the charismatic pair.

''University students in Beijing never elected Wu'erkaixi or Li Lu as their 'leaders,''' the statement said.

''The pronouncements and behavior of Li Lu and Wu'erkaixi by no means represents Beijing university students. They are responsible for their own actions and we especially cannot tolerate their deceitful money grubbing abroad,'' it said.

The statement went on to accuse the two former student activists of ''despicable conduct'' and even of espionage.

''(Li Lu) said he was a student from Nanjing University, but he had no student I.D.,'' it said. ''Students who were in contact with him at the time were disgusted by his wild words and deceitful conduct.''

''Some people offered evidence that (Li) was a spy who infiltrated the student movement in order to destroy it,'' the activists charged.

The tone of the statement sounded similar to propaganda attacks on exiled dissidents by China's government and state press, but it also recalled the frequent fierce infighting among the student activists themselves throughout last year's movement.

The Chinese government has smugly reported tales of dissident excess abroad, claiming the flashy behavior of individuals such as Wu'erkaixi characterizes the misguided nature of the student-led movement as a whole.

Wu'er and Li, former university students who frequently grabbed the spotlight during the 1989 protests, eluded a massive manhunt for leading democracy activists that followed the June 4 crackdown. They surfaced in Paris and later in the United States.

Wu'er and Li became key figures in the Federation for a Democratic China, an international organization formed by exiled dissidents to unite overseas opposition to China's hard-line government.

But both the activists and the organization have fallen into disfavor following factional infighting and revelations of extravagant spending.

Wu'erkaixi, a 22-year-old native of China's remote Xinjiang province, was accepted at Harvard University but dropped out after several months.

Recent interviews with Wu'er by the Western press paint an unflattering picture of a gluttonous, abrasive opportunist who speaks more often of his personal loves - food and women - than any abiding dreams of democracy.

The anonymous statement accused both Wu'er and Li of breaking their fasts during a week-long student hunger strike in Beijing's Tiananmen Square at the height of the democracy movement.

The government made similar accusations, releasing surveillance footage of Wu'er eating at a restaurant.

(SEPT. 12) UPI - Stock prices rebounded sharply on the Tokyo Stock Exchange Wednesday on new hopes the United States will act to address its budget deficit following a speech to Congress by President Bush.

The blue-chip Nikkei Average of 225 selected issues jumped 611.48 points, or 2.5 percent, to 25,216.14. The Nikkei lost 476.24 points Tuesday.

The broader-based Tokyo Stock Exchange Price Index of all leading shares, which lost 22.58 points Tuesday, gained 33.02 points to 1, 913.72.

Volume rose sharply, as an estimated 530 million shares changed hands, compared with 406 million shares Tuesday.

The market opened quiet and charged ahead around midday as Bush's speech reached the trading floor, analysts said.

Investors interpreted the speech to mean that Bush expects to forge an agreement on cutting the U.S.'s towering budget deficit ahead of a looming deadline, market watchers said.

''That would mean a better chance that the Federal Reserve will ease interest rates, and that might relieve some of the pressure here,'' said broker Julian Jones of W.I. Carr Securities.

Also boosting the market were rumors of a substantial new investment fund entering the market.

If true, it would represent the first substantial infusion of fresh funds since the middle of the summer, analysts noted.

Buying was broad with all sectors except communications on the rise. Communications continued to be weighted down by the Nippon Telegraph and Telephone issues, which fell sharply.

Within the sectors, investors snapped up low-priced shares, especially those that had fallen steeply in recent weeks.

Additionally, there were heavy arbitrage-related purchases of the 225 issues that make up Nikkei average.

Analysts said those stocks were purchased for use in arbitrage against futures based on the Nikkei.

Elsewhere in Asia, stocks rose in light trading on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange amid indications of a lowering of U.S. interest rates.

The key Hang Seng Index, which slipped 4.17 points Tuesday, rebounded 20.47 points to 3,105.04.

Among the narrrower indexes, financials gained 12.33, utilities rose 15.40 industrials climbed 23.75 and properties jumped 42.57 points.

Volume remained light as an estimated 650 million shares changed hands, compared with 480 million shares Tuesday, which was the lowest volume in more than eight months.

Analysts said reports Bush indicated during a speech before Congress that the Federal Reserve would ease interest rates sparked a limited rally.

''It seems that the Federal Reserve will definitely have to ease monetary policy to stave off a resession,'' said David Harman of Morgan Grenfell. ''We are looking for lower interest rates over the next week.''

However, brokers said trading remained spotty in the face of continued uncertainty in the Gulf, with buying focusing on a limited number of blue chips.

In Bangkok, stock prices fell sharply on the Thailand Stock Exchange in slow trading for the second straight day amid concerns over surging world oil prices.

The Stock Exchange of Thailand Index, which slipped 11.64 points Tuesday, lost another 23.70 points or about 2.9 percent to 804.46.

Volume amounted to around 1.7 billion shares, compared with 1.4 billion shares Tuesday.

''The market fell because investors were uncertain about the situation in oil rich Middle East,'' said Suwit Mapaisansin, of Phatra Thanakit Co., Ltd.

''Oil price increases caused everything to become worse, particularly since laborers have begun to ask for higher wages,'' Mapaisansin added.

In Singapore, stocks rose in thin trading on the Singapore Stock Exchange sparked by hopes the United States will cut its huge budget deficit.

The closely-watched Straits Times Industrial Index, which eased 3.32 points Tuesday, rebounded 5.56 points to 1,248.74. The narrower All Singapore Index rose 0.93 point to 351.17.

An estimated 65.3 million shares changed hands, compared with 47.6 million shares Tuesday.

Analysts said investors were encouraged by Bush's comments indicating the United States's budget deficit would be adressed and that oil supplies would be unaffected by Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

There was also a spurt of bargain hunting following Tuesday's decline.

On tye trading floor, Far East Shipping paced the advancing issues followed bySungei Way and Shangri-la.

IMC Holdings Ltd. led the declining stocks followed by Hong Leong Industies and Development Bank of Singapore (foreign) shares.

In Australia, stock prices closed sharply higher on the Sydney Sharemarket on Bush's comments oil supplies would be unaffected by Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

The All Ordinaries Index, which eased 0.5 point Tuesday, rebounded 13.2 points to 1,512.6.

Volume remained well below average as only 77.8 million shares changed hands, compared with 62.6 million shares Tuesday.

Bush's comments triggered a rally in Tokyo and the Sydney market followed suit.

On the trading floor, market heavyweight BHP Oil led the rally rising 10 cents to $11.50.

Other blue chips to perform well included CRA gaining 25 cents to $11.55, MIM adding 6 cents to $2.38, Brambles climbing 30 cents to $13.80 and Lend Lease adding 10 cents to $14.00.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 12) UPI - She started drinking six years ago, and now the 19-year-old Sioux woman's daily routine is sharing a case of beer with her friends despite her pregnancy, now in its fifth month.

She doesn't like beer, but she says it gives her something to do on the South Dakota Indian reservation. And besides, ''It makes me feel good.''

A couple of weeks ago, the woman, who wished to remain anonymous, experienced abdominal pains and learned the reality of guzzling about five bottles of beer a day while pregnant - fetal alcohol syndrome.

''I went to the hospital and they said my blood-alcohol level was above what it should have been. They said it was over 0.4,'' she said matter-of-factly in a telephone interview just minutes before boarding a bus for a Denver inpatient treatment program.

In most states a blood-alcohol level of 0.1 is sufficient to be charged with driving while intoxicated. Sandy Cuny, the Sioux woman's counselor, said most people with 0.4 would be in a coma or a coffin, but the woman's body apparently had ''adjusted'' to the daily assault of beer.

There are no precise figures but the government says the incidence of fetal alcohol syndrome is about two to four times higher for Indians than for the general population. There are fewer than 4 million Indians, and the condition is present in an estimated 4 to 7 of every 1,000 births.

When a pregnant woman drinks, the alcohol reaches the fetus within a few minutes. Depending on the amount consumed, the baby probably will suffer fetal alcohol syndrome, or the less serious fetal alcohol effects.

Unless the mother suffers a miscarriage or stillbirth, the most frequent characteristics of fetal alcohol syndrome are: growth retardation; mental retardation; abnormal facial characteristics, such as flat face, short nose and no groove between the nose and mouth; limited finger and arm movement; malformed teeth; heart problems and poor coordination.

Babies diagnosed with fetal alcohol effects exhibit some, but not all, of those characteristics.

Nearly everyone in the Sioux woman's immediate and extended family drinks to kill time. Nobody told her that her alcohol consumption could kill her baby or affect its physical and mental development.

''I want to get help now. When I started having pain, I thought I was going to lose my baby,'' said the unmarried woman who has no job or high school diploma. ''I hope things turn out better (after treatment). I'm going to try to stop drinking.''

Her story is being repeated at alarming rates, especially among the native American population, which suffers from massive unemployment, crowded housing, acute poverty, limited health care and education on the condition.

''You hear about crack babies because crack babies exist where the national media exists. You don't find much media (on) reservations. Their problem is forgotten. No, not forgotten. It has never been understood,'' Sen. Thomas Daschle, D-S.D., said in an interview.

Although he sometimes feels nobody is listening, Daschle persists in trying to reach the public, the government and his congressional colleagues in his efforts to provide education for young Indians about the problem and encourage more responsible use of funds to fight it.

''The Indian Health Service may understand the problem, but they are virtually incompetent in dealing with it,'' Daschle said, citing budget cuts. ''They've prioritized, and unfortunately, fetal alcohol syndrome doesn't fit within their priorities.''

At his urging, a Senate Finance subcommittee plans hearings on fetal alcohol syndrome before Congress adjourns Oct. 5.

The Indian Health Service, part of the Department of Health and Human Services, distributed $350,000 in fiscal year 1990 among 12 area offices to deal with fetal alcohol syndrome. Of that, $100,000 was sent to the University of Washington for research projects.

''Our goal, certainly, is to prevent the problem. Prenatal care is available to everyone,'' said Dr. Jerry Lyle, an Indian Health Service pediatrician in Washington, D.C.

But Daschle said he ''couldn't disagree more'' with Lyle's contention that there are enough counselors on reservations or in Indian communities as did Jeaneen Grey Eagle, director of Project Recovery on the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation where the Sioux woman lives.

The reservation, with 18,000 tribal members, has no on-site treatment center, has insufficient funds for preventive education and has just two midwives and three gynecologist-obstetricians.

(SEPT. 12) UPI - East and West Germany moved a step closer to unification today with the signing of the ''Two-plus-Four'' accord in Moscow. The agreement on external aspects of German unity was signed by foreign ministers from the victorious World War Two allies, plus the two Germanys. The four wartime allies are the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France. German re-unification is set to take place October 3rd.

President Bush delivered a tough message to Iraq last night in a nationally broadcast speech to Congress. He said Iraq will NOT be allowed to annex Kuwait, and he stressed that the U-S focus is on President Saddam Hussein- NOT on the Iraqi people. Bush is expected to deliver the same sort of message when he tapes a speech today for future broadcast on Baghdad television. .

Lawmakers last night interrupted the president's speech about 35 times for applause. In the official Democratic response, House Democratic leader Richard Gephardt of Missouri said he supports the president's stand. He said the United States is in the Persian Gulf ''NOT simply for oil,'' but to defend the fundamental values ''of a more stable and decent world.''

The October 1st deadline is nearing for agreement on a deficit- cutting plan, and White House and congressional budget negotiators apparently are moving closer. Budget talks at Andrews Air Force Base near Washington resume this morning, and one source says the both saids are prepared to bargain all night if necessary. Differences on taxes and spending cuts reportedly have been narrowed.

An Illinois death-row inmate who said he was ready to die, was executed this morning by lethal injection at the Stateville Penitentiary in Joliet. Charles Walker is the first person executed in Illinois in 28 years. He was convicted of killing a couple in 1983 after robbing them of 40-dollars for beer. The 50-year-old Walker had rejected all appeals on his behalf.

(SEPT. 12) UPI - Millionaire businessman Fife Symington won the Republican nomination for governor of Arizona yesterday, ending the comeback hopes of Evan Mecham. Former Governor Mecham conceded defeat with less than half the votes counted. He was impeached in 1988. In Washington, D- C, political novice Sharon Dixon won the Democratic mayoral primary, and is likely to succeed Marion Barry.

Three youths were given the maximum jail term for juveniles yesterday for their convictions in New York's Central Park jogger rape case. State Supreme Court Justice Thomas Galligan sentenced each of the trio to five to 10 years in prison, which means they'll be eligible for parole in five years. Defense Attorney William Kunstler calls it ''a legal lynching,'' and accused the judge of racial bias.

Hearings on Supreme Court nominee David Souter begin tomorrow before the Senate Judiciary Committee, and the chances of confirmation appear good. Liberal activists, including abortion rights activists, have voiced questions about Souter. But Judiciary Committee Chairman Joseph Biden says his staff found few specifics- positive or negative- about Souter's judicial philosophy, despite a thorough investigation.

The race is on to try to save the New York Post, with a new Friday deadline looming. Publisher Peter Kalikow says he is losing 27-Million dollars a year on the paper. He threatens to close the 189-year-old Post Friday if the unions do NOT make concessions that will help close the financial gap. Union chief George McDonald says he is optimistic a deal can be worked out.

(SEPT. 12) UPI - Three weeks from today there may be just one Germany. Foreign ministers from East and West Germany and the four Allied nations of World War Two signed a treaty in Moscow today allowing re-unification on October 3rd.

President Bush says bluntly- ''Iraq will NOT be permitted to annex Kuwait.'' That was his main message last night in an address to Congress. Bush added- ''That's NOT a threat or a boast; that's just the way it is going to be.'' Today. Bush tapes a message to be broadcast in Iraq. He's expected to be equally firm.

Judge David Souter appears tomorrow before the Senate Judiciary Committee which will recommend whether he should go to the Supreme Court. Abortion rights advocates have been the most critical of Souter's nomination.

COPENHAGEN, DENMARK (SEPT. 12) UPI - A twin-engine Cessna 441 plane carrying eight people on a Greenland airlines flight to Canada disappeared west of Greenland and search efforts were underway Wednesday, Danish officials said.

The twin-turboprop aircraft operated by the small Greenland airline Nuna Air was flying from Sondre Stromfjord, Greenland to Goose Bay, Canada when it disappeared from radar screens Tuesday, said air traffic authority spokesman Sten Bersan.

''We do not know what has happened to it or where it is,'' Bersan said of the plane carrying six passengers and two pilots. ''We lost contact with it ...''

Bersan said Danish Air Force aircraft and Greenland commercial planes were searching for the missing plane, but were hampered by bad weather.

''The weather conditions are not very good,'' he said. ''It is raining and there is possibility for snow. The visibility is poor.''

A search for the Cessna, which can carry as many as 10 people, started Tuesday evening, but the search planes turned around when it became dark and returned Wednesday at dawn.

''We will continue the search as long as there is a hope of finding them alive,'' Bersan said.

He would not reveal the identity or nationalities of the crew and passengers.

Word of the missing plane came a day after Canadian authorities reported a Peruvian Boeing 727 flying from Iceland to Canada with 15 people aboard went down Tuesday in the northern Atlantic Ocean about 180 miles south of Newfoundland.

MANILA, PHILIPPINES (SEPT. 12) UPI - President Corazon Aquino suspended military operations against communist rebels Wednesday in the capital and areas devastated by an earthquake as a step toward the resumption of peace talks.

But the guerrillas, in a special issue of their underground publication Liberation, denounced the gesture, saying the ''solution to the crisis gripping the nation lies not in cease-fires, whether selective or nationwide.''

The rebel publication said the government should address ''the basic issues of foreign domination, land reform, massive poverty and mounting repression.''

The military, meanwhile, reported two militia members were killed and two police officers wounded in clashes Wednesday with the communist rebel New People's Army in Catbalogan in the central island of Samar.

Talks with the 19,000-strong communist rebel army, which is leading the rebellion for a Marxist state over the past 21 years, bogged down in February 1987 after the guerrillas demanded to share power.

Aquino ordered the suspension of military operations in the capital and the provinces of Nueva Viscaya, Mountain Province and the highland resort of Baguio ravaged by the July 16 quake.

But she said law enforcement should be maintained to ensure peace and order.

The suspension order was released during a meeting between her representatives and church and human rights groups proposing a cease- fire with all rebel forces as a step toward national reconciliation.

Peace advocates said the truce would allow the country to concentrate on efforts to rebuild areas damaged by the temblor and address the impact of the Persian Gulf crisis.

Justice Secretary Franklin Drilon said rebel soldiers, who have tried six times to oust Aquino since she came to power in February 1986 after the ouster of President Ferdinand Marcos, were not included in the latest truce because they have ''opted not to participate but resume their hostilities.''

Also Wednesday, Vice President Salvador Laurel, excluded by Aquino in a consultative council Friday to discuss national problems, convened his own ''crisis forum'' that tackled the effects of the gulf crisis.

A resolution released by the Laurel's forum recommended any increase in oil prices should be shouldered by the government to avoid worsening the Philippine economy.

HOUSTON (SEPT. 12) UPI - ComputerCraft, the Houston-based computer retailer that expanded with the advent of the personal computer and then drastically cut back in the mid-1980s, is moving its headquarters to San Jose, Calif.

ComputerCraft will close its Houston headquarters by Oct. 15 and move in with its parent company, San Jose-based Businessland, to help improve operating efficiences, ComputerCraft President Brian Leeland said Tuesday.

ComputerCraft was founded in Houston in 1977, and was bought by Businessland in 1988.

The number of ComputerCraft stores has dropped from 23 to 20 in recent months and is about to shrink again, Leeland said. The company plans to close or consolidate five stores, leaving it with 15 stores, of which five are in Houston.

Once known as the world's largest Apple Computer dealer, ComputerCraft had about 60 stores and 650 employees by 1985 but had to drastically cut back as the U.S. computer industry hit a sales dip.

Since Businessland bought the company, its accounting, planning and marketing operations in Houston have been separate from Businessland's computer buyers, who handle purchases for all Businessland stores, Leeland said.

ComputerCraft's purchasing operations will be combined with Businessland's to increase sales and marketing efficiencies.

''Initially, I was convinced we would leave it (the headquarters) down there, but it became obvious that we need better integration,'' Leeland said.

Only two ComputerCraft employees decided to transfer to San Jose. Several employees have joined Armand Shapiro, former ComputerCraft president, at his new company, Garden Ridge Pottery.

Shapiro resigned from ComputerCraft in April and now is chairman of Garden Ridge.

Some ComputerCraft employees have joined Businessland. Leeland said several turned down jobs in California because of the higher cost of living there.

EAST BERLIN (SEPT. 12) UPI - Several thousand Berliners Wednesday cheered former President Reagan as he crossed from West to East Berlin near the spot where he once urged Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev to ''tear down this wall.''

Shouts of ''Danke, Herr Reagan'' - ''Thank you Mr. Reagan'' - echoed under the arches of the Brandenburg Gate, where the former president made the now historic speech in June 1987.

This time, Reagan and his wife Nancy could not see the wall from the 12-pillared monument, long a symbol of the Iron Curtain that divided East and West.

Just over two years after Reagan stood at the Brandenburg Gate and urged ''Mr. Gorbachev, tear down this wall,'' the Berlin Wall was opened for free travel on Nov. 9, 1989. Since then, much of it has been torn down.

''I'm not going to miss it and I don't think you will either,'' a beaming Reagan told a group of Germans who greeted him after he crossed from West to East Berlin.

Later in the day, Reagan signed the East Berlin visitors book at the Staatsrat - a building formerly used by the communist head of state, in which parliamentary President Sabine Bergman-Pohl now receives foreign guests.

Reagan offered his help to a united Germany.

''If by any chance they need outside help, I would be happy to be of assistance,'' he said.

In a brief remark in the crisis in the Persian Gulf, Reagan said the standoff had brought about more international unity ''than I can recall ever in the world ... over a problem like this.''

The former president and his wife walked from the Reichstag - the former German parliament - to the Brandenburg Gate, along the area where the wall used to be. They were accompanied by West Berlin Mayor Walter Momper and West German parliamentary President Rita Suesmuth.

They paused briefly on the western side of the Brandenburg gate, where a man in the crowd played military marching tunes on a trumpet.

More than 2,000 people, many cheering and waving, welcomed the group on the eastern side of the gate, where Reagan shook hands and chatted with several Berliners and visitors.

''What a wonderful surprise. We did not even know he would be here,'' said Petra van Klugt, a Dutch national in her early sixties, proudly showing a piece of paper bearing Reagan's autograph.

BOSTON (SEPT. 12) UPI - The crack cocaine epidemic appears to be causing a rash of strokes among young users, and smoking crack may be like playing ''Russian roulette'' for people with weakened blood vessels in the brain, researchers said Wednesday.

A study involving 28 people who suffered strokes within 72 hours of using crack found a strong link between drug use and the appearance of brain-damaging hemorraghes and blockages of blood vessels.

People who have abnormalities in brain blood vessels, such as weaknesses in the vessel walls, may be especially prone to crack-induced strokes, said the study's director, Dr. Steven Levine of the Henry Ford Hospital and Health Science Center in Detroit.

Levine said about 1 percent of the population has such abnormalities, but in most they go undetected and do not cause health problems.

For some of these people, however, smoking crack may amount to playing ''Russian roulette'' with the risk of stroke, he said, adding ''We'd like to get the word out: 'Folks, no joke, crack causes stroke.' ''

Crack is a potent form of cocaine that is made by heating a liquid solution of cocaine hydrochloride with sodium bicarbonate or ammonia. The resulting substance generally is smoked.

Despite the widespread use of crack and reports dating to the late 1970s linking crack use with strokes, little had been known prior to the new study about the clinical aspects of crack-associated strokes, Levine and colleages reported in The New England Journal of Medicine.

They said the crack users in the study, 10 women and 18 men who ranged in age from 23 to 49, suffered from various kinds of strokes. In 18 people, the blood supply was choked off to blood vessels in different parts of the brain while in the remaining 10, blood vessels hemorraghed.

In those people who suffered ''ischemic'' strokes, in which the blood supply was interrupted, the vessels were blocked in some cases and in others, had contracted, ''clamping off'' the blood, said Levine. He said diagnoses were made through use of computed tomography, or CT, scans and magnetic resonance imaging, which create electronic images of the brain.

Levine said 15 of the stroke patients had severe headaches as early symptoms. Other symptoms included seizures, loss of consciousness, lethargy, loss of voice, loss of vision and confusion.

Two of the stroke victims died - one 72 hours after using crack and another 10 days after consuming large amounts of the drug, the researchers said.

An autopsy performed on one of those who died revealed arteries on the left side of the brain that were smaller than their counterparts on the right side, but Levine said the researchers do not know what role, if any, this abnormality might have played in the stroke.

Some of the patients were left with permanent stroke-related impairements, but most recovered fully, which Levine credits to their relatively young ages. ''Most young stroke victims do quite well,'' he said.

Levine said he thinks the number of strokes in the United States that have been linked to crack use may only represent the tip of the iceberg. ''We believe there are a lot more cases than have so far been reported,'' he said.

Because strokes in people under 45 are unusual, representing only about 5 percent of the total, Levine said doctors caring for young stroke victims would be well advised to screen them for drug use.

Although the study did not directly address the question of which people might be more prone to have crack-related strokes, the scientists said the research suggests that people with blood vessel abnormalities such as ''cerebral aneurysms or vascular malformations may be more likely to have intracranial hemorrhage after using cocaine.''

They said more study is needed to tell whether other factors, such as high blood pressure, cigarette smoking, alcohol use or genetic influences, also might predispose people to crack-related strokes.

(SEPT. 12) UPI - Three years ago President Reagan stood at the Berlin Wall and directed this message to Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev- ''Tear down this wall.'' The wall came down last year. The former president and his wife, Nancy, returned to Berlin today and stood near where the wall used to be. Thousands of East and West Berliners, who will soon be citizens of the same country, cheered. In Moscow today, foreign ministers of six nations signed a treaty clearing the way for German re-unification three weeks from today.

A Washington source close to the budget negotiations says there's ''general agreement'' for new taxes amounting to 130-BILLION dollars over the next five years. The Democrats and Republicans still have differences over the makeup of the tax package. The source also reports general agreement on defense cuts that are closer to the Democratic position than the Republican one. Sources say a plan for reducing the deficit may be ready as early as today.

The auto industry is fighting a Senate attempt to make cars get more miles to the gallon. A bill in the Senate would require carmakers to increase their average fuel efficiency to 40 miles a gallon by 2001. The current standard is 27 and one-half miles. The automakers argue they would have to build smaller, lighter cars. The result would be reduced safety, lower sales and lost jobs.

The fuel pumps NASA engineers believed were responsible for leaks on the shuttle Columbia were flown to Houston yesterday and tested. They leak all right, but NOT enough to account for the problem. More tests are scheduled. Bascom Murrah, a space agency manager, says there are NO guarantees the leak problem has been solved. But the space agency has set a launch date of next Tuesday for the much delayed Columbia flight.

(SEPT. 12) UPI - Cambodian leaders are calling for a voluntary cease-fire among the various fighting groups. They have stopped their war of words against each other. Rebel groups and the government have accepted a U-N peace plan. But a cease-fire under that agreement is NOT expected until November. As part of the agreement, the four parties have established a Supreme National Council.

Three civilians were killed during the night in a black township of South Africa when gunmen fired on a yellow taxi they apparently thought was a police car. Four others were seriously injured. Other attackers fired on a police car and killed an officer. A newspaper quotes South African police as saying they are too scared to go into black areas to stop the fighting.

A federal appeals court says a hearing must be held to determine whether a Georgia man who pleaded guilty to murder 21 years ago was mentally competent. The court says Joel Tiller's rights were violated when the plea was accepted despite evidence of incompetency. Tiller is serving a life sentence in Georgia. The appeals court says if a competency hearing can NOT be held, Georgia will have to free Tiller or re-try him.

The New England Aquarium in Boston will wait before sending a dolphin to the U-S Navy. Animal rights activists are trying to block the move and a hearing in a federal court is scheduled next week. apparently would train it for military purposes.

HOUSTON (SEPT. 12) UPI - Packaging Corp. of America, a subsidiary of the Houston-based Tenneco, is negotiating with Georgia-Pacific Corp. to acquire a package of mills, plants and more than 540,000 acres of timberland for $740 million.

The deal, announced late Tuesday, would make PCA one of the 10 largest paper products makers in the world. It involves timberland in Wisconsin, Michigan, Georgia and Florida.

PCA, based in Evanston, Ill., is working with GE Capital and other major investors. The transaction is subject to a definitive agreement and approval of directors of Tenneco and Georgia-Pacific.

Under preliminary terms, GE Capital would buy paper mills in Valdosta, Ga. and Tomahawk, Wis., and lease them to PCA.

Similarly, John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co. and Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. will buy the timberland and lease it to the Tenneco subsidiary.

Tom Slocum, Tenneco's executive director of corporate communications, said the deal represents a major revenue boost for PCA, already a star performer at Tenneco.

''It's going to make them a much bigger player in that industry,'' Slocum said. ''We look at it as nothing but an opportunity for PCA.''

The Tenneco unit, which last year reported revenues of $1.3 billion and operating income of $200 million, already operates more than 60 plants and mills in the United States and manages thousands of acres of forestland.

PCA, employing 9,000 people, makes paper, plastic and cardboard products, including egg cartons, fast-food trays, tissue paper and detergent boxes.

Company officials declined to detail the lease arrangements or say how much they will cost Tenneco. Slocum said the leasing approach is a way to hold down the debt load at Tenneco.

''We think it's an innovative financial move that allows PCA to use the assets and still protect its balance sheet,'' Slocum said. ''Maybe down the road there could be an option to buy.''

The Georgia-Pacific assets have been for sale since May when the paper and timber giant completed its $3.8 billion buyout of Connecticut- based Great Northern Nekoosa Corp.

While the deal solidified Georgia-Pacific's standing as the world's largest forest products company, it also brought on $1.3 billion in debt previously owned by Great Northern.

Sheila Weidman, Georgia-Pacific's manager of corporate communications, said the holdings now at the center of the Tenneco discussions were put up for sale because they did not fit in with the post-acquisition Georgia-Pacific.

Weidman said the company's debt as a percent of its capital has risen as a result of the Great Northern Nekoosa acquisition. The company is aiming for a 40 percent to 45 percent debt-to-capital ratio, she said.

Weidman said Georgia-Pacific also is trying to sell a mill in Toledo, Ore. and box plants in Modesto, Calif., and Olympia, Wash.

The company wants to sell those assets as a package, she said.

Georgia-Pacific employs more than 60,000 workers.

JERUSALEM (SEPT. 12) UPI - Foreign Minister David Levy said Wednesday greater Soviet involvement in the peace process could come if Moscow stopped selling arms to Arab nations and pressured those countries to make peace with Israel.

Levy's comments came as a high-level Israeli Foreign Ministry delegation left for talks in Moscow at the invitation from Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze. The mission was described by one government source as ''the most important visit in some time'' from a political standpoint.

The Soviet Union severed ties with Israel after the 1967 Israeli-Arab war. Relations between the two have warmed in recent years with an exchange of consular missions and cultural exchanges.

After the superpower summit meeting with President Bush in Helsinki Sunday Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev said he had received assurances Washington no longer opposed greater Soviet involvement in the Middle East.

Subsequently, The New York Times suggested Bush had moved away from long-standing U.S. efforts to limit Soviet participation in the region.

As the foreign minister addressed the issue of greater Soviet involvement in the Middle East, Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir welcomed the arrival of the first of 18 U.S.-made advanced Apache helicopters.

Shamir said the shipment indicated Washington's obligation to maintain Israel's ''qualitative edge'' in the region and foreshadowed the arrival of additional military hardware in the coming weeks and months.

''There is a risk of war of course and we hope there will not be war in this area,'' Shamir said of the Persian Gulf crisis. ''But we have to take into account the existing risks.''

Levy, returning from his first meeting with Secretary of State James Baker in Washington, also told reporters U.S.- Israeli relations had been strengthened and each side had a better understanding of the other's needs.

On the issue of Moscow's role in the Arab-Israeli peace process, Levy said increased participation by Moscow could come ''if they end the delivery of arms to the Arab countries and preach (to) them, direct them and put pressure on them to make peace with Israel.''

''Then (Moscow) will be a welcome partner, not based on our determination but on her policy,'' he said.

Israel has steadfastly opposed calls for an international peace conference which under one scenario has been envisioned to include the five permanent members of the U.N. Security Council, including the Soviet Union. Levy told reporters he and Baker did not discuss an international peace conference and the United States knew of Israel's firm preference for direct negotiations.

Levy said ''there exists a possibility'' for an international conference but Israel does not agree to one ''under any circumstances.''

''We demand the elementary thing ... direct negotiations, and on this the United States will work in order that the situation that will be created after the crisis, will be a situation of peace, development and progress '' he said.

Levy and Baker also agreed there would be no ''linkage between the crisis in the Gulf and any other subject,'' the Israeli foreign minister said.

Asked about changes in Israel's qualitative edge given the military hardware Washington's Arab allies were receiving in the wake of Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait, Shamir said the subject was part of Israeli-U.S. talks but declined to comment further.

At a noisy official welcome of two of 18 U.S.-made Apache helicopters that Israel bought for approximately $350 million, Shamir told reporters, ''The United States is obliged to maintain the qualitative edge of Israel in this part of the world and we are together looking for ways to maintain it and assure it.''

Considered the most modern attack helicopters and especially equipped to knock out tanks, the Apaches contained 16 Hellfire laser-guided missiles, 70-mm rockets and a 30-mm rocket fire cannon.

Israel ordered the helicopters before the invasion of Kuwait. After the welcome ceremony at an undisclosed Israeli military base, Shamir said the helicopters arrived at a time when they were badly needed by Israel and when the government was concerned over the risks in the region.

NORFOLK, VA (SEPT. 12) UPI - The carrier USS Dwight D. Eisenhower and guided- missile cruiser USS Ticonderoga, two of the first ships to bolster Operation Desert Shield in the Middle East, sailed home Wednesday after a rugged deployment.

The Eisenhower battle group's scheduled six-month deployment to the Mediterranean Sea was altered as part of the U.S. military buildup in the Persian Gulf region.

Rear Adm. Thomas Lynch, commander of Cruise-Destroyer Group Twelve and Battle Force Sixth Fleet, credited the carrier battle group with causing Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein to blink shortly after its August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Military anaylsts have said the first days after the Iraqi invasion were critical because it was not know whether Iraq would attack Saudi Arabia.

''We were really the only U.S. forces that were ready at that time to interdict a further Iraqi aggression into Saudi Arabia,'' Lynch told reporters aboard the Eisenhower.

The Eisenhower and support ships transitted the Suez Canal August 8 and patrolled the Red Sea until August 24.

''I think it had to cause him (Hussein) to hesitate, to stutter and I think when he did that he lost the initiative,'' said Lynch.

In addition to providing a deterrant at sea, the Eisenhower and its air wing were available to provide air cover for U.S. forces deploying in Saudi Arabia.

Ike and its battle group remained in the region until being released by ships from the USS Saratoga battle group.

The ships return more than 5,800 sailors to Norfolk Naval Station. The Ticonderoga returned at about 10 a.m. EDT, and the carrier was to make port later in the afternoon.

Several other vessels from the 11-ship Eisenhower battle group began returning to East Coast ports late last week. The ships departed March 8.

F-14 Tomcats and other aircraft from the Eisenhower made a roaring return to Virginia on Tuesday. Three squadrons flew into Oceana Naval Air Station at Virginia Beach and another returned to the Norfolk Naval Air Station.

Aviators said jets were flying night and day after Iraq overran Kuwait.

More than 30,000 military personnel from southeastern Virginia have been deployed in the gulf crisis. Reservists have had to take over a large share of military support activities.

The aircraft from Carrier Air Wing 7 that returned to Hampton Roads on Tuesday included Attack Squadron 34, Fighter Squadron 142, Fighter Squadron 143 and Carrier Airborne Early Warning Squadron 121.

Aircraft from the carrier air wing also returned to bases in Florida and Washington.

BOSTON (SEPT. 12) UPI - A study of heart transplant patients indicates overactivity by part of the nervous system may be a cause of chronic high blood pressure, researchers said Wednesday.

Research into the role the anti-rejection drug cyclosporine plays in boosting blood pressure of heart recipients may help solve an long- standing controversy about whether the so-called sympathetic nervous system is involved in causing high blood pressure, or hypertension, said Dr. Ronald Victor.

An estimated 58 million Americans suffer from high blood pressure, which kills about 30,000 yearly and is directly related to many heart attacks and strokes. In about 10 percent of cases, disorders such as kidney disease, heart problems and adrenal gland tumors are involved in high blood pressure. But in the remaining 90 percent, the cause is unknown.

Although use of cyclosporine, which is derived from a fungus, has greatly enhanced long-term survival of heart recipients by suppressing the body's natural rejection of foreign organs, it also is largely responsible for the fact that over 90 percent of heart transplant patients have moderate to severe high blood pressure, said Victor, of the University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center in Dallas.

But although the link between cyclosporine and increased blood pressure is clear, Victor said doctors do not understand why the drug has this harmful side effect. The new study indicates a possible explanation lies in the drug's ability to stimulate nerves that constrict blood vessels, making it more difficult for blood to flow through them, Victor and his colleagues reported in The New England Journal of Medicine.

Using a novel technique that involved placing tiny recording needles through the skin, the scientists were able to monitor the electrical activity of nerves that make up the sympathetic nervous system in five heart transplants recipients who were not receiving cyclosporine and 14 who were.

While the brain and spinal cord comprise the central nervous system, ''everything else is the peripheral nervous system,'' said Victor, and one part of it is the sympathetic nervous system.

The researchers found that among the heart recipients receiving cyclosporine, blood pressure not only was higher than among those not receiving the drug, but the rate at which the nerves in their peripheral nervous system fired electrical bursts was an average of nearly three times higher.

Victor said the scientists also found similar, but considerably smaller, elevations in blood pressure and nerve-firing rates among eight people with myasthenia gravis, a disease of the immune system characterized by muscle weakness, who were receiving cyclosporine.

When the sympathetic nervous system becomes overactive, blood vessels constrict, making blood pressure go up, he said. The effect is ''like stepping on a garden hose,'' he said, blocking the flow of water and increasing water pressure behind the obstruction.

The next step for researchers is to try to discover whether something other than a drug, such as stress, can cause sympathetic nervous system overactivity which in turn could lead to long-term high blood pressure.

Prior studies involving middle-aged people with high blood pressure ''indicated their sympathetic nerves fired normally,'' Victor said, but scientists now are aiming to repeat the tests with younger people to see if abnormal nervous system activity could be a precursor to hypertension.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 12) UPI - Negotiators for the New York Post and its nine unions stepped up the pace of their talks Wednesday after publisher Peter Kalikow moved up his deadline for closing the newspaper by 28 hours.

Kalikow, a real estate millionaire, set a new Friday 8 p.m. deadline to save the nation's oldest continuously published daily after negotiators met at the Sheraton Centre Hotel for 90 minutes Tuesday. He previously had threatened to close the Post Saturday midnight.

Post officials and representatives of the Allied Printing Trades Council went into an eight-hour session at the hotel at 11 a.m. Wednesday under increased pressure to find a solution to Kalikow's dilemma. He bought the paper from Rupert Murdoch in 1988 for $37.6 million and has since lost about $93 million operating it.

At the time of the purchase, Kalikow got $22 million in concessions from employees, mostly through elimination of jobs and wage cuts.

Kalikow has projected a $27 million loss for 1990 and wants the paper's 850 unionized employees to make more concessions which would give him at least $17 million in savings. In return, the unions are asking for a share in Post ownership, possibly 49 percent of the stock and several seats on the board.

The Post's circulation as of March was 504,720 as of March, down about 30,000 from last year. But the paper has seen its advertising linage drop 16 percent in the past year.

After learning that Kalikow moved up the deadline, George McDonald, head of the unions' council, said, ''He wants to be able to have an editorial in the Saturday paper saying, 'We're here, we're going to be around for a long time, thanks to the unions,' or, 'We're sorry we didn't make it. Goodbye to the people of New York'.''

In the meantime, management of the city's other financially troubled tabloid, the Daily News, announced that they will seek the same relief from its unions that the Post might get. Theodore Kheel, a labor expert who is advising the newspaper unions, called the News action ''one of desperation.''

Newspaper Guild President Barry Lipton charged that News managment was trying to undermine Post negotiations by making the announcement. He said there was no legal basis for such a demand and characterized it as ''an attempt to force the demise of the Post.''

Labor contracts at the News expired in March, and negotiations continue there between unions and management.

Bus posters and billboards were going up around the city Tuesday with the message: ''Daily News Is Bad News for Its Workers.''

The campaign does not have the complete support of some News employees, however, who have objected to the negative tone.

News features writer Alan Mirabella was quoted in the newspaper Tuesday saying, ''It would be better to say '2,800 News employes are working hard to make sure the paper survives. We hope you'll support them.''

ROCKVILLE, MD (SEPT. 12) UPI - University of Maryland men's basketball coach Gary Williams has been sentenced to probation before judgment in a Montgomery County court for his arrest in May for drunken driving, a school official said Wednesday.

Williams was sentenced Tuesday to one year probation, and he also must attend alcohol rehabilitation classes and pay $295 in fines, said Maryland athletic department spokesman Herb Hartnett.

Williams, who will begin his second season as the Terps' head coach this fall, was pulled over by police on the Capital Beltway near Washington about 1:50 a.m. May 12. He failed a Breathalyzer test.

He was charged with driving under the influence, failing to maintain his lane, driving 65 mph in a 55 mph zone and driving without a valid license.

Probation without judgment means Williams' guilt or innocence will not be determined by a court.

The invalid license charge was dropped because Williams had a valid Ohio license, Hartnett said.

In a statement Tuesday, Williams said, ''This is a first-time incident and measures have been taken to make sure it never happens again.''

DHAHRAN, SAUDI ARABIA (SEPT. 12) UPI - When Pvt. Wade Merritt wrote a touching letter to his mother explaining why he believed American military moves against Iraq were just, he did not expect to be quoted to the nation by President Bush.

''For a soldier it is the highest honor to be bestowed to be mentioned by his commander-in-chief,'' the 26-year-old trooper from Knoxville, Tenn. told UPI Wednesday. ''But I was more happy for my parents, especially my mother. She was hysterical. She is a very proud American.''

Merritt said he had not yet heard which parts of his letter Bush had quoted in a nationally televised congressional address Tuesday. Military authorities were trying to get him a video or audio tape of the event.

Bush said, ''A soldier, PFC Wade Merrit of Knoxville, Tenn., now stationed in Saudi Arabia, wrote his parents of his worries, his love of family and his hopes for peace. But Wade also wrote: ''I am proud of my country and its firm stand against inhumane aggression. I am proud of my ''oud of my

''Let me just say, Wade, America is proud of you. And grateful to every soldier, sailor, Marine and airman serving the cause of peace in the Persian Gulf,'' Bush said.

The private, dressed in desert fatigues and sporting a close crew- cut, said he decided to articulate his feelings about going to Saudi Arabia in a letter after receiving orders to take part in the mission against the armies of Saddam Hussein.

He said it was written with an eye on posterity in case he did not return.

''I said that I was very proud to be in the army, that I was working with very fine soldiers, and that our cause was just and right, and that we should not take our freedom in America for granted,'' the straight-talking soldier explained as the message of his letter.

Merritt, who has studied history and politics, said he understood the strategic importance of protecting oil, but for him, the mission was more a matter of principle, of upholding international law and not allowing territorial aggrandizement by Saddam, who invaded Kuwait on Aug. 2.

''I don't like to feel that I'm here putting my life on the line for economic reasons. An economy can be fixed, and we can get oil anywhere,'' he said. ''The main hope is to restore freedom to the Kuwaiti people.''

Merritt's mother showed the 1 1/2-page letter to neighbors and work collegues. They recommended she send it to the White House, where officials saw the value in publicizing Merritt's message.

The soldier has been deployed in the kingdom for more than two weeks as a communications expert for the 24th Mechanized Division (Infantry), and said his initial experiences had not changed his views.

''There has been a lot of anxiety, but my feelings are still there,'' he said. ''It is still just. It will be until the process is restored.''

For the moment, the private with the languid southern drawl was adjusting to new-found notoriety.

''We got a call from the White House at about 2 a.m. asking about you,'' said Capt. Michael Sherman, the chief press liason officer, shaking Merritt's hand.

''They asked 'who is this guy? does he exist? did you guys make him up?' It was good what you did. It's important that it all gets back to the boss '' Sherman said.

CHICAGO (SEPT. 12) UPI - Liquidation and profit-taking pressured grain and soybean futures Wednesday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Midmorning prices were narrowly mixed in lackluster trading.

The volume was expected to be light ahead of the September crop report. Traders expect the Agriculture Department to raise the corn production estimate and the soybean number to be virtually the same as last month.

Commercial and commission house selling was countered by scattered buying activity across the floor.

Traders were disappointed that President Bush has not offered export credit guarantees or a food aid package to the Soviet Union. Some had expected an announcement when the President addressed a joint session of Congress Tuesday night, even though officials had said the Soviets must first approve changes in their emigration policy.

Overnight rain in the Delta contributed to the weakness in soybeans.

Country movement was light and basis levels were firm.

The midmorning prices:

Corn Sep 2.40 3/4 off 3/4; Dec 2.34 3/4 off 1 1/4; Mar 2.44 off 1 1/4.

Soybeans Sep 6.25 3/4 up 1/4; Nov 6.38 3/4 unch; Jan 6.52 1/2 off 1/2; Mar 6.66 off 1/2.

Wheat Sep 2.67 off 1/4; Dec 2.83 1/4 off 3/4; Mar 2.96 off 1/2.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 12) UPI - Sales of U.S. Savings Bonds increased by 4 percent in August to $653 million from $629 million in July, in one of the best showings in four years, the Treasury Department reported Wednesday.

Last month's increase was also a gain of 5 percent over August 1989, when the government sold $622 million of the popular investments, which are ''backed by the full faith and credit of the United States.''

''August's results were the best for the month since 1986, when $1.1 billion worth were sold,'' the Treasury Department said.

The increase in sales comes in the wake of Iraq's invasion of Kuwait, which caused havoc in financial markets. But a government spokesman said he had no way of knowing if the gain was caused by investors seeking a safe haven.

During the first 11 months of fiscal 1990, sales totaled $7.23 billion, an increase of $35 million over sales in the first 11 months of fiscal 1989.

The Treasury Department also said that at the end of August, the total value of savings bonds held by the public was $123.14 billion, an increase of 7 percent over the previous 12 months.

Bonds held five years or longer currently earn a semi-annual market- based rate of 7.01 percent, which will change Nov. 1. The government guarantees a minimum market-based rate of 6 percent.

''Bonds held since the beginning of the market-based interest program in November 1982 have earned 8.25 percent annually since that time,'' the Treasury Department said.

Prior to 1982, interest on the bonds, which are exempt from state and municipal taxes, was fixed.

Savings bonds are sold in denominations of $50, $75, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $5,000 and $10,000. The purchase price is equal to half of the bond's maturing value. For example, a $100 bond costs $50.

Annual purchases are limited to $15,000, or $30,000 face value.

Savings bonds purchased after Dec. 31, 1989, are also exempt of federal income taxes if redeemed to pay tuition at a college, university or technical school.

(SEPT. 12) UPI - President Bush has videotaped an eight-minute message to the people of Iraq, one the White House hopes will be aired on Iraqi television. Bush said his argument is NOT with the Iraqi people but with its leaders. Whether the message is ever broadcast is an open question. But aides say Bush welcomes even the most remote chance at explaining what is going on.

Exxon says it is demobilizing its Alaska oil spill clean-up force today, though some workers will be working until Friday. Exxon said at the end of its second summer of clean-up work that the operation is a success, even though some oil remains in the once-pristine environment. The tanker Exxon Valdez hit a charted reef in March 1989, dumping nearly 11-Million gallons of crude oil into Prince William Sound and the Gulf of Alaska.

A new survey of obstetricians and gynecologists shows that fears of being sued for malpractice apparently continue to lead to the doctors avoiding procedures that often trigger lawsuits. The survey for the College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists found that more than 39 percent of the doctors had made some change in their practice. 12 percent said they had abandoned their obstetrical practice.

LONDON (SEPT. 12) UPI - Firing squads in China have executed more than 500 people this year in the country's most severe crackdown on crime since 1983, Amnesty International says.

The executions included people convicted of counterrevolutionary religious activities and alleged violence during the pro-democracy protests of spring 1989. At least hundreds of civilians were killed in Beijing's Tiananmen Square June 3, 1989, when the communist leadership ordered a crackdown on the 2-month-old protests.

Courts have been ordered to impose ''severe and swift'' sentences and the scope of the death penalty has been broadened, in what some officials have said was an attempt to ''clean up crime'' before the Asian Games start in Beijing Sept. 22, said a report prepared for release Thursday.

''Those executed are among the 1,100 people we know have been sentenced to death in the past 12 months,'' Amnesty said. ''And while that number is high, it is only the tip of the iceberg.''

The London-based group has repeatedly urged the Chinese government to put an end to all death sentences and executions and renewed its appeal in a telex to Prime Minister Li Peng.

The number of executions recorded by the international human-rights organization this year was the highest since 1983, when a major anti- crime campaign resulted in an estimated 5,000 to 10,000 executions.

Courts also have been ordered to toughen up on crimes including drug trafficking, embezzlement, gang robberies and theft in the fourth such sweeping attack on crime in the past eight years.

The organization expressed concern over what it called the ''dramatic increase'' in death sentences in China ''bacause China's trial system falls far below international standards.''

Most of those executed this year have been tried under emergency regulations that give them virtually no chance to prepare their defense and let lower courts pass death sentences. Some of them were executed within two weeks, the report said.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 12) UPI - President Bush will not attend a historic Oct. 3 celebration in Berlin marking the reunification of Germany, the White House announced Wednesday.

Hailing the signing of the accord clearing the way for German reunification, White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said Bush would not be able to accept the invitation from West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl to attend the festivities.

''We have other commitments,'' Fitzwater said. ''There is no question about the president's ... interest ... but unfortunately we just won't be able to attend.''

Fitzwater, who said Bush had conferred with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev on the question, made the announcement shortly after the foreign ministers from the victorious World War II allies - the Soviet Union, the United States, Britain and France - and the two Germanys on Wednesday signed the historic pact.

Gorbachev attended the ceremony.

Lauding the treaty signing, Fitzwater said the outcome was ''a tribute to the hard work and good faith of all the parties involved.''

''Today's treaty signing makes the dream of a unified free and democratic Germany just a short step away,'' he said. ''In the glare of today's Persian Gulf crisis, it is easy to forget the anxiety and turmoil for East and West during the enfolding of these events. But they were successfully managed and today we can look forward to a unified Germany that is a partner with its neighbors and committed to fostering new world order.''

Fitzwater said Bush ''wanted to wait before saying publicly we couldn't go until this treaty was agreed to so there'd be no question about our support for the effort and about the president's intense personal involvement in this over the last several months.''

GROTON, CT (SEPT. 12) UPI - Electric Boat shipyard said it will lay off about 1,000 white-collar workers before Christmas and could chop half its workforce in the next five years if defense budget cuts continue.

Declining submarine orders by the U.S. Navy have prompted the latest layoffs, which will come Oct. 1 with 60 days notice, the General Dynamics Corp. division said Tuesday.

Most of the layoffs will come at the company's submarine shipyard in Groton, Conn., but some cuts will also be made at smaller facilities in Quonset Point, R.I., Charleston, S.C. and Avendel, N.J., officials said.

The company told employees in a bulletin that between 4 percent and 5 percent of its 23,000 workers - a total of 920 to 1,150 mostly salaried employees - will be laid off this year.

The company also warned that in a ''worst-case scenario,'' as many as 10,000 more employees, or about half the workforce, could lose their jobs by the mid-1990s if current trends toward Navy submarine budget cuts continue.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 12) UPI - The ''new gold rush'' sweeping Nevada and other Western states provided a glittery, yet plausible script. The stock market crash in late 1987 provided an eager, susceptible audience.

That was all it took for professional con artists operating out of ''boiler rooms'' in Southern California and Las Vegas to give a modern twist to an ancient mining swindle and turn it into one of the the most profitable frauds in recent decades.

The ''dirt-pile'' gold scams of the late 1980s bilked small investors out of at least $21 million in losses documented by state securities agencies in 38 states, according to a new survey. Experts, however, estimate actual losses ran into the hundreds of millions of dollars.

''It just sold itself,'' said Scott Stapf, an investment education adviser for the North American Securities Administrators Association in Washington.

Authorities have dubbed these bogus investments ''dirt-pile'' schemes because of the way they work.

Promoters contact their victims by telephone and, using high-pressure sales pitches, solicit them to purchase a large quantity of unprocessed ore, typically 100 tons, guaranteed to contain 20 ounces of microscopic ''no-see-um'' gold.

The potential investor is offered the gold at a price far below the going market value for refined bullion and is told the discount is possible because the gold is still in the ground.

For an additional fee, the fast-talking swindlers promise to extract the gold from the ore and refine it for the investor using a ''secret,'' new process.

The delivery date for the gold is then set 15 or 18 months in the future, allowing ''time to take investors' money and get out before the investors realize what's happened," said Judith Allen of the Nevada Securities Division.

''Sometimes they'll even set it up so that investors make monthly payments '' she said.

Adding credibility to the scams are slick brochures, prospectus sheets and in some cases, documents to validate actual mining claims. Such documents are relatively easy to obtain from the government under federal mining laws, which allow private citizens or businesses to freely prospect on public land.

Like most convincing forms of fraud, the dirt-pile scheme is rooted in truth.

Its success was largely an outgrowth of the new gold rush of the West, where advanced minining techniques have made possible the extraction of minute quantities of gold and silver from previously worthless ore, Stapf said.

This technology has been an economic boon for Nevada, where annual gold production has increased nearly ten-fold during the past decade - from 525,000 ounces in 1981 to 5.05 million ounces last year.

Nevada, traditionally known as the Silver State, now accounts for 60 percent of domestic gold production, making the United States the world's third largest producer after South Africa and the Soviet Union, said Russell Fields of the Nevada Department of Minerals.

Other states propsering from the new gold extraction methods are California, Oregon, Idaho, Utah, Colorado, New Mexico, Montana and Alaska.

Compared with other ''boiler room'' schemes - so named because they traditionally operate out of low-rent office space - the dirt-pile scam was ''one of the more successful we've seen,'' Stapf said.

The basic attraction was ''the traditional lure of gold,'' but its real success was fueled by the Wall Street crash in October 1987, which shook confidence in ''paper investments,'' he said.

''People who left the market after 1987 fled right into the arms of these con artists. ... It just hit investor psychology perfectly,'' Stapf said.

He added, ''The fact that the market crashed gave them (swindlers) a national audience, rather than just a regional audience'' in the West.

Indeed, investors in all 50 states got stung, Stapf said.

''One case promoted out of California had victims in 41 states and three foreign countries,'' he said.

The boiler rooms, he said, were operated mostly out of Southern California Las Vegas and Phoenix, with the alleged mines usually located in Nevada, California, New Mexico and northern Texas.

MOSCOW (SEPT. 12) UPI - The four victorious allies of World War II and the two Germanys formally wrapped up the war Wednesday with a treaty that clears the way for a united Germany and declares "only peace will emanate from German soil.''

The treaty signed by the foreign ministers from East and West Germany and the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union relinquishes the four powers' rights in Germany and gives the Germans full sovereignty for the first time since 1945.

''We have drawn the line under World War II and have started counting time of a new age,'' Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze declared after the signing.

The treaty specifies that the current borders of East and West Germany will remain the borders of a united Germany and declares that Germany ''has no territorial claims whatsoever against any other states and shall not assert any in future.''

''The governments of the Federal Republic of Germany and the German Democratic Republic reaffirm their declarations that only peace shall emanate from German soil,'' the document read.

The article specifying the strict borders of unified Germany was included to allay fears of renewed German hegemony in Europe. The treaty specifically refers to the German-Polish border and says the two countries would confirm the existing frontier in a separate treaty.

The treaty officially becomes effective only after ratification by the legislatures of the countries involved - the four World War II victors and the united Germany - but it clears the way for the Oct. 3 German unification.

In Washington, White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater hailed the signing of the treaty as ''an historic event,'' but said that President Bush would not be attending the Oct. 3 unification celebration in Berlin.

''Today's treaty signing makes the dream of a unified free and democratic Germany just a short step away,'' Fitzwater said.

"In the glare of today's Persian Gulf crisis, it is easy to forget the anxiety and turmoil for East and West during the enfolding of these events '' he said. ''But they were successfully managed and today we can look forward to a unified Germany that is a partner with its neighbors and committed to fostering new world order.''

The six foreign ministers proclaimed in a news conference after the signing that the ''Treaty on the Final Settlement with Respect to Germany'' closed the book on the horrors of World War II.

''In this hour we remember the victims of war and totalitarian domination, the agony of the people,'' West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher said. ''We're particularly thinking of the Jewish people. We would never want that agony to be repeated.

''To us Germans this is a day of joy and jubilation, but at the same time a day of remembrance and a day of gratitude.''

East German Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere, who also holds the foreign ministry portfolio since the previous foreign minister left the Cabinet, said the treaty ''opened a new chapter, an age of peace.''

Secretary of State James Baker added that the event was ''truely a rendezvous with history.''

''Let our legacy be that 45 years after the end of World War II we have finally got the political arithmetic right: Two plus four adds up to one Germany in a Europe that's whole and free,'' Baker said.

Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev looked on as the six foreign ministers signed the treaty at the elegant Oktyabrskaya (October) Hotel, recently converted from a guest house for top Communist Party officials.

The foreign ministers later appeared at a news conference backed by the flags of the six countries, with the West and East German flags side-by-side.

The officials had gathered in Moscow on Tuesday for the final negotiating session of the talks convened to give the Allies' blessing to reuniting the German people under a single national flag after more than four decades of formal separation.

Germany and the Soviet Union still need to finalize three separate treaties dealing with overall bilateral relations, conditions for a transition period while Soviet troops are pulled out of East Germany and scientific, economic and cultural cooperation.

One of the last major obstacles was cleared Monday when West Germany agreed to pay a compromise sum of $7.6 billion toward the withdrawal of 380,000 Soviet troops from the territory of present East Germany.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 12) UPI - Dashing hopes one genetic flaw might hold the answer to Alzheimer's disease, a landmark study showed Wednesday that the mystifying brain disorder apparently has multiple causes like heart disease and cancer.

Recent research had indicated a defective gene on chromosome 21 may be the primary cause of Alzheimer's disease, especially in the minority of patients stricken before age 65.

But other scientists had argued that Alzheimer's is not a single disease, like measles or cystic fibrosis, but an array of disorders produced by a variety of factors that cause similar symptoms and brain destruction.

A single cause may have made it easier to find ways to prevent and treat the devastating disease that afflicts as many as 4 million Americans.

An international team of more than 65 leading scientists analyzed genetic material from patients from 48 families with a history of Alzheimer's to look for signs of genetic defects in the suspect region of chromosome 21.

Although some patients with early onset Alzheimer's appeared to have genetic flaws on chromosome 21, most patients had none - suggesting their disease is caused by different genetic factors, environmental influences or possibly both.

''What we have done is provide the first really solid evidence that there is more than one cause, more than one way in which you can get Alzheimer's,'' said Peter St. George-Hyslop of Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston, who co-authored the study published in the British scientific journal Nature.

Alzheimer's disease is a gradual, irreversible erosion of brain cells that control thought and memory. Patients begin with difficulty remembering simple things and regress to an infant-like state, needing continuous attention. The disease usually strikes after age 65, but in some families it typically appears as early as age 35.

The symptoms appear to be caused by tangles in cells of the brain, destruction of other cells and strange bodies of protein found inside cells. What starts the process is unknown, and there is no treatment for the disease.

''It would not surprise me if Alzheimer's turns out to be something very similar to the complexity of heart disease, with more than one single genetic defect or a mixture of genetic predisposition and environmental factors or in some cases totally environmental factors causing the same illness,'' St. George-Hyslop said.

''The implications of this study are that we are now going to have to enlarge our research to find those other causes,'' he said.

The international team, which pulled together rival scientists from England, Belgium, France, Italy, Mexico, West Germany, the Soviet Union, Canada and the United States, are now trying to see if their large group of families may have genetic defects on chromosome 19. A team headed by Allen Roses of Duke University in Durham, N.C., recently reported their studies indicate a gene for inherited, late-onset Alzheimer's disease may be located on that chromosome.

Although their general locations are known, neither the suspect gene on chromosome 21 nor the one on chromosome 19 has been pinpointed. That means scientists cannot yet determine what protein the genes code for - a crucial step in designing strategies to treat the disease.

Creighton Phelps, vice president of scientific affairs with the Alzheimer's Association in Chicago, said people who expected a simple way to cure or prevent Alzheimer's probably will find the latest results ''discouraging and frustrating.''

BY STENY HOYER - WRITTEN FOR UPI

(SEPT. 12) UPI - Programs don't run without people, and if the people are furloughed the programs will suffer.

Imagine, if you will, the following scenario. Mr. and Mrs. Smith live on a fixed income - his monthly Social Security check supplemented by a few investments. Everything is budget. They always pay their bills on time - part of their financial ethic.

One day in November they go to the mailbox expecting their monthly Social Security check. Social Security Administration employees have been furloughed and the check isn't on time. Mr. Smith calls the mortgage company, the phone company and the power company to explain why he can't pay his bills.

The Smiths put off their weekly trip to the grocery. (If they did go, they would find a greater supply of fruits, vegetables and meat uninspected because the Food and Drug Administration inspectors would have had to cut back on the number of goods they can inspect.)

Late in the afternoon the phone rings. It's the Smith's daughter who lives in California. Her house near the national park is threatened by fire. What should she do? Agriculture and Interior department firefighters are on furlough and there aren't enough people to fight the fires.

Oh, and by the way, her husband who works for the Air Force has been working around the clock to ship supplies to the Persian Gulf. Today, he got his furlough notice - 14 days without pay.

All this upheaval upsets Mr. Smith chronic heart condition and he heads for the VA hospital - only to be met by a sign saying because of staff furloughs, walk-ins are not being seen.

A trip to the park always calms his soul. You know the rest of the story, his park bench has been vandalized and the park closed early because park rangers have been furloughed.

Maybe this scenario seems corny or far-fetched, but if federal employees are furloughed, this scenario and others like it could be real. Here are some other realities that may come to pass:

-The flow of drugs across our borders may increase because Border Patrol personnel will be furloughed.

-Air Traffic Controllers employed by the Federal Aviation Agency will have staffing problems - especially during the upcoming heavy holiday travel season.

The impact of furloughs on federal programs will be significant. We will all feel it.

(SEPT. 12) UPI - President Bush videotaped an eight-minute message to the Iraqi people today, hoping the tape will be broadcast on official Iraqi T-V. Bush made an overture to the Iraqi people the morning after drawing praise and applause in pledging to Congress that the United States will NOT allow Iraq to annex Kuwait.

White House and congressional budget negotiators were scheduled to get back to work this morning, spurred on by the insistence of President Bush that ''now it is time to produce.'' Sources close to the talks say the negotiators are near an agreement on a 500-BILLION-dollar deficit-reduction plan.

The shuttle Columbia seems back on track for a possible launch next Tuesday. Engineers think they may have found what caused the leak that grounded Columbia last week- a fuel line seal that was partially crushed. But they still want to find out if something else might be responsible.

The jackpot in this weekend's Florida Lotto drawing is climbing faster than a space shuttle mission. The total is estimated at more than 90-Million dollars and still going up. And it is bringing a lot of out-of-state players. One man flew from Atlanta to Jacksonville, bought 14-hundred tickets and flew home.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 12) UPI - A group of 241 Roman Catholic priests urged the nation's bishops Wednesday to scrap their proposed pastoral statement on women, saying it is ''guilty of misogyny.''

''Do not continue this sad tale,'' the priests, organized by the independent group, ''Priests for Equality,'' said in an open letter to the U.S. hierarchy.

''Abandoning the pastoral at this point would be unique, human and a wonderfully Christ-like graced moment,'' the priests said.

The role of women in the Catholic church has been one of the most bitterly debated topics in the church for the last decade, touching on a wide range of issues from birth control and abortion to the ordination of women to the priesthood.

The National Conference of Catholic Bishops - the nation's more than 300 Catholic bishops - has been struggling with a pastoral letter on the role of women in society and the church since 1982, when Bishop Michael McAuliffe of Jefferson City, Mo., first proposed such a formal statement.

It has been an arduous and controversial process since then and the fate of the statement's current incarnation - a 99-page document called ''One in Christ Jesus: A Pastoral Response to the Concerns of Women for Church and Society'' - is to be decided this week during a meeting of the bishops' conference's administrative board.

The 50-member board is meeting this week to set the agenda for the November meeting of the NCCB and its social policy arm, the U.S. Catholic Conference.

In urging the bishops to scrap the proposed statement, the priests said the letter is ''now at a point beyond which no amount of rewriting or amending can recoup the damage done.''

''The second draft is misogynous,'' said the Rev. Joseph Dearborn, national secretary of Priests for Equality, ''when ... it implies that woman's sin is greater than man's and quotes Genesis 3:16 to reinforce the point.''

That passage, following the story of Eve's temptation by the serpent in the Garden of Eden, has God telling her, ''I will greatly multiply your pain in childbearing. ...''

''Not only is this the only quote from the Old Testament in the document but it is so abused by misogynists,'' Dearborn said, that it is used to argue that pain in chilbirth is a more severe punishment than man's punishment to labor with the soil and thus to argue that ''woman's sin is greater than man's.

''This use of scripture reflects no textual analysis, no reference to the writing of contemporary scholarship, yet alone acknowledgment of feminist scriptural critique,'' Dearborn said.

Dearborn noted that the current draft of the statement has been criticized by Archbishop Rembert Weakland of Milwaukee, Wis., that the Leadership Conference of Religious Women has called for scrapping the project and that two members of the committee charged with drafting the document have resigned.

The draft under consideration, released in April, was widely criticized at the time of its release as less forceful in its support of women's equality than an earlier version of the statement and strongly reaffirms the church's tradition of an all-male priesthood.

It also appeared to abandon a promise made in the first draft to ''foster a dialogue'' with those who oppose the church ban on birth control.

But it does continue to label ''sexism'' a sin.

In their letter to the bishops, the Priests for Equality said the hierarchy should acknowledge that their pastoral letter itself is permeated with sexism and such an admission ''of fact is the most powerful and hopeful measure you can deliver to women given the circumstances of the moment.''

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 12) UPI - For members of Congress who dream of everlasting fame by having a building on Capitol Hill named after them, the pickings are getting slim. Former President Gerald Ford and former Speaker Thomas O'Neill have just picked off two of the last.

Many federal buildings around the country bear the names of the senators or congressmen who represented the state or district where they are located, but an edifice in the Capitol complex is something special, mainly because there are so few of them.

This week, the House approved a resolution, sponsored by Rep. Clay Shaw, R-Fla., naming two out-of-the-way office buildings after Ford, who led a palace coup to become the Republican leader in 1965, and O'Neill, who served in the House 34 years, including the last 10 as speaker.

Previously, the two buildings were known simply as Annex 1 (O'Neill) and Annex 2 (Ford). They house hundreds of committee staff and the residence for pages.

Although neither the O'Neill nor the Ford buildings are viewed as choice by members of Congress, there is precious little real estate left that does not already have a name.

''It is quite an honor to have a House building named after you,'' said Rep. William Broomfield, R-Mich. ''There are plenty of post offices, highways and schools out there. But there are very few House office buildings.''

According to the Office of the Architect, all that remains is the seven-story Capitol Police Headquarters and a building five blocks from the Capitol that houses the the congressional day care facilities.

The Capitol Police Headquarters is physically located on the Senate side of the complex but it is one of the few under joint Senate-House jurisdiction - a situation that certainly would provoke a fight if either the Senate or House tried to put a name on it.

Nor is there any prospect for any new buildings to rise despite Congress's penchant for expansion.

''The architect some years ago put out a master plan saying if there is a need for more office buildings, this is where they should go,'' a spokesman said. ''But there is nothing on the drawing board right now.''

The six major office buildings - three for the Senate and three for the House - were named long ago.

The House buildings were named in honor of the speaker serving when they were built - Joseph Cannon, R-Ill., Nicholas Longworth, R-Ohio, and Sam Rayburn, D-Texas.

The Senate, which made do with two office buildings for many years after the House built the Mussolini-style Rayburn edifice, simply called them the old and the new Senate Office Buildings.

But in the 1960s, Democrats and Republicans decided they would each name one - the Democrats honoring Sen. Richard Russell, D-Ga., their dean and leader of the Southern bloc, and Sen. Everett Dirksen, R-Ill, the veteran GOP leader.

The opulent third building was named after Sen. Phil Hart, D-Mich., one of the best-liked members of the Senate, just before he died of cancer.

The number of buildings are so few that the Senate and House long ago began naming rooms in the Capitol after their most esteemed colleagues.

The office of the Democratic Steering and Policy Committee on the third floor already bears O'Neill's name, allowing him to share with Rayburn the honor of having both a building and a Capitol room named after him. On the second floor is the Sam Rayburn room, the official House reception room.

The House Appropriations Room, on the ground floor, is named after former Rep. George Mahon, D-Texas, its long-time chairman.

The Senate has been more free with the naming of rooms, including ones named for Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson, that, unfortunately, are in an area off limits to tourists.

Also on the second floor is the large meeting and party room named after Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont, who served longer than any person as Senate majority leader, and where his imposing portrait presides.

The offices now occupied by Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell are named after his predecessor, Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., and those that house Senate Republican leader Robert Dole bear the name of his predecessor, Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn.

And on the ground floor are two small restaurant rooms named after Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., a former GOP leader, and Sen. Arthur Vandenberg, R-Mich., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

And this summer, the Senate named a table in the Senate dining room after the late Sen. Spark Matsunaga, D-Hawaii, who unfailingly took his constituents to lunch when they visited the Capitol.

BANGKOK, THAILAND (SEPT. 12) UPI - Cambodian rebel and government leaders, following up on their breakthrough acceptance of a U.N. peace plan, were calling for a voluntary cease-fire and began winding down radio propaganda battles Wednesday.

The peace agreement meanwhile was endorsed by both China, which has backed the hard-line communist Khmer Rouge rebel faction, and Vietnam, which supports the Cambodian government. China also said it was ready for the first time to establish contact with the Cambodian government.

Prince Norodom Ranariddh, commander of a second of three resistance factions, said, ''Even before a formal agreement is reached, all Cambodians, if they really want peace, should create a peaceful, safe environment for implementation of a peace agreement.''

''I am very favorable for a self-restraint cease-fire,'' he told reporters.

Cambodian Prime Minister Hun Sen, made a similar call for a voluntary cease- fire before leaving Jakarta, Indonesia where the four Cambodian groups - who have waged a guerrilla war for more than a decade - Monday agreed to accept a U.N. peace plan.

The breakthrough accord, designed to establish a transition administration so that a cease-fire can take effect and free elections can be held, sets up a four-party Supreme National Council and commits the factions to a major United Nations role in the interim government.

Hun Sen, who arrived in Bangkok Wednesday, called it a good start towards peace but said further steps were needed. In a government radio broadcast, he repeated his call for a voluntary cease-fire, as well as a rapid meeting of a Supreme National Council.

''The boat has been built, the passengers are on ..., but we have not yet set sail,'' he said.

In talks late Wednesday with Thai Prime Minister Chatichai Choonhavan, Hun

Sen proposed the first Council meeting take place at the former Cambodian embassy in Bangkok on Monday, Thai spokesman Suvit Yodmanee told reporters.

Suvit quoted Hun Sen as saying the meeting should elect a chairman and decide on a delegation to represent Cambodia at the U.N. General Assembly meeting.

Chatichai replied if the other three factions agreed, he would be happy to make the arrangements for the meeting, he said.

While a cease-fire is part of the U.N. plan, the plan is not expected to be implemented until it is formally ratified at an international conference unlikely to be convened until at least November.

Ranariddh quoted Khieu Samphan, leader of the Khmer Rouge, as saying he would prefer to wait for that conference before agreeing to a cease- fire, but that an interim cease-fire ''may be'' possible.

Ranariddh said the voluntary cease-fire should be decided at the first Supreme National Council meeting, which he said should be held ''as soon as possible'' before the opening of the U.N. General Assembly later this month.

One of the first duties of the Council will be to name a new joint delegation to represent Cambodia at the U.N. General Assembly.

Even before a cease-fire, Ranariddh predicted a defacto reduction in hostilities, and a truce in a radio propaganda war waged by all factions.

Regular listeners of Khmer Rouge radio said Wednesday, the station dropped a regular series of anti-Vietnamese slogans for first time since it began broadcasting in 1983. The radio also said it would no longer describe crimes committed by Vietnamese troops in Cambodia, but leave them to be judged by the Cambodian and Vietnamese people.

A Chinese Foreign Ministry statement meanwhile, also was markedly conciliatory and devoid of anti-Vietnam statements in welcoming the "breakthrough" accord.

''China is ready to establish and keep contacts with all the parties in the Supreme National Council,'' said the statement carried by the official Xinhua news agency.

It was the first time Beijing has expressed readiness to have contact with the Phnom Penh government, installed by Hanoi after Vietnamese troops invaded Cambodia in December 1978 and toppled a bloody Khmer Rouge regime.

China, as key backer of the Khmer Rouge, is believed to have pressured the group to accept the settlement formula and framework.

But a signed commentary carried by Xinhua also reiterated Chinese complaints that Vietnam, despite having officially withdrawn its troops from Cambodia last year, still has forces in the country.

AUSTIN, TX (SEPT. 12) UPI - The Texas Supreme Court ruled Wednesday Gulf States Utilities Co. is not entitled to a second hearing on the prudency of its investment in a nuclear power plant.

The high court, in a 7-2 opinion, said financially troubled GSU had its chance to prove its prudency claims in a 1988 rate case and that the Texas Public Utility Commission cannot consider the matter again.

To permit reconsideration ''would allow a public utility to secure victory not by the strength of its case but simply by outlasting its opponents,'' the court said.

Susan Gilley, a spokeswoman for Beaumont, Texas-based GSU, said company lawyers were still reviewing the opinion and the utility had no immediate comment.

But consumer lawyer Jim Boyle said the Supreme Court order should assure ''reasonable rates for the forseeable future'' for Gulf States' more than 560,000 customers in Texas and Louisiana.

PUC spokesman Bill Dunn said the three-member utility regulatory agency had already suspended hearings in the GSU case under a prior court order, but may appealing the ruling.

''We're going to have to get with our counsel and see if we want to pursue some motion for rehearing or some sort of an appeal,'' he said.

GSU sought in a rate case first filed in 1986 prove that its $4.5 billion investment in the River Bend Nuclear Power Plant at St. Francisville, La., was a prudently incurred cost that should be passed on to its subscribers.

But in granting the utility a $59.9 million rate hike in May 1988, the PUC found that only $2.27 billion was prudently and reasonably incurred. It did not specifically disallow the additional $1.45 billion in capital costs, but held it in abeyance.

The case represented the first in Texas in which a utility sought a rate increase to help defray the construction costs of a nuclear plant.

In a new $88 million rate case filed by GSU in March 1989, the PUC voted 2-1 to allow the utility a second chance to prove the prudence of the remaining $1.45 billion investment in River Bend.

That action prompted a lawsuit by the Coalition of Cities for Affordable Utility Rates, a group of GSU customers that argued the company should not get a second chance.

In the high court's majority opinion, Justice Lloyd Doggett said GSU failed to meet its burden of proof the first time and is not entitled to a second hearing to present more evidence.

''All parties were entitled to a straightforward decision from the PUC the first time this case was presented,'' he said. ''The same finality that benefits the utility investors can serve the interests of consumers who know that if a utility is once denied relief because of its failure to prove its case, it may not return repeatedly one the same facts until the PUC yields.''

News of the Supreme Court decision caused GSU's stock prices to decline Wednesday, but Boyle said Wall Street should have been prepared for the ruling.

''It (ruling) takes away the uncertainty over the next few years and adds stability to the rates,'' said Boyle. ''Overall, it will be helpful to GSU. The market - Wall Street - has taken into account the disallowance already.

''I think they are going to do alright. The company, over time, will become healthier,'' he said. ''Most importantly for ratepayers, they should have reasonable rates for the forseeable future.''

GSU filed July 24 for a temporary $56.5 million rate increase which the company claims does not contain any nuclear plant costs. But Boyle, who represents eight cities served by GSU, said that claim is likely to be ''hotly debated'' in PUC hearings.

The PUC ordered its staff last week to expedite hearings on the case, saying it hoped to make a decision by November. The company filed for the temporary 10 percent increase, citing the lengthy delay in getting a final decision on the permanent $88 million rate hike requested last year.

ASPEN, CO (SEPT. 12) UPI - The price of housing in this capital of the rich and glitzy has gotten so high - more than $1 million for the average home - that the city's housing director was forced to quit.

Jim Adamski resigned as director of the Aspen-Pitkin County Housing Authority because he said he couldn't afford to buy a ''real home.'' Adamski left his $46,500 job this week to become housing director in Yakima, Wash.

''We would still like to own an American dream,'' Adamski said before leaving Aspen. He said he plans to buy a four-bedroom home in Yakima for $98,000, a figure that wouldn't touch any house in Aspen.

Like most people who work in Aspen, Adamski and his wife lived ''down valley,'' in their case a 45-minute commute away in Carbondale. Most homes in Aspen itself are owned by people who use them only a portion of the year.

The city is trying to ease the housing crunch by building 13 single-family homes in a subsidized employee housing project. The three-bedroom homes will sell for $186,000. The homes will be sold through a lottery to permanent residents.

MONTREAL (SEPT. 12) UPI - More than 4,500 paperworkers at Canadian Pacific Forest Products Ltd. were poised Wednesday to strike, adding to thousands of others already on the picket line in eastern Canada.

Pierre Despres, a spokesman for the Montreal-based company, said the company's 4,500 to 5,000 workers belonging to the Canadian Paperworkers Union were in a legal strike position. He said the company expected to hear from the union later Wednesday or Thursday.

He said the company was awaiting word from the CPU concerning a ''final offer'' made last week. He declined to outline details of the offer.

Despres said a strike would affect three newsprint mills in Trois Rivieres Ind Gatineau, Que. and Dalhousie, N.B. which account for 1.2 million tonnes of newsprint production a year, or 66 percent of the company's total output.

On Tuesday, talks between the CPU and another paper maker, Abitibi- Price Ltd., broke down after several days of intense negotiations failed to produce a settlement.

CPU workers at Abitibi-Price mills in Ontario, Quebec and Newfoundland set up pickets Monday, shutting down seven of the company's nine mills in eastern Canada. There are 4,500 CPU members at the nine mills.

The mills collectively produce 1.18 million tons of newsprint a year, or roughly 62 percent of Abitibi-Price's total output, the company said.

The sticking issues in the Abitibi-Price talks are focused on flexibility in assigning tasks to tradesman and running time on statutory holidays.

The Abitibi-Price offer reflects a settlement reached at Stone-Consolidated Inc. of Montreal, plus improvements in the areas of vacation pay and day work schedules, the company said.

In July, the CPU's 2,350 workers at Stone-Consolidated accepted a contract that will raise wages by 5.5 percent each year of a three-year deal. Under the deal, base salaries will increase from $13.06 an hour to $15.34 an hour over the course of the contract.

Meanwhile, about 1,200 paperworkers at the Quebec & Ontario Paper Co. Ltd. in Baie-Comeau, Quebec reportedly ratified a new three-year deal Tuesday.

BEIRUT, LEBANON (SEPT. 12) UPI - Britian's ambassador in Beirut, David

Tathem, Wednesday paid a visit to the spiritual leader of the pro-Iranian Hezbollah as part of London's efforts to win the release of Britons held captive by Shiite Moslem extremists.

Tathem told reporters as he emerged from the hour-and-a-half meeting with Sheiekh Mohammed Hussein Fadlallah at his residence in southern Beirut that he conveyed to the Shiite fundamentalist leader Britain's ''special concern'' over the fate of three British hostages.

The British diplomat said that he asked Fadlallah during the encounter to ''do whatever he can to win the release of the hostages.''

While Tathem expressed optimism regarding a near end to the plight of Western hostages, he said he had no tangible clues to authenticate recent reports about an imminent release of British captives.

Recent Lebanese media reports suggested that either Anglican Church envoy Terry Waite or another British captive would be freed soon.

The three Britons are held hostage along with 10 other foreigners, including six Americans.

JOHANNESBURG, SOUTH AFRICA (SEPT. 12) UPI - Three civilians in a taxi apparently mistaken for a police car and a police officer responding to a call from a top African National Congress leader were killed by gunmen in continuing factional violence in black townships, police said Wednesday.

The separate attacks south of Johannesburg, in the nation's largest black township of Soweto, coincided with raging battles in three settlements to the east which killed at least 46 people and led to the burning of some 400 shacks in the Phola Park squatter camp.

The newspaper Business Day quoted several police officers as saying they were ''too scared'' to go into the townships to quell the black vs. black factional fighting, which has continued despite emergency measures and what is effectively martial law imposed Aug. 26.

The latest violence followed a warning Tuesday from black nationalist leader Nelson Mandela that talks aimed at ending white minority rule in South Africa may collapse if the government fails to crush the internecine strife, which has killed some 630 people since Aug. 12.

Mandela's African National Congress has blamed the violence on the predominantly Zulu Inkatha movement, which the ANC says is seeking to gain the upper hand over the ANC and its predominantly Xhosa tribal members.

Elsewhere, a bomb thought to have been planted by right-wing extremists rocked the regional office of the ruling National Party in Pretoria's Waterkloof constituency early Wednesday. There were no casualties. It was the fourth bombing of NP offices since President de Klerk in February launched his sweeping program of racial reform.

Police said the three civilians died after a gunman fired with an AK-47 assault rifle on a mini-bus taxi, painted the same shade of yellow as police vehicles, outside the flashpoint Nancefield migrant-worker hostel in Soweto.

Another gunman standing by later fired several rounds at the wreck of the vehicle, they said.

The three people died instantly and four were seriously injured, police spokesman Lt. Govindsamy Mariemuthoo said, after ''the attacker obviously made the mistake of thinking the van was police issue.''

Mariemuthoo said a number of attackers earlier ambushed a police patrol following up on a report that people in Soweto's Diepkloof squatter camp were carrying AK-47 assault rifles.

''When they arrived, they were told the people had left, but as they were driving down a side road, they hit the ambush,'' he said.

Their vehicle took ''plenty of rounds,'' he added, saying that one constable died on the way to hospital and another three were seriously hurt.

Senior police spokesman Brig. Vic Haynes said the report the patrol had been sent to investigate had been relayed to police by Walter Sisulu, the internal leader of the ANC.

Haynes said that, while no armed men were discovered, ''We do not at all say that Mr. Sisulu deliberately led the policemen into an ambush.''

Sisulu said in a statement released through the ANC that he made the report in good faith and, regardless of Haynes' disclaimer, ''totally'' rejects the ''police insinuation'' that he was in any way linked to the ambush.

Police said at least 46 people had died in clashes in Vosloorus, Tembisa, and Thokoza since late Tuesday, many when Zulu hostel-dwellers and supporters of Inkatha rampaged through the townships randomly attacking ANC followers.

Mandela told President Frederik de Klerk in a two-hour meeting Tuesday pressure was mounting on the ANC to arm its supporters and resume the ''armed struggle'' against apartheid suspended last month after 29 years.

Despite assurances from de Klerk police were acting impartially and that the government was deeply concerned about the violence, Mandela said Pretoria must use its capacity to bring back calm or face a possible breakdown of fledgling talks between it and the ANC on ending 42 years of white minority rule.

Mandela did not specify steps to be taken, but has branded the three-month renewable emergency measures imposed in the 27 hardest-hit townships straddling Johannesburg ''totally useless.''

He has noted a 51-month-old state of emergency in strife-torn Natal province has failed to stem battles between the ANC and Inkatha, which since 1987 have killed up to 4,000 people.

But Mandela has refused to meet directly with Inkatha President Mangosuthu Buthelezi, charging the Zulu chief is fomenting the conflict to undermine the ANC's pre-eminent position among black movements before formal power-sharing talks with the government.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 12) UPI - Forget, for the moment, the tanks, troops and warships in the Persian Gulf. President Bush opted Wednesday for a more potent weapon - television - to drive a wedge between Saddam Hussein and the Iraqi people.

The satellite-transmitted war of images that has become so much a part of the Persian Gulf crisis escalated as Bush, seizing on a vague invitation from Baghdad, videotaped an 8-minute message for broadcast on Iraqi television.

The intent, aides said, was to reach beyond the propaganda heard in Baghdad with assurances that economic and military pressure unleashed against Iraq has not been aimed at punishing the Iraqi people, but taming Saddam.

The possibility, however, was that the taping may turn out to be just another exercise in television-age diplomacy, to be seen and heard almost everywhere but in the Iraqi households Bush would like to see turn against Saddam.

Despite an ambiguous Iraqi offer late last week to air some videotape of Bush on state-run television, White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater admitted there had been nothing official from Baghdad to suggest he will see airtime.

The White House, however, was determined to go through the motions as if a formal invitation had been extended, preparing a videotape with Arabic subtitles and dubbing under the direction of Bush media adviser Sig Rogich.

''It's personal,'' Fitzwater said of the message, ''and it's directed towards the people of Iraq and the hardship they've had to bear in this matter. It provides a very candid but personal description of our involvement and our goals and objectives in the region.''

Deputy Secretary of State Lawrence Eagleburger was to deliver the tape Wednesday or Thursday to Iraqi Ambassador Mohamed Al-Mashat. What Al-Mashat would do with the unsolicited package was anybody's guess.

Iraqi Embassy officials had no immediate comment. As a hedge against uncertainty, the White House planned for other copies of the tape to be delivered to Iraqi officials through diplomatic channels in Baghdad.

''We expect that Iraq will honor its invitation to allow this to be addressed to the Iraqi people,'' Fitzwater said. ''And we will ask them to provide us airtime within the next five days.''

That the nature of the original offer was subject to interpretation seemed not to matter. Depicted in some reports last week as merely a request to send an Iraqi crew to interview Bush, the White House saw it as an opportunity at least to place the Iraqi government on the defensive by challenging it to broadcast the U.S. side of events in the gulf and at best a chance to paint doubts in the minds of the Iraqi people about the true motives and risks of Saddam's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

If the message is not aired within five days, Fitzwater said it will be widely released to news agencies in the United States, the Arab world and elsewhere to show what Bush would have told the Iraqi people if permitted.

In contrast to the occasionally sharp tone of Bush's televised speech Tuesday night to a joint session of Congress, Fitzwater said the message taped Wednesday was not so much ''an attack'' on Saddam as an explanation of the dire consequences his aggression may hold for the Iraqi people, whose economy may soon begin to suffer from a virtual U.N.-ordered trade embargo.

The principal themes, Fitzwater said, are ''that we have no quarrel with the Iraqi people, that the Iraqi government has forced incredible hardship on the people of Iraq by virtue of their naked aggression against Kuwait, that we are in the Persian Gulf to defend Saudi Arabia and that we want a peaceful resolution, we want peaceful coexistence with the Iraqi people.''

Those overtures were strikingly similar to assurances Bush directed toward the people of Panama last year in a bit of psychological warfare that climaxed with the Dec. 20 invasion, inviting them to turn against Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega as the cause of their dire economic straits and increasing isolation from the world community.

AMMAN, JORDAN (SEPT. 12) UPI - Louis Coelho vows he will never go back to Iraqi-occupied Kuwait, even if he could have back his $500 a month job as a clerk.

''We were very settled in Kuwait with good jobs,'' the 27-year-old Bombay native said as he prepared to leave Jordan. ''Now, we have to think about doing something else in India, like opening a shop, or going somewhere else, but not back to Kuwait.''

Coehlo was one of lucky thousands of mostly Asian refugees who departed this week on an internationally coordinated airlift that has begun to reduce the mass of workers stranded in Jordan in the wake of the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion and subsequent annexation of Kuwait.

On Wednesday, 2,590 Bangladeshis, Sri Lankans and Filipinos left on eight chartered flights, said Antony Vassiliadis, head of the Amman office of the International Organization for Migration, which is overseeing the repatriation of the refugees.

Now, that daily charter flights are in operation, Jordanian and relief officials are hoping that they have seen the worst of the refugee problem.

''We are trying to increase the number of flights,'' he said. ''But everything is much better - the (food) relief and travel arrangements.''

As some refugees went to the airport, hundreds more were transfered from the border camps to Amman. In the city's Islamic Scientic College Street, dozens of Filipinos, carrying bags covered with desert dust, poured out of a line of eight buses into the Philippines Embassy's evacuation center.

According to the most recent estimates, about 67,000 Asian refugees remain in overburdened, makeshift camps or other facilities. However, reports indicated that the number of workers crossing the border from Iraq had dropped considerably.

Jordan Radio, citing the Saudi news agency, reported that Saudi Arabia had pledged $5 million to help Bangladeshis and other Moslems return home.

Relief officials still worry that thousands of Asian workers from Iraq and Kuwait may flood across the border.

To those who attempt the journey, Coehlo can testify to its perils. He said he spent nearly a week in a camp between the Jordanian and Iraqi borders where food, water and shelter from the desert sun were scarce.

''In the desert we suffered a lot,'' he said as he waited for a bus to take him from the refugee center at the Amman International Fair Grounds to the airport. ''It was the worst experience of my life.''

The bearded refugee said Iraqi soldiers had robbed many refugees.

''The Iraqis were opening our bags and taking whatever they wanted,'' he said, adding that the Jordanian soldiers had behaved well.

Asked if he blamed Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, Kuwait or the United States for his plight, Coehlo said it was none of his business.

''We are not politicians. We are working people,'' he said as a circle of companions, who had made the grueling journey from Kuwait with him, nodded in agreement.

''We don't know anything about politics. This is the work of ministers and leaders.''

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 12) UPI - Farmers from the Carolinas to Texas described huge crop losses from hostile weather - a problem little noticed with bumper crops nationwide - but it was unclear Wednesday if Congress could do much to help.

''For many farmers, there will be little, if any, money to pay bills at season's end,'' Harry Bell, president of the South Carolina Farm Bureau, said after describing stunted crops in his state.

Cotton farmer Bobby Webster from Burke County, Ga., said the need for a disaster-relief program ''is made clear when we see 70 percent of the counties in the Southeast suffering major losses.'' Webster said cotton yields in Alabama could be among the lowest in modern times.

Tommy Funk, of Harlingen, Texas, said some of his best cotton land produced 125 pounds an acre, 600 pounds less than normal. As president of the National Cotton Council, Funk called for congressional passage of a disaster relief law similar to the programs that spent $5.5 billion to compensate farmers for losses in 1988 and 1989.

Members of the House Agriculture Committee expressed sympathy for farmers' plight and the desire to provide aid. They also noted that pressure to curtail federal spending might handcuff attempts to pass a new disaster law.

''It raises the question ... is there going to be any money?'' said Rep. Glenn English, D-Okla.

At the same time, committee members said the government was not doing enough under its existing programs to help farmers through a tough time.

Rep. Charles Hatcher, D-Ga., said the programs, which range from low- cost loans to cost-sharing on livestock feed ''don't begin to face the need we have experienced.'' Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Texas, agreed and said the low participation rate on crop insurance meant, ''There's a lot of folks slipping through the cracks.''

Georgia's agriculture commissioner said crop losses were estimated at $474 million at the end of August in his state.

''I feel the programs in place at (the Agriculture Department) can meet the needs of the farmers that have been affected by adverse conditions in 1990,'' said Daniel Shaw, deputy administrator of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

The Farmers Home Administration has made 2,500 low-interest emergency loans totaling $95 million in counties with large-scale farm losses. The ASCS has provided $7 million in cost-share payments for livestock feed, $32 million to rebuild land damaged by disasters, and given farmers in 474 counties in 26 states permission for haying and grazing on crop set- aside land.

In addition, Shaw said, farmers in areas that experienced flooding had the chance to switch some of their land to the so-called Zero-92 program, which allows farmers to collect a crop support payment even if no crop is planted.

Norton Strommen, the Agriculture Department's chief meteorologist, said the ''highly favorable'' 30-day forecast indicated a chance for crop-restoring rains in the South and warm, dry weather to spur crop development in the central states.

''The final yields across the Corn Belt will depend on warm September temperatures while yield potential across the Southern states can still benefit from late-season rain,'' Strommen said.

SAVANNAH, GA (SEPT. 12) UPI - The Savannah Area Chamber of Commerce appealed to the public Wednesday to donate towels, lip gloss, eye drops and other items needed by U.S. soldiers to cope with the heat and grit of the Saudi Arabian desert.

A 40-foot container ship reserved by Carolina Shipping Co. is to carry the supplies to Saudi Arabia in mid-October for distribution to the Army's 24th Infantry Mechanized Division and Victory Brigade.

The 24th Infantry is based at Fort Stewart in nearby Hinesville, and its Victory Brigade is based at Hunter Army Airfield in Savannah. Most of the 24th Infantry's 18,000 troops have been deployed to Saudi Arabia as part of Operation Desert Shield, the U.S. military operation to defend that country against a possible attack by Iraq.

''The troops are in real need of very simple incidental items,'' said Ron Worthington, chairman of the chamber's military/civilian relations council. ''We want the community to help these troops in our own way by providing these items.''

Worthington said 17 drop sites will be set up around Chatham County to collect donations for the ''Operation Savannah Cares'' project. Donated items will be accepted between Oct. 1 and Oct. 5.

The chamber's wish list includes powdered Gatorade, preferably lemon- lime flavor; white or beige towels; unwaxed dental floss (waxed floss melts in high temperatures); toothbrushes; plain stationery; lip gloss; and saline eye drops.

''One big hit item (among thirsty soldiers) is the Gatorade in lemon- lime flavor, said Burt Sappenfield, owner of Coastal Chem-Dry, which helped coordinate the project. ''This is extremely good to go along with ''go along with

Worthington said the requested supplies would help soldiers ''tolerate the heat, the grit and the grime throughout this operation.''

The Red Cross is to assist in distributing the supplies to soldiers, he said.

''Things like this are needed.... But, more important than the actual donations is the support they represent,'' said Lt. Col. Bob Oakley, commander of Hunter Army Airfield.

PHILADELPHIA (SEPT. 12) UPI - German impresario Wolfgang Sawallisch, whose asociation with the Philadelphia Orchestra dates back 24 years, Wednesday was named musical director of the world-renown orchestra.

''Please, trust me to make everything possible, to work with you, to make music with you,'' Sawallisch said in a thick accent brimming with emotion and enthusiasm during a news conference.

Sawallisch, director of Germany's Bavarian State Opera in Munich, will take over the Academy of Music podium in the 1993-94 season. He replaces Riccardo Muti, who will end a 12-year reign with the Philadelphia Orchestra after the 1992 season.

Displaying the exacting professionalism for which he is known, Sawallisch, 67, called for building a new concert hall, a proposal backed by orchestra board President Theodore Burtis.

Sawallisch said he accepted the offer to become the orchestra's sixth musical director primarily because of its high-caliber musicians and for the opportunity to tour the world with the orchestra. During the 1992-93 season, as music director designate, he will lead the orchestra on a tour of the United States and Asia.

Sawallisch is no stranger to the Academy of Music podium, having debuted here as guest conductor in 1966 and appeared frequently during Muti's tenure.

''I remember very well the first days and weeks after the invitation by Maestro (Eugene) Ormandy (in 1966) and we had a lot of discussions and personal speeches about the tradition of this orchestra founded in 1900,'' Sawallisch said.

Sawallisch's dedication to Philadelphia made him the outstanding choice among the 230 candidates screened by the orchestra's search committee, said John Christy, committee chairman.

Sawallisch vowed to place his own imprint on the orchestra by playing pieces seldom heard in the city, as well as operas and more American music.

Under his initial three-year contract, Sawallisch will be on the podium for 60 concerts a year and will spend 15 weeks in the city and at the orchestra's summer home in Saratoga Springs, N.Y. Muti, who will become conductor laureate after he steps down, has been criticized for spending a mere 13 weeks in the city each season.

Sawallisch will leave his post with the Bavarian State Opera in 1993 but will keep his home near Munich. He also intends to maintain commitments to concert centers throughout Europe.

Sawallisch conducted the Augsberg symphony orchestra for six years before a five-year stint as musical director at Aachen ending in 1958. He then went on to become musical director of the Wiesbaden orchestra and the Cologne Opera and was the principal conductor of the Vienna Symphony Orchestra from 1960 to 1970.

In 1971, he he was named director of the Bavarian State Opera.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 12) UPI - In the first congressional action on the issue, a House panel approved a bill Wednesday to revoke the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's new policy relaxing disposal rules for some low-level radioactive waste.

By voice vote, the House Interior and Insular Affairs Committee passed legislation that would negate the NRC's June 27 announcement that it would deregulate the disposal of slightly radioactive wastes considered ''below regulatory concern'' by NRC experts.

In addition, the bill would give states the right to regulate any wastes that might be deregulated by the NRC under any revised BRC policy. That provision is particularly important because it would open the first ''states' rights'' loophole in the Atomic Energy Act, which currently empowers the NRC to override any state policies concerning nuclear safety.

''Rapid enactment of the bill is necessary because the (BRC) policy would permit the disposal of radioactive waste from nuclear reactors in ordinary landfills rather than licensed radioactive waste sites,'' said Rep. George Miller, D-Calif., prime sponsor of the bill. ''This defies common sense.''

The committee also approved an amendment by Rep. Nick Rahall, D- W.Va., that would require the NRC to notify the governor of any state due to receive a shipment of deregulated low-level waste.

The bill now goes to the House Energy and Commerce Committee, where it has broad support.

With only a few weeks left in this year's congressional session, aides to the interior panel said the bill may not make it through the House this year.

However, one aide said, ''This thing is going to become law, if not this year, than next year.''

In the Senate, Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell of Maine has expressed support for giving states the right to regulate low-level nuclear waste disposal, but there has been no action to date.

Currently, all low-level radioactive waste must be sent to specially designed landfills with stringent environmental safeguards to prevent leakage of contaminants into groundwater.

However, under the ''below regulatory concern'' policy, waste generators could apply to the NRC for exemptions that would allow disposal of some wastes in ordinary municipal landfills.

Low-level waste includes such items as contaminated protective clothing worn by nuclear plant workers, animal carcasses and from medical laboratories and diagnostic instruments from hospitals.

NRC officials say any wastes that might be deregulated under the policy carry such low levels of radioactivity - well below that received in a medical X-ray - that they pose little or no risk to public health. They note the commission already has deregulated disposal of some items, such as home smoke detectors.

The agency said the deregulatory policy is needed to free up NRC personnel to work on more serious radiation dangers.

But opponents charge the NRC policy could result in multiple exemptions for several different kinds of wastes, meaning significant amounts of radioactivity could accumulate in some landfills and eventually leak into ground water used as drinking supplies.

(SEPT. 12) UPI - World War Two has been all but formally ended with the signing of a treaty in Moscow. It clears the way to unite East and West Germany next month. The treaty ends the rights the four Allied powers have held since 1945. It specifies the current borders will be the borders for a united Germany and that the country makes NO claims for any other territory, now or in the future.

Calls for a holy war are being made by Iranian spiritual leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei. He says that U-S troops will NOT be allowed to remain in Saudi Arabia and that Moslem countries in the region should be responsible for security in the Persian Gulf. The call comes amid signs that former enemies Iran and Iraq are drawing closer to each other.

A high-level Israeli delegation is off to Moscow for talks described as very important. The trip is being made at the invitation of Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze. Diplomatic relations between the two broke after the 1967 Arab-Israeli war but have warmed in recent years. Israeli Foreign Minister David Levy has called on Moscow to stop supplying arms to Arab nations.

DETROIT (SEPT. 12) UPI - Despite reports that bargaining between the United Auto Workers and General Motors Corp. is again moving well, the union is apparently preparing to strike selected plants if no agreement is reached by the Friday midnight deadline.

Meanwhile, a GM spokesman declined comment on a report by the Detroit Free Press Wednesday that the company would formally announce before the deadline that five plants it now describes as ''indefinitely idled'' will indeed be permanently closed.

Those plants include ones in Pontiac, Mich., its Leeds plant in Kansas City, Mo.; Framingham, Mass.; Lakewood, Ga.; and Harrison, N.Y.; as well as a small tool and die operation in Detroit and five warehouses.

''I am aware of no such announcement,'' said John Maciarz, a spokesman for GM's labor relations.

UAW Vice President Stephen P. Yokich, who is heading the union's negotiations with GM covering about 330,000 active and idled workers, was slated to meet with GM Chairman Robert Stempel on Wednesday. The meeting could be critical to the outcome of the bargaining.

Earlier this week, talks reportedly stalled over the core issue of job security, with sources saying GM wanted to limit a no-layoff pledge to workers with 20 years' or more seniority, which is just over half the automaker's workforce. The UAW wants to guarantee the jobs of all GM workers.

But GM and the UAW agreed on a new attendance policy, under which workers who are absent without permission 16 times within a 12-month period would be subject to a five-step disciplinary procedure that could result in dismissal.

Still at issue is GM's desire to scrap a contract provision that forces it to hire one worker for every two who quit, retire or die.

Industry experts say GM, which has seen its share of the U.S. auto market shrink nearly 10 points to about 36 percent during the last decade, must still close more plants to get production in line with demand.

The union, which has seen its total membership shrink from 1.5 million to fewer than 900,000 during the 1980s, has been bargaining since mid-July for new contracts covering about 500,000 hourly workers at GM, Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp.

Late last month it chose GM as its strike target this year in hopes of negotiating a contract which can be used as a pattern at the other top U.S. carmakers.

RANGOON, Burma (SEPT. 12) UPI - Burma's military government, citing an increase in foreign investment and trade, denied Wednesday it has brought the resource-rich country to the brink of bankruptcy.

''There have been allegations that we have no foreign exchange, that we don't know how to earn it, and that our country is economically bankrupt, but these allegations are definitely false,'' said Maj. Gen. Khin Nyunt, secretary of the ruling military junta.

Khin Nyunt, speaking at a press conference Tuesday, said the regime's foreign enemies have tried to make the economic situation appear worse than it is in an effort to destabilize the regime which has so far delayed handing over power to opposition deputies elected to control the legislature in May.

He said several foreign companies have begun operations in Burma following the military takeover in September 1988.

These enterprises include onshore oil and gas exploration and production, fishing, timber extraction and industrial production, he said.

The foreign investors have included South Korean manufacturers, U.S., British and Canadian oil firms, and Thai fishing and timber companies, he said.

Khin Nyunt said he was optimistic that the current high rate of inflation will fall when more goods and services are produced by newly formed private enterprises and coperatives.

He said inflation was running at about 16 percent per year, but the Asian Development Bank has put the rate at more than 70 percent.

The military leader said the 10 foreign oil firms which have signed production-sharing contracts with the government, will invest a total of $320.54 million in the first three years of operations.

He said the volume of two-way trade with China amounted to $2.3 million since it was reopened in December 1988.

Khin Nyunt said exports had risen from $129.5 million in 1988-89 to $150.3 million in 1989-90.

He said the government has planned major irrigation projects to boost agricultural production.

One project, in the Mu valley in central Burma, will take 16 years to complete and cost $1 billion, he said.

The project is expected to provide 30 megawatts of hydro-electrocity and supply water to irrigate over 500,000 acres of farmland.

''We have been carrying out development work throughout the country - building roads, bridges, etc. - and have so far spent $342.4 million in foreign exchange,'' he said.

Khin Nyunt's speech was seen by many as a public relations exercise timed for the second anniversary of direct military rule on Sept. 18.

The military crushed pro-democracy demonstrators and seized direct power from the military-backed socialist government.

The military government yielded to demands to hold elections and to change the socialist economic system to a market economy.

So far, however, the military has rejected calls to allow the Parliament to meet this month and has made only slow progress in liberalizing the economy.

UNITED NATIONS (SEPT. 12) UPI - Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar appointed arepresentative Wednesday to oversee the resettlement of tens of thousands of refugees stranded in the Persian Gulf because of the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

U.N. spokesman Francois Giuliani said Sadruddin Aga Khan, who is responsible for the resettlement of millions of Afghan refugees, will assist the foreignnationals, mostly Asian workers suffering from a severe food shortage and unable to leave Kuwait or Iraq.

Giuliani said Perez de Cuellar made the decision ''given the multi- faceted nature and magnitude of the challenge and the need to contain human suffering as far as possible.''

He said several U.N. agencies and a number of non-governmental organizations have worked together to bring humanitarian aid to the nationals along borders of countries neighboring Iraq and Kuwait.

Aga Khan is currently residing in Geneva and may travel soon to the Persian Gulf to investigate the situation.

Aga Khan's appointment was made as the U.N. Security Council's sanctions committee ended a series of meetings to hear complaints from countries severely affected by the U.N. trade and military embargo against Iraq. The embargo was imposed Aug. 6 four days after Iraq invaded Kuwait.

The committee had been discussing requests from India, the Philippines and Sri Lanka to unilaterally send ships with food and medicine to their nationals stranded mostly in Kuwait and to take them home. The committee wanted U.N. control over food shipments to Iraq or Kuwait because of the U.N. embargo.

The Iraqi government of President Saddam Hussein has been holding foreign nationals, including more than 20,000 Westerners, as hostages against possible reprisals by the U.S.-led multinational force stationed in the gulf region.

Saddam also wanted to trade the freedom of these nationals for food supplies that fell under strict U.N. sanctions.

The committee, however, could not get a consensus on India, the Philippines and Sri Lanka's requests after hours of closed-door discussions because of the opposition from Cuba and Yemen, which rejected U.N. control over any humanitarian operations. Committee Chairman Marjatta Rasi of Finland has requested the 15-nation Security Council meet and take a vote on the requests.

WARSAW, POLAND (SEPT. 12) UPI - Solidarity Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki's first year in office was a balanced mix of success and failure but his personal popularity has not faded despite his tough economic austerity measures, the Polish media said Wednesday.

''He has been a moderate politician which is the rare case as regards the winners,'' commented Trybuna, the newspaper of the former Communist Party which is in opposition to Mazowiecki's government.

Following a landslide win by Solidarity in the June 1989 parliamentary elections and the failure of the ruling communists to form a government, Solidarity leader Lech Walesa and the union forwarded Mazowiecki as its candidate for premier.

He was almost unanimously elected by parliament and announced his cabinet on Sept. 12, 1989.

Mazowiecki took over after 45 years of communist rule which devastated economy through mismanagement, bureaucracy and subjugation to Moscow. Poland owes the west $42 billion and Moscow $6 billion.

Mazowiecki, Walesa's former aide, launched Poland's ''Big Bang'' of economic reforms on Jan. 1. But the cautious premier, in Walesa's opinion at least, has been slower on political reform.

Walesa has called for the ouster of President Wojciech Jaruzelski by the end of the year, the only leading figure of the former communist system still in power, and new parliamentary elections. Walesa has suggested he will run for president, while Mazowiecki has not ruled out running against him.

Poland's Roman Catholic primate, Cardinal Jozef Glemp, apparently on the recommendation of Polish-born Pope John Paul II, invited both Walesa and Mazowiecki to meet Sept. 18 to iron out differences that may jeopardize internal stability.

Mazowiecki has removed about 60 percent of communist officials from the state administration - a figure Walesa has said is too low - and has allowed former communists to take over small enterprises.

Leszek Balcerowicz, his finance minister, has brought the threat of hyperinflation under control, but prices are still rising at a 200 percent annual rate, currently the highest in Europe.

As the result of the higher prices on most commodities, the living standard has dropped by more than 30 percent and unemployment soared to more than 800,000 in a country of 39 million.

But lines in front of shops have disappeared and many kinds of fancy western products are on sale in Polish shops now.

Although Mazowiecki personally remains popular, some of his ministers have come under increasing criticism recently.

The avalanche of changes in all walks of life has produced a series of shocks for the Polish people, and Mazowiecki's government spokeswoman, Malgorzata Niezabitowska, is under fire for failing to explain them to the public.

''Niezabitowska as a woman is more attractive than Jerzy Urban,'' said Trybuna referring to the witty and acerbic former communist spokesman. ''The journalists, however, prefer news to nice views.''

The independent daily Gazeta Wyborcza also rated Niezabitowska and Building Minister Aleksander Paszynski as failures in Mazowiecki's cabinet, but praised Balcerowicz for his stringent finacial policy.

A recent poll conducted by the state-controlled CBOS public survey office said Mazowiecki had more credibility among those polled than Walesa.

But the public picked up Walesa as the man who has the biggest potential to introduce a new wave of bold political reforms if he became president.

CAPE CANAVERAL, FL (SEPT. 12) UPI - Engineers replaced a crushed seal in a fuel line valve aboard the shuttle Columbia, presumably eliminating an elusive hydrogen leak and allowing NASA managers Wednesday to formally clear the ship for a fourth launch try Tuesday.

Columbia's oft-interrupted countdown is scheduled to begin at 1 a.m. EDT Saturday for a launch attempt at 1:28 a.m. Tuesday to kick off a 10- day astronomy mission running more than three months late because of hydrogen leaks and trouble with an on-board telescope.

At the same time, NASA announced the shuttle Discovery had been tentatively cleared for takeoff around Oct. 8 to carry a European-built solar probe into space. The flight had been planned for Oct. 5.

Columbia's target date was announced after the Air Force apparently agreed to reschedule the launch of a Titan 4 rocket and after engineers replaced a damaged seal in the shuttle's engine compartment that appears to explain the hydrogen leak that grounded Columbia last week.

The seal, in a fuel line valve leading to main engine No. 3, apparently was damaged during installation earlier this year. The problem was not discovered until weekend tests indicated trouble with the washer-like seal, slightly larger than a silver dollar.

''It was crushed, flattened and misaligned 45 degrees around,'' said an engineer who requested anonymity. ''They say that was enough to account for the total leak. Do you believe that? I think that's great!''

Henry Pohl, director of engineering at the Johnson Space Center in Houston, was more cautious.

''I don't think there's any doubt that that's a big part of the problem,'' he said in a telephone interview. ''Does it explain all of the data? I don't know that we can say that yet.''

But technicians were unable to find any major leaks in a set of fuel pumps removed from Columbia over the weekend that originally were thought to have leaked during fueling last Wednesday, forcing NASA to ground the shuttle for the third time in three months.

The discovery of a seriously damaged seal in Columbia's engine room would appear to resolve the issue, although gun-shy NASA officials were reluctant to make any predictions after a launchless summer of false hopes and repeated delays.

The launch date announcement was held up Tuesday because of a scheduling conflict between NASA and the Air Force, which had planned to launch a powerful Titan 4 Monday night from the Cape Canaveral Air Force Station to carry a classified military satellite into orbit, sources said.

Early Wednesday, a reliable source said the Titan launch had been rescheduled, keeping Columbia on track for an early Tuesday liftoff.

Commander Vance Brand, 59, co-pilot Guy Gardner, 42, John ''Mike'' Lounge, 44, Robert Parker, 53, Jeffrey Hoffman, 45, and civilian astronomers Ronald Parise 39, and Samuel Durrance, 46, plan to fly to Florida Sunday for final preparations.

Space agency managers are under considerable pressure to launch Columbia as soon as possible to clear the decks for Discovery's flight next month to carry the European-built Ulysses solar probe into space.

The Ulysses mission has priority because to get the probe on the proper course to the sun, Discovery must be launched between Oct. 5 and Oct. 23 or the mission will face a 13-month delay.

Columbia originally was scheduled for launch May 30, but the flight was grounded the night before when sensors detected hydrogen gas spewing into the ship's engine room.

Subsequent tests traced the problem to damaged seals inside a massive 17-inch-wide fuel line ''disconnect'' fitting that allows the shuttle's external tank to be jettisoned in space. A similar leak grounded the shuttle Atlantis in July.

In the meantime, Columbia was equipped with a new disconnect fitting but a second attempt to launch the ship Sept. 1 was scuttled by problems with an on-board telescope. The crew's third takeoff try ended in failure last Wednesday when hydrogen was again detected leaking into the engine room.

But this time around, the 17-inch disconnect fitting was leak free, focusing suspicion on three fuel pumps used to circulate supercold hydrogen rocket fuel through critical engine systems prior to launch.

The pumps were replaced over the weekend and shipped to the Johnson Space

Center in Houston for analysis.

LONDON (SEPT. 12) UPI - The government weighed plans Wednesday to reinforce Britain's military presence in the Persian Gulf with ground troops and tanks, touching off angry demonstrations in Baghdad where the Union Jack was burned.

About 500 Iraqis chanted anti-British slogans and battered an effigy of Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, stomping it to the ground in front of the British Embassy in Iraq, the British Broadcasting Corp. said.

They also shouted their support for Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, burned the British flag and danced through the flames.

The demonstration reflected mounting anti-Western sentiments in the Gulf as the United States and Britain pledged to bolster their military presence in the region until Iraq withdraws from Kuwait.

Iran's spiritual leader, Ayatollah Ali Khamenei, urged Moslems Wednesday to fight a holy war to force U.S. troops out of the Gulf.

Thatcher and members of her Cabinet's Overseas and Defense Committee ministers met this week to examine options such as sending tanks, infantry and air mobile troops to the Gulf to strengthen the defensive shield set up in Saudi Arabia by the United States.

Among the possibilities under review was sending an armored brigade of up to 100 tanks and 1,000 to 7,000 support staff to the Gulf from Germany, according various news reports.

The Ministry of Defense declined to comment on the reports, saying, ''No decision has been taken yet.''

''What you read in the press is total, total speculation at this point. Final decisions have not been taken on what else might be sent,'' a spokesman said.

Britain was responding to the United States' appeal for a stronger international military presence in the region. U.S. Secretary of State James Baker called Monday for NATO allies to add their troops to the thousands of U.S. soliders in the Gulf.

Citing informed sources at Thatcher's meeting, the Independent newspaper said the government's main goal was to demonstrate solidarity with the United States.

Thatcher was expected to announce Britain's plans Friday before flying to Eastern Europe for a visit.

Britain now has 3,000 military personnel in the Gulf ''theater of activity,'' and another 2,000 either on their way to the region or just outside it, adefense spokesman said.

The 5,000 include members of the Royal Navy, Royal Air Force and a small number of army signals staff.

Britain has 11 naval and support ships in the Gulf region, three squadrons of combat aircraft and a detachment of maritime patrol aircraft.

It is the largest movement of British forces since they battled Argentine troops for the Falkland Islands in 1982.

American troops based in Saudi Arabia said they welcomed reports that Britain may add more forces, the British Broadcasting Corp. said.

''The more you have, the better it is ... the easier to defend,'' U.S. Army Capt. Mike Sherman told the BBC.

More than 100,000 U.S. troops are in and near Saudi Arabia, and U.S. Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney has said the mobolization will continue for an undetermined length of time.

(SEPT. 12) UPI - Prior commitments will keep President Bush from traveling to Berlin October 3rd for what is now expected to be a historic celebration of Germany's re-unification. The announcement from the White House comes after the Allied powers signed a treaty in Moscow that gives up rights they have had since 1945.

The carrier U-S-S Dwight D. Eisenhower and the guided-missile cruiser U-S-S Ticonderoga sailed back home to Norfolk, Virginia, today after a six-month deployment. The ships were deployed to the Mediterranean Sea for six months, but the mission was altered because of the Persian Gulf build-up. The vessels were ordered to the Persian Gulf when Iraq invaded Kuwait.

President Bush today is videotaping a message he hopes will be broadcast to the Iraqi people by the state-run media in Iraq. A U-S crew is taping the message, which will feature sub-titles in Arabic. Officials said previously that it would be made available to broadcast world-wide, including several other Arab nations and the Voice of America.

The Texas Supreme Court ruled 7-2 today that Gulf States Utilities Company is NOT entitled to a second hearing on whether it's prudent for it to pass on to consumers the cost of a nuclear power plant. The Texas Public Utility Commission ruled in a first hearing that only two-point-two-BILLION of the four-point-five-BILLION-dollar cost could be passed on.

(SEPT. 12) UPI - Federal prosecutors in New Jersey may ask that the courtroom be closed during part of the trial of two research scientists charged with trying to sell drug manufacturing secrets. The request comes in a move to keep trade information from becoming public knowledge during the trial. The defendants were arrested after they sold documents to undercover F-B-I agents in Atlanta.

Nine arrests have now been made in a Greenpeace demonstration in San Diego Harbor. Protestors surrounded the tanker Exxon Mediterranean as it prepared to sail to the Middle East. The tanker is the renamed and refitted Exxon Valdez, held responsible for the worst oil disaster in the nation's history. Charges against those arrested could run from trespassing to creating a disturbance.

A firm announcement is expected sometime today on a launch date for the troubled shuttle Columbia. Next Tuesday seems to be the best bet at this time. But there's a conflict possible with the Air Force which reportedly plans a secret, unmanned mission on Monday. It normally takes two days between major flights to reset tracking radars and other criticial pieces of equipment.

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (SEPT. 12) UPI - A federal bankruptcy court has approved the proposed $42.4 million sale of Qintex Entertainment Inc.'s television programming assets to producer Robert Halmi, Qintex said Wednesday.

Halmi's RHI Entertainment Inc. of New York will acquire the Qintex library, which includes the hit CBS miniseries ''Lonesome Dove.'' Other assets include accounts receivable, development projects and other programming assets.

Qintex, a TV programmer which filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection last October, said it expected to close the deal by the end of October.

U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Lisa Hill Fenning approved the sale Tuesday following a 90-minute hearing which featured appearances by attorneys for actors and producers who have agreements with Qintex.

The company has earlier reported court approval for the sale of Qintex's interest in HR Broadcasting Inc., which owns two television stations - WTTO of Birmingham, Ala., and WCGV in Milwaukee. The stations are being sold to ABRY Communications for over $40 million, with Qintex receiving about $20 million.

The ABRY transaction was expected to close in November.

TORONTO (SEPT. 12) UPI - Canadian Autoworkers rejected Wednesday the first monetary proposal put forward by Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd., but said it was a ''step in the right direction''.

CAW president Bob White said the union was ''rejecting'' the offer, but that it would be used as a basis for further discussions.

Ford Canada spokesman Jim Hartford said the company made ''an economic offer'' to the union that dealt with ''elements such as wages, income security, cost-of-living allowance, (and) vacation time.''

Hartford said the two sides adjourned for a short period of time but later returned to the bargaining table.

CAW spokeswoman Peggy Nash said the union's rejection of the offer ''doesn't mean we are breaking off talks.''

Nash said the union believes the offer was ''a step in the right direction''.

''I think it's safe to say that in just about every area there was some movement in what we call the right direction we want the company to go, but the amount of movement was very small,'' Nash said.

The union's key issues at the outset of the talks included security against contracting work out and against technological changes, income security, better protection against plant closings and shorter work time.

Talks between the two began in earnest a week ago after the CAW chose Ford as its target in negotiations with the Canadian operations of the Big Three U.S. auto companies. The current agreements expire at midnight Friday.

Ford Canada employs 12,800 CAW members at assembly and manufacturing plants and a parts depot across the province of Ontario.

Ford workers overwhelmingly voted last month in favor of strike action, if one is required.

The CAW - which broke away from the United Auto Workers of America during the mid-1980s - also represents 36,500 General Motors Canada workers and 11,300 Chrysler Canada workers at various assembly and parts plants in Ontario and Quebec.

RALEIGH, NC (SEPT. 12) UPI - Red, white and blue bunting and an abundance of tender loving care were assembled Wednesday for the arrival Thursday of more than 300 Americans freed from the fists of Iraqi strongman Saddam Hussein.

A Northwest Orient 747 carrying 330 U.S. citizens held hostage in oil-rich Kuwait under Iraqi forces was scheduled to arrive at the Raleigh-Durham International Airport at about 4:30 p.m. EDT after dropping off about 100 Europeans in London earlier in the day.

The Americans, held in Kuwait since Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion, will be welcomed home by Red Cross workers ladened with yellow carnations and lots of tender loving care in the form of food, medical care, clothing, emergency loans, child care, hotel accomodations, airline tickets home, mental health counseling and even veterinary service for their pets.

Children will be given teddy bears and other toys donated by toy companies and stores across North Carolina and a church day care center has promised to babysit while parents go through immigration and other processing services.

''Basically, we're set up for whatever they need,'' said Renee Hoffman, spokeswoman for the state Crime Control & Public Safety Department.

''If they want to go to a hotel and get a good night's sleep, we can do that. If they need a change of clothes, we can do that,'' she said. ''Mental health counselors will be there if anyone just wants to sit down and talk about what they've been through.''

The plane load represents the fourth and largest group of returning Americans since Saddam Hussein permitted women and children to flee Kuwait where food has been reported scare.

Most of the returning U.S. citizens are women and children. American men and other foreign men, many in hiding from Iraqi soldiers, are prohibited from leaving and likely will be used as human shields against a possible attack.

Ham radio operators are volunteering to relay messages for the returning Americans to anywhere in the country. Students from the North Carolina State School of Veterinary Medicine will tend to pets.

''A lot of hostages brought animals with them,'' Hoffman said.

Fresh fruits, soups, salads, sandwiches and an ample supply of beverages will also be on hand, said Red Cross spokesman Pete Montague.

''We'll have plenty of Pampers, baby food, a complete array of things we understand that they may not be able to get,'' Montague said.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 12) UPI - On the eve of Senate hearings, the White House expressed optimism Wednesday that David Souter would be confirmed for the Supreme Court, while members of the Judiciary Committee differed over how intensely the New Hampshire jurist should be questioned about abortion.

One day before President Bush's choice to replace Justice William Brennan was to go before the 14-member Democrat-dominated panel, the president and his nominee met over a private lunch in Bush's study.

''We're very hopeful that the confirmation process will go well. There is no indication of any problem,'' said White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater.

Bush later praised Souter as ''a tough, a fair-minded, intellectually brilliant judge'' and called on the Senate to ''act swiftly so that he can take his place as the only career prosecutor on the court, in time for the court's first sitting'' next month.

Amid growing speculation about how far committee members will go in trying to pin Souter down on his abortion views, Fitzwater noted that while the lawmakers can ask Souter any questions they want, ''we do remind them that they were opposed to our use of any kind of a litmus test in terms of selection of a nominee and we assume they'll respect that same feeling as they examine the qualifications of the candidate.''

In fact, there were considerable differences among committee members concerning how far the panel should go in trying to determine Souter's judicial philosophy, especially regarding his views on whether he would vote to overturn the Roe vs. Wade decision that guaranteed abortion rights.

With the court a single vote away from reversing that 1973 decision, abortion is considered the main single issue that could derail Souter's confirmation hopes.

In the past several days, various abortion rights activists have demanded the Judiciary Committee intensely question the 50-year-old Souter about whether the Constitution protects rights that are not specifically mentioned, and whether a right to abortion is guaranteed.

Committee Chairman Joseph Biden, D-Del., stressed Tuesday that ''there is nothing wrong with putting to Judge Souter some specific questions about constitutional issues, including religion, speech, civil rights and abortion and expect some rather specific answers.''

But some senators said they did not think it would be proper to push Souter for specific views on issues he would deciding as a member of the high court.

''I don't think you should ask questions about matters he could be facing, when he could be voting on reversing Roe vs. Wade,'' said Sen. Howell Heflin, D-Ala., considered a swing vote on the committee.

Instead, Heflin, a former chief justice of the Alabama Supreme Court, said he believed the questioning should center on Souter's broader judicial philosophy.

In a lengthy floor speech, Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, a key Republican on the committee, warned that continued efforts to question a nominee on his specific judicial views could undermine the independence of the judiciary.

''Judge Souter is not running for political office. Nor has the president nominated him to a policymaking position in the executive branch. He has been nominated for the highest court in a co-equal branch of the federal government '' said Hatch.

''While senators are free to ask a nominee any question they wish, a Supreme Court nominee should answer questions related only to his ethics, competence, legal ability, general view of the Supreme Court in our federal system and independence of mind,'' Hatch added.

''My fear is that if the Senate continues the trend begun in the 1950s, which seems to have accelerated since then, with both liberal and conservative senators pressing Supreme Court nominees beyond the bounds ... we could permanently undermine the independence of the judicial branch,'' added Hatch.

For his part, Souter - labled by some senators as the ''stealth'' nominee because of his lack of a voluminous record - kept a low profile the day before his hearings began.

At a photo opportunity with Souter in the Oval Office, Bush refused to take questions from reporters and patiently explained his policy to Souter, who said he also did not answer questions at such sessions.

''It helps a lot if you don't look over,'' Bush joked. Souter replied, ''My eyes are directly on you.''

SAN DIEGO (SEPT. 12) UPI - First it was the environmentalists, then the environment itself that refused to allow the ill-starred former Exxon Valdez to set sail Wednesday.

A quirky fog bank that kept the giant oil tanker penned up for a time finally lifted to allow the ship to leave harbor at 11:45 a.m., escorted by a flotilla of Coast Guard and harbor police boats.

The ship, renamed the Exxon Mediterranean when repaired after causing the nation's worst oil spill, was already delayed about three hours by protesters from the environmental activist group Greenpeace.

Asked if the tanker might be jinxed, Harbor Police Chief Arthur LeBlanc said, ''Just coincidence. I don't think this is a bad-luck ship. I have no comment on the luck of the ship.''

The tanker was scheduled to sail at sunrise, en route to its new assignment in the Middle East.

But even before sunrise, Greenpeace protesters in inflatable boats surrounded the tanker, climbing her sides to unfurl a banner and chaining themselves to her rudder.

Harbor Police using bolt cutters freed two protesters who had chained themselves to the tanker's rudder some 20 feet above the surface of the water.

LeBlanc said nine people were arrested on a variety of misdemeanor charges ranging from trespassing to creating a disturbance.

Cynthia Rust of Seattle, one of the two people on the rudder, said after being cited and released, ''Our objective was to delay the vessel's departure for as long as possible. We were prepared to stay on it for days. As it turned out, we kept the boat in dock for several hours and we feel very proud of that.''

Greenpeace spokesman Bill Walker predicted the tanker will continue to be a target of worldwide environmental protest. ''Exxon can change the name and move it halfway around the world and it will still be a notorious symbol of oil destruction. I don't think people will ever let Exxon forget what they did to (Alaska's) Prince William Sound.''

Kelly Quirke, a Greenpeace spokesman who monitored the protest from a hotel across San Diego Bay, said the protesters, including one who fell and suffered an arm injury, hung a banner from the side of the ship that read ''Sane Energy: When?''

They also unsuccessfully attempted to hang another 20-by-40-foot banner reading ''From Alaska to Iraq, America is dying for oil,'' he said.

Protesters also floated an oil boom and a 20-foot inflatable globe about the ship, Quirke said.

''We wanted to blockade the Valdez to call attention to the fact it represents a battleship in the war on the environment,'' Quirke said. ''It has put us in the precarious position of being on the brink of war in the Middle East.

''If George Bush wants to fight an oil war, he should fight the war against the root of oil addiction.''

Fred Hallett, vice president of the National Steel and Shipbuilding Co. that first built and then refitted the tanker, said divers inspected the underside of the ship after the protest to ensure nothing had been left behind to restrict its propeller. ''The ship checked out fine,'' he said.

The 987-foot tanker demonstrated its seaworthiness in 10 days of ocean trials that ended last week, executives with Exxon Shipping Co. and NASSCO said.

The Valdez ran aground in Prince William Sound March 24, 1989, disgorging 11 million gallons of crude oil and tearing up one-third of its hull.

The resulting spill coated hundreds of miles of pristine coastline with thick crude, killing thousands of birds and other wildlife. Numerous lawsuits filed against Exxon by Alaskan officials and others are still pending.

The crippled tanker was brought to San Diego four months after the spill to begin a $30 million, year-long repair job.

A special crew of 300 workers, working from the inside out, used nearly 3,000 tons of new steel to replace the ship's mangled hull.

Along with its new name, the ship was given a new coat of paint, a new skipper a new crew - and, finally, a new shipping route taking it away from the continent where it had wreaked havoc.

Exxon executives denied that the changes were aimed at improving the image of the ship - and of its owner.

BELGRADE, YUGOSLAVIA (SEPT. 12) UPI - More than 30,000 people massed in central Belgrade Wednesday for an opposition rally which warned Serbia's ruling communists to organize democratic elections or face a boycott in the balloting for the assembly of Yugoslavia's largest republic.

At the end of the one-hour, anti-communist rally in Belgrade's Republic Square an opposition leader read a letter of ''last warning'' to Serbia's President Slobodan Milosevic.

The letter asked Milosevic, the 49-year-old communist who in July renamed his ruling organization the Serbian Socialist Party, to meet with the opposition to work out guidelines for ''decent and free elections'' to be supervised by all the parties, not just the communists.

If Milosevic fails to meet the demand within 10 days, the opposition parties will organize a boycott of the elections, the letter said.

The rally, which blocked traffic in downtown Belgrade for more than an hour, was the biggest ever held to demand an end to 45 years of communist rule of Serbia.

On June 13, an estimated 10,000 to 30,000 people attended a rally organized by the then-illegal opposition parties. Since then, the communist leadership has allowed the parties to become formally registered but has not fixed a date for Serbia's first multi-party elections in 45 years.

Police estimated the size of the rally at about 30,000 people while opposition organizers put the figure at 60,000.

The opposition also is demanding equal access to the state-controlled news media, including two hours broadcast time each evening on Belgrade television.

Kosta Cavoski, the executive president of the Serbian Democratic Party who read the letter, said Belgrade's major publishing house and radio and television stations are ''the public relations and advertisment agency'' for Milosevic and his communist government.

Cavoski said opposition members must be included in commissions monitoring the balloting and counting votes at the next elections.

Two of Yugoslavia's six republics, Croatia and Slovenia, held multi- party elections in the spring, the first democratic balloting since the communists took power in 1945.

Croatia and Slovenia now have non-communist governments and a weak left-wing opposition in their respective assemblies.

Serbia and the other republics in the loose Yugoslav federation are to hold free elections later this year or early in 1991.

Supporters of opposition parties arrived at Wednesday's rally in Belgrade from towns and villages all over Serbia. There were no reports of disturbances.

The event began with a rendition of the national anthem of the former Serbian Kingdom, played publicly for the first time in 45 years. Some in the crowd carried Yugoslav flags that lacked the traditional red star, the communist symbol.

Milan Komnenic, of the extreme nationalist Serbian Renewal Movement, told the rally Yugoslavia's 8.5 million Serbs ''have been squeezed between the Roman Catholic plot in the West and Islam in the East.''

The Rev. Zarko Gavrilovic, of the Saint Sava Party, said Serbia ''badly needs free elections to regain freedom'' it lost in 1918 when it helped creating Yugoslavia. ''Serbia needs the free elections to get rid of the communists and to install parliamentary democracy,'' Gavrilovic said.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 12) UPI - Some U.S. warships in the Middle East are nuclear-capable and may be carrying tactical nuclear weapons, but military analysts rule out the liklihood they ever would be used against Iraq.

''There is nothing Saddam Hussein could do that would provoke the use of tactical nuclear weapons by the United States,'' said retired Adm. Eugene Carroll, an analyst at the Center for Defense Information.

''It is simply beyond the pale. It would be a political, military and economic disaster if we used tactical nukes. We would no longer be accepted among the community of nations ... we would certainly end whatever influence we now have in the Persian Gulf,'' Carroll said.

U.S. government policy is to neither confirm nor deny the presence of nuclear weapons aboard ships or in the field, or to publicly rule out the possibility of their use in a conflict.

''We hope and trust there are no nuclear weapons in the Persian Gulf,'' Carroll said.

The only nuclear-capable U.S. warship in the Persian Gulf, he said, is the battleship USS Wisconsin, which can fire either conventional or nuclear-tipped Tomahawk cruise missiles.

But, he added, he doubts the Pentagon has put nuclear weapons in the region because they would be put at risk while having ''no utility.'' A simple accident at sea - not necessarily detonation - could cause radioactive material to be scattered around the gulf, he said.

Other than the Wisconsin, U.S. aircraft carriers can carry nuclear weapons - bombs for attack aircraft and also depth charges, Carroll said.

The United States has three aircraft carriers in the region - the USS Independence in the Gulf of Oman, the USS Saratoga in the Red Sea and the USS John F. Kennedy in the eastern Mediterranean.

A Pentagon official who asked not to be identified said the use of nuclear weapons in populated areas of Kuwait or Iraq would be impractical, because the smallest nuclear shell, fired by Howitzers, would kill anything in an area nearly one-half mile across.

Francis West, president of Gama Corp., a Falls Church, Va., consulting firm that conducts war games for the Defense Department and private industry, said U.S. conventional forces are strong enough to rule out the use of nuclear weapons.

''There is no military reason, no political reason to get into those kinds of things. ... We have a very strong conventional force,'' West said.

''I think over the course of the last 45 years, the United States and the Soviet Union have worked out a very, very cautious understanding of the uses and the deterrent theory of nuclear weapons.

''The whole question of precedent is such that there is absolutely no military reason - and plenty of political reasons - not to even consider such things,'' he said, noting tactical nuclear weapons were never used in Korea or Vietnam.

The same holds true for chemical weapons, he said.

West's military planners conducted a war game for ''a client'' a year ago in which an enemy force, using two or three scenarios, employed chemical weapons against U.S. troops in the Middle East.

''In each case, the conventional power of the United States to respond is so overwhelming ... we were unable to find a case where an aggressor did not end up saying, 'This is a loser for us and we're not going to do it.'

''The aggressor ends up worse off for having done it than in the first instance,'' West said. ''It's one thing for him (Saddam) to murder helpless Kurdish tribespeople; it's an entirely different case to attack American military forces.

''We were unable to to find a case in which an aggressor could militarily receive an advantage over U.S. forces by using chemical weapons, given what the U.S. responses could be at the conventional level (with airpower),'' he said.

Carroll said chemical weapons ''are never decisive in warfare'' and that Saddam would not be able to ''decide the final outcome of the military conflict, if it comes, with chemical weapons.''

He also said chemical weapons would be ''a nightmare logistically'' for U.S. forces to deploy, because of precautions the troops would have to undertake.

''It's my personal opinion, from a military point of view, that there is no reasonable possibility that we would resort to chemical weapons,'' Carroll said. ''Using them would be retaliating with terror against terror.''

STRASBOURG, FRANCE (SEPT. 12) UPI - The European Parliament voted Wednesday to convene an extraordinary meeting of the Council of Europe to prepare a Common Market ''plan of action'' to resolve the Persian Gulf crisis peacefully, officials said.

The vote by 305 to 37 with 49 abstentions at the Strasbourg assembly of the European Community also called for the rapid organization of a ''conference on security in the Mediterranean and the Gulf region.''

The resolution adopted stated that ''Euro-Arab dialogue could contribute, after the re-establishment of the independence of Kuwait, to an equitable resolving of the Middle East problems in general and the Gulf in particular.''

This conference would work toward ''the restoration of full sovereignty and territorial integrity for Lebanon, and recognition of legitimate rights of the Palestinian people and of the state of Israel, in keeping with the resolutions of the United Nations.''

The resolution praised U.S. and European efforts ''aimed at stopping Iraqi aggression'' and asked that an emergency meeting of the Council of Europe be held to try and work for a peaceful solution of the face-off. It called for full implementation of the embargo on Iraq except for food and medicines essential ''for the survival'' of the Iraqi population.

The vote followed a debate in which Italian Prime Minister Giulio Andreotti, calling for closer ties between Europe and the Arab world, told the European Parliament Wednesday the Gulf crisis made political unification on the Old Continent more necessary than ever.

''The crisis risks being long, sacrifices will impose themselves. This will be the price to pay for re-establishing international legality,'' the Christian Democrat Andreotti said in a keynote address in his role as rotating president of the European Community.

Andreotti said it was ''totally understandable that the United States intervened first in reply to the appeals by Saudi Arabia.''

Members of the European Parliament applauded when former French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing said ''only the firmness and the speed of the United States have avoided the costly reconquest of Saudi Arabia.''

There was considerable unity among European Deputies during the debate though French right-wing extremist Jean-Marie Le Pen charged that ''the U.S. intervention has aggravated the crisis when it is only inter- Arab.''

Le Pen accused Washington of playing a role ''of firemen disguised as pyromaniac.'' The former paratrooper also lashed out at what he termed ''the U.N. dictat,'' which he said tends ''to regiment nations.''

Discordant notes also were sounded by the Greens and the hardline French Communists.

European Commission chief Jacques Delors said nothing would be the same in the Middle East after the crisis.

''Israel must take note of this and also all the parties implicated in Lebanon.''

Andreotti expressed satisfaction with the European response. ''The European Community has reacted with rapidity and in a concrete fashion.''

''Europe must be the pivot for any negotiated solution,'' the veteran ''e pivot for any n

Evoking ties between Europe and the Arab World, Andreotti said ''we will not permit that they be thrown into question. The crisis on the contrary must allow us to reinforce them.''

The gulf stand-off made European political unity all the more urgent, he said, adding that ''it is a historic necessity that must be seized.''

Andreotti called on the Iraqis ''to go into reverse'' and urged strict adhesion to the embargo against Baghdad. ''Maintaining the embargo remains the only alternative to the conflict.''

Delors urged European parliamentarians to reflect on what is ''beyond the crisis.''

Delors said that it was lamentable that countries in the Gulf region devote 40 percent of their oil revenues to purchasing arms but only 25 percent to their economic development.

''Is it not time to think of a new way of organizing the petroleum market?'' the French head of the European Commission asked.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 12) UPI - For the first time ever, the Army is calling up about 450 retired Army personnel and reservists for duty in support of Operation Desert Shield in Saudi Arabia, it was announced Wednesday.

These retirees are in addition to the previously announced plan by the Pentagon to call up nearly 50,000 military reservists and National Guard members through Sept. 30.

It is the first time the Army has called up retired personnel since the Retiree Recall Program was developed in 1981, the Army said.

''Retirees are needed to fill critical requirements as doctors, nurses, linguists, aviators and water-purification specialists,'' the Army said. ''Of the number recalled, approximately 250 will perform medical-related duties and 150 will provide family support services.''

No more than 50 of these people are expected to be sent to the Middle East, an Army spokeswoman said, and the vast majority will remain on duty in the continental United States.

She said ''family support services'' would involve helping family members of deployed reservists understand their new military benefits and to provide enrollment in medical and insurance programs.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 12) UPI - United Press International Tuesday announced an agreement with the Tandy Corporation allowing clients who purchase UPI's newsroom computer software - UPI-BASYS PC NewsDesk - to buy Tandy 2500 XL computers at discounted prices with the software installed.

''Broadcasters making the transition to the computerized newsroom are the big winners in UPI's support agreement with Tandy Corporation's Radio Shack stores and service centers,'' said Richard Cohen, UPI senior vice president for marketing.

''The UPI/BASYS PC NewsDesk represents UPI's response to broadcast news directors' growing need to manage the ever-expanding flow of news and information,'' Cohen said.

In March, UPI announced an agreement with BASYS Inc., to provide multi-user, multi-newswire capabilities in newsroom computer software that would allow users to eliminate broadcasters' reliance on printer ribbons and paper.

The new service is meant to enhance that option by providing PC NewsDesk already installed and backed by the Radio Shack service network, Cohen said.

Tandy has more than 7,000 retail outlets and service centers.

UPI multi-user customers who purchase the Tandy 2500 XL will receive PC NewsDesk training and software services from UPI staff, Cohen said.

CANBERRA, Australia (SEPT. 12) UPI - Environmental demonstrators chained themselves to a wall of the Japanese Embassy Wednesday to protest continued driftnet fishing in the South Pacific by Japanese trawlers.

Police moved in and arrested 13 protestors who later appeared in the Australian Capital Territory Court charged with offensive behaviour and were remanded to appear in court in October, police said.

The protestors, organized by members of the Greenpeace Foundation, also draped fishing nets around the embassy building. Six of the protestors had to be cut free of their chains, police said.

Greenpeace coordinator Mollie Olsen requested a meeting with Japanese Ambassador Hiromu Fukada, who declined to receive the demonstrators.

''We wanted to ask the ambassador when Japan planned to pull out of driftnet fishing internationally,'' Olsen said.

Environmentalists say drift nets are ecologically devastating because the nylon mesh - almost invisible in the water - stretches out over miles of ocean catching virtually all animal life passing by. The United Nations has called for the elimination of drift nets within the next few years, but not all fishing nations have agreed to abide by that decision.

AMMAN, Jordan (SEPT. 12) UPI - A conference of political and union activists from around the Arab world opposed to the U.S.-led military intervention in the Persian Gulf opens Saturday under the patronage of Jordan's King Hussein.

Jordanians have publicly expressed support for Iraq and its leader Saddam Hussein following the U.S.-led military intervention in the region and the U.N.-imposed sanctions against Iraq.

The Jordanian monarch, however, has tried to maintain a balance by complying with the sanctions and by refusing to accept Iraq's aggression and annexation of Kuwait.

One political analyst described the king's patronage of the conference as a message to the West, particularly the U.S. leadership that ''democratically-elected personalities condemn Western intervention although their unelected leaders at the Arab League summit invited the West to come in.''

President Bush has repeatedly stated that he had the support of the Arab League to ''defend Saudi Arabia and the Gulf from Iraqi aggression, '' while Saddam Hussein throughout the crisis has been calling for the Arab and Moslem masses to rise up against their pro-Western leaders.

Organizers said the three-day conference is expected to discuss and find popular methods to confront the Western forces in the gulf and the Israeli occupation of Arab lands.

According to a spokesman from the Arab Nationalist Democratic Coalition, the organizers of the conference, the meeting will be attended by more than one hundred political and union activists from the Arab World.

The spokesman Mamdouh Abbadi also includes opposition party and union leaders from countries who have supported the U.S.-led military intervention in the region such as Syria, Egypt and Morocco.

Whether King Hussein would actually attend the opening of the conference was not clear, but analysts said the fact that he accepted the patronage of such a conference indicates the narrowing of the gap between the leadership of the small kingdom and its political activists.

#90255u1677 09/12/1990 ~United Press International
NEW YORK (SEPT. 12) UPI - American Airlines Chairman Robert Crandall warned Wednesday of tough times ahead for the U.S. airline industry in view of rising costs and fierce competition over fares.

''The eye of the storm - the fundamental problem facing all the world's airlines - is how to provide the service, safety, comfort and convenience the public clearly wants - while simultaneously keeping costs low enough to make enough money to justify making the huge investments our business requires,'' Crandall said in a speech to members of the industry.

American is among the most profitable airlines, reporting last year revenues of $10.5 billion - a 22 percent increase over 1988 - and hefty profits of $454.8 million, moving ahead of UAL Corp.'s United Airlines as the No. 1 U.S. carrier.

American also is the largest airline in the world in terms of revenues, ahead of United, Japan Air Lines, Delta Air Lines and British Airways.

Crandall, also chairman of the carrier's parent AMR Corp., cited the Iraqi conflict, soaring fuel oil prices and a weaker U.S. economy as short-term factors expected to negatively affect the airline industry.

''The real bad news is not that the short-term looks discouraging but that it is getting harder to be optimistic about the long term,'' Crandall said.

He listed the high capital of new aircraft, the deterioration of air transportation facilities, mounting environmental concerns and increasing labor costs among the long-term factors negatively affecting airlines.

''New airplanes are extraordinarily expensive,'' Crandall said. ''The industry's capital spending requirements in the decade ahead will be stupendous.''

He also pointed out that the ''industry's infrastructure is both undersized and wearing out,'' requiring major fresh investments from the airlines, mainly as U.S. cities are increasingly reluctant to fund airport construction andexpansion projects.

Crandall also lashed out at the federal government.

''The unwillingness of the government to spend enough on aviation's infrastructure is reflected in today's acute shortage of airspace and airport capacity,'' he said.

''The cost of delay is currently estimated at between $4 and $5 billion a year

- and things will get worse since the Federal Aviation Administration figures that by 1997, 89 of the nation's top 100 airports will have annual delays of more than 20,000 hours.''

Crandall described Washington's policy toward the industry as a long- term threat to airlines and the entire U.S. economy.

Crandall warned that a return to tighter regulation of the industry would only spell higher fares and criticized Washington for enforcing restrictions that he said prevent U.S. airlines from effectively competing on the international scene.

''Another troubling factor - perhaps the most troubling of all - is labor-cost pressure,'' he said. ''Now the industry is rife with agreements which move away from - or abandon - the market-rate approaches which helped hold costs in check.''

He advocated tough negotiations with labor unions, increased pressure at government levels and a better process for informing the public in order to prevent a deterioration of the industry.

Crandall, who appears on the Sept. 24 issue of Fortune magazine, has targeted overseas markets to ensure the growth of the No. 1 U.S. airline. According to Fortune, he has committed an $11 billion budget to expand its foreign routes over the next five years.

The plan is particularly ambitious for the airline, whose profits shrank this year with second-quarter earnings down 27 percent to $129 million.

Crandall also briefed New York-based airline industry analysts on American's strategy, as investors have expressed concerns over a sharp decline in the price of AMR stock, currently trading in the $44 range, down from a high of $107.25 a share last fall.

American, which said it generates about 30 percent of its revenues from international routes, including new routes to 15 Latin American countries, has based its foreign strategy on forecasts that Asian and European markets will grow at a faster rate than the domestic market.

Crandall's main achievement so far is the Sabre airline and hotel reservation network, the world's largest, operated by seven IBM mainframes. Sabre, which provides information and booking for more than 650 airlines, 20,000 hotels and 50 rental-car companies around the world, contributes a substantial share of the airline's revenues.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 12) UPI - The dollar was mostly higher Wednesday in New York trading, except against the Japanese yen, but analysts said its rise was only temporary and reflected positioning by players awaiting fresh cues.

Currency trading was dominated by the yen's continued rise after the recent hike in Japan's official discount interest rate, analysts said. Against the Japanese currency the dollar lost nearly two yen.

But against European currencies the dollar, a frequent intermediary in deals in other units, rose on the yen updraft. Players also bought dollars to take a profit after heavy selling in Asian and European markets.

Analysts predicted, though, that the dollar would skid as soon as the Federal Reserve steered short-term interest rates lower - which it is seen as obliged to do in light of the country's worsening economic plight.

Late in the New York session, the dollar traded at 1.5915 German marks, ahead from 1.5850 marks Tuesday, and 138.05 Japanese yen, off from 140.25.

''The only thing that is keeping this dollar at current levels is the (Gulf) situation overseas,'' said Carl Amendola, assistant vice president of the Bayerische Hypotheken-und Wechsel Bank.

Amendola said the dollar would probably hold in its present range until there is a Fed easing move or fresh news in the standoff between the United States and Iraq over the latter's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Other New York dollar rates: 1.3285 Swiss francs, up from 1.3210; 5.3295 French francs, up from 5.3100; and 1,187 Italian lire, up from 1, 182.

The British pound eased to $1.8585 from $1.8565.

In Europe, the dollar eased slightly as dealers bought Japanese yen on fresh expectations of a decline in U.S. interest rates, stirred by President Bush's statement of determination to cut a budget deficit deal.

''It's a significant bull run for the yen which should continue in the short term,'' said analyst Geoffrey Dennis of James Capel Co.

In London, the pound closed higher against the dollar at $1.8670 compared with Tuesday's close of $1.8505.

The dollar fell in Frankfurt to 1.5840 German marks from 1.5925. It also fell in Zurich, to 1.3190 Swiss francs from 1.3305.

The dollar dropped slightly in Paris, Brussels and Milan, to 5.3065 French francs vs. 5.3420, 32.59 Belgian francs vs. 32.74, and 1,182.90 Italian lire vs. 1,188.25.

In Tokyo, the U.S. dollar dropped to a new 13-month low. Dealers said it was sold off on expectations of lower U.S. interest rates. It ended at 138.30 yen, down 1.55 yen from Tuesday's close of 139.85 yen.

Dealers said President Bush's remarks indicating his determination to cut the U.S. budget deficit fed speculation of a Fed rate cut.

''Almost everyone went to buy the yen and sell the dollar,'' said Fuji Bank dealer Eshin Narayama.

Gold closed higher in London at $381.50 an ounce vs. $381. It also was higher in Zurich, at $381.50 an ounce compared with $380.50.

Republic National Bank in New York closed cash gold at $383 an ounce, up from $381.50 Tuesday. The New York Commodity Exchange settled contract gold at $382.10 an ounce, up from $380.50.

Silver closed unchanged in London at $4.80 an ounce vs. $4.82. But it moved up in Zurich, to $4.85 an ounce vs. $4.80.

Republic closed cash silver at $4.83 an ounce, up from $4.81. Comex silver ended at $4.801 an ounce, ahead from $4.777.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 12) UPI - Postmaster General Anthony Frank announced on Capitol Hill Wednesday that troops serving in Operation Desert Shield will be permitted to mail letters home postage free.

Frank, who made his announcment at a subcommittee on postal operations, acted in response to legislation rapidly making its way through Congress that ordered up free mailing privileges for the forces in and around Saudi Arabia.

Many of the troops have complained to visiting congressmen about the lack of stamps and the fact that what stamps are available become stuck together in the heat and humidity of the Saudi desert.

The free mail is a privilege available to U.S. troops in combat areas as far back as World War I.

Rep. William Ford, D-Mich., chairman of the Post Office and Civil Service Committee, said in a statement that ''getting mail from home - and being able to write home - provides purpose and motivation for the men and women in our armed forces.''

He noted the complaints of the soldiers, sailors, Marines and airmen about mail and added that providing free mail will ''make their load a little lighter.''

Frank said the free mail will apply only to letters or audio tapes sent to the United States. No parcels can be accepted under the free mailing privileges.

All a serviceman or woman need do is sign their name in the upper right hand corner of the envelope where a stamp would ordinarily go, and put their rank and serial number in the upper left hand corner where the return address goes.

BEIRUT, Lebanon (SEPT. 12) UPI - Renegade Christian military leader Gen.

Michel Aoun declared Wednesday he would not surrender power to President Elias Hrawi and called on the disintegrated nation to revolt against the pro-Syrian leadership.

Aoun, who held a news conference at the presidential palace in the suburban region of Baabda, said he continued to consider himself the legitimate leader of the country.

''The people has no confidence in that government (of Hrawi) because it was not elected by the people,'' Aoun said, adding, ''we are the guards of the legitimacy and (the presidential palace of) Baabda.''

The Christian Maronite general said he anticipated no imminent flare- up of military confrontations with the predominantly-Moslem Syrian- backed camp.

''There will be no wars as of today, and the situation in the region tends to be calm,'' said Aoun, responding to reports by pro-Syrian sources that a big battle would break out soon to oust him.

Aoun, who commands a 15,000-strong army, has refused to relinquish powers to Hrawi, also a Christian Maronite, or leave the presidential palace in Baabda, 5 miles southeast of Beirut.

The general blamed pro-Syrian leaders for the worsening economic situation, branding the cabinet ministers as ''thieves.''

Lebanon's economy this year has dramatically deteriorated as a result of a spiraling inflation, the crumbling of the value of the Lebanese pound and the lack of law-and-order.

The U.S. dollar has been valued at more than 1,100 pounds, hiking the prices of all essential products and foodstuffs.

''For how long will the people remain silent regarding their (ministers') robberies?'' said Aoun, alluding to the pro-Syrian leadership. ''The people should revolt against the Taif band.''

Hrawi and the cabinet of Sunni Moslem Prime Minister Selim Hoss were elected as a result of a peace accord that was worked out by the Lebanese parliament in Taif, Saudi Arabia, last October.

Aoun has rebuffed the agreement for failing to ensure a speedy withdrawal of Syria's 35,000 troops from the country.

Sources close to Hrawi have reported a planned military thrust into the Christian enclave by the 20,000-man army of pro-Syrian army commander Gen. Emile Lahoud.

But independent analysts have noted that Syria appeared to oppose a big operation against Aoun while it was involved in the Gulf crisis.

Syria, along with Egypt, was reportedly intending to jointly deploy a 50,000-strong force in Saudi Arabia to back up an international force entrusted with foiling a possible Iraqi attack against the kingdom.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 12) UPI - Farmers will harvest a huge corn crop of 8.12 billion bushels - the fifth-largest crop ever - the government said Wednesday, while slightly lowering its soybean forecast due to drought in the Southeast.

The corn estimate called for a record 121.7 bushels an acre, 5.5 more than last year. The corn estimate was boosted by 3 percent from a month ago due to hot August weather that accelerated crop maturity.

The September crop report also called for a wheat harvest of 2.76 billion bushels, up 2 percent from August and 35 percent larger than 1989. It would be the third-largest wheat crop on record, including a record 580.6 million bushels of spring wheat.

Soybean output was pegged at 1.83 billion bushels, down 2 million bushels from the August estimate. Lower yields are projected in the Delta and Gulf Coast regions ''as hot and, especially, dry conditions prevailed during August,'' the department said.

Hot and dry weather has wilted crops from the Carolinas to Texas, but has made little impact on U.S. production due to good conditions in the rest of the country and an increase in the amount of land under cultivation this year. Overall, grain production was forecast to rise 10 percent this year.

The Southeast is the only region where significant amounts of the corn, soybean and cotton crops are reported in very poor condition.

By coincidence, the crop report was released on the same day the House Agriculture Committee looked into crop losses due to bad weather. The National Cotton Council asked for a new version of the disaster relief laws that paid $5.5 billion to farmers for losses in 1988 and 1989.

Cotton output is pegged at 14.7 million bales, down 1 percent from August but 21 percent larger than last year, due mainly to a 20 percent increase in acreage. Yields, forecast for 616 pounds an acre, would be 2 pounds higher than 1989.

The department said cotton output in the Southeast was likely to be 17 percent lower than thought in August. Georgia's yields were forecast to drop 181 pounds an acre from last year's 631 pounds.

Corn, wheat and soybeans are the three major field crops grown in the United States and are the basis for most of the food consumed by Americans.

Wheat is used in bread, pastries and bakery products, as well as being a livestock food. Corn and soybeans are used in meat and dairy production, besides having food uses of their own.

The corn crop would be the largest since 1986. The record is 8.87 billon bushels in 1985. The September estimate called for a crop 8 percent larger than the 7.5 billion bushels reaped last year.

The government raised its estimate of yields to 135 bushels an acre in Iowa, up seven from last month and 134 in Illinois, up six.

A wet spring and cool summer has delayed crop maturity in the central states, prompting concern about corn and soybean losses if there is an early frost. Norton Strommen, the department's chief meteorologist, said the ''highly favorable'' 30-day forecast calls for warm, dry weather to spur crop maturity in the Midwest and rain to help Southern crops.

''This outlook would limit further deterioration of crop yield potential for all summer row crops in the South,'' Strommen said. ''The final yields across the Corn Belt will depend on warm September temperatures while yield potential across the Southern states can still benefit from late-season rain.''

Iowa was forecast to again lead the nation in corn production with 1.66 billion bushels. Illinois was projected, for the second year in a row, to be No. 1 in soybeans, with 345 million bushels.

Kansas is displacing North Dakota as the top wheat state, with a record 472 million bushels.

The fall harvest season is just getting under way, so there may be revisions in the government estimates for many crops, which are based on Sept. 1 conditions. The wheat harvest, however, is nearly complete.

The abundant crops may have little direct impact on food prices because of the amount of time needed to process them and the relatively small role crop prices play in food costs. Food prices rose an unusually sharp 5.8 percent last year. An increase of 5 percent to 7 percent is expected this year.

Market prices for wheat have slumped in the face of huge crops worldwide. The government estimated farmers would be paid about $1 a bushel less for this year's crop than the $3.72 a bushel average for last year's crop.

Corn and soybean prices were projected to hold steady or rise slightly.

The wheat harvest was projected to include 2.05 billion bushels of winter wheat, 120.5 million bushels of durum wheat and 580.6 million bushels of spring wheat. The durum forecast was up 12 percent from August and the spring wheat estimate up 7 percent due to improved prospects in Minnesota and the Dakotas.

The wheat crop was projected to tie the 1983 record of 39.4 bushels an acre.

Sorghum production was estimated at 572 million bushels, up 5 percent from August but 7 percent less than last year.

Oat production was pegged at 365 million bushels, 2 percent less than 1989. Barley output was forecast for 409 million bushels, up 1 percent from 1989.

CARMEL, CA (SEPT. 12) UPI - Oak Tree Savings Bank, the New Orleans savings and loan subsidiary of Landmark Land Co. Inc., has been placed under federal supervision for failing to meet capital requirements, Landmark said Wednesday.

Oak Tree Savings signed a supervisory agreement with the Office of Thrift Supervision that restricts its ability to make loans, enter into material transactions or pay dividends, Landmark said.

Landmark, of Carmel, Calif., has been unable to find buyers for Oak Tree's estimated $1.1 billion in real estate holdings, which must be sold under the savings and loan guidelines passed by Congress last year.

Landmark said it was reviewing several bids for the properties, which include such major golf and resort holdings as the PGA West, Mission Hills and La Quinta resorts in the Palm Spings, Calif., area. The properties also include several large tracts of undeveloped residential land in Southern California and resorts in Carmel, Calif., West Palm Beach, Fla., and Kiawah Island, South Carolina.

Landmark reached an agreement in April to sell most of the properties to Southern California developer Barry Hon for $967 million, but the deal collapsed after federal regulators objected to the terms, which would have required Landmark to finance more than 75 percent of the price.

SAN FRANCISCO (SEPT. 12) UPI - U.S. political asylum has been granted to a former high-ranking Peruvian prosecutor who disclosed evidence of Peruvian military involvement in human rights abuses including the 1988 massacre of 28 peasants.

Carlos Escobar, appointed to investigate charges of guerrilla culpability for the killing of peasants in the Andean region of Ayacucho, became the target of assassination attempts after he accused the military of involvement in the deaths.

The U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service granted Escobar political asylum last week based on his fear of persecution in Peru, Escobar's attorney Marc Van Der Hout said Wednesday.

Escobar's 1988 probe uncovered 572 human rights violations involving disappearances.

He also allegedly found evidence that a general overseeing Ayacucho, one of the nation's poorest regions, was behind a May 1988 massacre in which 28 peasants from the village of Cayara were hacked to death as they returned from the fields. Another 41 villagers were missing.

He also charged that nine of his witnesses to the attack were killed or missing.

Escobar went on Peruvian television to denounce the killing of witnesses and place responsibility on the general. After that, death threats against him increased.

Escobar, who has been living in Pleasant Hill, Calif., since November, made it clear during a press conference Wednesday that he plans to go back to Peru when it is safe.

''I want to thank the authorities of the United States for permitting me to stay in this country until the situation permits me to return,'' he said.

''The policies of my government are in error,'' he said through a translator.

The Peruvian government denounced his claims, took him off the investigation and closed his office, ostensibly for lack of funds. A Peruvian Congressional report praised the general's efforts against attacks by guerrillas of the Sendero Luminoso, or Shining Path.

Escobar said that during the 1988 probe he was forced to duck gunfire for 20 minutes while on a military base, was threatened and became the subject of intimidation.

Peruvian officials formally protested Escobar's application for asylum when he filed it in March.

President Alberto Fujimori, who took the helm of the Peruvian government in June, has given the military control of 50 percent of the countryside, largely the rural regions, Escobar said.

Van Der Hout said he was pleased the American government granted asylum, despite U.S. support of the Peruvian government.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 12) UPI - The government this week is sending $32 million to Panama, the largest component to date of a $420 million aid package promised by the Congress in the aftermath of the U.S. invasion, officials said Wednesday.

Delays in the promised U.S. aid package had prompted Panamanian President Guillermo Endara to stage a 13-day fast in March, but U.S. officials blamed delays over the past four months on the need for legislative approvals in Panama.

''Not $he least (of the reasons for the delays in Panama) relates to the fact that there are a number of requirements that had to be met, including putting together an overall economic plan and putting together a budget, and the Panamanian government is rather new to all this,'' said Gussie L. Daniels III, the desk officer for Panama in the U.S. Agency for International Development.

''If they had moved faster, the money would have moved faster,'' said Daniels, who said his agency has just cleared $32 million in aid for Panama and expects to send the money sometime this week.

A State Department spokesman, who declined to be identified, portrayed the delay as evidence of the democracy he said has flourished in Panama since U.S. forces invaded in December and removed military leader Manuel Noreiga.

''It took five months in our Congress, and another four months for their procedures,'' the spokesman said. ''This is coalition politics down there.''

Officials at the Panamanian Embassy in Washington could not be immediately reached for comment.

The money being sent this week is part of a $420 million Panamanian aid package approved by the Congress in May.

The promised funds include $130 million to pay Panama's arrears to international financial institutions, $113 million for public sector development, $107 million for private sector development, and $70 million for various other projects including strengthening democratic institutions and environmental protection.

Congress earlier had approved a separate $32 million in grants and $10 million in loans to pay primarily for costs directly related to the U.S. invasion, including the reconstruction of affected homes and businesses.

The only money from the $420 million aid package previously sent to Panama was about $11 million used for scholarships, police training and public administration, Daniels said.

The additional $32 million being sent this week is targeted for private sector development and private sector credit, Daniels said.

The U.S. government plans to ''audit'' Panama's use of the money, but has placed no specific limits on its use other than general U.S. restrictions against usages such as gambling and abortion, he said.

Daniels defended the decision to avoid further restrictions, saying the agency decided the need to show faith in the new Panamanian government was more important than any risk the funds might not reach those most in need.

''Those concerns were raised repeatedly, but the judgment that was reached was that we don't want to do too much in the way of handholding for the government of Panama,'' Daniels said.

''That is a sovereign government,'' he said. ''It has to stand on its own.''

NEW YORK (SEPT. 12) UPI - Stocks closed higher Wednesday in yet another day of light trading as optimism about a plan to cut the budget deficit and a bout of bargain hunting boosted prices late in the session.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which lost 2.97 Tuesday, gained 13.12 to 2625.74.

Among broader market gauges, the New York Stock Exchange composite index rose 0.70 to 177.09 and Standard & Poor's 500-stock index added 1.50 to 322.54. The price of an average share added 12 cents.

Advances outpaced declines, 784-628, among the 1,942 issues crossing the NYSE tape. Big Board volume totaled 129,890,000 shares, up from 113, 220,000 traded Tuesday.

Analysts said some bargain hunting late in the session and optimism about a deficit-cutting plan led the market out of its day-long weakness.

''We've exhausted the sellers and are getting some bargain hunting and nibbling by people who are getting tired of waiting for cheaper prices,'' said

Michael Metz, analyst at Oppenheimer & Co.

Metz also said there seems to be some ''nascent optimism'' about movement toward a plan to cut the budget deficit. ''Some feeling this may really happen is creeping into market psychology,'' he said.

White House and congressional budget negotiators, meeting for a sixth day Wednesday at Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington, are considering a possible new tax on luxury items such as expensive cars, private boats and airplanes, furs, jewelry and electronic equipment.

While no final decisions have yet been made - talks are expected to continue all night Wednesday and into Thursday - Democrats have reportedly proposed a 10 percent luxury levy while Republicans are said to be considering a 5 percent tax.

''And lastly,'' Metz said, ''every day the market doesn't go down in the face of no improvement in the fundamentals provides encouragement that it has hit bottom. There's a lot of money on the sidelines with no urgency to recommit itself but there is some rebuilding of confidence so some money is creeping back in.''

On the trading floor, Alcan Aluminium was the most active issue, up 1/2 to 22 1/8.

Corroon & Black followed, surging 6 5/8 to 37 1/2 after receiving a cash merger offer from another insurer, Aon Corp., which lost 1 1/2 to 33.

Tandem Computers was third, up 1/8 to 11 5/8. It sank Tuesday after warning late Monday its growth rate might not meet Wall Street's expectations. It also said it would take steps to cut costs to hold onto profit margins.

Analysts were said Tuesday to have cut earnings estimates for Tandem's fiscal quarter ending this month.

Browning-Ferris Industries was also active, down 1 1/2 to 33. Analysts are said to be cutting earnings estimates for the company. Santa Fe Southern Pacific was the fifth most active stock, down 1/2 to 14 7/8. The company said it has accepted $215.6 million of a $260 million debenture issue in a debt-for-equity swap, under which it will issue 14.5 million common shares.

Among the blue chips, AT&T fell 1/2 to 30 5/8 in active trading. Analysts were quoted in the Wall Street Journal as saying they don't expect it to be a good buy any time soon, citing recession fears and promotion expenses for its new credit card.

Elsewhere, IBM rose 3/8 to 107 7/8, Sears lost 3/8 to 28 1/8 and Eastman Kodak gained 1/2 to 41 1/2. Oil issues gained as oil prices closed higher. Texaco jumped 1 3/4 to 64 3/8, Chevron rose 1 to 77 1/8 and Exxon added 1/2 to 51 3/8.

Volume of NYSE-listed issues, including trades in stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 157,487,620 shares, compared with 136,363,710 shares traded in the previous session.

Prices closed sharply higher in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange.

The Amex Market Value index rose 0.18 to close at 323.19. Declines led advances 264-246 among the 770 issues traded. The price of an average share rose 1 cent. Composite volume totaled 10,820,200 shares, compared with 10,860,200 shares traded Tuesday.

Hillhaven led the Amex issues, up 1/8 to 1 5/8.

The National Association of Securities Dealers composite index rose 0.83 to 380.32.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 12) UPI - President Bush pushed his long-stalled anti-crime bill Wednesday and threatened to veto an alternative House measure that he said would protect the criminal and handcuff the police.

''The American people are fed up,'' Bush said. ''I urge Congress to heed the voices of our people, our police and our prosecutors and send me a crime bill that will help take back the streets.''

Bush is headed for a showdown with Capitol Hill. He earlier threatened to veto the Senate-passed version of his bill because it contains a provision that would outlaw nine types of semiautomatic assault weapons.

Speaking to hundreds of state and local prosecutors gathered on the White House south lawn in a show of support for his anti-crime package, Bush made no mention of the volatile gun control issue.

Instead, he raised such matters as the little-used death penalty, the lengthy appeal process and ''scales of justice (that) are unfairly loaded against dedicated lawmen and women like you.''

Bush's Comprehensive Violent Crime Control Act has been on Capitol Hill for more than a year, during which the nation has experienced a surge in drug-related violence and a near-record murder rate.

His bill would expand the number of federal crimes punishable by death, including major drug dealing, streamline the appeal process and eliminate ''loopholes'' that limit police search and seizure powers.

The Senate approved much of the package, but added the provision outlawing certain assault weapons. The House bill, now in committee, does not include such a ban.

But it would, the administration complains, increase the appeal process and thus effectively eliminate the death sentence. The House version, unlike Bush's bill, also does not extend the ''good faith'' exception in warrantless searches.

Attorney General Dick Thornburgh called the House measure a ''pro- criminal bill'' and ''a step backwards'' in effective law enforcement.

The full chamber is expected to vote on the measure within a few days.

Bush said, ''We will not accept a crime bill that is tougher on law enforcement than it is on criminals. I will not sign a bill that handcuffs police.''

Many lawmen have been at odds with the administration over gun control. They have urged Bush to outlaw semiautomatic assault weapons and to back a waiting period for purchase of handguns.

In fact, the 6,500-member National District Attorneys Association, which was out in force Wednesday in support of Bush's bill, recently passed a resolution in favor of restrictions on semiautomatics.

''We didn't bring it up with the president today,'' said Richard Ieyoub, the association's president. ''We came here to talk about his crime bill.''

SAN FRANCISCO (SEPT. 12) UPI - An estimated 116,000 natural gas and pipeline workers nationwide may be subjected to random drug testing without violating constitutional privacy rights, a federal appeals court ruled Wednesday.

The unanimous 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals decision upheld a Transportation Department random urine testing program even though the department could show ''neither the existence of widespread drug problems in the pipeline industry nor a direct linkage between drug impairment and the possibility of accidents.''

In rejecting the invasion of privacy claims, the appeals court said pipeline and natural gas facility workers have lowered expectations of privacy based solely on their employment in an industry highly regulated to ensure safety.

Judge Joseph Sneed wrote the privacy expectations of the workers in the pipeline industry is ''outweighed by the government's interest in detecting and deterring drug use.''

''Random drug testing, as compared to other forms of testing, offers the best potential deterrent to drug use,'' Sneed wrote.

The ruling adds pipeline workers in the natural gas industry to the growing list of workers who may be subjected to random urine testing.

Among those courts say may be randomly tested are airline industry personnel, prison guards, army civilian guards, nuclear power workers, civilian army chemical weapons plant workers, Justice Department employees with top secret clearance, police officers carrying firearms and mass transit workers.

The 1988 Transportation Department regulations, proposed by the Research and Special Programs Administration, specifically cover natural gas, liquified natural gas and hazardous liquid pipeline workers.

Along with random testing, the program also called for pre-employment testing, post-accident testing, tests when reasonable suspicion of drug use exists and rights for retesting.

Several AFL-CIO unions challenged the random testing aspect of the plan as an unconstitutional invasion of privacy and illegal search and seizure.

Sneed noted the program requires ''all reasonable steps'' be taken to collect a urine sample even if an employee is ''injured, unconscious, or otherwise unable to (give consent.'')

Sneed said, although that requirement was called ''highly draconian'' by the unions and is unprecedented among other transportation-related accident testing programs, the unions abandoned challenges to post- accident testing.

The entire plan applies to workers engaged in operation, maintenance or emergency response functions of the pipeline industry.

Sneed was joined in his decision by Judges Jerome Farris and Ferdinand Fernandez.

KANSAS CITY, MO (SEPT. 12) UPI - The Kansas City Royals have re-signed manager John Wathan for the 1991 season, Royals General Manager John Schuerholz said Wednesday.

Schuerholz announced the signing of the one-year contract at a late afternoon press conference at Royals Stadium. No terms of the deal were announced.

Wathan, 40, who was hired Aug. 27, 1987, as the team's ninth manager. He will begin his fourth full season as the club's manager next year. Wathan also played 10 years in the major leagues, all with Kansas City.

Before Wednesday night's game against the Toronto Blue Jays, the Royals were mired in a nine-game losing streak. They had a 66-76 record and were in sixth place in the American League West, 24 1/2 games behind the first-place Oakland Athletics. Many prognosticators had expected the team to challenge Oakland for the division title.

Schuerholz said he and Wathan will determine the status of the coaching staff at the end of the season.

LOS ANGELES (SEPT. 12) UPI - Lockheed Corp. said Wednesday that it has denied a request by Texas investor Harold Simmons to appear before its board to argue that the company's ''poison pill'' anti-takeover provision should be eliminated.

Simmons, who controls a 19.8 percent stake in the aerospace giant through NL Industries, recently asked Lockheed to redeem its poison pill plan, which can be activated when an investors obtains more than 20 percent of the stock.

Simmons, who has been seeking control of Lockheed for more than a year, has asked for the redemption to boost his stake to 35 percent by buying shares at $35 each from the company's Employee Stock Ownership Plan.

Lockheed's stock closed up 12.5 cents at $25.375 a share Wednesday on the New York Stock Exchange.

Simmons lost an acrimonious proxy battle in March for control of the Lockheed board, but 56 percent of voting shareholders approved an advisory vote asking for redemption of the poison pill plan. He subsequently sued Lockheed and its officers to overturn the board election results, alleging that the ESOP shares were improperly voted in support of management.

A special committee of the Lockheed board met Tuesday to consider redemption of the poison pill, and will meet again Sept. 21, spokesman Scott Hallman said. The full board is due to meet on Sept. 24.

Lockheed Chairman Daniel Tellep, in a recent letter to NL Industries President J. Landis Martin, said that NL's request to appear could not be honored, although submission of written material would be allowed.

Simmons had also asked to review any Lockheed studies on the issue, but Tellep said that some of the material considered by the committee is ''privileged.'' He also said that Simmons' access to the committee and documents is ''complicated'' by the lawsuit.

Tellep also pointed out that since a large number of shares were not voted, the proposal was not approved by a majority of outstanding shares.

Martin, in a recent letter to Tellep, charged that the board has staged an ''elaborate charade'' to avoid compliance with the resolution. The letter was contained in a Securities and Exchange Commission filing.

''As Lockheed's shareholders recognize, the Lockheed poison pill only serves to reduce management accountability and harm stock values, a fact that has been all too evident since the annual meeting,'' wrote Landis, noting the company's stock has recently traded at a nine-year low.

''In light of this, the Board of Directors should be anxious to raise the stock price,'' Landis said. ''Redeeming the poison pill in one step that should be taken''.

''The Lockheed poison pill purports to protect shareholders, but the Company's shareholders have sent a clear message that they do not want the type of protection' imposed,'' Landis wrote.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 12) UPI - NASA released three new pictures taken by the Hubble Space Telescope as investigators Wednesday continued to trace the exact cause of the observatory's embarrassing defect.

The images of a distant quasar, an exploded star and a star cluster demonstrate the ability of Hubble to perform some valuable research despite an inability to sharply focus starlight, NASA said.

The quasar picture, taken by the telescope's European-built Faint Object Camera, provides ''astronomers with the most detailed image ever taken'' of a so-called gravitational lens, NASA said.

The image of the quasar shows four versions of the object, which is located about 8 billion light years from Earth. The multiple images are created by the light of the quaser being bent by the gravitational field of a galaxy located only about 400 million light years from Earth in a phenomenon known as a ''gravitational lens,'' NASA said.

A quasar is a powerful, distant object that contains extremely high amounts of energy and may be the nuclei of ancient active galaxies.

''Detailed analysis of this facinating Faint Object Camera image and others to be observed later with the Hubble Space Telescope will provide a wealth of information on the details of lensing galaxies, as well as the process of gravitational lensing itself,'' the space agency said in a statement.

The picture of a star cluster known as R136 is the most detailed and clearest picture ever taken of the cluster in the Large Megallanic Cloud, about 170,000 light years from Earth.

''The Faint Object Camera image highlights the high resolution of the Hubble Space Telescope by separating stars far more clearly than even the best conventional ground-based photographs,'' NASA said.

The image of the exploded star is a close-up of supernova 1987a, a star that exploded in February 1987 about 170,000 light years from Earth, and shows a ring of material circling the remains.

''This is the first time that the exploding outer envelope of (the supernova) has been photographed directly - a feat that clearly demonstrates the power of the Hubble Space Teleescope,'' the statement said.

''The presence of this ring .. provides astronomers with an important clue for determining the nature and history of the progenitor star that exploded,'' the statement said.

Meanwhile, an investigative panel headed by Lew Allen of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena Calif., began the latest in a series of two-day meetings in Danbury, Conn., to try to nail down the specific cause of the flaw.

The panel was focusing on a rod used to measure a device, known as a ''null corrector,'' used to test the telescope's main mirror when it was built by Perkin-Elmer Corp. 10 years ago, said NASA spokeswoman Sarah Keegan.

''They are looking at one of the measuring rods as possibly having been the problem,'' she said.

The panel previously found the null corrector was set slightly wrong, causing the supposedly perfect 94-inch mirror to be shaped incorrectly. That prevents the telescope from focusing starlight sharply.

The misshapen mirror, which was discovered about a month after the long-awaited $1.5 billion telescope was ferried into space in April, set off a storm of criticism of NASA.

NASA officials have said the problem can be corrected when a camera is replaced by a space shuttle mission in 1993. However, they stressed the telescope could still conduct valuable research in the meantime and began releasing pictures to demonstrate its abilities.

EAST BERLIN (SEPT. 12) UPI - Former President Ronald Reagan took chisel in hand Wednesday and chipped at the ruins of the Berlin Wall, which he had once dramatically urged Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev to tear down.

Shouts of ''Danke, Herr Reagan'' - ''Thank you Mr. Reagan'' - echoed under the arches of the Brandenburg Gate, where the former president made his now historic speech in June 1987.

Reagan said fragments of the demolished wall now being hawked by vendors on the street ''testify to the determination of the East German people to regain their freedom.''

''Now the wall is gone, destroyed by freedom's light,'' he said in an address he delivered at the West Berlin Congress Hall.

After his speech, Reagan found a stretch of wall that had not been torn down yet, and, with hammer and chisel, contributed to its demolition.

Just over two years after Reagan stood at the Brandenburg Gate and urged ''Mr. Gorbachev, tear down this wall,'' the Berlin Wall was opened for free travel on Nov. 9, 1989. Since then, much of it has been torn down.

''I'm not going to miss it and I don't think you will either,'' a beaming Reagan told a group of Germans who greeted him after he crossed from West to East Berlin.

Reagan also signed the East Berlin visitors book at the Staatsrat - a building formerly used by the communist head of state, in which parliamentary President Sabine Bergman-Pohl now receives foreign guests.

Reagan offered his help to a united Germany.

''If by any chance they need outside help, I would be happy to be of assistance,'' he said.

In a brief remark in the crisis in the Persian Gulf, Reagan said the standoff had brought about more international unity ''than I can recall ever in the world ... over a problem like this.''

The former president and his wife walked from the Reichstag - the former German parliament - to the Brandenburg Gate, along the area where the wall used to be. They were accompanied by West Berlin Mayor Walter Momper and West German parliamentary President Rita Suesmuth.

They paused briefly on the western side of the Brandenburg gate, where a man in the crowd played military marching tunes on a trumpet.

More than 2,000 people, many cheering and waving, welcomed the group on the eastern side of the gate, where Reagan shook hands and chatted with several Berliners and visitors.

''What a wonderful surprise. We did not even know he would be here,'' said Petra van Klugt, a Dutch national in her early sixties, proudly showing a piece of paper bearing Reagan's autograph.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 12) UPI - Forget, for the moment, the tanks, troops and warships in the Persian Gulf. President Bush opted Wednesday for a more potent weapon - television - to drive a wedge between Saddam Hussein and the Iraqi people.

The satellite-transmitted war of images that has become so much a part of the Persian Gulf crisis escalated as Bush, seizing on a vague invitation from Baghdad, videotaped an eight-minute message for broadcast on Iraqi television.

The intent, aides said, was to reach beyond the propaganda heard in Baghdad with assurances that economic and military pressure unleashed against Iraq has not been aimed at punishing the Iraqi people, but taming Saddam.

The possibility, however, was that the taping may turn out to be just another exercise in television-age diplomacy, to be seen and heard almost everywhere but in the Iraqi households Bush would like to see turn against Saddam.

Despite an ambiguous Iraqi offer late last week to air some videotape of Bush on state-run television, White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater acknowledged there had been nothing official from Baghdad to suggest he will see airtime.

The White House, however, was determined to go through the motions as if a formal invitation had been extended, preparing a videotape with Arabic subtitles and dubbing under the direction of Bush media adviser Sig Rogich.

''It's personal,'' Fitzwater said of the message, ''and it's directed towards the people of Iraq and the hardship they've had to bear in this matter. It provides a very candid but personal description of our involvement and our goals and objectives in the region.''

NBC News reported that the message was not make a personal attack on the Iraqi leader, and instead emphasized the facts that he believes Saddam has withheld from the Iraqi people. The network also reported Bush said 26 nations, including many Arabs, are allied against Iraq.

Deputy Secretary of State Lawrence Eagleburger was to hand the tape over Thursday morning at the State Department to Iraqi Ambassador Mohamed Al-Mashat. What Al-Mashat would do with the unsolicited package was anybody's guess.

Iraqi Embassy officials had no immediate comment. As a hedge against uncertainty, the White House planned for other copies of the tape to be delivered to Iraqi officials through diplomatic channels in Baghdad.

''We expect that Iraq will honor its invitation to allow this to be addressed to the Iraqi people,'' Fitzwater said. ''And we will ask them to provide us air time within the next five days.''

That the nature of the original offer was subject to interpretation seemed not to matter. Depicted in some reports last week as merely a request to send an Iraqi crew to interview Bush, the White House saw it as an opportunity at least to place the Iraqi government on the defensive by challenging it to broadcast the U.S. side of events in the gulf and at best a chance to paint doubts in the minds of the Iraqi people about the true motives and risks of Saddam's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

If the message is not aired within five days, Fitzwater said it will be widely released to news agencies in the United States, the Arab world and elsewhere to show what Bush would have told the Iraqi people if permitted.

In contrast to the occasionally sharp tone of Bush's televised speech Tuesday night to a joint session of Congress, Fitzwater said the message taped Wednesday was not so much ''an attack'' on Saddam as an explanation of the dire consequences his aggression may hold for the Iraqi people, whose economy may soon begin to suffer from a virtual U.N.-ordered trade embargo.

(SEPT. 12) UPI - An Iranian cleric's call for a holy war against the U-S military force in the Persian Gulf dampened stock trading around the globe. Iran's spiritual leader said a jihad... or war against the enemies of Islam... is needed to dislodge the American presence in the region. Today's declaration was felt on Wall Street and other trading centers as an earlier upward motion tapered off. Analysts note that trading institutions are waiting for decisive action in the area.

The European Parliament has voted by an overwhelming majority to hold a rare meeting of the so-called Council of Europe. The European Community legislature will convene to prepare a ''plan of action'' to ease tensions in the Persian Gulf. Besides Kuwait's sovereignty, the conference also is scheduled to consider Lebanon's territorial integrity and the rights of both the Palestinian people and the state of Israel.

Lawmakers trying to reach a compromise budget plan are considering a new tax on luxury items. The action would raise the cost of items such as jewelry, furs, expensive cars and electronic equipment. One Democratic aide estimated that the tentative tax would raise two-BILLION dollars the first year and eight-BILLION dollars during the next five years, and would offset the federal deficit. The Andrews Air Force Base meeting is expected to go through tomorrow.

NASA officials have set Tuesday as the launch date for the shuttle Columbia.

The ailing spaceplane has been grounded more than three months. But space agency officials say engineers have resolved Columbia's glitches. The way was cleared for the latest lift-off try after technicians replaced a 250-dollar seal in a fuel line valve. Also today, NASA said the shuttle Discovery has been scheduled to take off around October 8th.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 12) UPI - The Senate approved a mandatory seafood inspection program Wednesday, bringing fish and shellfish under the same standards now applied to beef, pork and poultry.

In a bitter fight, which split both parties, the Senate voted 59-39 to have the Agriculture Department carry out the new program, despite the vehement protests of senators who backed the Commerce Department and Food and Drug Administration.

The bill passed by voice vote and sent to the House but Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, said it would be vetoed.

Seafood is a big and growing industry. Americans spent $28.3 billion on fish and shellfish last year and another $2.4 billion worth was exported.

The bill would set federal standards for unsafe levels of contaminants, and sanitation and labeling; mandatory inspections; uniform standards for domestic and imported products; and promote research.

The legislation would assign primary responsibility for the program to the Agriculture Department, which nows carries out inspections of all other flesh foods.

The FDA and the Commerce Department would play support roles. FDA would set tolerances for contaminant levels and the Commerce Department, through two of its agencies, would be responsible for policing fish and shellfish growing and harvesting areas.

In the substitute proposal, which was rejected, the Agriculture Department would have played no role in the inspection program.

''In establishing a mandatory, publicly funded inspection program under the USDA, the bill ensures that the fishing industry will be treated equitably with respect to the meat and poultry industries,'' Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell said.

He added, ''For the first time, the inspection of all flesh foods would be consolidated in a comprehensive program under USDA.''

The two Alaska senators, Stevens and Frank Murkowski, R-Alaska, as well as Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, fought to keep the Agriculture Department out of the program.

Stevens and Murkowski suggested that meat and poultry interests were behind the effort to invest the power in the Agriculture Department.

Stevens said ''the motivation is fear that we are moving out'' and that fish is going to take away even more markets from meat and poultry.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 12) UPI - Farm-state congressmen strongly urged the Bush administration Wednesday to order a 15 percent land set-aside for the 1991 crop - a step the administration said it has no authority to take.

In a letter, 35 congressmen, including the leaders of the House Agriculture Committee, said farmers ''need a specific setaside figure'' so they can plan their operations.

Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter has repeatedly said he cannot announce a set-aside until Congress passes the new farm policy bill. A department official said the letter would not change the department's view that it lacked authority to declare a set-aside figure.

Yeutter has said the set-aside is likely to between between 10 percent and 20 percent.

The Senate passed legislation Tuesday that would mandate a 15 percent setaside.

''Our farmers just can't wait any longer for Congress to pass a new farm bill or for the federal government to spell out program details,'' said Senate Republican Leader Robert Dole of Kansas, the bill's sponsor.

Farmers have begun seeding the winter wheat crop.

The September crop report pegged the wheat crop at 2.76 billion bushels, the third largest crop on record. With exports projected to fall 108 million bushels from last year's level, the U.S. stockpile of wheat was estimated to reach 946 million bushels by next June 1 - up 410 million bushels in one year.

In their letter, the congressmen offered to work with Yuetter ''to ensure that a 15 percent wheat (set-aside) is consistent with the final farm bill package.''

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 12) UPI - House and Senate negotiators have tentatively agreed on a bill broadening circumstances under which the government can draw oil from its Strategic Petroleum Reserve to meet the nation's emergency energy needs, congressional aides said Wednesday.

Working against White House veto threats and a weekend deadline, lawmakers on the House-Senate conference committee are attempting to reconcile differing versions of the bill passed by the two chambers.

The Energy Department's authority under existing law to purchase and store oil for the reserve expires Saturday.

Keeping the reserve in operation and expanding the president's discretion to use it in times of oil supply disruptions has grown ever more crucial since Iraq invaded Kuwait, threatening western access to Persian Gulf oil.

A series of meetings and telephone discussions among House and Senate staff negotiators since Monday have produced a preliminary agreement on the bill, but the accord must still be formally approved by the conferees, said aides who asked not to be identified.

The measure would then go back to the House and Senate for final passage before being sent to President Bush for his signature.

The Strategic Petroleum Reserve was established in 1975 following the Arab oil embargo to ensure the United States an emergency supply of oil.

Under current law, the president can order the government to draw on the reserve only in the case of a ''severe interruption'' of oil imports. This authority has never been invoked.

The compromise struck by conference negotiators would further allow the reserve to be tapped in the event of a domestic supply disruption that is ''comparable in scope and duration'' to the type of energy crisis for which the reserve was originally created, a Senate staffer said.

The House previously had taken the position, opposed by the Senate, that oil from the reserve should be made available under even less severe circumstances ''likely to become a national or regional energy emergency.''

Another key feature of the agreement is a provision that for the first time would require a portion of the reserve, now made up entirely of crude oil, be devoted to refined petroleum products, such as heating oil or gasoline.

But to ward off a threatened veto, storage of refined products would be authorized only as a three-year pilot program rather than as a permanent part of the petroleum reserve as the House intended, the staffer said.

This provision was designed to speed delivery of gasoline or heating oil in the event of a shortage, shortening the time it would otherwise take to refine the petroleum before it can be shipped.

The White House also had threatened a Senate-passed provision to expand the size of the reserve to 1 billion barrels. Instead, the conference negotiators agreed to language authorizing such an enlargement after 1996, when the reserve's existing capacity of 750 million barrels is expected to be reached.

The reserve now holds about 590 million barrels of crude oil, stored in salt caverns on the Gulf Coast of Louisiana and Texas.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 12) UPI - A state appeals court judge late Wednesday rejected a request by one of the Central Park jogger rapists that he be set free on bail.

State Appellate Division Justice Sidney Asch rejected Yusef Salaam's request that he be granted bail, meaning he will remain incarcerated in the Spofford Juvenile Center in the Bronx.

Salaam, Antron McCray and Raymond Santana - all 16 - were sentenced Wednesday to a maximum term of five to 10 years for the brutal assault and rape of the Central Park jogger.

The youths were tried as adults, but were sentenced as juveniles because they were under 16 at the time of their arrest.

A jury last month convicted the trio of rape, riot, robbery and assault in the April 19, 1989, attack on the 30-year-old Wall Street banker and two male joggers.

They were part of a gang of as many as 30 youths who went ''wilding'' in the park, randomly throttling and robbing anyone who crossed their path. They converged upon nine victims, including the petite woman jogger who was brutally beaten and left for dead in a muddy gully.

State Supreme Court Justice Thomas Galligan had rejected the defense argument that he should be merciful to the teens because of their young ages.

''Is it less egregious that a woman has her head bashed with pipes and bricks by a 15-year-old rather than a 30-year-old?'' the judge asked rhetorically.

Before the judge spoke, he listened to a statement from each of the youths, including a rap poem read by Salaam. The youth said he was a victim of white oppression, comparing himself to Nelson Mandela and the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr.

''I think my debt to society has been paid. This is the price for being a black man,'' Salaam told the judge.

The other two youths thanked their families for supporting them.

LOS ANGELES (SEPT. 12) UPI - Although minorities and the poor represent the fastest growing segment in the nation's increasingly high-tech workforce, they are being shortchanged in mathematics and sciences education, a study released Wednesday said.

The study by the RAND Corp., a think tank, identified two key factors thwarting the education of minorities and low-income students in those areas: their relegation by the education system to low-ability courses and low-quality teaching and facilities in the schools those students attend.

Without a change in academic policy and a more equitable distribution of resources, such learning obstructions are likely to contribute to a future workforce incapable of meeting the nation's technological demands, the study, titled ''Multiplying Inequalities,'' concluded.

The study was based on a 1986 National Science Foundation survey of 1,200 public and private schools and more than 6,000 of their teachers.

It found that minority and low-income students are placed in low- ability math and science courses at disproportionately high numbers compared to white middle- and upper-middle class students.

Such placements, known as academic tracking, often occur at secondary and elementary school levels and are meant to respond to students' aptitude and achievements. But the report found that by tracking their academic courses, ''schools actually limit some students' opportunities to learn.''

''Groupings (of children by ability levels) are easily and commonly confounded with race and social class,'' the study said.

Moreover, it found that students placed on low-ability tracks have difficulty excelling to higher tracks for a number of reasons, one being that teachers tend to ''limit'' their instruction, rather than ''fine- tune it in ways to accommodate differences in ability and educational experience.''

Of elementary schools in the survey - at those where minorities comprised 90 percent to 100 percent of the student body - low-ability classes accounted for 28 percent of science and math courses. At predominantly white elementary schools, only seven percent of the classes were low-ability, or slow track, the study said.

From seventh to 12th grade, where most classes are tracked, advanced courses make up 12 percent of the science and math classes at minority schools, but comprise 34 percent of those courses at predominantly white schools.

Minority and low-income students are also less likely to have well- qualified teachers in math and science than their wealthier, white counterparts - another factor contributing to a lack of achievement in those areas, the study found.

Generally, schools place their best qualified teachers in fast-track courses, and their least qualified in low-ability courses, where students also have less access to science equipment and laboratories, computers and material which could make their learning exprience more stimulating, the report said.

The study found that slow-track teachers place less emphassis on problem-solving skills and developing students' interests in math and sciences.

''Although schools may think that they (should) ration good teaching to those students who can most profit from it, we find no empirical evidence to justify unequal access to valued science and mathematics curriculum, instruction and teachers,'' the report said.

''While not all students have the interests or aptitude to become scientists and mathematicians, the disparities for African-American and Hispanic minorities and the poor are so great that considerable science and mathematics talent is undoubtedly being lost from these groups,'' it said.

LONDON (SEPT. 12) UPI - About 450 foreigners, including at least 286 Americans and 68 Britons, reached freedom in London Wednesday from six weeks as hostages of Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

The U.S.-U.K. chartered Iraqi Airways flight with mostly women and children aboard arrived at Gatwick Airport, southwest of London, shortly before 11:30 p.m.

The passengers looked tired and drained at the end of a journey that took them from Kuwait to Baghdad, where they picked up exit visas allowing them to leave Iraq.

The Americans were taken to hotels where they will spend the night before flying to North Carolina Thursday, a U.S. Embassy spokeswoman said.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Richard Boucher said at least 286

Americans, mostly women and children, were among the approximately 450 people who left Kuwait.

A Foreign Office spokesman said although British diplomats had made provisions for 100 Britons, only 68 boarded the flight.

Canadians and a small number of French also were believed to have been aboard but details were not immediately available.

Before the flight left Baghdad, some British women told Independent Television News they had been reluctant to leave Kuwait but were forced to because of worsening conditions and lack of medical supplies.

''I didn't want to go actually, if it was up to me I'd stay there. But I've got children, and things are getting worse,'' one woman told ITN.

Another woman said her trip from Kuwait to Baghdad was the first time she had come out of hiding since Iraq invaded Kuwait Aug. 2 in a land and oil dispute.

''I've been hiding. I didn't see daylight for six weeks. I was scared to go out,'' she said.

The Americans planned to spend the night in London before boarding a chartered Northwest Airlines flight bound for Raleigh, North Carolina, Thursday, the U.S. spokeswoman said.

The U.S. State Department said Tuesday Iraq had agreed to ease restrictions slightly on American hostages by permitting Arab-born male U.S. citizens to leave occupied Kuwait with American women and children.

The United States has arranged another charter for Friday, which would bring to five the number of American evacuation flights since Sept. 7.

About 1,400 Americans remain trapped in Kuwait, according to updated U.S. figures. There was no breakdown of how many are women, children, men born in the United States or men born in Arab countries.

Another 200 Americans, including diplomats, are in Iraq, double the previous estimate, Boucher said. The increase from earlier figures was apparently due to the fact that some Americans, afraid to contact the U.S. Embassy earlier, were now doing so as the situation grows more desperate.

The State Department believes ''about 80'' Americans have been detained by the Iraqi authorities in Iraq, and Americans in Kuwait have reported increased harassment from Iraqi authorities.

About 600 Americans were evacuated from Iraq and Kuwait prior to Wednesday.

The British Foreign Office said it had no accurate estimate of the number of Britons remaining in Iraq and Kuwait. A spokesman said an updated figure would be released, possibly by Friday.

Scientists are planning to study one of the most contaminated spots on Earth- the Rocky Mountain Arsenal in Colorado... home of bald eagles, deer and other wildlife. The Army and several other agencies say they want to see what happens to the animals as a clean-up of the area continues. Deadly pesticides, nerve gas and mustard gas were made at the arsenal bordering the northeast corner of Denver. But the arsenal remains home to 143 animal species.

MURRAY HILL, NJ (SEPT. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - C.R. Bard, Inc. (NYSE:BCR) said today that it has entered into an agreement to sell its Shield Healthcare Centers subsidiaries to a United States subsidiary of Kobayashi Pharmaceutical Company.

Shield Healthcare Centers, located primarily in California, sell medical supplies and equipment for patient care at home.

The Shield subsidiaries had combined sales in 1989 of approximately $30 million. George T. Maloney, Bard's President and Chief Executive Officer, indicated that Bard had been reviewing the strategic fit of Shield for several years, and decided last year to look for a buyer. ''The sale of Shield, which distributes primarily non-Bard products, will improve our focus on developing products in cardiology, urology and surgery -- our core business,'' he said.

Terms of the transaction were not disclosed but Bard reported it will realize a one-time after tax gain of several million dollars.

The exact gain will be determined in the fourth quarter after an independent audit as of September 30, 1990 is completed. Cash proceeds from the sale will be used to reduce Bard's short-term debt. Kobayashi Pharmaceutical Company, headquartered in Osaka, Japan, is a privately-held manufacturer and distributor of household and medical products. The acquisition will be made by Kobayashi Enterprises Inc., a Delaware corporation.

C.R. Bard, Inc., headquartered in Murray Hill, is a leading multi-national developer, manufacturer and marketer of health care products.

SCOTTS VALLEY, CA (SEPT. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Borland International Inc. (NASDAQ:BORL) has announced an agreement with Prentice Hall, part of the Simon & Schuster Higher Education Group, to develop special course and education materials for college instructors teaching the latest relational database techniques.

The new tutorial and applications material will be developed around Paradox 3.0, Borland's award-winning relational database management software. Paradox's combination of powerful features and intuitive, easy-to-use interface makes it ideally suited for teaching PC database management techniques to first-time and advanced users.

This agreement is part of an effort by both companies to prepare college students for career advancement in a professional workforce that increasingly relies upon computer-based information.

''Borland makes state-of-the-art database software, and Prentice Hall is the leading textbook publisher. By teaming together, we will bring the power of Paradox to higher education in a form that's accessible to users at every level of the curriculum.''

As part of the agreement, Prentice Hall will publish textbooks addressing three different skill levels: an introductory text designed for beginning microcomputer students, a comprehensive text for semester-long courses on relational database management techniques, and an advanced Paradox tutorial/casebook for upper-division courses on database management theory and practice.

Borland will provide Prentice Hall with the Paradox Academic Version, to be distributed to instructors adopting the Prentice Hall texts. Borland will also provide coupons that enable students to purchase the Academic Version of Paradox at a special price.

Simon and Schuster, the publishing arm of Paramount Communications Inc., is engaged in consumer, educational and professional information publishing worldwide.

Borland International Inc. is a leading developer of high-performance software products. Borland offers some of the world's most widely used business applications and software development tools, such as Paradox, Quattro Pro, Sidekick, Turbo Pascal, Turbo C, Turbo C++ and Turbo Debugger & Tools.

DENVER (SEPT. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Aspen Exploration has announced significant progress on a placer gold operation and two lode gold projects in Alaska.

Cambior Alaska, operator of the Valdez Creek placer gold operations in central Alaska, has commenced the resumption of mining activities, which will be continued throughout the winter. Aspen has a block of 50 mining claims leased to the Cambior group, with the claims covering a substantial part of the main gold-bearing channels upstream from the present mine location.

R.V. Bailey, president of Aspen, stated that gold resources on Aspen's claims are estimated at more than 300,000 ounces.

Resumption of mining was delayed in 1990 until permits were obtained for the diversion of Valdez Creek, a stream equivalent in size to many Rocky Mountain area rivers. A new and improved system to recover gold from the gravels will be installed, with operating costs expected to be $265 per ounce.

Mining is expected to commence in 1990 on non-Aspen claims and, in 1991, will proceed onto claims in which Aspen holds a royalty interest. Approximately 80,000 ounces of gold are expected to be produced in 1991. Aspen currently holds in inventory 628 raw ounces of placer gold which was paid as a royalty from Valdez Creek operations during 1989.

In Alaska's Seward Peninsula near Nome, Tenneco Minerals has made significant exploration progress in two projects, Anvil Creek and Rock Creek, in which Aspen is a joint venture partner. Tenneco's field crew, headed by project geologist Ted Eggleston, commenced work on the two projects in June 1990, and has taken approximately 6,000 soil geochem samples on 400 line miles of grid covering 17 square miles.

A number of high gold and arsenic anomalies have been found and follow-up trenching and drilling is being carried out, with some outstanding early results. Trench T-90-7, a new discovery in the Anvil Creek area, encountered a mineralized zone 110 feet wide which contained 0.13 ounces gold per ton.

At a separate locality, trench T-90-15 contained three mineralized intervals, including 30 feet of .16 opt and 10 feet of .26 opt. Trench T-90-24 contained a zone with 35 feet of .12 opt gold.

Aspen management regards these discoveries as extremely encouraging and looks forward with anticipation to the results of additional trenching and drilling which is currently underway. Aspen's interest, which varies from about 9 percent to 27 percent depending on which property is involved, is carried to a production decision.

Aspen also recently announced two additional joint ventures with Great Basin Exploration and Mining for projects in the Nome area.

Aspen Exploration is involved in gold, oil and gas exploration and development and is traded on NASDAQ under the symbol ASPN.

SALT LAKE CITY (SEPT. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - One of the largest pipeline construction projects undertaken in Utah in recent years has been completed, creating a link that will improve the movement of natural gas to customers in Utah and the nation.

The new $22 million, 81-mile, 20-inch pipeline joins two transmission systems of Questar Pipeline Co., a subsidiary of Questar Corp. (NYSE:STR)

Questar Pipeline's northern transmission system runs from Craig, Colo., through Rock Springs, Wyo., to Utah's Wasatch Front. The company's southern transmission system starts west of Rifle, Colo., and runs south of Vernal, Utah, through Price to Payson, Utah.

The recently completed pipeline, designated Main Line 80, runs from Fidlar compressor station south of Vernal to the Kastler compressor station near the Utah-Wyoming border south of Rock Springs. Capacity on the line is about 86 million cubic feet of gas per day.

According to Questar Pipeline President A.J. Marushack, the new line ''provides increased flexibility'' to Questar Pipeline in meeting the needs of its sales-for-resale customer, Mountain Fuel Supply Co.

Mountain Fuel, also a Questar Corp. affiliate, is a retail natural gas distribution company serving nearly 490,000 customers in Utah and southwestern Wyoming.

The pipeline also offers current and potential transportation customers a competitively priced transportation option, Marushack said.

''We continue to look for ways to facilitate the interstate movement of natural gas,'' Marushack said. ''Main Line 80 enhances our role as an interstate transportation pipeline company.''

Planning for the pipeline began more than three years ago. Federal Energy Regulatory Commission approval was granted in December 1989. Most construction on the pipeline began in June; however, crossing of croplands east of Vernal was completed in February to avoid the planting season. Contractor for the pipeline was Gregory Cook Inc., Houston, Texas.

The project was completed ahead of schedule and included a major pipeline river bore. Contractors drilled horizontally under the Green River near Jensen, Utah, and pulled a pre-welded 1,000-foot section of the 20-inch diameter pipe beneath the riverbed. The boring was undertaken in part to minimize disruption of the river's fisheries. Questar Pipeline was commended throughout the project for its attention to environmental impacts and received an award from the American Fisheries Society for its efforts.

RIVERSIDE, CALIF. (SEPT. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Rastra Building Systems Inc. (NASDAQ:RAST) and McDonald's Restaurants have jointly announced construction of the first McDonald's facility in the United States to be built using the patented Rastra recycled polystyrene/cement building system.

The Rastra material, developed in Austria in 1968 and currently being manufactured in eight countries around the world, will be used for construction of the exterior wall sections of a new, company-owned McDonald's restaurant in Tempe, Ariz., and will actually utilize, or recycle, some of McDonald's own foam/polystyrene packaging.

The Rastra process grinds the foam polystyrene into small beads, coats the beads with a cementious ''skin,'' and then forms the coated beads into a long cinder-block-like construction element. An average Rastra element can measure 16 inches x 14 inches x 10 feet, depending on application. Ordinary portland cement is poured into open cavities in the Rastra Building System.

The result is an exceptionally strong, fire-resistant wall or ceiling material that also provides high insulation value and excellent soundproofing.

''The 5,000-square-foot restaurant is part of McDonald's McRecycle USA program announced last April,'' reports Sue Parkes, regional marketing manager of McDonald's Corp., Phoenix. ''The use of the Rastra material further demonstrates McDonald's commitment to recycling and the use of recycled materials.''

Parkes also pointed out that, annually, in excess of 600 new McDonald's are built worldwide and 1,800 are remodeled. The McRecycle USA program will spend $100 million domestically on recycled products.

Negotiations continue for the use of the Rastra Building System in other planned McDonald's locations and will be announced when completed.

FULLERTON, CA (SEPT. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Genatron Inc., an OTC Pink Sheet company, announced that it has taken control of a 60 percent interest in Clean Air Resins Inc., an established business in Santa Ana, through a tax-deferred stock exchange for 10 percent of its outstanding, but not yet issued, authorized treasury stock.

Additionally, Genatron released to Clean Air the first funds as committed in an on-going line of credit, which are supported by a corporate note and secured by way of a UCC-1 blanketing the Clean Air assets.

With a proprietary process, Clean Air is manufacturing one-component water-based linear polyurethane resins for: high-quality clear and pigmented paints; primers; foams; chaulkings; roof, deck and waterproofing coatings; and others. All exceed Environmental Protection Agency regulations and are non-toxic and non-volatile.

As stated by Michael Marzicola, president, Genatron: ''Business and industry are in extreme need for these types of products to comply with air, health and safety standards. These needs will translate into excellent returns for both entities.

''Clean Air and Genatron are preparing to immediately market products not only domestically where large orders and distributorships are already being negotiated, but also to foreign prospects sharing similar ecological and safety concerns.''

LOS ANGELES (SEPT. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Lawrence M. Higby, president of the Los Angeles Times Orange County Edition and a vice president of The Times, and William A. Niese, vice president and general counsel for the newspaper, have been promoted to senior vice presidents, David Laventhol, publisher and chief executive officer, announced Thursday.

''These changes are part of our ongoing strengthening of Times management's organizational structure,'' Laventhol said.

As senior vice president, consumer marketing, Higby will have responsibility for circulation, promotion and cable marketing programs at The Times, as well as marketing operations at the newspaper's daily Orange County, San Fernando Valley, Ventura and San Diego regional editions. He continues in his position of president of the Orange County Edition. He reports to the executive vice president, marketing.

As senior vice president, law and human resources, Niese will oversee The Times' employee relations and legal departments. He reports to Laventhol.

Higby, 45, came to The Times in 1989 from Times Mirror Cable Television, where he was senior vice president of marketing, programming and sales. He has also served as president of America's Pharmacy; senior vice president, marketing and sales for Taco Bell and vice president of marketing for Pepsi-Cola USA, both divisions of PepsiCo Inc.

He worked in the White House during Richard M. Nixon's administration as deputy assistant to the President. Higby holds a bachelor's degree in political science from the University of California at Los Angeles, where he also attended the graduate school of business administration.

He resides in Tustin, Calif., with his wife, Dee, and their four children.

Niese, 54, has been vice president and general counsel of The Times since 1985. He joined Times Mirror, The Times' parent company, in 1966 as an attorney, subsequently serving as assistant secretary for the company and assistant general counsel before being named associate general counsel in 1982. Prior to joining Times Mirror, he practiced law in Phoenix.

Niese received a bachelor of science degree in industrial and labor relations from Cornell University and graduated cum laude from the State University of New York at Buffalo School of Law.

Niese and his wife, Ann, reside in Diamond Bar and have three children.

WALNUT CREEK, CA (SEPT. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Integral Systems Inc., a leading human resource management and and financial applications software company based in Walnut Creek, Thursday announced that it had filed a lawsuit in federal court in San Francisco against PeopleSoft Inc., a private Walnut Creek-based developer of payroll and personnel applications software, and against David Duffield, PeopleSoft's chief executive officer, and Albert Duffield, a former Integral officer who recently joined PeopleSoft in an executive capacity.

The complaint alleges that PeopleSoft's product infringes Integral's copyrights and was developed through illegal copying and use of copyrighted and proprietary material belonging to Integral. In addition, the complaint alleges that PeopleSoft has misappropriated valuable trade secrets belonging to Integral.

Brian M. Aspland, Integral's president and chief executive officer, said, ''We have never favored litigation, but the company has a responsibility to its shareholders, employees and customers to prevent unauthorized use of our proprietary software and other materials, which have been developed and are maintained at great expense.

''We believe that PeopleSoft's products were developed with access to and reliance on Integral's proprietary applications, and that the structure, sequence and organization of PeopleSoft's products are substantially similar to Integral's products and infringe our copyrights.''

In the lawsuit, Integral is seeking both an injunction preventing PeopleSoft from continuing to infringe Integral's copyrights and from using in any manner Integral's trade secrets and proprietary information, and an award of monetary damages.

Integral designs, develops and markets human resources and financial management applications for IBM systems users. The company is committed to leading the industry in delivering enterprise-wide, SAA-compliant computing solutions that satisfy the core business management requirements of medium to large organizations. Recognized as one of the most successful IBM Application

Enabling Business Partners, Integral earned IBM's Outstanding Achievement Award for sales of its DB2 products.

LAKEWOOD, CO (SEPT. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Capital Associates Inc., a major financial services and asset management company, announced Thursday that it is reporting a $16.8 million loss ($1.88 per share) on revenues of $151.4 million for the fiscal year ended May 31, 1990.

This compares to $8.6 million of net income (91 cents per share) on revenues of $138.2 million for the fiscal year ended May 31, 1989. For the fiscal fourth quarter ended May 31, 1990, the company reported a loss of $16.4 million ($1.82 per share) on revenues of $31.2 million.

This compares to the fiscal fourth quarter ended May 31, 1989, when the company reported net income of $2.5 million (26 cents per share) on revenue of $40.8 million.

The fiscal year 1990 loss is principally related to a $22.1 million provision for losses recorded in the fourth quarter statement of operations. Aftertax, this charge is approximately $14 million. The pretax charge includes a provision of approximately $13 million related to assets under lease.

This provision was established primarily where management believes the lessee does not have the ability to make scheduled lease payments. These lessees are experiencing a significant weakening in their financial condition.

The provision for losses also includes a provision of approximately $8 million to write down the value of retained residual interests and assets held for either sale or lease. These assets are principally computer equipment.

The remainder of the pretax provision, approximately $1 million, primarily represents a loss on sale of a portion of the net assets of the company's Leastec subsidiary.

The company's operations in the fourth fiscal quarter ended May 31, 1990, before consideration of the loss provision resulted in a pretax loss of approximately $7 million. This loss is principally attributable to two causes.

The first is a delay in the expected late May 1990 closing of a major transaction to early June 1990, causing revenues to be deferred into the first fiscal quarter of 1991. The second principal cause is non-recurring general and administrative expenses related to the completion of the company's internal organizational plans.

The company amended its operating results for the first, second and third fiscal quarters of 1990 (ending Aug. 31, 1989; Nov. 30, 1989; and Feb. 28, 1990, respectively). In total, the effects of the adjustments on pretax income, net income and earnings per share are a reduction of $2.8 million; $1.7 million; and 19 cents, respectively.

The adjustments were made principally to correct errors made in the accumulation of information related to equipment sale transactions.

Capital Associates Inc. has arranged approximately $2 billion of asset financing. The company provides its predominantly Fortune 1000 customers with innovative and customized solutions for their equipment financing needs. Capital Associates is headquartered in the greater Denver area and maintains 20 offices nationwide and in Japan.

EMERYVILLE, CA (SEPT. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Cetus Corp. (NASDAQ:CTUS) Thursday announced the appointment of new corporate officers.

William G. Gerber, M.D., was promoted to senior vice president, PCR division. Frank McCormick, Ph.D., was promoted to vice president, research, and Shing Chang, Ph.D., was named vice president, preclinical development. The three officers also have been appointed to the company's operating committee.

Gerber, 44, is responsible for Cetus' PCR division, a business unit focused on the commercialization of the company's innovative GeneAmp polymerase chain reaction (PCR) technology. He joined Cetus in 1987 as senior director, corporate ventures.

Previously, he served as director of marketing and sales for Intelligent Medicine, a Colorado medical device company, and prior to that he was medical director in the health services division of Humana.

McCormick, 40, has served as senior scientist and director of Cetus' department of molecular biology. Widely recognized as a leader in oncogene research, McCormick's most recent publications have focused on the activities of ras proteins.

McCormick has led Cetus' oncogene program for six years and also has guided the company's mammalian gene expression work. He joined Cetus in 1981 after conducting postdoctoral work at Imperial Cancer Research Fund, London.

Chang, 45, an expert in gene cloning and expression, joined Cetus in 1978 after his postdoctoral work at Stanford University and the University of Wisconsin. He most recently headed the research division and will now have responsibility for Cetus' development, pharmacology and toxicology organizations.

HOUSTON (SEPT. 13) BUISNESS WIRE - Santa Fe Energy Resources Inc. announced Thursday that its board of directors has declared a contingent dividend distribution of preferred stock purchase rights payable to holders of record as of the close of business on Nov. 30, 1990.

Effectiveness of the dividend rights is subject to the distribution of all of the shares of common stock of the company held by Santa Fe Pacific Corp. to its stockholders (the ''spin-off condition''). The dividend rights will be effective on the later of Nov. 30, 1990, and the date on which the spin-off condition is satisfied, but not later than Jan. 29, 1991.

If the spinoff condition is not satisfied by Jan. 29, 1991, the board of directors presently intends to adjust the record date and payment date so that the dividend distribution may be effective as promptly as practicable after the spin-off. The dividend will be distributed at the rate of one right for each common share.

The rights plan is designed to deter coercive takeover tactics and to prevent an acquiror from gaining control of the company without offering a fair price to all of the company's stockholders. The rights will expire one year from the date the spin-off condition is satisfied, but not earlier than Nov. 30, 1991.

James L. Payne, president of Santa Fe Energy, said the rights plan is intended to protect the interests of the company's stockholders in the event the company is confronted with coercive or unfair takeover tactics.

He noted that such tactics include ''a partial or two-tiered tender offer that does not treat all stockholders equally, the acquisition in the open market or otherwise of shares constituting control without offering fair value to all stockholders, or other coercive or unfair takeover tactics which are common in today's takeover environment and which the board of directors believes are not in the best interest of the company's stockholders.''

Payne stressed, however, that the plan ''is not intended to prevent an acquisition of the company on terms that are favorable and fair to all stockholders, and will not do so. The plan is designed to deal with the very serious problem of unilateral actions by hostile acquirors which are calculated to deprive the company's board of directors and its stockholders of their ability to determine the destiny of the company.''

Each right will entitle stockholders, in certain circumstances, to buy one one-hundredth of a share of newly issued junior participating preferred stock of the company at an exercise price of $40. The rights will be exercisable only if a person or group (1) acquires beneficial ownership of 20 percent or more of the company's common stock (an ''acquiring person''), other than pursuant to a ''qualifying offer,'' or (2) commences a tender or exchange offer upon consummation of which such person or group would be an acquiring person.

If any person becomes the beneficial owner of 20 percent or more of the company's common stock, each right not owned by such person or certain related parties will entitle its holder to purchase, at the right's then current exercise price, shares of the company's common stock (or, in certain circumstances as determined by the board, cash, other property or other securities) having a value of twice the Right's exercise price.

However, the rights will not become exercisable if common stock is acquired pursuant to a ''qualifying offer.'' Generally, a ''qualifying offer'' is an all cash tender offer for all shares, pursuant to which the acquiror has received written commitments for the full amount of financing necessary to consummate such tender offer, and the acquiror owns more than 80 percent of the common stock after such tender offer and agrees to effect an all cash merger, on the same terms of such tender offer, for the remaining outstanding shares of common stock.

In addition, if, after a person becomes an acquiring person, the company is involved in a merger or other business combination transaction with another person in which it is not the surviving corporation or in which it is the surviving corporation but its common stock is changed or converted, or if the company then sells 50 percent or more of its assets, cash flow or earning power to another person, each right will entitle its holder to purchase, at the right's then current exercise price, shares of common stock of such other person having a value of twice the right's exercise price.

The company will generally be entitled to redeem the rights at 1 cent per right at any time until the tenth business day (subject to extension) following public announcement that a person has become the beneficial owner of 20 percent or more of the company's common stock.

GARDEN GROVE, CA (SEPT. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Dense-Pac Microsystems Inc. (NASDAQ:DPAC) has received an order for design improvements and manufacture of 2,500 hand-held, forward-looking infrared scanners from GTS Enterprises, a California-based marketing firm specializing in the law-enforcement field.

The contract, which exceeds $450,000, began contributing to revenues in August 1990. The compact high-tech, hand-held units are perfectly suited to Dense-Pac's high-density design and manufacturing capabilities and further orders are expected before year end.

The product is expected to be widely used in law enforcement and perimeter security, as well as search-and-rescue applications.

According to James G. Turner, chairman of Dense-Pac, this project represents a good growth opportunity that is consistent with the company's strategy of diversifiying into non-D.O.D. niche market areas that utilize the company's strengths.

Dense-Pac designs and manufactures a full range of digital and memory surface mount components and subsystems utilizing the latest CMOS technology. Proprietary packaging technology gives the company a range of products that achieve the highest speeds with the greatest savings of space, weight and cost for its customers.

MONROVIA, CA. (SEPT. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - World Vision, the Christian international relief and development agency, has expanded its commitment to Persian Gulf refugees from $25,000 to $65,000, including an airlift scheduled to fly emergency supplies to Jordan at midnight Thursday.

In addition to the initial $25,000 for food, water and supplies for refugees in the Jordanian capital of Amman, World Vision is providing another $15,000 for similar aid, including tents, blankets and mattresses.

World Vision's initial $25,000 commitment provided more than 400 tents, among other relief items, to refugees from Iraq and Kuwait -- primarily peoples from Yemen, the Philippines, Bangladesh, Pakistan, India and Sri Lanka, said World Vision President Robert A. Seiple.

On top of these programs, an airlift of $25,000 in World Vision relief supplies was scheduled to leave Bradley International Airport in Hartford, Conn., at midnight Thursday. Among the supplies are aluminum cookware sets, tarps, water purification tablets, water containers and blankets.

World Vision is a Christian humanitarian agency working in 89 countries with nearly 5,500 projects that assist some 17 million people. Donors may send contributions for the Middle East refugees to World Vision, Box O, Pasadena, CA 91109-9949, or call 800/423-4200.

LONDON (SEPT. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Sept. 13, The RTZ Corporation (NYSE:RTZ), headquartered in London, Thursday announced that its net attributable profit on ordinary activities in the first half of 1990 was 269 million pounds sterling, 4 percent lower than the record first half of 279 million pounds sterling in 1989.

The interim dividend has been increased to 6.0 pence per share (1989: 5.0 pence per share).

The principal items in the unaudited profit and loss account for the six months to June 30 are:

	1990	1989	Change
Group Turnover	2,657m	3,277m	-19%
Group Profit Before Tax	475m	617m	-23%
Net Attributable Profit	269m	279m	- 4%
Earnings Per Share	27.3p	31.7p	-14%
Interim Dividend (Net)	6.0p	5.0p	+20%

Note: All amounts are pounds sterling, except EPS and interim dividend.

Group sales revenue at 2,657 million pounds sterling in the first half of 1990 was 620 million pounds sterling lower, of which 441 million pounds sterling related to businesses sold in the second half of last year. The sales revenue of continuing businesses decreased by 6 percent reflecting principally lower base metal prices, particularly for aluminum and copper.

Profit before tax at 475 million pounds sterling was closely in line with the second half 1989 figure but below the 617 million pounds sterling in the first half. As usual several offsetting factors were involved, although a 126 million pounds sterling reduction in the contribution from aluminum, copper and gold, largely due to the lower aluminum and copper prices, was the most significant item.

Earnings per share were 14 percent lower at 27.3 pence due to the larger number of shares in issue following the July 1989 rights issue.

The interim dividend is being increased to 6.0 pence (1989:5.0 pence). However, the percentage increase is not to be taken as an indication for the year as a whole. The board wishes to improve the balance between the interim and final dividends.

LAS VEGAS (SEPT. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Sept. 13, MarCor Resorts, Inc. (NASDAQ: MAAR) today announced that the Nevada Gaming Control Board has recommended approval of the company's exchange of limited partnership interests in the Rio Suite Hotel & Casino.

The decision is subject to final approval from the Nevada Gaming Commission, which is scheduled to consider the matter at the end of the month.

On June 1, MarCor offered to exchange equity in MarCor for limited partnership interests in MarCor Resorts, L.P. V, the limited partnership which owns and operates the Rio Suite Hotel & Casino in Las Vegas, and owns 125 acres in nearby Henderson, Nev.

The company accepted tenders from limited partnership interests valued at approximately $36 million, which will increase MarCor's ownership in the Rio partnership to more than 95 percent, from its present level of 34.9 percent.

MarCor stockholders approved the proposal at the company's annual meeting of stockholders on Sept. 10.

MarCor Resorts, Inc. through a wholly-owned subsidiary, is the principal owner and operator of the first all-suite hotel/casino in the country, the Rio Suite Hotel & Casino, located in Las Vegas.

MarCor and controlled entities own 165 acres in the greater Las Vegas areas zoned for the development of future gaming resorts and ancillary uses.

BELLEVUE, WASH. (SEPT. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - First Mutual Savings Bank (NASDAQ:FMSB) announced Thursday it will take an after-tax write down resulting from a change in accounting treatment that will be recorded as a $1,174,284 charge against earnings in the third quarter ending Sept. 30.

The bank said its net worth ratio will be approximately 7%, which is above the FDIC regulatory minimum of 6%.

''This accounting change will have the effect of stating our deferred servicing rights more conservatively and will actually increase earnings in future years,'' said Bruce F. Baker, president.

On July 25, First Mutual announced that it had determined to make a change in the method of applying an accounting principle for valuing the bank's deferred servicing rights for loans serviced by the bank for others. The method First Mutual had been using in applying this accounting principle is one that has been used for many years by the thrift industry.

The bank also announced in July that recent purchases by its Employee Stock Ownership Plan (ESOP) of 10.1% of First Mutual's outstanding common stock would reduce capital. First Mutual lent its ESOP $1.5 million and the ESOP purchased 139,600 shares of First Mutual's outstanding common stock. For reporting purposes, the ESOP purchases do not impact First Mutual's earnings; however, the bank's balance sheet does reflect the dollar amount of shares purchased by its ESOP since the purchase amount is charged directly against shareholder's equity in the quarter the purchases are made. The ESOP purchased $686,000 worth of stock in the second quarter of 1990 and $778,000 worth of stock in the third quarter of 1990.

Headquartered in Bellevue, First Mutual Savings Bank operates five full service branches in the Seattle metropolitan area known as the ''Greater Eastside.'' First Mutual's shareholder equity at June 30, 1990, was $14.6 million, book value was $10.47 per share, and the bank had total assets of $178.1 million.

VENTURA, CALIF. (SEPT. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Benton Oil and Gas Co. (OTC:BNTN) Thursday announced two new discoveries.

A new field has been discovered on its Chateau Prospect, located in Sacramento County in the southern Sacramento Basin. A new pool discovery has been made on its Montebello prospect, located near the city of Montebello on the northeast side of the prolific Los Angeles Basin.

The new field discovery well, the Benton Herzog 2-1, was drilled to a total depth of 8,400 feet and was completion-tested in the Upper Cretaceous Winters Formation. Perforations from 7,814 feet to 7,819 feet (of an estimated 34-foot pay zone) flowed at a stabilized rate of 870,000 cubic feet of gas per day, dry, on an 8/64-inch choke with a flowing tubing pressure of 2,900 pounds per square inch.

Very little drawdown pressure was experienced during this 48-hour test indicating a highly permeable and prolific reservoir. Calculated absolute open flow exceeds 100 million cubic feet per day. Winters reservoirs in the area are commonly produced at rates exceeding 5 million cubic feet per day. Benton Oil and Gas operates the well on this approximately 1,760-acre prospect.

The new pool discovery well, the Benton Montebello 2-6 Redrill, was drilled to a total depth of 9,550 feet. The well was completed flowing through 120 feet of perforations in the Upper Miocene Yorba formation. Thirty-five API gravity oil flowed at the rate of 140 barrels of oil per day with approximately 65,000 cubic feet of gas per day on a 24/64 choke with a flowing tubing pressure of 150 pounds per square inch.

Oil and gas flow rates and pressures were continuing to improve when the test was terminated.

Numerous other shows were encountered in the well but not tested. These shows indicate potential zones which may offer promise for future development. Benton and its partners control approximately 200 acres on this prospect and geologic mapping indicates that numerous wells can be drilled updip to this significant new pool discovery. Trio Petroleum is the operator of this well.

Benton Oil and Gas, based in Ventura, is an independent oil and gas exploration and production company with operations in California, Colorado, Oklahoma, Texas and Louisiana.

SANTA CLARA, CA (SEPT. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Inmac Corp. (NASDAQ:INMC), the world's leading direct response marketer of computer aftermarket data communications equipment and computer accessory products, Thursday announced net sales of $288,422,000, up 15.6 percent, for the year ended July 28 and net income of $3,562,000, or 38 cents per share.

This compares with net sales of $249,515,000 and a net loss of $6,414,000, or 69 cents per share, last year. Last year's figures included a $12,251,000 pre-tax charge for restructuring of operations and other non-recurring items.

For the fourth quarter ended July 28, Inmac recorded net sales of $71,283,000, up 19.3 percent, and net income of $766,000, or 8 cents per share. This compares to net sales of $59,758,000 and a net loss of $9,179,000, or 99 cents per share, for last year's comparable quarter.

The company disclosed in recent news releases that the fourth quarter of fiscal 1990 included pre-tax charges totaling $1,051,000 for the downsizing of its U.S. manufacturing operation and restructuring of its corporate overhead functions.

Inmac Corp. markets its products directly to microcomputer and minicomputer users in nine countries through its full color catalogs. The company offers over 4,000 items, substantially all of which carry the Inmac brand name.

WEST PATERSON, NJ (SEPT. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Prospect Park Financial Corporation (NASDAQ:PPSA), the parent company of Prospect Park Savings Bank, Thursday reported a net loss of $69,000, or $0.02 per share, for the first quarter of fiscal 1991, ended July 31, 1990. The recent results compared with net income of $1.1 million, or $0.39 per share, for the first three months of last fiscal year.

Prospect Park's net interest income was $3.4 million in the fiscal 1991 first quarter, compared with $4.4 million (after loan loss provision) in the same period of last year. This decrease was primarily related to the higher level of non-performing assets compared with the year-ago quarter.

Total other income was $736,000 in the recent three month period, versus $1.2 million in the year-ago first quarter. The decrease was mainly attributable to lower gains on sales of loans and securities, which amounted to $167,000 in the fiscal 1991 first quarter, compared with $724,000 in the same period of last year. This was partially offset by improvement in losses from real estate operations, which declined to $2,000 in the recent quarter from a $74,000 loss in the same fiscal 1990 period.

Operating expenses totaled $4.2 million and $3.8 million for the quarters ended July 31, 1990 and 1989, respectively. The increase was primarily related to an additional branch opened in March 1990, employee severance expense, and costs associated with non-performing loans and real estate owned. However, Mr. Frignoca noted that an aggressive cost cutting program, including decreases in executive compensation, reductions in staff positions, more economical health care benefits and other measures, is expected to sharply reduce expenses in future quarters.

The deposits of Prospect Park Savings Bank increased by 3.9% during the first quarter of fiscal 1991, to total $504.6 million. Loans receivable were $402.0 million at the end of the recent quarter, compared with $413.4 million at April 30, 1990. Total assets rose nominally to $545.5 million at July 31, 1990, from $543.8 million three months earlier.

Prospect Park Financial Corporation is the holding company for Prospect Park Savings Bank, SLA. The Bank, founded in 1926, operates eight full-service branches in Northern New Jersey. Its deposits are insured to the full extent of the law by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC).

SAN DIEGO, CA (SEPT. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Alliance Pharmaceutical Corp. and Dana-Farber Cancer Institute Inc. announced that they have entered into a research support agreement to study the use of perfluorooctylbromide (PFOB) in tumor and metastasis control.

Cancerous tumors typically receive very little blood flow, and therefore little oxygen. Higher doses of radiation are required to kill poorly-oxygenated cells than are required to kill well-oxygenated cells.

Perfluorochemical emulsions have been shown to improve the tumor oxygenation both by serving as a carrier for oxygen and by increasing tumor blood flow. The research will generally focus on the anticancer potentiating effects of PFOB emulsions used in conjunction with radiation, hyperthermia and selected chemotherapeutic agents.

Under the terms of the agreement, Dana-Farber granted Alliance an option to obtain an exclusive license to practice any invention or discovery resulting from the research. Alliance estimates the potential U.S. market for the emulsion product to be approximately $150 million annually for this application.

Alliance is involved in the development, manufacturing and early-stage marketing of medical and pharmaceutical products. It is pursuing the commercial development of products in four fields of application: contrast agents for diagnostic imaging; oxygen-carriers, including for use as a temporary blood substitute; cell growth factors and regulators; and immunology products.

DALLAS (SEPT. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - The Southland Corp. said Thursday that its previously announced exchange offers have been extended to expire at midnight New York time on Tuesday, Sept. 25, 1990, unless further extended.

The company also announced that Ito-Yokado Co. Ltd., Seven-Eleven Japan Co. Ltd. and Southland have mutually agreed to extend the termination date of their previously announced stock purchase agreement to Sept. 25, 1990.

As of midnight on Sept. 12, the following securities had been tendered: 13-1/2 percent Senior Extendible Reset Notes -- 92.67 percent, or $488,925,703 principal amount ($255,098,600 by guarantee); 15-3/4 percent Senior Subordinated Notes -- 67.65 percent, or $236,792,000 principal amount ($35,812,000 by guarantee); 16-1/2 percent Senior Subordinated Discount Notes -- 65.27 percent, or $262,540,000 principal amount ($89,634,000 by guarantee); 16-3/4 percent Subordinated Debentures -- 49.77 percent, or $248,873,000 principal amount ($67,482,000 by guarantee); 18 percent Junior Subordinated Discount Debentures -- 53.42 percent, or $39,155,000 principal amount ($10,340,000 by guarantee); and 15 percent Cumulative Exchangeable Preferred Stock -- 94.53 percent, or 13,050,054 shares (1,746,080 by guarantee).

Clark Matthews, Southland's chief financial officer, said: ''Over the past two weeks, we've succeeded in identifying the vast majority of Southland security-holders who have not yet tendered their securities. Over the next eight days, we will intensify our efforts to communicate with them, to explain the merits of the proposed restructuring and to urge them to tender their securities.''

Under the exchange offers, Southland bondholders and preferred stockholders are being offered new debt securities and approximately 25 percent of newly issued Southland common stock. Existing stockholders would retain approximately 5 percent of the Company's common stock, and, following consummation of the exchange offers, Ito-Yokado and Seven-Eleven Japan would purchase 70 percent of the stock for $430 million in cash.

In addition, Southland announced that the special meeting for holders of its preferred stock was adjourned to 10 p.m. Dallas time on Tuesday, Sept. 25, 1990, at 2711 North Haskell Avenue, Southland's headquarters in Dallas. Recordholders of preferred stock as of the close of business on July 13, 1990, will be eligible to vote at the meeting in person or by proxy.

If the exchange offers are extended again, the company intends to further postpone or adjourn the special meeting so that it will occur on the expiration date of the exchange offers.

This announcement does not constitute an offer to sell or to buy any security or the solicitation of any consents or proxies, which offers and consent or proxy solicitation shall only be made by means of a proxy statement/prospectus.

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (SEPT. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - AT&T Network Systems Thursday won a $12 million dollar order to supply the Arab Republic of Egypt with its first two 5ESSR digital switches.

AT&T will deliver the switches to ARENTO, Egypt's National Telecommunications Organization.

Each of the 5ESS switches will have an initial capacity of 30,000 lines and will provide telephone service to highly populated areas of Cairo that have not had telephone service before. Installation of the switches is scheduled to be completed in September, 1991.

''We are gratified that ARENTO has selected AT&T Network Systems. Our selection was based on the proven quality and reliability of our digital switch and our demonstrated long-term commitment to the Arab Republic of Egypt '' said H.L. Cassady, Jr., AT&T Network Systems International Sales Vice-President. ''This is the latest chapter in a continuing and fruitful partnership between AT&T and ARENTO.''

AT&T has maintained an office in Cairo since 1979 and has, to date, installed over 300,000 lines of 1A electron- ic switching equipment in Egypt.

Other suppliers bidding on the contract were Northern Telecom of Ontario, Canada, and the National Account Management Group, Incorporated, of Maryland.

ENGLEWOOD, N.J. (SEPT. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Medical Nutrition Inc. (NASDAQ:MENU) Thursday announced revenues and net income for the second quarter ended July 31, 1990.

Revenues were $315,500 and net income was $5,591 as compared to revenues of $1,073,343 and net income of $430,063 for the comparable period in 1989 and for the six months ended July 31, 1990 revenues were $926,285 and net income was $103,686 compared to revenues of $1,550,048 and net income of $533,249 for the comparable period.

Arnold M. Gans, president of Medical Nutrition, explained that ''the decline in both revenues and earnings in the current period and for the six months ended July 31, 1990 reflects in large part a one-time sale of approximately $610,000 of the company's non-prescription smoking cessation program 'Smo-quits' to Amway Corp. during the second quarter in 1989.''

The small decline in revenues from sale of weight loss foods was due principally to the adverse publicity surrounding the weight loss industry and in particular those programs emphasizing low calories and quick weight loss. Despite the decline in weight loss food sales during the first half of the year, Gans noted that the company's program emphasizing moderate weight loss with supporting clinical data is positioned to take advantage of the weight loass trends in the next decade.

Gans also announced that the company has entered into a letter of intent with Family Weight Loss Centers Inc. (FWLC) to acquire all of the issued and outstanding stock of FWLC for 900,000 shares of the company's common stock and the assumption of certain debt. FWLC operates 50 weight loss centers in 9 midwestern states.

For the year ended May 31, 1990, FWLC had revenues of approximately $8,500,000 and operating income of approximately $240,000. The acquisition is subject to the execution of a definitive agreement and appropriate approvals.

Gans stated the company is very excited about the potential synergy from the acquisition. The transaction, if completed, would enable the company to immediately increase the number of clinics utilizing its portion control medical foods and further provide it with the opportunity through these center to introduce new products.

In addition, Gans disclosed that the company had entered into a working arrangement with a medical device products company selling, among other products, a device to meadure body fat composition. The company has a 26 person sales marketing and distribution network and, to date, in excess of 1,700 physicians have purchased the device to measure body fat composition.

Gans noted that Medical Nutrition's portion control medical foods would complement that concern's products and that with an installed base of over 1,700 physicians this arrangement offers a significant potential for revenue generation for the company.

Medical Nutrition is engaged in the development and marketing of medically supervised weight management programs emphasizing disease prevention and health programs.

BASKING RIDGE, N.J. (SEPT. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - AT&T has the answer for shoppers looking for a convenient, hassle-free way to order almost anything by telephone: the 1991 edition of the AT&T Toll-Free 800 Directory.

Directory listings help consumers find toll-free numbers in categories ranging from the familiar, including airlines, florists and hotlines, to the unique, such as billiards, novelties and weather vanes.

AT&T 800 Service, introduced in 1967, handled more than eight billion calls last year. The popular guide to free calling has been issued annually since 1984 in separate versions for consumers and businesses. Together, this year's editions list some 200,000 toll-free numbers.

''AT&T's 800 service basically created the telemarketing industry, bringing the marketplace into the home and office,'' said Dave Williams, product manager for AT&T 800 Directories. ''Today's busy consumers expect to enjoy the ease and economy of placing free calls when they shop by phone.''

The consumer directory is being sent free to more than one million households and the business version, beginning in late September, will be sent to more than one million businesses.

AT&T 800 Service subscribers who choose to be listed receive alphabetical and Yellow Pages listings at no charge in the directory of their choice. They can also purchase additional listings and other advertising in the Yellow Pages section where companies and organizations are grouped by the type of goods or services offered. The directories also include a full-color advertising section.

The consumer edition sells for $9.95 and the business edition for $14.95, plus tax, shipping and handling. Bulk discounts for ordering 50 copies in any combination are $2.50 per copy for the consumer book and $3.50 for the business version, plus tax, shipping and handling. Orders may be placed by calling 1-800-426-8686. Directories also are available at AT&T Phone Centers.

AT&T 800 Service subscribers who want to be included in the next edition of the directories should call AT&T at 1-800-562-2255.

SCOTTSDALE, ARIZ. (SEPT. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - The U.S. District Court for the district of Arizona has issued another decision favorable to Go-Video in its antitrust lawsuit against Japanese VCR manufacturers.

The court denied the defendants' request for a delay of trial and for reconsideration of their motion for summary judgement.

The court confirmed that Go-Video had presented sufficient evidence thus allowing the case to go to jury trial. As a result of their decision, the defendants will stand trial before a jury in Phoenix to answer Go-Video's charges that they have conspired in violation of federal antitrust laws to block the marketing of Go-Video's dual-deck VCR in the U.S.

''The court's affirmation of its July ruling is a significant victory for Go-Video,'' said Joseph Alioto of the law firm Alioto and Alioto, representing Go-Video. ''This ruling means that Go-Video will have the opportunity to present its case against the defendants before a jury. We are hopeful of starting trial by the end of this year.''

''In a broader context, this ruling represents a victory for all American businesses,'' Alioto continued. ''Go-Video's challenge will be the first time an American company has brought the Japanese to trial on a major conspiracy charge.''

The defendants remaining in the case are Matsushita Electric Industrial Co. Ltd., (Panasonic, National), Victor Company of Japan Ltd. (JVC), Sony Corp., Sanyo Electric Co. Ltd., and NEC Corp.

Go-Video introduced its dual-deck VCR, the VCR-2, to consumers this summer. One of Popular Science magazine's 100 best new products of the year, the VCR-2 can play one tape while recording on another, duplicate tapes with incredible quality, edit from tape to tape, and record two different TV programs simultaneously. Other features include the exclusive HQ Copy circuitry, a 155-channel cable-ready tuner, multi-channel TV sound, an advanced remote control and on-screen programming.

LITTLETON, MASS. (SEPT. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Alliant Computer Systems Thursday announced the sale of its first parallel supercomputer to an Eastern Bloc country.

The Alliant supercomputer will be used by the University of Budapest in Hungary for mathematical computation and scientific research.

''This first sale of a parallel supercomputer to the University of Budapest underscores the dramatic economic and political changes which have occurred in the Eastern Bloc,'' said Kolja Kuse, an Alliant representative in W. Germany. ''These changes have enabled the university to acquire a leading supercomputer, and opened up a brand new market of countries eagerly seeking the advanced computing technologies of the west.''

According to Dr. Laszalo V. Franjo, professor of veterinary science, University of Budapest, the Alliant supercomputer will be shared primarily by four university departments. The chemistry department will perform molecular modeling research; the physiology department will conduct biological modeling; and the bio-mathematics and bio- statistics departments will use the system for mathematical computations.

The Alliant supercomputer will also be used to manage local area networking through an Ethernet connection to the Hungarian HUNINET network, which is further connected to an international network. The long term goal of the University is to use the machine as a departmental supercomputer at the computational research center, ultimately providing supercomputing resources for other Hungarian universities.

Alliant Computer Systems Corp. manufactures standards-based parallel supercomputers with visualization tools that enable scientists and engineers to quickly interpret and solve complex problems.

NORWALK, CT (SEPT. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Alcide Corp. (NASDAQ:ALCD) Thursday announced that financial figures for the fiscal year ended May 31, showed net sales, including R&D income, were $2,714,268.

Net product sales were $2,592,098, a decrease of 12 percent from the previous fiscal year's $2,958,916.

The decrease in fiscal year 1990 sales was due primarily to a 13 percent decrease in dairy line products sales. Primarily loss per share was 7 cents per share, down from 10 cents for fiscal years ended May 1989 and May 1988.

Speaking for the board of directors, Thomas L. Kempner, chairman, stated that, ''sales comparisons with the prior year in the animal health product area tend to be misleading because our major distributor purchased substantial inventory in May of 1989 but made little or no product purchases in June, July or August of 1989, thereby inflating fourth quarter 1989 sales and deflating first quarter 1990 sales. The pattern of purchases in the fourth quarter of fiscal year 1990 and the first quarter of 1991 should conform more closely to actual distribution demand.''

Kempner also stated that, ''We anticipate an encouraging trend in the financial picture of Alcide Corporation. Recent financial results of the company have improved considerably. Fourth quarter 1990 net sales were $905,851, slightly better than third quarter 1990 sales of $897,101, each greater than the entire first half's sales of $789,146. Further, the company anticipates that first quarter 1991 sales will increase substantially as compared with first quarter 1990 sales.''

Alcide Corp. develops and markets unique disinfecting systems based upon its patented technology. Current markets include the animal health, health care, automotive and food-processing industries. Alcide Corp. has development/marketing agreements incorporating Alcide technology with The Procter & Gamble Co. for oral care products and with Ciba Vision Corp. for a contact lens disinfectant.

DALLAS (SEPT. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Interphase Corp. (NASDAQ:INPH) Wednesday announced record revenues of $7,501,278 for the third quarter of fiscal 1990, ending July 31.

Revenues were up from $7,184,331 for the previous quarter and $5,577,050 reported for the third quarter last year. Revenues for the first nine months of fiscal 1990 increased 38 percent to $19,945,105 compared to $14,418,041 for the same period last year.

The company incurred a net loss of $2,780,298, or 83 cents per share, for the third quarter of 1990 as compared to a net profit of $177,375, or 3 cents per share, in the same quarter of fiscal 1989. The company's net loss for the first nine months of 1990 was $3,999,813 as compared to a net profit of $223,300 for the first nine months of fiscal 1989.

The loss in the third quarter is due to a combination of losses from consolidating the operations of OMNI Solutions Inc. and a one-time write-off of assets associated with the decision to cease further operations at OMNI.

Interphase President Michael E. Cope stated, ''As announced earlier this month our third quarter figures reflect a one-time write-off of our investment in OMNI Solutions Inc. Interphase core business remained profitable during this period, and we expect to report a profit for the fourth quarter, ending Oct. 31.''

Interphase is a leading manufacturer of high performance network controllers, disk and tape controllers and SCSI host adapters for the VMEbus, EISA and Multibus markets, and the Sun Microsystems aftermarket.

CHICAGO (SEPT. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Amoco Production Co. said Thursday that a subsidiary, Amoco Eurasia Petroleum Co., has signed a protocol with the state gas business concern of the U.S.S.R., which could lead to development of petroleum resources in the soviet union.

The protocol provides an opportunity for Amoco, following the completion of a preliminary study, to conduct a detailed study of the technical and economic feasibility of developing and producing several fields in western Siberia in cooperation with soviet organizations. The protocol also enumerates many of the guiding principles which would be incorporated in an eventual joint venture agreement.

Amoco believes that the oil and gas resource potential of the fields is significant, according to Robert L. Blanton, president of Amoco Eurasia.

''Amoco technology and expertise in drilling, well completion and production practices should enhance the commercial potential of these fields,'' Blanton said. ''Our objective is economic development of these fields in a manner which is consistent with environmental concern and recognizes the interests of the local native population.''

The protocol was signed in Moscow by V. S. Chernomyrdin, chairman of the State Gas Business Concern, and by Blanton, representing Amoco. This protocol is the most recent in a series of protocols resulting from discussions on this project which were initiated in July 1989.

Amoco also is engaged in ongoing discussions with several Soviet organizations concerning petroleum exploration and development in other areas of the U.S.S.R. Amoco has been discussing potential joint venture opportunities with Soviet officials since early 1988.

BASKING RIDGE, NJ (SEPT. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - AT&T Thursday announced that it is setting up a service that will enable family and friends of American military personnel serving in the Middle East as part of Operation Desert Shield to send facsimile greetings to the troops free of charge.

AT&T will begin accepting messages Sept. 21 at its 400 Phone Centers.

AT&T is offering free use of its network to transmit letters and drawings one-way to troops in the Mideast as part of a morale-boosting effort it calls DESERT FAX. The duration of the free DESERT FAX service will depend on several factors, including cost, volume of messages and benefits to military personnel and their families.

Because the fax messages will be sent electronically, the time required to reach their destinations will be significantly reduced.

''DESERT FAX will provide a quick and easy way for family and friends to send a half-page home leave to U.S. service people in Operation Desert Shield,'' said Robert Dalziel, AT&T vice president -- Global Networks. ''We are honored to be providing this service in full cooperation with the military postal service.''

A facsimile or fax machine takes an ordinary printed page and translates it into electronic signals that are sent through the phone network and reprinted by a distant facsimile machine.

With AT&T's Enhanced FAX Service, messages are stored electronically within the AT&T network, then transmitted at high speed to one or more designated fax machines.

After the fax messages are sent from the Phone Centers to the Mideast, the military postal service will deliver the messages to service people in Operation Desert Shield at regular mail calls.

The concept for DESERT FAX was proposed by Sen. Alan Cranston (D-Calif.) as a means of bolstering the morale of troops in the Mideast. When AT&T completes final testing of equipment next week, the service will have progressed from concept to start-up in only about two weeks.

The special fax forms that AT&T will provide at Phone Centers will not be available there until Sept. 21. People wil fill in the forms with the name of a person stationed in the Mideast, the APO/FPO address, and the person's military identification number. A designated space for a written message or drawing occupies three-fourths of the form. Without a valid APO/FPO address, the AT&T Phone Centers will not be able to accept and send messages. The addresses of AT&T Phone Centers can be obtained by calling 1-800-555-8111, Ext. 36.

EDITORS'S NOTE: In any article you print, please be sure to include the information that the Phone Centers will not accept fax forms until Sept. 21.

AGOURA HILLS, CA (SEPT. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Electronic Clearing House Inc. (NASDAQ:ECHO) Thursday announced the sale of 1,000 Electronic Banker Series 9 systems to American Express Integrated Payment Systems.

The initial order is in excess of one half a million dollars, said Don Anderson, president of Electronic Clearing House.

The systems are comprised of a transaction processing terminal and a proprietary printer designed and manufactured by its wholly-owned subsidiary, Computer Based Controls (CBC).

The systems, which have been specifically designed to print and dispense American Express money orders automatically, will be delivered to American Express Integrated Payment Systems over the next four months.

Electronic Clearing House and its manufacturing subsidiaries provide credit card and check guarantee processing services to some 3,200 merchants, primarily in California. It also designs and manufactures point-of-sale equipment for various other financial and industrial purposes.

WALTHAM, MA (SEPT. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Cambex Corp. Thursday reduced list prices by approximately 30 percent on its line of central and expanded memory storage systems used with IBM System/3090 mainframe computers.

The move lowers the price of a 64-megabyte module of Cambex STOR/9000 central storage from $290,000 to $190,000 and a 64-megabyte unit of STOR/9000 expanded storage from $105,000 to $75,000. STOR/9000 products compete with IBM devices that enable users of IBM's largest computers to expand memory capacities to handle additional workloads and functions.

The price reduction responds to a recent IBM pricing action, to the historical pattern of memory manufacturing costs which tend to decline at a predictable rate each year, and to the increasing use of more cost-effective four megabit memory devices, especially in central memory units, the company said. Cambex introduced the four-megabit memory chips in March in its central storage units and IBM did so two weeks ago.

''By making price adjustments at this time, both IBM and Cambex are bringing new pricing stability to the market as well as stimulating customer demand,'' Joseph F. Kruy, Cambex president, stated.

''Cambex's new prices allow it to maintain a 25 percent or more price advantage over IBM,'' Kruy stated. The company has shipped over 25 billion bytes of STOR/9000 products to IBM System/3090 users in the past two years.

Cambex Corp., a publicly held company headquartered in Waltham, Mass., has designed and manufactured memory storage systems for five generations of IBM mainframes during the past 20 years.

RALEIGH, NC (SEPT. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - First Citizens BanchShares Inc. has received final regulatory approval to acquire Catawba SavShares Inc., the parent company of Mutual Savings and Loan Association, based in Charlotte.

The acquisition is expected to be finalized Oct. 1, according to James B. Hyler Jr., First Citizens BancShares president, who made the announcement Thursday. He said that First Citizens currently plans to operate Mutual Savings and Loan as a separate thrift entity.

Mutual Savings and Loan has assets of approximately $250 million and operates six offices in Charlotte and one in Matthews.

Hyler said the acquisition of Mutual would provide an excellent business opportunity for First Citizens. ''Mutual is North Carolina's oldest and one of its most respected savings and loan institutions, with an extremely well positioned branch network in one of the primary growth markets of the Southeast,'' he said.

First Citizens BancShares Inc. is the parent company of First Citizens Bank, a $3.8 billion statewide financial institution that operates 303 offices in 159 North Carolina towns and cities.

HOUSTON (SEPT. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Proler International Corp. (NYSE:PS) Thursday reported results for the second quarter and six months ended July 31, 1990.

The board of directors also declared a regular quarterly cash dividend in the amount of 13 cents per share payable Oct. 15, 1990, to stockholders of record on Sept. 28, 1990.

For the second quarter ended July 31, 1990, consolidated net sales were $32,427,134 compared with sales of $28,112,457 for the second quarter ended July 31, 1989. Consolidated net earnings were $83,863, or 2 cents per share, compared with $4,097,660, or 87 cents per share, for the second quarter last year.

Proler's share of pre-tax earnings from joint operations for the second quarter was $1,961,558 compared with $5,134,461 the year-earlier quarter.

For the six months ended July 31, 1990, net sales were $56,250,229 compared with $55,809,027 in the same period a year ago. Net income was $535,417, or 12 cents per share, compared with $7,499,243, or $1.59 per share, last year. Proler's share of pre-tax earnings from joint operations for the six months was $4,168,383 compared with $8,651,772 for the same period last year.

Commenting on the results, Herman Proler, chairman of the board, said, ''The lower earnings in the first half of fiscal 1991 compared with the year-earlier period were primarily attributable to lower sales prices received for the company's principal products in both domestic and international markets.

''Sales prices during August and September have shown improvement from the second quarter. We are optimistic that this improvement will continue and result in improved profitability for the third quarter.''

Proler International Corp. is an environmental company primarily involved with recovering, recycling and processing ferrous and non-ferrous metals for shipment to domestic and foreign users.

Through eighteen processing plants operated either directly or through joint ventures, Proler is a leading provider of high quality raw materials to industrial users.

The company's non-ferrous operations produce reusable premium quality non-ferrous scrap, including copper, brass, aluminum, stainless steel and nickel alloy. Premium grade steel scrap from its state of the art detinning operations is sold to the steel and foundry industries and tin is sold for use in many different industrial applications.

Proler also distributes new prime and used line pipe and off-spec pipe for a wide range of industrial and commercial uses. The common stock of Proler is traded on the New York Stock Exchange under the symbol PS.

By MICHAEL STRAUSS - Comtex Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 13) COMTEX - Congressional banking leaders are seeking the swift passage of legislation giving the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. a free reign to boost premiums it charges to banks to keep the nation's bank insurance fund at safe levels.

House Banking Committee Chairman Henry Gonzalez's (D-Texas) declaration today that he was introducing legislation to "increase deposit insurance premiums as much as necessary to keep the fund solvent" comes one day after his Senate counterpart, Democrat Donald Riegle, issued a similar call.

These moves follow reports from the General Accounting Office on Tuesday and the Congressional Budget Office yesterday that the bank insurance fund is under severe stress.

The GAO said a recession or a single large bank failure could be enough to deplete the fund and the CBO forecasts the FDIC will spend $30 billion to $35 billion through 1993 to pay for 631 bank failures.

A number of factors including depressed real estate prices, highly leveraged portfolios, and loans to Third World nations resulted in a record number of bank failures which saw the FDIC fund fall 28 percent from $18.3 billion in 1987 to $13.2 billion at the end of 1989 leaving its ratio of reserves to deposits at an all-time low of 70 cents per $100 of deposits.

The Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery, and Enforcement Act of of 1989 (FIRREA) has set a minimum reserve ratio of $1.25 per $100 of deposits by 1995 but the GAO and CBO believe this target is unreachable without increasing bank assessment fees above current law. The FDIC has already proposed to raise annual bank assessments from 12 cents per $100 of deposits to 19.5 cents per $100, the maximum allowed under FIRREA.

Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan, appearing this morning before the House Banking Committee, confirmed the federal deposit insurance system is facing difficulties but said there is no cause for alarm.

Rep. Chalmers Wylie (R-Ohio) used the description "under stress but no reason to panic" to characterize the fund and Greenspan replied, "I would certainly agree with that phraseology."

Greenspan said comparing this situation to the thrift industry, in which taxpayers are facing a minimum $130 billion in costs to bail out failed savings and loan institutions, is unfounded.

"The major difference is capital balance in banks is signficantly higher than in thrifts," Greenspan said. "If you look at the similar economic environment, failure rates among banks are smaller than thrifts. This says the chances of having the types of problems were having with thrifts is significantly lower."

Gonzalez said he will introduce a "comprehensive bill on deposit insurance reform" before Congress adjourns next month and has scheduled a series of hearings on the topic over the next three weeks.

CORPORATE DATA SCIENCES INC OF MANHATTAN BEACH, CA OWNS 22,119,256 SHARES (72.40%) OF ARIL GROUP THE (TICKER: ARILE) OF NEW YORK, NY.

ANNOUNCEMENT:

On Aug. 30, 1990 CDS acquired 16,900,000 shares of Aril Group's common stock from Aril Group in accordance with the terms of an exchange agreement, as amended, pursuant to which, CDS transferred to Aril Group all of the outstanding common stock of Medallion Kitchens of Minnesota Inc., and Medallion Kitchens, Inc. Aril Group loaned $400,000 to CDS and agreed to guarantee a note payable to CDS to the former owner of Medallion of $40,000. The loan is evidenced by a note receivable of $525,013, which sum includes additional advances in the amount of $125,013 made by the issuer to CDS through August, 1990; the note is due Jan. 31, 1991 and bears interest at 12 percent. The exchange was consummated as part of a corporate restructuring and upon completion, CDS intends to divest itself of the shares of Aril Group through a distribution or spin-off of such shares to CDS's shareholders on a pro-rata basis. As a result of the spin-off, CDS will be left with a single subsidiary, CPC, and will not be conducting any operations unrelated to CPC and afterwhich, CPC will merge into CDS and it will engage in operations solely in the paper industry.

CRETEIL, FRANCE (SEPT. 13) - A well-connected Iraqi appeared in court in a Paris suburb Thursday accused of sawing up an Indian friend with a bread knife spraying the body in blue and dumping the pieces on a rubbish dump.

Aziz Allawi, 62, who told police he was "more famous than the president of Iraq", is accused of murdering his Indian landlord, 40-year-old Abdul Rahmani, in April 1988.

Mr. Allawi, who initially confessed to the killing, later retracted.

Witnesses said that the Iraqi was about to be evicted from his lodgings.

Mr. Rahmani's mutilated body was identified after being found in plastic bags on a rubbish dump at a local market.

Mr. Allawi is from a wealthy family of Baghdad tradesmen. One of his sisters is married to the assistant governor of the Bank of Iraq.

BANJUL (SEPT. 13) - A delegation of the ECOWAS-backed interim Liberian government will shortly visit Sierra Leone, Ghana and Nigeria for top-level talks, officials said here Thursday.

Officials gave no dates for the tour, but informed sources said the team would probably go after talks here with the Executive Secretary of the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS), Abass Bundu.

A reliable source said the Liberian delegation would probably be led by Amos Sawyer, a political science professor who was appointed leader of the interim administration in talks among Liberian factions here early this month.

A first interim government team, led by Levy Zangai, another academic and head of the Liberia Action Party, left the Gambian capital for Monrovia on Tuesday, a day after President Samuel Doe was reported killed by rebels.

Informed sources here said the interim government was awaiting the green light from an ECOWAS peace-keeping force in Monrovia before disembarking in the Liberian capital, where rival rebel factions led by Prince Johnson and Charles Taylor and Doe loyalists commanded by General David Nimley were still fighting after the death of Mr. Doe.

Prince Johnson and Gen. Nimley, head of Mr. Doe's presidential guard, have both proclaimed themselves acting president.

Mr. Taylor, who has been calling himself president since July, is the only one of the three to oppose ECOWAS imtervention. His ill-disciplined forces control most of Liberia outside the capital.

ECOWAS Executive Secretary Bundu was expected in Banjul later Thursday. He was Wednesday in Ghana for talks with head of state Jerry Rawlings and was due in other capitals of the five nations that have contributed to the peace-keeping force.

Meanwhile in Strasbourg, the European Parliament called on Thursday for an "immediate end to the fighting" in Liberia and the convening of a "national conference" among all parties concerned to seek a "political solution".

ATHENS (SEPT. 13) - Greece has decided to try a suspected Palestinian terrorist rather than extradite him to the United States, Greek Justice Minister Athanase Canellopoulos said Thursday.

Mohammed Rashid, whom the United States blames for the bombing of a Pan Am airliner over Hawaii in which one Japanese died and fifteen other passengers were injured, was arrested in May 1988.

Mr. Rashid has denied any role in the bombing and claims he is actually Mohammed Hamdan. A leftist Greek politician has said he is close to Yasser Arafat, the leader of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

His case has become a domestic issue in Greece since he was arrested. The Greek Supreme Court agreed to extradite him in May 1989, but the Socialist government of the time did not carry out the order.

The next two governments, which were conservative, also decided to stall on the issue, partly because of opposition from the Communist Party.

Meanwhile, Mr. Rashid has successively been sentenced to five months in jail for entering Greece on a false passport and eight months for illegal possession of a weapon.

Greece has signed the Montreal Convention on terrorism, which provides for trials of a suspect to take place either in the country that asked for extradition or the country in which he or she was arrested.

JERUSALEM (SEPT. 13) - More than one million Soviet Jews will emigrate to Israel in a period of two years starting in 1991, the daily Davar reported here Thursday.

The social democratic daily quoted sources from inside a government committee on immigration as saying that about 400,000 Soviet Jews would settle in Israel in 1991 and some 650,000 during the following year.

These figures were in contrast to the version of Israeli Premier Itzhak Shamir's government, which recently said about 150,000 Soviet Jews would emigrate to Israel this year and 250,000 in 1991.

The official figures were based on current transportation capacities due to the fact that Jews were leaving the Soviet Union mainly via Hungary and Romania.

Experts said the emigration wave could rise when a direct air link is established between Moscow and Tel Aviv, thus putting more economic strain on current settlement plans.

TOKYO (SEPT. 13) - Japan and the European Economic Community (EEC) are discussing limiting Japanese car exports to Europe but have not yet reached an agreement, Japanese and European officials said Thursday.

"The talks are exploratory and have not yet concluded," said Michael Lake, counselor at the European Commission's delegation to Japan.

Officials at the Ministry of International Trade and Industry (MITI) also said the talks were exploratory and had not finished.

A Japanese newspaper reported earlier that car exporters planned to adopt "voluntary restraints" towards the EEC during a five-year transitional period before the complete liberalization of the European car market in 1998.

The Mainichi Shimbun said the Japanese car industry would adopt the restraints apparently similar to those which already restrict exports to the United States, following the 1992 abolition of internal trade barriers in the EEC.

The report, quoting a draft agreement between Tokyo and Brussels, said the adoption of the restraints depended on agreements by five countries including France, Italy and Spain to abolish existing import quotas.

Under the agreement, the Japanese Government would continue monitoring exports to the EEC every quarter under a system launched in 1986.

Tokyo and Brussels have also agreed to set up a working group to discuss industry issues and ensure the smooth liberalization of the market, the report said.

WINDHOEK (SEPT. 13) - Angolan and South African officials emerged from bilateral talks here agreeing to look into "direct channels of communication", a South African spokeswoman said Thursday.

The agreement follows an Angolan claim that a South African naval vessel in Zaire was off-loading supplies to the rebel National Union for the Total Independence of Angola (UNITA).

The explanation from Pretoria, in a diplomatic note that was apparently never received in Luanda, was that a South African task force was being sent to help the Zairean navy upgrade its facilities.

"Both sides keenly want direct contact but it's far too early for diplomatic ties. Right now it means phones and faxes," the spokeswoman said.

South African foreign affairs Director-General Neil van Heerden stressed at Wednesday's talks that the two countries were "destined to be partners", she said.

The talks were frank and "we talked openly out of our hearts about things that worried us ... in an engaged fashion", he said. A follow-up meeting was likely within the next day, the spokeswoman added.

The bilateral talks preceded a two-day meeting which began here Thursday of a joint commission comprising South Africa, Angola, Cuba and Namibia to discuss conflict in the region and the withdrawal of Cuban troops from Angola.

Satisfaction that the withdrawal was on course was reportedly expressed by delegates to the commission, who are to issue a joint communique later Thursday.

The Cuban forces, which had numbered some 50,000, were assisting the Luanda government counter the U.S.-backed UNITA rebels led by Jonas Savimbi. The Cuban soldiers are due to have left by July 1991.

The commission was established in 1988 to oversee a U.S.-brokered regional peace accord for Namibian independence and the Cuban withdrawal. Namibia became a member of it on acceding to independence on March 21.

In an opening address to the session, Namibian Foreign Affairs Minister Theo-Ben Gurirab said peace in south-western Africa and southern Africa were indivisible.

An area of major concern was the continuing "bleeding, suffering and destruction" in Angola, he said, while prospects for a peaceful solution in South Africa were increasingly being blurred by mounting violence there.

The Namibian minister described America's covert aid to UNITA in the 15-year-old Angolan civil war as "unwarranted and increasing". Such material assistance constituted "interference" in Angola's domestic affairs.

But Assistant U.S. Secretary of State for African Affairs Herman Cohen reportedly said support to UNITA would encourage the Angolan government to negotiate a fair settlement.

Angolan deputy defence minister and chief-of-staff General Antonio dos Santos Franca Ndalu said continued American support to UNITA had a negative effect on the withdrawal of Cuban forces from his country.

Mr. Van Heerden, heading the South African delegation to the meeting, said that although the Angolan government was suspicious because of Pretoria's "diplomatic support" of UNITA, "we can work with each other".

But relations could never be normalised until there was national reconciliation in Angola, he added.

JOHANNESBURG (SEPT. 13) - South African Airways (SAA), the national carrier, announced here Thursday it would impose an eight percent fuel levy on all domestic flights from Monday in response to "unusual" hikes in fuel prices.

The fixed aircraft fuel price for September was 33.5 percent up on August's price, SAA spokesman Leon Els said, following the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait and the subsequent Gulf blockade by western nations.

Indications were that the October price could be 55 percent up on the August level, Els said.

The levy would have to be 12.6 percent to cover the higher costs, but SAA had decided to peg it at eight percent and save money by scrapping the 24 least used of its 684 weekly domestic flights.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 13) - The White House Thursday rejected congressional attempts to link the future of U.S. troops stationed in Japan with Tokyo's willingness to contribute to the costs of the U.S. military deployment in the Gulf.

"We don't see any linkage between the situation with our forces in Japan and the situation in the Persian Gulf," said presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater.

He was reacting to an vote Wednesday in the House of Representatives, where deputies angered over Tokyo's perceived reluctance to help pay for the Gulf deployment demanded that Japan pay the total costs of keeping some 50,000 U.S. troops in Japan.

The House resolution, an amendment tacked onto a vote on the U.S. defense budget, called for the withdrawal of 5,000 U.S. troops per year from Japan if Tokyo does not shoulder the full cost for the troops.

"We don't believe it's an appropriate way to conduct the foreign policy or to gage our relationship with Japan," Mr. Fitzwater said of the House vote.

President George Bush's spokesman acknowledged that the House vote "does express the sentiment of the Congress and I think Japan is aware of the general feeling in the Congress towards some of their activities."

"But we do not think it's appropriate in terms of making judgement about the defense of Japan," he added.

"We note that Japan has been quite helpful in other areas, they've been helpful in the Persian Gulf, they have been responsive and indicate they are going to be more responsive in terms of burden-sharing," he said.

Following the House vote, Japan's Foreign Ministry Thursday said Tokyo would continue to search for ways of increasing its share of the cost of maintaining U.S. forces in Japan.

Japan's contribution to the cost of maintaining U.S. troops in the country rose from 2.1 billion dollars in fiscal 1989 to 2.3 billion dollars in fiscal 1990 starting in March.

The United States is contributing 4.5 billion dollars a year.

MOSCOW (SEPT. 13) - The Soviet Union proposed Thursday that the Supreme National Council (SNC) set up in Jakarta by the four Cambodian factions occupy the Cambodian seat at the United Nations.

In a communique distributed by Tass news agency, the Soviet Foreign Ministry said it considered the creation of the SNC "an important step towards national reconciliation in the country" and called for the U.N. seat to go the SNC.

The communique praised the decision by the Cambodian parties to form the SNC and their decision to approve the agreement on a solution to the Cambodian conflict put forward by the United Nations Security Council.

"We call upon the Cambodian parties to continue to act in the spirit of good will that they showed at the Jakarta meeting," the communique said.

"For us, the question today is to immediately end hostilities in Cambodia, bring an end to foreign military aid to all the Cambodian parties and establish a United Nations mechanism in the country," the foreign ministry said.

Representatives of Cambodia's four warring factions announced Thursday they will hold consutations in Bangkok ahead of next week's United Nations General Assembly session.

The U.N.-brokered peace accord worked out in Jakarta calls for a cease-fire and the formation of the SNC as an interim authority including all four warring factions. It also calls for the SNC to occupy the U.N seat now held by the tripartite Cambodian resistance.

PRAGUE (SEPT. 13) - France's President Francois Mitterrand suggested Prague would make a good site for "permanent institutions" in the new Europe, as he began a two-day visit here Thursday.

It is his first trip to Czechoslovakia since the collapse of the communist regime last November.

At an official luncheon after private talks with President Vaclav Havel, Mr. Mitterrand expressed wholehearted support for his host and Czechoslovakia's return to what he called its place in a no-longer divided Europe.

His statements were seen as an indirect response to Mr. Havel, who earlier this week expressed hope that Prague might become home for the future permanent secretariat of the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe (CSCE).

"Czechoslovakia and Prague are particularly qualified, for geographical and historical reasons, to receive permanent institutions," Mr. Mitterrand said.

French presidential spokesman Hubert Vedrine said the forthcoming CSCE summit in Paris in November had been a key point of the two leaders' morning meeting.

In his luncheon statement, Mr. Mitterrand also proposed Prague for any European "forums" called to examine French proposals for a confederal-style "new Europe" aimed at bringing together all the countries of the continent.

Mr. Havel has expressed interest in the idea, which on Thursday he called "one of the most brillant proposals for the future of Europe".

The Czechoslovak president also referred to the recent Iraqi "aggression against Kuwait", and recalled the 1938 Munich Agreement signed by then-British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and Hitler that led to Czechoslovakia's occupation and dissolution by the Nazis.

Baghdad's action "revived the old lesson of Munich: that the politics of apeasement cannot have any long-term success. On the contrary, it is detrimental," Mr. Havel said.

But he believed the support seen for the "unprecedent action of the United Nations" in voting an embargo on Iraq showed that the world had "taken a step forward".

Mr. Mitterrand too said it was time to renew relations between France and Czechoslovakia "worthy of the period before the painful rupture".

He hailed the two countries' cultural ties, but said trade and economic cooperation between the two countries was "not yet up to our expectations or possibilities".

In a clear reference to Germany, Mr. Havel replied that it would not be "wise to have economic relations only with out closest neighbors" and that "France could become a much more important partner".

"Only a united and stronger Europe will be able to ward off the threat of instability that has not disappeared and contribute, politically and economically to the world's equilibrium," said Mr. Mitterrand, stressing that the forthcoming CSCE summit was "capital" in this respect.

He also hailed the "Two-plus-Four" accords signed in Moscow Wednesday, which he said "answered our concerns, notably about recognizing the intangibility of borders".

Later Thursday, Mr. Mitterrand will address the Czechoslovak parliament -- the first Western leader to do so since before World War II.

He is also due to meet Prime Minister Marian Calfa.

Mr. Mitterrand, who is accompanied by five ministers and several business leaders, will travel Friday to Bratislava.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 13) - The Baghdad government Thursday refused to allow independent organisations distribute food in Iraq approved by the United Nations for humanitarian reasons, as the U.S. meanwhile said it would take months to deploy sufficient troops in the Gulf to ensure Saudi Arabia's security.

Iraqi U.N. Ambassador Abdul Amir al-Anbari said that in the current situation his country could not permit foreign authorities to control an important aspect of its economy. ''It would not only be utterly humiliating but demoralising to the population,'' he stated.

Under the U.N. embargo imposed August 6, food may be delivered to Iraq only ''in humanitarian circumstances''. Reports said thousands of Asians living in Iraq and Iraqi-annexed Kuwait were threatened by starvation.

The commander of American forces in the Gulf, General Norman Schwarzkopf, Thursday was quoted by the daily Washington Post as saying that it would take another two months until sufficient troops had been deployed in the Gulf.

Problems had arisen in transporting heavy equipment by ship, causing a week's delay, Schwarzkopf said. The airlifting of troops and equipment must also be slowed because many of the Air Force's planes are older models that can not take the strain.

''But give me a few more months, and then we'll surely have the ground troops we need to defend Saudi Arabia against any attack (the Iraqis) may be planning '' he added.

In Washington, an indirect call for Jihad, or holy war, against U.S. troops in the Gulf issued Wednesday by Iranian spiritual leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei met with a cautious response by State Department spokesman Richard Boucher.

The State Department was still waiting for the full text of Khamenei's address he said. As long as there was no evidence to the contrary, the U.S. continued to assume that Iran would abide by the U.N. resolutions and observe the embargo against Iraq as promised earlier.

KARACHI (SEPT. 13) - A special court hearing accusations against ousted prime minister Benazir Bhutto on Thursday deferred consideration of a misuse of power case until Tuesday due to the lack of some documents, court sources said.

Four cases against Ms. Bhutto, which could disqualify her from elections, have been filed in special courts here and in Lahore, about 1,000 kilometers (620 miles) north of Karachi.

The second case was presented on Thursday in the court of Justice Wajihuddin Ahmed and involved allegations of abuse of power in awarding a contract for the purchase of cotton.

After a preliminary statement from the counsel for state on behalf of President Ghulam Ishaq Khan, further consideration of the case was adjourned until Tuesday pending submission of documents.

On the same day, another case will come up pertaining to an attempt to change a consultancy contract for the Asian Development Bank-financed Karachi electric supply scheme.

If the cases are admitted, notice would be issued to Ms. Bhutto to appear either in person or through a counsel.

If she decides to boycott the proceedings, a decision could be taken against her which may lead to her disqualification from politics for seven years.

Ms. Bhutto has described the cases as deplorable and intimidation to keep her out of politics. She has vowed to challenge the charges in court.

The president dismissed Ms. Bhutto on August 6 after charging her with corruption and abuse of power. The former prime minister charged that the president was acting under pressure from the military.

NEVERS, France (SEPT. 13) - French farmers protesting the fall in meat prices armed with clubs and hurling missiles, injured five policemen in clashes Thursday during a demonstration by 10,000 people, police said.

Police retaliated with tear gas against groups of angry farmers who marched past the central administrative headquarters here pelting them with eggs and empty beer bottles, witnesses said.

The demonstrators also set fire to piles of tyres and ripped up road signs as they made their way through this central town where schools were closed for the day and many stores kept their shutters down.

The protest march was the latest action by the French farmers who want further measures by Paris and Brussels to compensate for their loss in earnings due to the sudden fall in lamb and beef prices, which they blame on imports from East Germany.

In Paris, meanwhile, French Agriculture Minister Henri Nallet told a news conference that the government was putting the finishing touches to a fresh package containing "significant emergency aid" for breeders.

But he warned that "to work effectively, calm must be restored."

The minister on August 31 offered the farmers a total 1.2 billion francs (226 million dollars) in aid.

But the breeders said the measures were insufficient as they were only earmarked for those affected by drought, or farmers in 44 regions out of a total 100 in France.

In an interview Thursday with the daily La Nouvelle Republique du Centre-ouest published in the centre-west region where many French breeders are located, Mr. Nallet also said that the European Commission and "German government" had agreed to send East German meat surpluses to third countries.

A total 100,000 tonnes of meat "should thus get out of the common market", for countries such as the Soviet Union, he said.

Mr. Nallet's remarks came after Monday's announcement in Berlin by West German Agriculture Minister Ignaz Kiechle that both Germanies had agreed to export 255,000 tonnes of East German beef and pork to the Soviet Union, instead of western Europe.

The British and French farmers' unions, which had been at loggerheads since June when French breeders began hijacking British and eastern European lamb and beef imports, on Wednesday agreed to urge Brussels to tighten controls on East German imports into the European Economic Community.

NEW YORK, UNITED NATIONS (SEPT. 13) - The U.N. Security Council was set to meet Thursday to seek agreement on how to provide humanitarian aid to hundreds of thousands of foreign workers stranded in Iraq and Kuwait.

The Security Council ruling was needed because a U.N. sanctions committee failed to find a way of allowing food shipments into Iraq and Kuwait without undermining a U.N.-mandated trade embargo slapped on Iraq for its August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

The debate would also deal with whether emergency food deliveries would be handled by specialized international organizations to ensure that they reached only the neediest.

Iraq's ambassador to the United Nations, Abdul Amir al Anbari, Wednesday refused to allow international organizations to distribute the food, saying it would be "not only humiliating, but demoralizing for the population."

U.N. resolution 661, adopted August 6, allows only medical supplies into Baghdad, but also provides for food shipments on humanitarian grounds.

The U.N. sanctions committee was said to be torn between those countries intent on a no-exceptions embargo and those -- primarily India, Sri Lanka and the Philippines -- who wanted to get food to a large number of their expatriate workers stranded in tent cities within the embargoed region.

Iran, with which Iraq resumed diplomatic relations only this week, has also indicated it favors providing humanitarian aid to Baghdad.

Yemen and Cuba, the two Security Council members that have abstained from all resolutions condemning the Iraqi aggression, favored food shipments but opposed any stipulation that they go only to foreign workers, insisting that humanitarian aid be available to all those suffering from the embargo.

LONDON (SEPT. 13) - Aluminium continued its recent strong climb on the London Metal Exchange (LME) here Thursday.

Three-months metal was quoted at 2,035 dollars per tonne on the afternoon kerb against 2,034 in afternoon ring deals and 2,002 on Wednesday.

Cash metal, at 2,124 dollars per tonne Thursday, stands at a 15-month high, and has climbed almost 400 dollars per tonne to in the past four weeks.

Sentiment has been boosted by supply concerns connected with the Gulf crisis. Aluminium is the only base metal with significant refining capacity in the Gulf area.

Some 2.5 percent of western world supplies, about 450,000 tons per year, are refined there, mostly in Dubai and Bahrain.

Copper came off its recent highs as profit-taking set in. Three-months metal was quoted at 1,571 pounds per tone on the kerb against 1,586 on the ring and 1,604 on Wednesday.

TEHERAN (SEPT 13) - Iranian media Thursday welcomed a new era of relations between Teheran and Baghdad, and praised a speech by Iran's spiritual leader, which it interpreted as a call for a Jihad or holy war against the United States.

The English-speaking daily Kayhan International said in an editorial that recent developments in Teheran-Baghdad relations would benefit the people and enhance the chances for peace in the Gulf.

''For sure, political cooperation between Teheran and Baghdad will safeguard the area's tranquility and also prevent the influence and domination of foreign forces in the Persian Gulf,'' it said.

Iran, because of its good ties with both Kuwait and Iraq, has an opportunity to solve the Gulf crisis peacefully, the daily added.

The Persian-language dailies Abrar and Jomhuri Eslami interpreted a speech on Wednesday by Ayatollah Ali Khamenei, the spiritual leader of the Islamic revolution, as containing a call for a Jihad against U.S. troops in the Gulf.

U.S. troops are not in the region to fight aggression, but their very presence in the region is ''a blatant aggression against sacred Moslem lands and Moslems' resources'', Abrar said.

''Confronting the aggression, ambitions and schemes of the U.S. to encroach upon the Persian Gulf is considered Jihad and any one killed for this purpose is a martyr,'' the Iranian News Agency Irna quoted Khamenei as saying.

Khamenei criticised the U.S. military presence in the Gulf and condemned those states who invited American troops to their countries. He said Moslem nations would never allow Washington to set up a security and defence system in the Gulf.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 13) - Iraq has deployed a new, mobile missile delivery system increasing the reach of its chemical and high-explosive warheads, the Washington Times reported Thursday, quoting U.S. intelligence agents.

The system consists of special missile-launchers which can be mounted on any flat-bed tractor-trailer truck, allowing chemical and conventional warheads to be carried closer to Iraq's borders before being fired.

The intelligence agents, who requested anonymity, said the new system was capable of launching Soviet-made Scud-B surface-to-surface ballistic missiles with a range of some 400 kilometers (250 miles), and home-made modified versions of the same missile with a 650-950 kilometer range (400-600 miles).

Beside the new missile delivery system, the Iraqi's are thought to have close to 40 Scud-B mobile launchers and as many as 60 fixed launchers at several bases around the country.

U.S. intelligence also estimates the Iraqis have some 200 ballistic missiles, which can be tipped with chemical or explosive warheads.

BANGUI (SEPT 13) - Police in the Central African Republic raided a private house early Thursday and arrested 22 people for holding an unauthorized political meeting, several separate sources said here.

The police had surrounded the Bangui home of Aristide Sokambi on Wednesday and finally smashed the door down and moved in with tear gas early Thursday.

They arrested Mr. Sokambi and 21 other members of a coordinating committee seeking to organize a national conference on introducing multi-party politics in this single-party state.

Those detained included Abel Goumba, leader of the opposition Oubanguian Patriotic Front (FPO), Henri Maidou, the last prime minister under the Emperor Bokassa and vice-president under David Dacko, who ousted the self-proclaimed monarch in 1979, and Francois Pehoua and Simon Narcisse Bozanga, also former members of the Dacko government.

The police post where the 22 were being held was Thursday under siege by members of their families, including numerous women, an Agence France-Presse correspondent said.

A reliable source said legal proceedings had already been opened.

Mr. Dacko was toppled by the current head of state, General Andre Kolingba, in a military coup in September 1981.

FREETOWN (SEPT 13) - A Ghanaian delegation left here late Wednesday by sea for Monrovia to visit West African peacekeeping troops there, Ghana's High Commissioner A.K. Twumasi said Thursday.

Ghana, together with Nigeria, the Gambia, Guinea and Sierra Leone, has contributed troops to the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS) force, which landed in the Liberian capital's port on August 24.

The 11-man Ghanaian delegation, led by Deputy Foreign Secretary Ibn Chambas left aboard the Ghanaian navy ship, Yogaga, will return to the Sierra Leone capital on Saturday, the high commissioner said.

Brigadier Twumasi said ECOWAS troops were "in no way to blame" for the capture Sunday and reported death of Liberian president Samuel K. Doe by rebels of Prince Johnson's faction, right outside their headquarters.

"It (Mr. Doe's death) was tragic and we are all concerned", he said, adding that the ECOWAS force, known as ECOMOG, was not prepared for the president's unannounced call on its commander General Arnold Quainoo of Ghana.

He said most of the peacekeeping troops had been sent into the city away from the port where the ECOWAS Monitoring Group (ECOMOG) headquarters have been set up.

Meanwhile, Sierra Leone army chief Mohamed Tarawalli said on Thursday that three Sierra Leone soldiers sent as part of the ECOMOG force had been caught by Mr. Johnson's rebels and were sent home on Tuesday.

Major-General Tarawalli said ECOMOG troops have been "expanding their operations cautiously and steadily to avoid casualties".

ECOMOG soldiers in Freetown were Thursday loading 1,000 bags of rice for the peacekeeping troops onto the Nigerian naval vessel Ambe which is to set sail for Liberia on Friday or Saturday.

ABU DHABI (SEPT. 13) - The Kuwaiti embassy in Abu Dhabi, loyal to the deposed emir Sheikh Jaber al-Ahmad al-Sabah, Thursday called on Kuwaiti exiles in the United Arab Emirates to enlist in the Kuwaiti army.

In an appeal carried by the emirates' official news agency WAM, the embassy urged Kuwaitis to come to its military office to join "the Kuwaiti armed forces within the limits of the homeland."

Part of Kuwait's army, which fled the country when Iraq invaded it on August 2 has been based in neighboring Saudi Arabia, Kuwaiti sources have said.

The housing minister of the exiled Kuwaiti government, Yahia Fahd al-Samit, said Tuesday his government planned to establish training camps for Kuwaitis abroad who wished to join the anti-Iraqi resistance movement.

Bonn (SEPT. 13) - West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl said Thursday that his country would help the U.S. in the Gulf crisis.

Kohl made the remarks during a joint press conference with former U.S. President Ronald Reagan, who is on a private European tour with his wife, Nancy.

The chancellor said he did not want the Germans to get the reputation of being strong on exports but weak on solidarity. ''That's not my policy,'' he said.

Some U.S. allies, West Germany included, have been severely criticised in the U.S. Congress for what is perceived to be insufficient support for the American-led military buildup in the Gulf following the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

Kohl said he would discuss details of German assistance with U.S. Secretary of State James Baker on Saturday during the latter's visit to West Germany.

Earlier Thursday, the Reagans met in Bonn with West German President Richard von Weizsaecker and his wife, Marianne. On Thursday evening, the Reagans flew back to Berlin. They are to travel on to Warsaw Friday.

ISLAMABAD (SEPT 13) - A Canadian missionary who disappeared in Pakistan five days ago is being held by bandits in tribal zones along the Afghan border, a Canadian diplomat said here Thursday.

Paul Campbell Murdoch, 37, was seized Sunday by three armed men from Peshawar in northwestern Pakistan as he returned home from taking his children to school, police said.

Local authorities believe Mr. Murdoch, treasurer of an evangelical mission, was kidnapped by bandits operating in the Khyber region, a tribal zone along the Afghan border, the diplomat said.

The English-language daily Frontier Post said the primary suspect in Mr. Murdoch's disappearance, Ahmed Sher, and an accomplice were killed by security forces Tuesday as negotiations between authorities and the kidnappers got under way.

The kidnappers intended to use Mr. Murdoch to secure the release of some of their colleagues, the Canadian diplomat said.

HAVANA (SEPT. 13) - Cuba has recalled the chief of its military force in Angola and appointed him commander of the army's largest domestic division, it was announced here Thursday.

Defense Minister Raul Castro - President Fidel Castro's brother - said the current military situation in Angola and peace negotiations between the Angolan Government and U.S.-backed rebel forces had allowed General Leopoldo Cintras Frias to be relieved of his command nine months ahead of schedule.

Gen. Cintras will take over command of the Army of the West, a post he had held before being sent to Angola in June of last year.

His replacement as head of the Army of the West, General Arlando Ochoa -- who had himself just come from serving in Ethiopia and Angola -- was charged almost immediately after his appointment with drug-trafficking and was executed.

Cuban opposition circles here and in the United States alleged that Gen. Ochoa was killed for having attempted a coup against President Castro.

The Army of the West had been headed since June 1989 by General Ramon Pardo Guerra.

Gen. Castro said General Samuel Rodiles Planas had been placed in command of Cuban forces in Angola, which are due to pull completely out of the African country by June 1991.

AZRAQ, Jordan (SEPT 13) - Mostly Asian refugees fleeing Iraq and Kuwait, who had been stranded with little food, water or shelter in a transit camp on the Iraq-Jordan border, began moving into a new camp here Thursday, correspondants said.

Five hundred Indians were among the first to be moved into the new camp, known as Azraq 1, set up some 90 kilometres (56 miles) east of Amman by the International Committee of the Red Cross.

Some 1,000 Bangladeshis were taken to another camp, Azraq 11, administered by the Jordanian Red Crescent society, they said.

Jordanian authorities meanwhile said they expected large transfers of refugees by bus during the evening and asked the two humanitarian organizations to stand by to receive the new arrivals "at all hours of the day and night."

Thousands of foreigners, mainly Asians, have been transiting through Jordan since Iraq invaded Kuwait on August 2, with an estimated 50,000 having gone through the Shaalan I transit camp on the Iraqi-Jordan border.

Many have been sent home but the influx has strained Jordanian resources and officials in Amman have continued to ask for international assistance to help pay the cost of sheltering and repatriating the refuges.

Reliable sources said that although 21,000 Asians remained in Shaalan I on Wednesday, the camp would be closed down in a matter of days.

Opening of the Azraq camps, scheduled for last week, was delayed because of problems with drainage. The site was then moved about 15 kilometers (nine miles) to the town of Azraq.

The Azraq I camp was designed to receive up to 30,000 people and is made up blocks of tents each capable of sheltering 5,000 residents, divided according to nationality to ease administration.

An alley divides each tents block which has been equipped with water and sewage facilities, both of which are lacking at the Shaalan transit camp.

Similar facilites have been installed at the Azraq II camp which can house 20,000 refugees.

GENEVA (SEPT. 13) - The United Nations Disaster and Relief Organisation (Undro) said Thursday it expects a new wave of refugees will try to flee Iraq and Iraqi-occupied Kuwait in the near future.

An Undro spokesman said 45,000 refugees from these two countries were housed in camps in Jordan, where the situation is now relativly normal after weeks of chaos.

A total of 350,000 to 400,000 refugees had crossed the border from Iraq since the Baghdad sent its troops into Kuwait on August 2, he said. About 70 per cent of the refugees are Egyptians.

Meanwhile, U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar's personel envoy for humanitarian questions in the Gulf crisis is due to travel to the region over the weekend.

Observers believe that the envoy, Prince Sadruddin Agha Khan, will also travel to Baghdad. His mission is to focus on the thousands of Western civilians held hostage in Iraq and Kuwait.

In London, the Foreign Office urged all remaining British women and children still in Kuwait to leave the country on Friday on board a Jumbo Jet chartered by the United States.

BAGHDAD (SEPT. 13) - The Iraqi government announced Thursday the confiscation of all Kuwaiti government funds and property in and outside the country, and said any dealing in these assets would be illegal without prior authorisation from Baghdad.

A statement issued by Iraq's acting finance minister, Mohammed Mehdi Saleh, said the decision affects the funds of Kuwait's ruling family deposited in Arab and foreign banks as well as those of the Kuwaiti government and the cabinet.

The statement, read over Baghdad radio, said the decision was retroactive to August 8 when the two countries were ''reunited''. Iraq annexed Kuwait on that date.

The Iraqi decision came after the finance minister of the exiled Kuwaiti government, Ali al-Khalifa al-Athbi as-Sabah, said Kuwait's foreign assets had been unfrozen and the government had full management over them.

Official assets are estimated at more than 100 billion dollars, while private assets of the royal family and other Kuwaitis is thought to amount to more than 200 billion dollars.

PARIS (SEPT 13) - French Economics and Finance Minister Pierre Beregovoy announced Thursday evening that fuel prices would be decontrolled as of next Saturday.

The move puts an end to controls ordered on August 9, in the wake of Iraq's takeover of Kuwait and a surge in oil prices.

A joint communique issued by the Economics and the Industry Ministries said that "The return to price freedom has been discussed with people in the business", who expressed "a desire to avoid any market disorder".

It added that "It is vital for the market to avoid any speculative phenomena or abnormal price swings".

The government is asking oil companies to limit their margins to the level existing before the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait on August 2.

The joint communique said "The government will be extremely attentive to price trends for oil products in the next few weeks. It calls on the sense of responsibility of all operators on the oil market to avoid a new resort to controls".

NICOSIA (SEPT. 13) - Baghdad will hold U.S. President George Bush and his allies personally responsible for any attack against Iraq and reserves the right to respond in kind, the official Iraqi News Agency (INA) reported Thursday.

INA, in a dispatch received here, said the message was conveyed to Washington in a memorandum handed by Deputy Foreign Minister Nizar Hamdoun to the U.S. Charge d'Affaires, Joseph Wilson.

It was in response to a U.S. message Mr. Wilson gave Mr. Hamdoun late Wednesday, INA said.

The agency reported that Mr. Wilson's message said Washington knew several terrorist organizations based in Iraq were preparing attacks on U.S. and allied targets.

The U.S. message also warned Iraqi President Saddam Hussein that he would be held responsible if the terrorist attacks took place.

"If the U.S. administration is seeking a pretext to commit aggression against Iraq and confuse the issues before international public opinion, Iraq will then hold President Bush, his agents and the Zionist entity (Israel) which lit the spark of conspiracy and aggression in the region personally responsible," it said.

The agency said Iraq reserved the right to defend itself and retaliate firmly against all attack, in accordance with the principles of reciprocity.

More than 100,000 U.S. troops have been deployed in the Gulf alongside forces from Britain, Egypt, Syria and Morocco since Iraq invaded Kuwait on August 2.

HABUR, Turkey (SEPT 13) - Turkish President Turgut Ozal, visiting a refugee camp here Thursday with his Bangladeshi counterpart Hussain Mohammad Ershad, announced plans to help speed up the repatriation of Bangladeshis from the Gulf.

Both heads of state said at a camp close to the Iraqi border, packed with some 5,000 refugees from Iraq and Kuwait, that Turkish Airlines would undertake between 60 and 70 flights to transport Bangladeshis from Turkey's Diyarbakir airport to Dhaka.

Neither president gave details of the plans, but it is understood here that the flights will be organized largely by international bodies and financed with donations from the United States and the European Economic Community (EEC).

A representative of the United Nations Disaster Relief Organization (UNDRO) told Agence France-Presse that an accord had already been reached with Turkish Airlines for 50 flights.

Mr. Ershad got a rapturous welcome from Bangladeshis in the refugee camp, which is run by the Turkish Red Crescent organization. He thanked "friend and brother" Turkey for its assistance to his compatriots, as refugees shouted "Long live Turkey, long live Bangladesh!"

UNDRO coordinator Edmund Cain said 3,000 Bangladeshis have already been airlifted home, 1,000 of them through UNDRO. The whole programme, repatriating a current total 10,000 people, will cost almost seven million dollars, he added. Biman, the Bangladeshi airline, is using two planes for daily shuttle flights.

Some 8,000 Bangladeshis from Iraq and Kuwait had crossed into Turkey by late Thursday. Bangladeshi sources said that of an estimated 80,000 in Iraq and Kuwait when Iraqi troops invaded the emirate on August 2, some 20,000 had left Baghdad and Kuwait City and 12,000 of those were on the Iraqi side of the Turkish border.

MANAMA (SEPT 13) - Nearly 500 Japanese, Americans and Europeans have been moved to strategic and military installations in Iraq as "human shields" against possible foreign attack, well-informed sources in Baghdad contacted by telephone said Thursday.

The sources said that 80 Americans, 200 Britons, 60 French nationals, about 130 Japanese, two Irish nationals and 10 West Germans were being held hostage at those locations.

Several of the Americans were employed by an engineering consulting firm while a number of the Frenchmen were executives for various firms and were in Baghdad when Iraq invaded Kuwait on August 2, they said.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein has allowed hundreds of Western women and children who resided in Kuwait and Iraq before the invasion, as well as a handful of Western men in ill health, to leave via Iraq.

(In Washington, the Iraqi ambassador to the U.S., Mohammad al-Mashat, said his country was preventing U.S.-born males from leaving Iraq and Kuwait because of U.S. "offensive forces" threatening Iraq.

(He was referring to the massive foreign, notably U.S., military buildup in the Gulf sparked by the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.)

WASHINGTON (SEPT 13) - The State Department Thursday denied allegations that the United States believed Romania was importing Iraqi oil in violation of a U.N.-mandated trade embargo imposed on Iraq to force it roll back its August 2 takeover of Kuwait.

Responding to reports that Romania was on an alleged U.S. list of sanction busters, department spokesman Richard Boucher said: "There's no truth to reports that the State Department believes Romania is importing Iraqi oil or otherwise violated the sanctions.

"In fact, Romania has been a strong supporter of the sanctions from the outset and has played a very positive role on a number of issues related to the Gulf crisis."

WASHINGTON (SEPT 13) - The United States is in contact with Iran through a third country about U.N. sanctions against Iraq, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Thursday.

Mr. Fitzwater did not disclose any details of the contacts, but reiterated that the United States expected Iran to keep its promise to respect the international trade embargo against Iraq.

The spokesman noted that the daily Teheran Times had reported Wednesday that Iran was considering the possibility of supplying Iraq with food and medicines, but on Thursday contradicted its report.

The Iranians have "said that they will abide by the sanctions," Mr. Fitzwater said.

At the State Department, spokesman Richard Boucher commented on remarks by Iran's supreme religious leader, Ayatollah Ali Khamenei, suggesting that an Islamic "holy war" was justified to drive the massive U.S. military force out of the Gulf region.

"The Iranian position appears to be based on a misunderstanding of what we mean by regional security structures and arrangements" as spelled out by Secretary of State James Baker in a congressional testimony here last week.

"The United States has no intention of imposing itself, but rather of finding mutually acceptable arrangements which will help guarantee peace and prosperity" in the Gulf, Mr. Boucher said.

"We're on the ground in Saudi Arabia at the request of the Saudi Government to deter an attack from Iraq and to help defend Saudi Arabia if necessary. We will leave...when that mission is accomplished or whenever we might be asked to leave by the Saudi Government," he added.

On the sanctions, Mr. Boucher said: "We have no evidence at this time that commodities have been exchanged in any significant way between Iran and Iraq," said Mr. Boucher.

The United States will continue to monitor the enforcement of the sanctions, Mr. Fitzwater said.

"We have contacts (with Iran) through third countries," he said.

Asked whether the contacts focused on the sanctions, Mr. Fitzwater replied, "On all issues."

The United States and Iran do not have direct diplomatic relations. U.S. interests are represented by Swiss officials in Teheran.

BONN (SEPT 13) - The West German parliament Thursday approved legislation reducing compulsory military service from 15 to 12 months from October 1 - two days before German unification.

The legislation also provides for a five-month reduction to 15 months in community service, which is performed as an alternative to military service.

The upper house of parliament is expect to give its approval on September 21.

Earlier this month, the defence ministry announced that the army of a united Germany would have 370,000 troops - 320,000 from West Germany and 50,000 from East Germany.

This would mean cutting troop strength in the West by 80,000 and in the East by 50,000.

MOSCOW (SEPT 13) - Visiting American businessmen here expressed enthusiasm for prospects in the Soviet Union, saying that "capitalism is arriving" and calling the changes in this country "fascinating" and "extraordinarily significant."

The senior executives of 15 major American firms were here on an official delegation asked by U.S. President George Bush to promote cooperation between American and Soviet companies.

The businessmen were all enthusiastic about prospects for such cooperation, but did not announce any important agreements.

They were speaking at a press conference led by U.S. Commerce Secretary Robert Mosbacher, following a four-day visit to Leningrad and Moscow.

James Jameson, head of a U.S. association of young business leaders, said: "I would like my partners in the United States to know as well as they (the Soviet businessmen) do what they want. They learn very fast . . . Capitalism is arriving in the Soviet Union."

Mark Hungerford, president of utility vehicle firm Transisco Industries Inc. of San Francisco, announced signature of an agreement with a Soviet-U.S.-Finnish firm for production of 1,000 tank-trucks worth 50 million dollars.

Mr. Mosbacher, who met with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev for more than three hours Thursday afternoon, said that the Soviet leader "seems to have confidence in the fact that things are going to move forward."

He said the Soviet Union is trying to reduce the 1.2 billion dollars it has in overdue payments to U.S. business.

NEW YORK, United Nations (SEPT 13) - Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar Thursday said he was "deeply concerned" that increased fighting in Liberia was preventing U.N. humanitarian relief operations in that West African country.

"He renews his fervent appeal to the warring factions to respect the human rights of the population, halt the senseless slaughter, negotiate their differences peacefully, and allow safe passage for desperately required humanitarian assistance," said U.N. spokesman Francois Giuliani

Rebels led by Charles Taylor and a breakaway group led by Prince Johnson have turned the area around the presidential residence in Monrovia into a battleground, the British Broadcasting Corporation reported.

The rebel groups are battling for control of the Liberian capital following the death of president Samuel Doe, who was captured by Mr. Johnson's forces Sunday.

Mr. Perez de Cuellar also expressed regret that the intensification of fighting by Liberian rebels had prevented the U.N. special coordinator for emergency relief operations in Liberia, Michael Heyn, from leaving Monrovia last weekend.

NEW YORK, United Nations (SEPT 13) - The U.N. Security Council was preparing Thursday to hold consultations before voting on a resolution spelling out conditions that would permit humanitarian food deliveries to Iraq.

A Security Council ruling was needed because a U.N. sanctions committee failed to find a way of allowing food shipments into Iraq and Kuwait without undermining a U.N.-mandated trade embargo slapped on Iraq and Iraqi-occupied Kuwait for Baghdad's August 2 invasion of the emirate.

U.N. Resolution 661, adopted August 6, allows only medical supplies into Baghdad, but also provides for food shipments on humanitarian grounds.

Proposed resolutions being floated within the Security Council -- which coincides with the U.N. sanctions committee -- said the committee should ensure that foodstuffs sent to Iraq "be provided through appropriate humanitarian agencies and distributed by them or under their supervision in order to ensure that they reach the intended beneficiaries."

The sanctions committee is charged with ensuring compliance with Resolution 661.

The draft resolution presented by the Security Council's five permanent members -- Britain, China, France, the Soviet Union, and the United States -- asks that Iraq abide by its international obligations by guaranteeing the security and well-being of thousands of foreigners trying to depart Iraq and occupied Kuwait.

The committee's draft declaration also called on U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar to provide the sanctions committee with a detailed description of the food situation in Iraq, with a special emphasis on the condition of children younger than 15 years old, pregnant women and new mothers.

PRETORIA (SEPT 14) - President Frederik de Klerk late Thursday promised new measures to counter South Africa's worst-ever violence that has claimed over 700 black lives around Johannesburg in a month.

New steps to "supplement the comprehensive measures already taken" would be announced next week, he said in a statement here.

"The violent events of the past week, in which many people have lost their lives, have brought our country to an unfortunate turning point...

"The latest wave of violence, unrest, arson and damage to property is something that cannot be tolerated in any civilised country," he said.

"There are forces which do not wish peaceful negotiations to succeed," he warned, appealing to people who wanted peace to "stand together to identify and counter these forces."

In an apparent bid to counter allegations that police and soldiers have fuelled the violence, he appealed to "all leaders" to "give the government and the security forces their full support to counter crime and maintain law and order," adding, "accusations will achieve nothing."

He warned the perpetrators of violence that they were "greatly mistaken if they believe that the government's search for a peaceful solution is a password to lawlessness, unrest and murder."

He said the government would not allow the country to "degenerate into anarchy."

BEIRUT (SEPT 14) - Lebanese President Elias Hrawi on Thursday appealed to King Fahd of Saudi Arabia to lead a campaign to provide Arab financial assistance to Lebanon, the official Lebanese news agency reported.

In a message addressed to the Saudi monarch, Mr. Hrawi said that Lebanon had been hard hit by the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

The Syrian-backed president cited the return from Kuwait of 40,000 Lebanese workers, who he said had formerly supported thousands of families in Lebanon, and Lebanon's compliance with the international embargo against Iraq, which accounts for an estimated 30 per cent of Lebanese industrial exports.

"Lebanon urges you to come to its assistance, for it is threatened by famine and misery," concluded Mr. Hrawi.

The Lebanese pound has lost some 60 per cent of its value in relation to stronger currencies since the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait on August 2. The constitution of a two billion dollar Arab and international assistance fund for Lebanon, which was to have been decided on September 11, has been postponed indefinitely.

TOKYO (SEPT. 13) - Japan will likely limit car exports to the European Economic Community (EEC) for five years after the unification of Europe in 1992, the Mainichi Daily News reported Thursday.

The English-language daily said it had opbtained a copy of a secret draft between Japan and the EEC showing they had agreed to a five-year grace period before the European market is totally liberalized for Japanese cars.

The start of the grace period will depend on an agreement with five EEC countries, including France, Italy and Spain, to abolish their own import quotas on Japanese cars, it said.

The agreement also foresees that the Japanese government will continue monitoring exports from Japan to the EEC to curb any sudden increase, the report said.

The monitoring system began in 1986, with the Japanese Ministry of International Trade and Industry checking car exports to the Common Market once a quarter.

Japan and the European Commission also agreed to set up working-level consultaions to promote dialogue for a smooth liberalization of the car market from 1998, it said.

MITI officials confirmed that Japan and and the EEC are holding talks on Japanese car exports to the EEC after 1992, but said no agreement had yetr been reached.

SEOUL (SEPT. 13) - South Korea's giant Pohang Iron and Steel Co. (POSCO) will branch out into the semiconductor industry under its policy of diversification a POSCO spokesman said Thursday.

POSCO will set up a joint venture with MEMC of the United States and South Korea's Samsung Electronics Co. to produce silicon wafers.

An agreement signed in May calls on POSCO to have a 40 percent share of the joint venture, which will be initially capitalized at more than 120 million dollars, the spokesman said.

MEMC will also have a 40 percent share, while Samsung will shoulder the remaining 20 percent.

"This is in line with our policy of diversifying into other businesses," the spokesman said. "We cannot expand permanently by sticking to steel and the world trend in the steel industry is toward diversification."

The plant, which will be set up by mid-1991 either in Chonan, in the central province of Chungchong, or in the western port city of Inchon, will mainly produce large-caliber, six- and eight-inch silicon wafers.

South Korea relies on foreign imports for large-caliber wafers and buys 80 million to 90 million dollars' worth every year from abroad.

POSCO posted a profit of 202 million dollars on sales of six billion dollars in 1989, but this year's profit and turnover were expected to be thinner, reflecting a worldwide slowdown in steel and iron industry, he said.

Kuala Lumpur (SEPT. 13) - Asian diplomats Thursday hailed the signing of a pact in Moscow the day before paving the way to a united Germany.

Diplomats told the German Press Agency dpa that the whole world now awaits German Unity Day October 3 and ratification of the treaty next year.

''The historic signing has set the stage for a stronger Europe and the cornerstone for world peace through negotiations,'' said a Japanese diplomat.

''A unified Germany has brought both democracy and communism closer together - ending the cold war and halting the arms race,'' he said.

''All freedom-loving nations should rejoice over the marriage between East and West Germany which has even received the full blessing of the Soviet Union,'' said an Indian diplomat.

''There is no reason why some nations should voice reservations over their so-called fears of the potential threat of a nation of 80 million Germans in the heart of Europe,'' he added.

A malaysian diplomat said: ''Now that democracy and communism have united in what was once a divided Germany, the world today is a safer place to live in.''

In neighbouring Singapore, an official welcomed the unification pact as ''a major victory for not only East and West Germany, but for the whole of Europe, the Soviet Union and the United States''.

The agreement, hammered out by the four victorious World War Ii allies and the two Germanys, allows a united Germany to be a full Nato member with a 370,000-strong limit to its armed forces and a self-imposed ban on nuclear weapons.

SINGAPORE (SEPT. 13) - A crew member on board a Panamanian tanker died after fire broke out on the vessel about 600 kilometres north-east of Singapore in the South China Sea, officials said Thursday.

A passing South Korean fishing vessel, responding to distress calls Wednesday, rescued all of the other 25 crew members from the stricken tanker Caribica, which was still afloat.

The 19,400-ton tanker, on a voyage from Taiwan to Singapore, was not carrying cargo.

A rescue official here said all vessels in the vicinity were immediately ordered to render assistance to the distress vessel.

''Also involved in the search were marine officials from Malaysia, the Philippines and Hong Kong,'' the official said.

HONG KONG (SEPT. 13) - Authorities in Shenzhen, China's largest special economic zone, are cracking down on the rampant trading of illegal shares on the stock exchange, a newspaper reported here Thursday.

Some firms in the zone bordering Hong Kong, responding to increasing demand for shares on the Shenzhen bourse, have started selling so-called "internal shares" issued without the approval of the People's Bank of China which administers the exchange, the Wen Wei Po daily said.

Despite the crackdown launched May 28, several firms continue to trade the unauthorized shares believed worth more than five million yuan (one million dollars), the paper said, adding that speculation in the shares was rife.

The paper said authorities could adopt additional measures to curb the illegal trading such as freezing any capital raised through sales of unauthorized shares.

The trading of the illegal shares is a new headache for Shenzhen stock exchange authorities, already battling a thriving black market trade in share certificates.

Share prices and volume in Shenzhen bourse grew explosively in the first half of the year buoyed by the black market, as authorities took steps to curb speculation and market volatility.

The measures included limiting daily prices swings to a one per cent rise and five per cent fall and imposing a six per cent tax on share transactions.

TAIPEI (SEPT. 13) - Trade between Taiwan and Eastern Europe totalled 339.2 millon U.S. dollars in the first eight months of this year, a 40 percent rise over the same period of 1989, the Board of Foreign Trade (BOFT) said Thursday.

Exports to the nine countries of Eastern Europe in the January-August period grew 96 percent to 126.4 million dollars while imports from the region surged 20 percent to 212.8 million dollars, the BOFT said.

The Soviet Union was the largest of the island's East European trading partners for the eight months, registering a two-way trade of 69.2 million dollars, up 36 percent, it said.

Exports to Soviet Union rose 309 percent to 33.5 million dollars while imports from the country tumbled 16 percent to 35.7 million dollars, the BOFT said.

The export-oriented island sold products worth 13.3 million dollars to East Germany, the second largest buyer of Taiwan-made products in the region.

Bilateral trade between Taiwan and Yugoslavia in the first eight months surged a whopping 345 percent over a year earlier to 25.5 million dollars.

To boost the island's substantial relations with Eastern Europe, Taiwan has pledged to provide economic aid to countries in the area through its International Development Fund while encouraging local businessmen to invest there to make computer products and consumer goods.

SINGAPORE (SEPT. 13) - The Singapore Petroleum Company Co. Pte. Ltd. (SPC) is proceeding with plans for a public share offer despite the volatility of the market sparked by the Gulf crisis, SPC officials said.

"The groundwork has already been done, and we are waiting for the right time to launch it," the oil refiner's deputy chairman Soh Kim Soon told local journalists Wednesday.

"If the market stabilizes it will be very soon," he was quoted as saying in the Business Times.

Mr. Soh was not available for elaboration Thursday. But SPC sources confirmed that the company, 62.7 percent owned by the government-controlled DBS Bank, would go ahead with the share offer.

Mr. Soh told reporters that DBS was negotiating to sell 12 percent of SPC's capital, about 40 million shares, to the local steelmaker, National Iron and Steel Mills Ltd. This would be in line with government policy to progressively privatise state holdings.

There was no official word on how many SPC shares overall would go on the block, but press reports put the number at an estimated 80 million shares -- about a quarter of the company's enlarged share capital.

Newspapers have put the offer at 1.25 dollars (71 U.S. cents) a share, but Mr. Soh said Wednesday that no final decision had been made.

In addition to the DBS stake, 31.5 percent of SPC is owned by the local firm Oceanic Petroleum (Asia) and the rest by Japan's C. Itoh trading group.

JOHANNESBURG (SEPT. 13) (AFP) - Amgold, the investment company in the Anglo American stable, announced a 500 million rands (193.5 million dollars) rights issue on Thursday in order to "take advantage of attractive investment opportunities".

The directors of the company, which has gold interests in South Africa, South America, Australia and the Far East, said in a statement that the rights offer confirmed their confidence in the gold mining industry.

The announcement comes barely a week after Amgold posted a 38 percent fall in earnings a share for the six months to August 1990.

The directors said part of the capital raised by the rights offer would be used initially to repay Amgold's short-term borrowings of 127 million rands (49 million dollars).

Other capital would be used to fund the establishment of mining operations in the Moab area, adjoining Anglo's Vaal Reefs gold mine near Klerksdorp, 160 kilometres (100 miles) west of here.

The statement disclosed that government permission had been granted to mine the 2,149 hectare (5,308 acres) Moab site, which is held principally by Anglo and its associates.

The government decision meant the full development costs of Moab could be written off against Vaal Reefs' tax base, the statement said.

Anglo chairman Julian Ogilvie Thompson said in a statement that in view of current economic uncertainties, prudence required that projects of Moab's magnitude be "continually evaluated in the light of changing circumstances" -- like the gold price and the ability to control costs.

In their statement, Anglo's directors warned that under United States and Canadian securities' regulations the Amgold rights offer may not be made to shareholders with registered addresses in those two countries.

These shareholders' rights will, if possible, be sold on the International Stock Exchange in London or the Johannesburg Stock Exchange through an independent merchant bank for the account of such shareholders, they added.

Dhaka (SEPT. 13) - Two Soviet citizens working in Bangladesh have sought political asylum here claiming that they had been kept under detention and tortured by Soviet embassy officials for being anti-communist, interior ministry officials said Thursday.

The asylum seekers have been identified as Victor Tulchinski, 31, and his wife Anna, 24, both employed as Russian-language teachers at the Soviet cultural centre.

The couple have been working in Bangladesh since 1988 but they complained that they were being forcefully returned to Moscow for expressing dissident views.

They said they were kept locked in the cultural centre in west Dhaka's elegant Dhanmondi residential district for a week and were physically tortured. The couple sought refuge in a neighbouring police station after escaping from the centre Wednesday morning.

Meanwhile, Soviet Ambassador Vitaly Smirnoff called upon the Bangladesh government to return the two Soviets, claiming that they are drug addicts.

A senior Bangladesh official said the government was considering the request for asylum by the two Soviet citizens.

TOKYO (SEPT. 13) - The Japan-Korea Trade Association said Thursday it would send an economic mission to North Korea to discuss ways to improve bilateral economic ties.

The week-long visit starting October 8 was planned following disclosures that two Japanese delegations, from the Conservative and Socialist parties, are to visit Pyongyang in late September.

The mission is expected to discuss North Korea's 70 billion yen (five million dollars) cumulative debts to Japan and the opening of trade representative offices in both countries.

It is also expected to talk about the rescheduling of North Korean debt repayments to Japan. But North Korean officials are likely to demand cancellation of the payment as compensation for Japan's colonial rule in the Korean peninsula in 1910-45, according to the association sources.

London (SEPT. 13) - Some 400 Britons and Americans who arrived here overnight from the Gulf aboard a chartered Iraqi Airlines jumbo jet brought with them tales of terror and brutality at the hands of Iraqi occupation forces in Kuwait.

Most of the new arrivals were U.S. citizens, 83 were Britons, according to a Foreign Office spokesman. That brought to 750 the total number of arrivals here. The spokesman said another planeload of refugees was expected to leave Kuwait Friday for London.

One woman from northern England said on arrival that Iraqi troops in Kuwait took delight in teasing and terrifying British citizens who had been marooned in the country after the August 2 invasion.

''One man was taken off into the desert, blindfolded and told to get out of the car, and then they threatened to kill him,'' recalled Elizabeth Walters. ''He was then pushed back into the car, and they drove him round again and did the same, threatening to kill him again.''

MELBOURNE, AUSTRALIA (SEPT. 13) - Spring readings in the southern hemisphere suggest that the earth's protective ozone layer will suffer another serious loss this year, the Australian Bureau of Meteorology said Thursday.

Paul Lehmann, head of the bureau's ozone science unit here, said that measurements taken in August indicated that the loss might be as big as in 1987 and 1989, when large holes appeared in the ozone shield.

The readings were taken at Macquarie Island, half-way between the south coast of Australia and the Antarctic Circle, where the hole in the ozone shield was first detected in 1985.

The ozone layer is a natural screen against deadly doses of solar radiation. The hole starts to form in spring in the southern hemisphere, August or September, disappearing several months later.

The bureau's monitor on the island tracks the movement of clouds carrying ozone towards the South Pole, Dr. Lehmann said.

Temperatures in the upper atmosphere over the Antarctic Circle seemed to be slightly higher than last year.

If this were the case, he said, it would help to limit the destruction of the ozone layer.

Chlorine is released into the atmosphere by the deterioration of CFC's, or chloro-fluoro-carbons, gases commonly used in aerosols and refigerators.

"Chlorine in molecular form is no trouble," Dr. Lehmann said. "Molecular chlorine builds up during the winter, when molecules attach themselves to ice crystals in the stratosphere over the South Pole.

"But once the polar dawn comes, a peculiar chemistry occurs and chlorine is liberated as atoms. A single chlorine atom can destroy hundreds of thousands of ozone molecules."

BEIJING (SEPT. 13) - Defence industry plants, mainly located in western China are to refocus on civilian production in order to boost development in remote areas and support the national economy, the China Daily said Thursday.

A five-year project to "re-orient the sprawling defence industry in interior China to civilian production," was announced Wednesday by the State Planning Commission, State Science and Technology Commission and Commission of Science, Technology and Industry for National Defence.

Local governments in southwest, northwest and central China, where most military factories are located, are to invest more than 210 million dollars in the project over the next five years, the English language daily said.

The provinces of Hubei, Guizhou, Shanxi and Sichuan will be especially involved in the project, the newspaper said.

The value of civilian products manufactured by the defense industry climbed to 66 per cent of the defence industry's total production value last year, compared to 8.1 per cent in 1979, the China Daily said.

To date, the defence industry has manufactured more than 10,000 civilian products, specialising in automobiles, medical equipment, textile machinery, household appliances and cigarettes.

According to Chinese officials, the conversion of People's Liberation Army-run factories to civilian production, begun in the early 1980s, followed a decline in demand for military equipment. However, Western sources say official defence spending figures should be treated with caution.

Since the introduction of political reform, the army has turned over many airports, railways, ports and hospitals to the civilian sector as well as supplying aeroplanes to civilian airline companies.

The army itself has undergone radical changes, with total strength in 1986 being reduced from 3.2 million men to 2.2 million.

TOKYO (SEPT. 13) - Japan's Toshiba Corp. unveiled a new hard-disk drive for small personal computers Wednesday, claiming it more than doubled the capacity of conventional 2.5-inch drives currently available on the market.

The new drive has a memory capacity of 43 megabytes (roughly 43 million words) compared with the maximum storage capacity of around 20 megabytes on existing 2.5-inch hard-disk drives, the company said.

"Toshiba expects the main market for the drive to be in lap-top computers," a statement said, adding that it would be launched in the domestic market next month at a retail price of 100,000 yen (714 dollars).

The company plans to invest 2.5 billion yen (17.9 million dollars) to expand production of hard-disk drives. Total investment in magnetic desks is expected to reach 15 billion yen (107 million dollars) by 1994 by which time sales are projected to quadruple to 100 billion yen (714 million dollars) a year.

SYDNEY (SEPT. 13) - Australia's major retailer Coles Myer Ltd. Thursday blamed the country's economic slowdown for a 5.9 percent slump in its net annual profit to 365 million Australian dollars (297 million U.S.) for the year to June 30.

The group's gross operating profit slid 8.9 percent to 555.6 million dollars (452 million U.S.).

The fall in net profit for the country's ninth largest capitalised company, which compared to 388 million dollars (316 million U.S.) previously, was despite a 5.1 percent jump in revenue to 14.7 billion dollars (12 billion U.S.).

Chairman Brian Quinn in a statement blamed the profit slide on "slowing sales growth as a result of current economic conditions.

"Although the company believed that substantial sales increases would be difficult to achieve in the short term, action was being taken to improve profit levels," he said.

The retail trading profit as a percentage of sales slid from 4.2 percent in 1989 to 3.66 percent in 1990.

The company said in its announcement to the stock exchange that: "Although trading conditions are expected to be difficult due to the current economic conditions in Australia and New Zealand, the company is well placed to benefit from recovery in the economies of both countries when this occurs.

"Strong competition and modest sales increases as a result of difficult economic conditions in Australia impacted on all businesses, particularily department stores."

But the group's discount chain Target had performed well in the past year, the company said.

Retailers have complained of falling sales since Treasurer Paul Keating boosted interest rates late last year, his answer to Australia's perpetual current account deficits, inflation and huge foreign debt.

TAIPEI (SEPT. 13) - Taiwan is to open a new trade office in Hong Kong to boost its business ties with China and the British colony, an economic official said Thursday.

The island's China External Trade Development Council, a semi-official trade promotion unit, is responsible for the overall planning of the new office to be named "Taiwan Trade Center" or "Taipei Trade Center," the official said.

The office, to be opened in one year, is to provide more trade information and offer other services mainly to promote trade and economic activities across the Taiwan Strait, he said.

The Taipei government has allowed only indirect commerce between Taiwan and the mainland.

Trade transhipped through Hong Kong between the two sides boomed to 3.4 billion U.S. dollars last year, a 28 percent growth over 1988.

Opening the new office signified Taiwan's commitment to strengthen its unofficial presence in Hong Kong after the British colony reverts to Chinese rule in 1997, he said, adding that the Economic Ministry would send staff to the new office, which would be registered as a business corporation.

TAIPEI (SEPT. 13) - Taiwan and Australia are soon to exchange landing rights in an effort to boost tourism in the two countries, Queensland's Minister of Tourism, Sport and Racing Rob Gibbs said here Thursday.

Mr. Gibbs, promoting tourism in what he called Australia's "sunshine state" of Queensland, told a news conference before returning home that he met Taiwan Communications Minister Clement Chang Wednesday to exchange views on the opening a new air route between Taipei and Sydney and Brisbane.

He arrived here from Seoul Tuesday.

Mr. Chang was "keen" on the exchange of landing rights, but no timetable had been set, Mr. Gibbs said.

At present, there are no direct flights between Taiwan and Australian cities and no Taiwan commercial aircraft can land there due to lack of diplomatic relations.

The Australia Asia Airlines, a subsidiary of Australia's national flag carrier Qantas Airways, had been established to fly between the two countries, the minister said.

But Taiwan's national flag carrier, China Airlines (CAL), has yet to set up a sister company to serve the new route, he said.

Qantas and CAL have to establish subsidiaries to fly the route to avoid protests from Taipei's rival, Beijing, with which Australia has diplomatic ties.

Mr. Gibbs said possible protests from Beijing had been "addressed in a mutually satisfactory way."

Mr. Gibbs also said the Queensland Tourist and Travel Corp. will open an office in Taipei before December to promote tourism.

The number of outbound Taiwan tourists hit a record 2.1 million in 1989, up 31.6 percent from the preceding year, and about 21,000 of them had visited Australia, a 40 percent increase over 1988.

LONDON (SEPT. 13) - Rolls Royce, the British company which manufactures aero engines and luxury cars, on Thursday reported pre-tax interim profits of 115 million pounds (213 million dollars), representing an increase of 14 percent over the figure in the first half of 1989.

The result disappointd city analysts who had expected profits to total between 120 million and 130 million pounds. The company reported sales of 1.59 billion pounds (2.94 billion dollars), representing an increase of 42 percent over the previous figure.

Rolls Royce shares lost 13 pence to 185p.

Earnings per share were 9.9 pence compared with 10.1 pence. The interim dividend was increased by 10.8 percent to 2.55 pence.

The turbine division reported an operating profit down from 70 million pounds to 68 million pounds, but energy engineering showed an increase of 94 percent to 33 million pounds compared with 17 million pounds earlier. The general engineering section showed operating profits of 11 million pounds compared with five million.

Management said that it had a record order book worth more than six billion pounds, and that the arms division was to be re-organised in response to declining profits.

BANGKOK (SEPT. 13) - Thai Airways International (THAI) has cancelled an option for four McDonnell Douglas MD-11 passenger planes after the U.S.-based manufacturer postponed delivery for another year, a THAI spokeswoman said here Thursday.

THAI's board of directors on Wednesday decided to terminate an option for purchasing a second batch of MD-11's worth some 400 million U.S. dollars, after determining that the delays were detrimental to the airline's expansion plans, the spokeswoman said.

According to the original agreement, McDonnell Douglas was supposed to deliver the first lot of four aircraft by the end of this year, but then had requested to deliver two of them in March and April next year, and the other two in January and February of 1992, she said.

"Our executives fear that actual deliveries could be made much later than requested," she said, adding that such delays could pose complex problems for the airline's expansion plan.

THAI's executives were also worried about the MD-11's fuel consumption using General Electric engines, as it was much higher than agreed upon, she said.

The executive said there was a strong possibility that THAI may decide to purchase more Boeing 747-400's.

FRANKFURT (SEPT. 13) - Herties, the third biggest West German store chain, is to co-operate with the British Barclays bank to launch a joint credit card, Hertie said here on Thursday.

From January 1 Hertie will replace its traditional client card with a new card which can be used as a credit card giving access to such facilities as insurance.

Some 450,000 Hertie customers use the client card to settle bills totalling 415 million Deutsche marks (262 million dollars) in 1989.

Barclays Bank is the biggest issuer of credit cards in Europe, accounting for 14 million cards, Hertie said.

PARIS (SEPT. 13) - Senior finance officials of leading Western countries and Japan met here Thursday for day-long talks centering on the consequences of the six-week old Gulf crisis for world economic growth and finance.

The same group of high-level policy-makers and central bank officials agreed Wednesday, in a committee of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD), on the need for governments to stick to anti-inflationary policies in the wake of the oil price increase.

The officials were meeting Thursday as deputies of the Group of Ten (G10) finance ministers to look at the fall-out from the crisis from a broader angle, delegation sources said.

The G10 is the caucus that coordinates the position of the leading industrial countries in the policy-making bodies of the International Monetary Fund (IMF) and the World Bank.

The "deputies", chaired by Bank of Italy director general Lamberto Dini, were planning to review the latest IMF report on the world economic outlook assessing the prospects for both developed and developing countries.

The sources said they were also expected to take stock of progress achieved in implementing the current debt strategy for highly-indebted middle income countries, based on the 18-month old "Brady initiative", presented by U.S. Treasury secretary Nicholas Brady.

BONN (SEPT. 13) - West Germany has agreed to provide an interest-free loan of three billion Deutsche marks (nearly two billion dollars) to the Soviet Union to finance the withdrawal of 380,000 Soviet soldiers stationed in East Germany governmental sources said here on Thursday.

The loan is in addition to the sum of 12 billion marks (7.6 billion dollars) which Germany has agreed to pay for the stationing, and withdrawal, of the Soviet army from Germany by December 31 1994.

Late on Wednesday Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev said that West Germany was to pay the Soviet Union costs of 15 billion marks.

The sources said that of the 12 billion marks, 7.8 billion marks would be spent on the construction of homes for the families of Soviet military personnel returning to the Soviet Union.

West Germany will also contribute three billion marks to a fund for the upkeep of Soviet troops who will remain in Germany during the next four years.

A sum of one billion marks will finance the removal of soldiers and their families and of equipment, and a further 200 million marks will be spent on re-training soldiers.

NICOSIA (SEPT. 12) - Iran and Syria, solid allies during the Gulf war, now appear to be coming down on different sides in the current standoff between Iraq and the West.

At the same time, both the United States and Iraq are cultivating their former foes in Damascus and Teheran as they scramble for the diplomatic and strategic advantage in the aftermath of the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

Syrian President Hafez al-Assad, who has bristled under repeated U.S. accusations that he supports terrorism, was Thursday preparing to receive U.S. Secretary of State James Baker.

Mr. Assad on Wednesday delivered a scathing attack on the Iraqi invasion, descibing it as "unforgivable," and minimized the impact of the massive U.S. and Western troop deployment in the Gulf.

Just hours ahead of the Syrian leader's remarks, Iranian Spiritual Guide Ayatollah Ali Khamenei announced that Moslem popular resistance to U.S. troops in the Gulf would constitute holy war and said those who died in the struggle would be martyrs.

Syria was virtually Iran's only backer during the eight-year war Gulf war with Iraq. But while Damascus in the present Gulf crisis has maintained its long-standing antipathy to Baghdad, Iran is now showing signs of moving closer to its former adversary.

Ayatollah Khamenei's call for resistance to U.S. "hegemony" came as the influential Teheran Times newspaper, with close links to the government, reported that Iran was considering supplying Iraq with food and medicine in defiance of a United Nations trade embargo.

Iran condemned the Iraqi seizure of Kuwait but has now responded positively to Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's appeal for a jihad, or holy war, against the presence of U.S. troops stationed in Saudi Arabia.

In addition to a shared repugnance toward foreign military intervention, Iran may also be responding to a dramatic announcement by President Hussein on August 15 in which he in effect accepted Teheran's terms for a formal end to the Gulf war.

The announcement made possible a visit to Iran last Sunday by Iraqi Foreign Minister Tareq Aziz as part of Baghdad's campaign to enlist Iranian support in its confrontation with the West.

Ayatollah Khamenei's remarks Wednesday coincided with a statement by Iraq's supreme religious authority calling on Moslems to wage jihad against the United States and to drive its forces from Saudi Arabia, where Islamic holy sites in Mecca and Medina are located.

The presence of U.S. troops, the committee of Moslem clergymen declared, "sullies the holy places and does harm to Moslem dignity and honor."

The committee also ruled that Islam prohibited appeals for help to "unbelievers," a reference to requests for military assistance issued by Saudi Arabia following the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

But an international Moslem organization, the World Islamic Congress, shortly afterwards declared at a meeting in Mecca that Saudi Arabia was in fact authorized by Islamic law to call for help in its self-defense.

The Congress, made up of clergymen and thinkers and linked to the Organization of the Islamic Conference, argued that there were no foreigners at the holy sites in Mecca and Medina.

The estimated 100,000 U.S. troops have been deployed in the desert in eastern Saudi Arabia, where they are reported to have little or no contact with Saudi civilians.

In Damascus, President Assad dismissed concern over the presence of foreign forces in the Gulf, stressing that "the critical problem does not stem from their presence but is instead a strictly Arab problem -- the occupation of Kuwait."

For years a regional antagonist of the United States, Syria has been praised by Washington for its rejection of the Iraqi invasion and the visit of Mr. Baker to Damascus signals a dramatic improvement in its relations with the West.

AMMAN (SEPT. 13) - British Minister for Overseas Development Lynda Chalker said here Thursday she would urge British Airways and other European national carriers to help repatriate thousands of foreigners stranded in Jordan after fleeing Iraq and Kuwait.

"There are still people waiting to go home and international relief organisations cannot cope" with the influx, Mrs. Chalker told a press conference.

More than half a million foreigners fled to Jordan following the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait August 2.

Mrs. Chalker said Jordanian officials still expected a potentially catastrophic migration via the kingdom as an estimated 360,000 Egyptians and Asians wait in Iraq for their repatriation.

Her press conference was not attended by Jordanian journalists, who are boycotting British officials to protest what they contend are London's anti-Arab policies.

Local reporters walked out of a press conference here September 5 given by Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd.

Mrs. Chalker, who met with Interior Minister Salem Masa'deh, was due to leave for London on Friday.

JOHANNESBURG (SEPT. 13) - Namibian Foreign Minister Theo-Ben Gurirab Thursday said his government had spurned Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's weekend offer of free oil to Third World countries.

In an interview with South African SABC radio broadcast here, Mr. Gurirab said his government had condemned the August 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait as "unprovoked naked aggression".

"We saw it a blatant violation of the charter of the United Nations and therefore we supported the resolutions of the Security Council condemning Iraq and calling upon (it) to withdraw its forces so that the lawful government of Kuwait could be restored," he said.

The United States government has said the "free oil" offer made by Mr. Hussein reflects his desperation over economic sanctions imposed on Baghdad.

The Iraqi leader early this week offered Third World countries free oil if they made their own arrangements for shipping to get around a United Nations embargo.

Last week, higher world crude oil prices forced Namibia to put its petrol prices up by 10 cents a litre to 1.26 rand (49 U.S. cents) a litre.

MOSCOW (SEPT. 13) - The Soviet Union's deepening economic crisis could spark a military coup, according to reports here Thursday.

''The military-industrial complex will use its computers to calculate all the possibilities,'' said Literaturnaya Gazeta, ''and will come up with the computation that the safest and cheapest solution is a military coup.''

A key factor in such calculations is the spectre of ''tens of thousands of unemployed and homeless'' former troops and dependents following impending troop withdrawals from Eastern Europe.

The newspaper chided radical pro-reform activists for acting as though the Soviet army no longer exists.

''It is just amazing how we let the genie out of the bottle and then tug on his beard and think they can coax him back inside whenever we please,'' the newspaper observed.

In event of a coup, the Soviet paper added, ''The generals could only count on support from conservatives in society,'' meaning that pro-reform activists ''would have their toes stepped on.''

The weekly newspaper Moskovskiye Novosti, meanwhile, published a chronology for a potential military takeover, quoting representatives of the ''Shchit'' (Shield) organisation.

Under that plan, the paper said, liberal officers in the Soviet Army would hand over power to military officials on ''X-Day.'' Broadcast facilities would be seized and ''foreign mass media neutralized.''

Martial law would be imposed if any form of opposition arose, according to the paper.

''The rationalization would be that perestroika is in danger, that Gorbachev is leading the country to ruin and had wrecked the economy and betrayed the ideals of socialism,'' the paper wrote.

''An 'X-Day' may not even be necessary,'' it added, ''because the Soviet Union is already edging closer and closer to martial law - it is already a daily fact of life in many troubled redions.'' Continued economic malaise could make the populace ''beg for imposition of martial law.''

WOLFSBURG, WEST GERMANY (SEPT. 13) - West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl warned here Thursday against the European Community (E.C.) being opened to membership by all nations of Europe, saying the body could lose its political effectiveness.

At the opening session of the first International Partnerhip Initiative (Ipi) congress, Kohl said the E.C. must remain restricted to a few countries, otherwise it would degenerate into being merely a customs union.

Kohl was speaking to some 500 politicians, industrialists and economists from 36 countries meeting for two days for the first Ipi congress, titled ''Europe and The World In Upheaval''.

Earlier, Martin Bangemann, deputy chairman of the European Community Commission, said that the E.C. would be open to all democratic countries of Europe, including those of Eastern Europe.

But the E.C. first wanted to complete its ''Single Market'' project and so only starting after 1993 can consideration be given to taking on new members, Bangemann said.

Another speaker at the opening session, Czechoslovak Finance Minister Vaclav Klaus said Czechoslovakia will join the International Monetary Fund (Imf) and World Bank next week.

Klaus said the legislation for the Imf and World Bank memberships will be passed by the Czechoslovak parliament later Thursday.

He said that Czechoslovakia would rigorously pursue market economic reforms. Prices, capital transfers and foreign trade will be liberalised.

The Ipi congress on Friday will review North-South issues, with speakers including former West German Chancellor Willy Brandt, Club of Rome President Alexander King, and representatives sent by developing countries.

MONTPELLIER, FRANCE (SEPT. 13) - Some plant species can communicate with one another chemically and even warn of attackers, a South African zoologist claimed said here Thursday.

Speaking at the International Colloquium on the Tree, Wouter van Hoven of the University of Pretoria supported his thesis with his study of 3,000 antelopes that died of tannic acid poisoning in 1985 after dining on acacia leaves.

Van Hoven said he discovered that an acacia tree releases ethylene to warn other plants that it is being munched on. Ethylene is a gaseous substance important in many aspects of a plant's metabolism.

''This message can carry 50 metres'' van Hoven said. ''In less than 15 minutes the neighbour that's been warned increases the concentration of tannin in its leaves, which thereby become poisonous.''

Even plants of different species can communicate chemically, he said. Van Hoven's colleagues warned of making premature generalisations, however.

TOKYO (SEPT. 13) - The International Olympic Committee (IOC) reaffirmed Thursday that only African nations could determine when South Africa had gone far enough towards racial integration to be allowed back into the Olympics.

The IOC executive board, hearing a report from its commission on apartheid, agreed that the time was not yet right for South Africa's return to the Olympic movement.

The commission considered that legislation on racial segregation is still in force in South Africa and "it is not the time to alleviate sanctions," IOC director of information Michel Verdier said.

But she said the time was right for the IOC to make clear that "it is ready to open the door if significant changes take place" in South Africa's apartheid policy.

South Africa was expelled from the Olympics in 1970 because of apartheid and most other sports organizations later followed the IOC's lead.

The IOC executive board, which opened a four-day meeting here Thursday in the run-up to an annual full IOC session, stressed "it was up to the African sports organizations to tell the IOC when it will be time to have South Africa back," Verdier said.

IOC president Juan Antonio Samaranch has repeatedly said that a "solution will come from Africa," she added.

Samaranch said in Stockholm last week that South Africa would probably be re-admitted to the Olympics for the 1996 Games.

But an international conference on apartheid in the Swedish capital called for the boycott of South African sport to contine until satisfactory progress was made in dismantling apartheid.

Primo Nebiolo, president of the International Amateur Athletic Federation, said in Athens on Sunday the African athletic federation would hold talks with South Africans in Dakar after the African track and field championships in October.

MOSCOW (SEPT. 13) - West Germany and the Soviet Union initialed a treaty here Thursday spelling out future ties between the two countries - and guaranteeing the Soviet Union billions of Deutschmarks for the upkeep and housing of its troops.

In the ''treaty of good neighbourliness, partnership and cooperation'', the two nations promised ''never to use armed forces first against one another or against third nations'' and agreed to hold a summit every year.

They are also to provide the most favourable conditions for one another's business ventures.

Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze and Bonn counterpart Hans-Dietrich Genscher set their initials to the accord a day after the signature of an historic treaty between the Germanys and the four main World War Two allies on ''external aspects'' of German unity.

Wednesday's signing happened to take place precisely 35 years after West Germany and the Soviet Union established diplomatic relations. The Soviet-German treaty is to be formally signed by Chancellor Helmut Kohl and President Mikhail Gorbachev later.

On Thursday and Friday he will have meetings with President Wojciech Jaruzelski and Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki.

BRAZZAVILLE (SEPT. 13) - Police armed with clubs swept into the headquarters of the Congo's CSC trade union confederation on Thursday to stop protests a day after President Denis Sassou-Nguesso disbanded a CSC congress.

Witnesses saw other police units take up positions around the Brazzaville labour exchange, where trade union leaders tend to organize meetings and rallies.

General Sassou-Nguesso scrapped the CSC congress, which opened last Friday, because top unionists had refused to discuss leadership changes with him, officials said.

The confederation, a specialized organ of the ruling Labour Party ((PCT), had during its session called for the immediate introduction of multi-party politics and a national conference to debate democracy.

Delegates recommended the re-election of long-serving secretary-general Jean Michel Bokamba-Yangouma, but wanted all party central committee members holding CSC leadership posts expelled, as part of a bid to become independent of the government.

The Labour Party politburo had earlier agreed to an independent role for the confederation, conditional on changes to the constitution.

But it turned down the calls for political pluralism and at a meeting late Wednesday decided to scrap the confederation's permanent secretariat, party spokesman Paul Ngatse said.

The secretariat was replaced by a coordinating committee formed to run union affairs, but the politburo was not making the membership public, he said.

The party's number two, Lekoundzou Itihi Ossetoumba, said Gen. Sassou-Nguesso had taken the unionists' refusal to meet him as a "personel affront" and had "therefore decided to annul the congress", which had been due to end Thursday.

The Congo's military ruler opened the CSC congress with a warning to those too "impatient" to install a multi-party system. Constitutional changes and the legalization of new political parties are slated for early next year, after a PCT congress.

LAGOS (SEPT. 13) - Former Petroleum Resources Minister Tam David-West was Thursday arraigned before a special Nigerian military tribunal charged with corrupt enrichment while he was in office.

David-West, 54, was accused of abusing his office and contributing to the economic adversity of Nigeria by allowing Stinnes Interoil Inc., an American firm, to unlawfully withold 57,117,443 dollars.

That was the amount outstanding of a total of 157,117,443 dollars, the total value with interest of Nigerian crude oil lifted by Stinnes under an offshore processing agreement between it and the Nigerian National Petroleum Corporation (Nnpc).

The charge alleged that Stinnes paid only 100 million dollars of the 157,117,443 dollars and that David-West allowed the company to unlawfully withold the balance under the false claim that the outstanding amount ''represented the settled payment of damages for Nnpc breach of the 1984 contract with Stinnes despite strong evidence given that the alleged contract was non-existent.''

David-West, a professor of virology at Nigeria's prestigious University of Ibadan, vehemently expressed his innocence and pleaded not guilty to the charges.

Tribunal chairman, Justice Bello Gusau, ordered that David-West be remanded in prison custody until Monday when the tribunal would decide whether to grant David-West bail for the period of his trial.

CAIRO (SEPT. 13) - Seven officials of the Iraqi embassy in Egypt and their families were briefly detained at Cairo airport early Thursday as they were to board a regular Royal Jordanian flight to Amman, airport sources said.

About 20 diplomats and dependents were at first told they would be prevented from leaving but were later authorized to depart after contacts between the airport and foreign ministry, they said.

Officials gave no explanation for the hold-up.

A ministry official said earlier that Egyptian diplomats posted in Kuwait had abandoned the embassy there last week when vital supplies ran out.

But he stressed that the evacuation of embassy premises did not signal any change in Egypt's refusal to recognize Iraq's annexation of Kuwait.

Eight of the 22 embassies in Kuwait that defied an Iraqi order to shut down and relocate to Baghdad by August 24 have now been forced to announce provisional closures.

Iraq invaded Kuwait August 2 and later annexed the oil-rich emirate.

BAGHDAD (SEPT. 13) - Iraqi Foreign Minister Tareq Aziz met here Thursday with PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat to discuss the Gulf crisis, the official Iraqi News Agency (INA) reported.

Mr. Aziz and Mr. Arafat "examined the situation in light of the U.S. and Zionist presence on Arab land and in the holy sites of Nejd and Hejaz (Iraq's term for Saudi Arabia), as well as the danger and threat this presence represents for Arab national security," INA said.

The agency was referring to a massive, notably U.S., military buildup in Saudi Arabia and neighboring Gulf states sparked by Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Mr. Arafat arrived here Wednesday from Jordan where he held talks with King Hussein in a bid to seek a political solution to the confrontation between Iraq and the West.

The Palestine Liberation Organization has sided with Iraq on the divisive invasion issue and voted against the deployment of Arab troops in the region during an emergency Arab summit in Cairo on August 10.

GRONINGEN, NETHERLANDS (SEPT. 13) - The Dutch posts, telephone and telecommunications undertaking on Thursday reported a net interim profit of 742 million guilder (417 million dollars).

This represented an increase of 11 percent on the corresponding period of 1989 while sales rose by five percent to 6.8 billion guilder from 6.5 billion guilder.

Both postal and telecommunications operations contributed to the improvement, the company said.

MOSCOW (SEPT. 13) - Highly toxic gas poured into the atmosphere after an explosion touched off a fire in a factory producing fuel for a nuclear plant in the Soviet Central Asian republic of Kazakhstan, the Tass news agency reported.

It said authorities issued an emergency warning to residents to stay shut tight in their homes after the incident Wednesday, and the factory's ventilation systems were cut off to avoid contaminating the area.

The explosion occurred in the unit producing beryllium, a heat-resistant metal used in the construction of nuclear reactors, according to Tass which said both the fire and the gas leaks were brought under control in an hour-and-a-half.

The factory was situated in Oust-Kamenogorsk, near the city of Semipalatinsk.

Tass said there were only a few minor injuries and no one had been contaminated, but authorities would continue to test air samples.

It said beryllium production could produce "very toxic" gas leaks but that the level of radiation was normal.

MANILA (SEPT. 13) - Iraq has allowed Philippine Airlines (PAL) planes to land in Baghdad to evacuate Filipinos, the Manila government said Thursday as the state-run airline reported that it has evacuated 7,000 Filipinos from the Gulf.

The figure, which does not include those evacuated by foreign countries and relief organizations, represented less than 10 per cent of the total stranded in Kuwait and Iraq since the August 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

Iraqi ambassador to the Philippines Ali Sumaida informed Foreign Secretary Raul Manglapus that Baghdad has approved PAL landing at Baghdad airport to evacuate Filipino refugees and bring in food and medicine for the rest, foreign department spokesmen here said.

Philippine President Corazon Aquino also decided Thursday to ask Jordan to accredit more Filipino diplomats to augment the Philippine Embassy in Amman which is burdened by the huge influx of refugees, the foreign department said.

A statement by government-run PAL said it flew in Monday 373 passengers from the Gulf, bringing the total to 7,000, and that more are expected to arrive here later in the day via a PAL plane diverted from Europe.

PAL said it scheduled 11 more evacuation flights between September 14 and October 1, and that about 4,200 refugees can be accomodated on those flights.

On Wednesday a total of 478 contract workers and dependents, including four infants, arrived aboard a Boeing 747 chartered by the International Organization for Migration (IOM) following an appeal from Manila for international help.

Beijing (SEPT. 13) EFE - China has sent no food or medicines to Iraq since Baghdad ordered the invasion of Kuwait over a month ago, but it has not ruled out doing so in the future, a Foreign Ministry spokeswoman said Thursday.

The spokeswoman pointed out that the United Nations embargo against Iraq does not include humanitarian aid, reiterating the position taken by his government last week.

She said she knew nothing about Iraqi Deputy Prime Minister Taha Yasin Ramadan's supposed attempts to arrange for food and medicine shipments during his visit to China last week.

Western diplomats have said China might try to secure the exit of an estimated 5,000 Chinese trapped in Iraq and Kuwait with the shipment of food and medicine to Baghdad.

JERUSALEM (SEPT 13) EFE An Israeli military court Thursday opened the trial of a group of Palestinian guerrillas accused of launching an aborted attack in May on an Israeli beach resort.

Four of the 16-member attack force, who are alleged members of Abu Abbas' Palestine Liberation Front (PLF) guerrilla group, were shot dead by Israeli security forces as they attempted to land May 30 on the crowded beach near Tel Aviv.

According to a report Thursday by the Israeli daily Haaretz, the guerrilla group was also planning to attack the U.S. embassy, which is close to the beach, and several Jewish religious sites in Jerusalem.

Haaretz said the group had spent 18 months training in Libya prior to the attempted attack.

JERUSALEM (SEPT 13) EFE - The ex-head of Israel's Mossad secret service has claimed that Iraq is planning to use radical Palestinian guerrillas to kill Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak and Saudi Arabian King Fahd.

"Mubarak has acted bravely but this might cost him his life," former Mossad chief Rafi Eitan told Tel Aviv daily Haaretz in an interview published Thursday.

Egypt has been at the forefront of the Arab nations that are opposed to Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait and Mubarak has sent troops to Saudi Arabia to protect it from a possible Iraqi attack.

Eitan said that King Fahd might also be targeted for allowing the huge U.S. military presence on his soil.

Quoting another, unnamed, intelligence source, Haaretz said Israel has received information that Palestinian guerrilla leaders Abu Abbas, Abu Nidal, Abu Ibrahim and Abu Salam were all "cooperating" with Baghdad.

All those guerrillas have at one point belonged to the radical Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine.

Abu Abbas was believed to be reponsible for an aborted seaborne attack on a crowded Israeli beach in May.

An Israeli military court Thursday began the first day of the trial of 12 alleged memebrs of Abu Abbas' Palestine Liberation Front charged with the beach assault.

DUSSELDORF, WEST GERMANY (SEPT 13) EFE - Two tankers collided on the Rhine Thursday close to the industrial city of Dusseldorf, spilling 250 cubic meters of gasoline and creating a 37 kilometer-long slick, police said.

The authorities in Dusseldorf, 80 km north of Bonn, immediately declared an international alarm.

But emergency services were unable to contain the leakage and gasoline poured from the two ships for six hours until the remaning fuel was pumped into a support vessel.

The two ships were carrying a total of 1,000 tons of gasoline, and the cause of the accident is unknown, police said.

MOSCOW (SEPT 13) EFE - The foreign ministers of the Soviet Union and West Germany Thursday signed a friendship pact, agreeing never to use their armies against each other and not to side with an aggressor who attacks the other.

The agreement is perfectly in accord with the historic Two Plus Four treaty signed Wednesday, under which East and West Germany agreed that after unification their armies would be used "only in agreement with the constitution and the United Nations charter."

Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev and West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl are to sign the treaty after it has been ratified by their respective parliaments.

The friendship agreement also calls for wide-ranging cooperation in other areas, including politics, culture, society and ecology.

West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher said that the relations between the united Germany and the Soviet Union will be "much more than the simple sum of the relations between Moscow with Bonn and East Germany."

The new Germany is expected to become one of the Soviet Union's most important trading partners.

LONDON (SEPT. 12) XINHUA - BRITAIN IS NEGOTIATING A MULTI-BILLION-POUND DEAL WITH SAUDI ARABIA TO SUPPLY CHEMIAL WEAPON PROTECTION SUITS TO THE ARABIAN COUNTRY AS TENSION WAS MOUNTING IN THE GULF REGION, BRITISH OFFICIALS SAID TODAY.

THEY SAID THE CONTRACT BEING DISCUSSED INVOLVES EQUIPPING AND TRAINING AS MANY AS 10 MILLION PEOPLE WITH NUCLEAR, BIOLOGICAL AND CHEMICAL SUITS.

SAUDI ARABIA PLANS TO SEEK THE PROTECTION OF EVERY CITIZEN AS BRITAIN DID DURING THE SECOND WORLD WAR WITH DISTRIBUTION OF GAS MASKS TO EVERY MAN, WOMAN AND CHILD.

THE EQUIPMENT, CONSISTING OF A SUIT, GAS MASK, GLOVES, BOOTS, AND DETECTION AND DECONTAMINATION PACKS, WOULD COST 500 POUNDS (930 DOLLARS) FOR EACH.

THE NEGOTIATIONS IN SAUDI ARABIA FOR THE CONTRACT ARE BEING CONDUCTED BY BRITISH AEROSPACE (BAE) IN ASSOCIATION WITH THE EMBASSY'S DEFENSE SUPPLY OFFICE.

LONDON (SEPT. 13) XINHUA - THE SOVIET UNION HAS BEGUN IMPORTING GASOLINE FROM WORLD MARKET FOR THE FIRST TIME SINCE WORLD WAR TWO, OIL TRADERS SAID TODAY.

THE SOVIET UNION NORMALLY CUT BACK ITS GASOLINE EXPORTS DURING THE SUMMER. BUT COMPLETE VANISHING OF THEIR EXPORTS "IS VERY IRREGULAR," THE REUTERS QUOTED A TRADER AS SAYING. "WE HAVE NEVER SEEN THIS BEFORE," HE ADDED.

THE SOVIET UNION'S IMPORT OF GASOLINE FROM THE NORTHWEST EUROPEAN (NWE) MARKETS WAS REGARDED AS ONE OF THE REASONS FLARING UP THE GASOLINE PRICES.

ANALYSTS SAID THE SOVIET UNION, WHICH HAS ONE OF THE WORLD'S LARGEST OIL SECTORS, WOULD CONTINUE TO IMPORT GASOLINE IN SEPTEMBER AND OCTOBER. BUT IT MAY BE FINDING IT DIFFICUT TO COME UP WITH THE CASH TO PAY FOR THE IMPORTS, THEY SAID.

OIL EXPERTS ARE PUZZELED WHY THE SOVIET UNION TURNED TO THE WORLD GASOLINE MARKET. TECHNICAL PROBLEMS, STRIKES AND LACK OF INVESTMENT ARE AMONG THE SPECULATED REASONS.

LONDON (SEPT. 12) XINHUA - AFTER ALOMST 200 YEARS OF THE DEATH OF GREAT COMPOSER WOLFGANG AMADEUS MOZART, A BRITISH MEDICAL RESEARCH SAID TODAY THAT HE DIED OF KIDNEY DISEASE, DEFUSING THE ALLEGATION THAT HE WAS POISONED BY A RIVAL.

"THE EVIDENCE LENDS NO SUPPORT TO THE IDEA THAT HE WAS POISONED," THE LATEST ISSUE OF THE JOURNAL OF THE ROYAL SOCIETY OF MEDICINE SAID.

SALIERI, CONSIDERED MOZART'S GREAT RIVAL, CONFESSED IN OLD AGE TO POISONING THE YOUNG COMPOSER AT HIS AGE OF 35 ON DECEMBER 5, 1791, BUT LATER HE RETRACTED.

DR. MARY WHEATER, OF HINCHINGBROOKE HOSPITAL, HUNTINGDON, CAMBRIDGESHIRE, SAID IN HER ARTICLE PUBLISHED IN THE JOURNAL THAT HER EVIDENCE ENTIRELY EXONERATED SALIERI.

FROM HER REVIEW OF BIOGRAPHICAL AND HISTORICAL EVIDENCE, DR WHEATER FOUND THAT MOZART WAS A MAN BLIGHTED BY A SERIES OF ILLNESSES THAT BEGAN IN INFANCY.

YOUNG MOZART WAS A FRAIL, SICKLY CHILD WHO ALMOST DIED AT THE AGE OF TEN FROM WHAT WAS PROBABLY TYPHOID FEVER. HE HAD SMALLPOX WHEN HE WAS 12 AND JAUNDICE WHEN HE WAS 16.

"HE OFTEN WROTE UNTIL TWO IN THE MORNING AND ROSE AGAIN AT FOUR. THESE HABITS OF WORK ARGUE A ROBUST CONSTITUTION. THEY ARE NOT CONSISTENT WITH CHRONIC, DEBILITATING DISEASE," SHE WROTE.

BY JULY 1789, MOZART WAS COMPLAINING OF DEPRESSION, HEADACHES, TOOTHACHE AND MALAISE, AND HIS PRODUCTIVITY DECLINED, SHE SAID.

SHE SAID IF HE HAD BEEN POISONED, HIS SYMPTOMS WOULD HAVE INCLUDED SKIN BLEMISHES, THICKENING NAILS AND BURNING PAINS IN THE MOUTH AND THROAT, BUT THESE WERE NOT PRESENT.

"MY BELIEF IS THAT HE DIED AS A RESULT OF KIDNEY FAILURE," SHE SAID. IF HE HAD BEEN LIVING TODAY, HIS LIFE WOULD HAVE BEEN SAVED BY RENAL DIALYSIS OR A KIDNEY TRANSPLANT, SHE ADDED.

WELLINGTON (SEPT. 13) XINHUA - THE GULF CRISIS HAS FORCED NEW ZEALAND DAIRY EXPORTS TO THE MIDDLE EAST DOWN 20 PERCENT OR ABOUT 2.5 MILLION N.Z. DOLLARS (1.55 MILLION U.S. DOLLARS) IN THE PAST TWO WEEKS, THE LOCAL PRESS REPORTED.

THE FALL DID NOT INCLUDE THE EFFECTS OF THE TRADE BAN WITH IRAQ AND KUWAIT, ACCORDING TO NEVILLE NARTIN, SPOKESMAN FOR THE DAIRY BOARD OF NEW ZEALAND.

"UNCERTAINTY AMONG BUYERS AND REDUCED LENDING BY ARAB BANKS SEEMED TO HAVE CAUSED THE DROP IN SALES," MARTIN SAID.

IRAQ AND KUWAIT HAD BEEN EXPECTED TO TAKE 35 MILLION N.Z. DOLLARS (21.7 MILLION U.S. DOLLARS) WORTH OF NEW ZEALAND DAIRY PRODUCTS IN THE REST OF THIS SEASON.

THE FALLOUT FROM THE CRISIS HAD ALSO SPREAD TO OTHER MIDDLE EAST MARKETS, WHICH ON AVERAGE BOUGHT A TOTAL OF 6 MILLION N.Z. DOLLARS (ABOUT 1 MILLION U.S. DOLLARS) OF BUTTER, CHEESE AND MILK POWDER A WEEK FROM NEW ZEALAND.

HONG KONG (SEPT. 13) XINHUA- HONG KONG WILL CONDUCT A POPULATION CENSUS FROM MARCH 15 TO 24 NEXT YEAR.

A RECRUITMENT PROGRAM WILL BEGIN NEXT WEEK TO DRAW IN TEMPORARY ENUMERATION STAFF FOR THE CENSUS, BENJAMIN MOK, COMMISSIONER FOR CENSUS AND STATISTICS OF HONG KONG, SAID AT A LUNCHEON MEETING OF THE LIONS CLUB HERE TODAY.

DURING THE 10-DAY CENSUS PERIOD, CENSUS OFFICERS WILL VISIT ALL HOUSEHOLDS IN HONG KONG TO OBTAIN BASIC INFORMATION OF EACH FAMILY MEMBER SUCH AS AGE, SEX AND RELATIONSHIP TO HEAD OF THE HOUSEHOLD.

THE POPULATION OF HONG KONG AS AT THE END OF JUNE WAS ESTIMATED AT 5.8 MILLION BY THE CENSUS AND STATISTICS DEPARTMENT.

HE SAID POPULATION DATA COLLECTED BY A CENSUS WAS OF GREAT IMPORTANCE TO THE PLANNING OF GOVERNMENT DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS AND TO THE PRIVATE SECTOR.

"THE POPULATION CENSUS IS ESSENTIAL FOR PLANNING THE FUTURE OF HONG KONG.

"THE DATA WILL BE USED BY GOVERNMENT DEPARTMENTS TO FORMULATE POLICIES AS WELL AS TO PRIORITIZE ALLOCATION OF RESOURCES IN PROVIDING PUBLIC SERVICES.

"THE INFORMATION WILL ALSO BE USED BY THE BUSINESS SECTOR TO APPRAISE MARKET CONDITIONS AND BY ACADEMIC INSTITUTIONS TO CONDUCT RESEARCHES," HE SAID.

OVER 14,000 TEMPORARY ENUMERATION STAFF WILL BE REQUIRED TO CARRY OUT THE FIELD OPERATION.

THE RECRUITMENT PROGRAM WHICH RUNS FROM NEXT WEEK TILL MID-OCTOBER, IS TARGETED AT TEACHERS AND SENIOR STUDENTS IN SECONDARY SCHOOLS AND POST-SECONDARY INSTITUTIONS.

TRAINING WILL BE ARRANGED FROM THE END OF 1990 TO EARLY 1991 TO EQUIP THE ENUMERATION STAFF WITH THE NECESSARY KNOWLEDGE FOR CONDUCTING THE CENSUS PROPERLY.

TOKYO (SEPT. 13) KYODO - THE HEAD OF KDD, AN INTERNATIONAL TELECOMMUNICATIONS GIANT, EXPRESSED INTEREST THURSDAY IN THE ESTABLISHMENT OF A SATELLITE NETWORK BETWEEN JAPAN AND NORTH KOREA.

KDD PRESIDENT TAKAZO ISHII TOLD A PRESS CONFERENCE THAT THE COMPANY IS POSITIVE TOWARD THE PROJECT, A POSSIBLE ITEM ON THE AGENDA DURING A VISIT BY A RULING PARTY DELEGATION LED BY FORMER DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER SHIN KANEMARU TO NORTH KOREA FROM SEPTEMBER 24.

''WE HAVE NOT RECEIVED ANY REQUEST FROM THE GOVERNMENT (TO JOIN THE DELEGATION). BUT IF WE RECEIVE IT, WE ARE WILLING TO HANDLE IT POSITIVELY,'' ISHII SAID.

THE PROPOSED FORMATION OF A SATELLITE NETWORK IS NOT ONLY INTENDED TO IMPROVE TELECOMMUNICATIONS BETWEEN THE TWO COUNTRIES BUT ALSO SEEN AS A SYMBOL OF BILATERAL EFFORTS TOWARD BETTER RELATIONS BETWEEN THEM, INDUSTRY SOURCES SAID.

NORTH KOREA IS THE ONLY COUNTRY JAPAN IS STILL COMMUNICATING WITH THROUGH SHORTWAVE RADIO. SINCE THERE ARE ONLY FOUR LINES, THREE FOR TELEPHONE AND ONE FOR TELEGRAPH, IT USUALLY TAKES FOR AN INTERNATIONAL TELEPHONE CALL BETWEEN 30 MINUTES AND AN HOUR TO BE CONNECTED.

THE ABSENCE OF BILATERAL SATELLITE COMMUNICATIONS IS DUE MORE TO THE LACK OF POLITICAL TIES BETWEEN THE TWO NATIONS THAN TO TECHNICAL PROBLEMS, THE SOURCES SAID. NORTH KOREA HAS ALREADY OPENED SATELLITE LINES WITH WEST GERMANY, FRANCE, CHINA, SINGAPORE, AND HONG KONG.

JAKARTA (SEPT. 13) KYODO - FOREIGN COMPANIES ARE NOW PERMITTED TO SET UP ELECTRICITY PLANTS IN INDONESIA, MINISTER OF MINING AND ENERGY GINANDJAR KARTASASMITA WAS QUOTED BY ANTARA NEWS AGENCY AS SAYING THURSDAY.

THE MOVE IS AN ATTEMPT TO OVERCOME A SHORTAGE IN GOVERNMENT FUNDS FOR ELECTRICITY SUPPLY.

SOME OF THE 18 COMPANIES CURRENTLY PROPOSING TO INVEST IN THE ELECTRICITY INDUSTRY ARE FOREIGN, ANTARA QUOTED GINANDJAR AS SAYING.

THE MINISTER SAID PARTICIPATION BY PRIVATE INDONESIAN COMPANIES WOULD BE LIMITED TO THOSE WITH BIG CAPITAL RESOURCES AND JOINT COOPERATION WITH FOREIGN COMPANIES IS UNAVOIDABLE. HE DID NOT DISCLOSE WHICH COMPANIES HAVE PROPOSED SETTING UP NEW ELECTRICITY PLANTS.

HOWEVER, IN EARLY AUGUST, ANTARA REPORTED PREPARATORY MOVES TOWARD NEW ELECTRIC POWER GENERATION BY PRIVATE INTERESTS, INCLUDING SUMITOMO CORP., A MAJOR JAPANESE TRADING HOUSE.

THE GOVERNMENT POLICY OF ALLOWING THE PRIVATE SECTOR TO TAKE ON THE PRODUCTION OF ELECTRICITY ANTICIPATES AN ANNUAL 20 PERCENT INCREASE IN ELECTRICITY DEMAND WHEREAS THE GOVERNMENT IS ONLY ABLE TO INCREASE SUPPLY BY 15 PERCENT ANNUALLY.

TOKYO (SEPT. 13) KYODO - THE GROWTH PACE OF JAPAN'S PERSONAL SAVINGS SLOWED DURING THE APRIL-JUNE QUARTER FOR THE FIRST TIME IN NEARLY TWO YEARS, REFLECTING A SHRINKAGE IN POSTAL SAVINGS AND A SLUMP IN INVESTMENT TRUSTS, THE BANK OF JAPAN (BOJ) SAID IN A PRELIMINARY REPORT THURSDAY.

THE CENTRAL BANK SAID THE NATION'S NEW PERSONAL SAVINGS ROSE 12.39 TRILLION YEN DURING THE PERIOD, BUT THE PACE OF GROWTH DROPPED 3.8 PERCENT FROM A YEAR EARLIER, THE FIRST DECLINE IN THE GROWTH RATE SINCE THE JULY-SEPTEMBER PERIOD IN 1988.

AT THE END OF JUNE, THE BALANCE OF PERSONAL SAVINGS TOTALED 722.89 TRILLION YEN, UP 10.5 PERCENT FROM THE YEAR-EARLIER LEVEL.

THE SLOWER GROWTH IS ATTRIBUTABLE TO THE SHIFT OF FUNDS FROM POSTAL SAVINGS TO OTHER FINANCIAL VEHICLES AS WELL AS DECLINES IN INVESTMENT TRUSTS AGAINST THE BACKDROP OF THE WOBBLY STOCK MARKET, THE REPORT SAID.

DURING THE SECOND QUARTER OF THIS YEAR, POSTAL SAVINGS FELL 1.44 TRILLION YEN.

THE FOUNDERING STOCK AND BOND MARKETS LED THE BALANCE OF INVESTMENT TRUSTS TO SHOW A NET DECREASE OF 1.2 TRILLION YEN. THE BALANCE OF PUBLIC AND CORPORATE BONDS ALSO FELL 88.9 PERCENT.

IN CONTRAST, DEPOSITS IN THE PRIVATE SECTOR REGISTERED AN EXPANSION OF MORE THAN 10 TRILLION YEN, OR AN 81.1 PERCENT YEAR-ON-YEAR LEAP, AS INVESTORS POURED THEIR MONEY INTO THE POPULAR SMALL-LOT MONEY MARKET CERTIFICATES (MMCS) AND LARGE-LOT TIME DEPOSITS BECAUSE OF THEIR HIGHER YIELDS.

ASSESSING THE DATA, A BOJ OFFICIAL SAID THE DECLINE IN POSTAL SAVINGS AND THE BOOMING PRIVATE-SECTOR DEPOSITS DEMONSTRATE THE PREVALENCE OF INTEREST RATE-ORIENTED INVESTMENT, WHICH HE SAID HAS HEIGHTENED THE FLUIDITY OF FUNDS.

FALLS CHURCH, VA (SEPT. 13) MCS - A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2) MONEY & ECONOMY.

IN THE NEWS:

World stocks are flat to lower: ... The Nikkei is off 141 points. ... The FTSE is down 4 at midday. ... U.S. stocks trading in London are off slightly, with tobacco issues hurt by speculation of new tobacco taxes. ... Bonds are down to yielding 8.95%. ... North Sea crude is 50 cents higher. ... Budget negotiators resumed talks this morning at 8 a.m. EDT at Andrews Air Force Base. ... SEN. PHIL GRAMM (R. - Texas), who heads the Senate Budget Committee planned to address the U.S. CHAMBER OF COMMERCE on the budget at 7:45 a.m. EDT this morning. says the airline industry is in for a period of turbulence. ... ATLANTIC RICHFIELD agrees to pay ALASKA about $285 million to settle part of a 13-year-old suit over oil royalties.

WHAT'S AHEAD:

Leaders of UNITED AUTO WORKERS locals at GENERAL MOTORS plants have been summoned to a Monday meeting in Detroit amid speculation that a contract agreement might be near. ... ENERGY SECRETARY JAMES WATKINS is scheduled to testify before the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee on the Gulf situation at 9:30 a.m. EDT. ... FEDERAL RESERVE BOARD CHAIRMAN ALAN GREENSPAN will testify before the House Banking Committee on the banking deposit insurance system beginning at 10 a.m. EDT.

FROM THE BULLS:

"Everyone's hesitant to do anything," says MARSHALL ACUFF, SMITH BARNEY portfolio strategist. "The market just bounces from perception to perception. It's just a very quiet market. Sentiment is negative, people are depressed, hesitant and that to me is probably the most bullish thing going." Acuff notes that any positive developments could spark a buying spree. (Reuters, 9/12)

"According to our technical analysts, we could expect a move here of anywhere from 100 to 200 points on the Dow Jones Industrial Average and it could be that the announcement [of a budget accord] could be a trigger for that rally," says HILDEGARD ZAGORKSI, market analyst for PRUDENTIAL-BACHE SECURITIES. (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 9/12)

FROM THE BEARS:

"There's generally no positive news and no expectation of positive news on the horizon," says CHRISTOPHER PEDERSEN, director of trading at TWENTY-FIRST SECURITIES. "There's no reason to buy" and sellers are having a hard time getting out at desirable prices. (WSJ, 9/13)

STOCK MARKET:

"The stock market's trend is sideways at this time," says RAO CHALASANI, chief investment strategist with PRESCOTT, BALL & TURBEN INC. "I feel the downside risk is perhaps 2400 in the Dow, the upside potential 2900. His firm's model portfolio is 30% cash, an unusually high level. The rest is allocated to 40% stocks and 30% bonds. ("Investor's Daily", 9/13)

The market is being driven by news and rumor, says NEWTON ZINDER, market analyst at SHEARSON LEHMAN. How stocks move on the next big volume day could indicate the near-term direction, says Zinder. "I suspect we're going to be bored to death for a while. There's no great incentive for investors to step in and do any aggressive buying." With light volume on down days, Zinder says stocks are sold out. He sees support in the mid-2500s with heavy resistance in the ^{mid-2600s. Even if that is taken out, Zinder says 2700 is the best stocks could do. (FNN "World Business Update", 9/13)

"The market is absorbing this litany of one negative development after another and is holding pretty firm," says ROBERT STOVALL, president of STOVALL/TWENTY-FIRST ADVISERS. "Either it sees through all these nearby negatives and finds reason to hold or to buy, or it will break under the weight of pessimism." (NYT, 9/13)

"Even if we can break back out to the upside, I think that would be short-lived and I am not all that confident that upside breakout will occur," says technical analyst WALTER MURPHY of MERRILL LYNCH. "We may have done what we need to do just over the course of the past couple of days." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 9/12)

The market "is basically in a trading range. It is almost a stable market," says MONTE GORDON, director of research of the DREYFUS CORP. He believes that the market is beginning to accept $30-a-barrel oil. "I don't think extreme bearishness is warranted at this particular point. I think we are stronger and better able to deal with our problems than many people give us credit for." (FNN's "Marketwrap", 9/12)

"The market's still in the same quandary," says RICHARD MEYER, head of institutional trading at LADENBURG, THALMANN & CO. "Without news, the market has no direction in which to go." (WSJ, 9/13)

"It was a pretty slow day [Wednesday] but I think the market wants to go higher," says technical analyst PAUL KRONLOKKEN of PIPER JAFFRAY & HOPWOOD. Block trader JOHN SCHRAFF at DAIWA SECURITIES says, "All told, the market is going to stay in the range of Dow 2590-2650 until something big happens." ("The Washington Post", 9/13)

"The market's dull, choppy, and everybody's just watching the news," says JIM O'NEILL, co-manager of OTC trading for ROBINSON-HUMPHREY CO. (WSJ, 9/13)

"People won't want to put more money to work or raise cash until they get a better idea how the Middle East will unfold and what will come out of the budget negotiations," says SID DORR, trader at CHARLES SCHWAB. ("USA Today", 9/13)

"There's extreme investor apathy," says EDWARD SHOPKORN, general partner in charge of MABON NUGENT's institutional equities. If this Mideast thing doesn't get resolved the [stock] market has no place to go but down." (Reuters, 9/12)

"The market does get used to things" like the $30-a-barrel oil, says AL FRANK of "The Prudent Speculator." "We can be in this trading range and go up to "2700ish" as a rebound from the big selloff and then see how much the market is held hostage by Mideast affairs and by oil. If things really settle down then the price of oil is too high, for the amount of oil being produced now and that is in the world. [The high oil price] is anticipating troubles which we may or may not have." He says if there is a resolution the Dow could go to 3200 this year. (FNN's "Marketwrap", 9/12)

STOCK TIPS:

Concerns about IBM's new mainframe computer and the threat of Japanese competition have depressed the stock's performance. But STEPHEN SMITH, computer analyst for PAINEWEBBER, says company management successfully addressed those issues last week. "Even in a down market, IBM is going to be a significant outperformer over the next few months," says Smith who sees the stock headed to 130-140 per share. While a recession could threaten demand, a weaker dollar could help export sales of U.S. computer and telecommunications equipment. For long-term investments he likes "quality" computer stocks like HEWLETT-PACKARD, which has been down recently, and TANDEM, a recent earnings disappointment. (CNN "Business Morning", 9/13)

"USA Today" focuses on health care companies this morning in its "industry spotlight" feature. Relying on a number of analysts, the paper lists these "healthy stocks" - U.S. HEALTH CARE, UNITED HEALTH CARE, CAREPLUS, NICHOLS INSTITUTE, HOME NUTRITIONAL SERVICES, NATIONAL HEALTH LABS, NEW ENGLAND CRITICAL CARE and UNITED MEDICORP. ("USA Today", 9/13)

JOSEPH McALINDEN, director of securities research at DILLON READ, believes that higher oil prices stemming from Iraq's invasion of Kuwait will trigger more capital spending for energy-related investments. Oil drilling and related storage and transmission equipment is one obvious example. Specifically, McAlinden recommends CBI INDUSTRIES INC. which supplies processing equipment to the energy and paper industries. Their net income was up 60% in the first half of this year. (WSJ, 9/13)

GOLDMAN SACHS analyst RICK SHERLUND and SHEARSON LEHMAN BROTHERS analyst DAVID READERMAN repeated their buy recommendations on MICROSOFT CORP. Mr. Sherlund expects that sales of Microsoft's highly successful Windows 3.0 software this quarter could rapidly accelerate from the June quarter according to the Dow Jones Professional Investor Report. (WSJ, 9/13)

"If I were trading stock I might want to be out of the airline stocks," says AL FRANK of "The Prudent Speculator." He also says that he sold a few of his oil stocks. "They are fully priced and we don't want to take the chance that they are going to be hit too hard." Among the stocks that he likes are CALIFORNIA MICROWAVE and MARK IV INDUSTRIES. He would buy California Microwave up to 8 1/2 a share "because it is trading for 8 times the next four quarters earnings." He notes that this stock is under a little pressure because it is a defense stock. Mark IV Industries he would buy up to 10 3/8. "It is very cheap. It is selling for 6.6 times earnings." (FNN's "Marketwrap" 9/12)

"The Middle East crisis is a moderate positive for metals, assuming there is little or no escalation in hostilities," says CLARENCE MORRISON, analyst at PRUDENTIAL-BACHE SECURITIES. ("USA Today", 9/13)

RICHMOND, VA (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Mt. Vernon Plastics Corporation, a subsidiary of Reynolds Metals Company (NYSE: RLM), today opened a $15 million plastics thermoforming plant in Sparks, Nev., that will employ 150 people by year's end.

The 128,000 square-foot facility will produce a variety of products including injection-molded plastic overcaps for canned coffee, margarine tubs, canned nuts and tennis ball cans; thermoformed plastic containers for margarine, yogurt and deli products; and plastic microwave trays.

"This expansion further positions Reynolds in the plastic container market," says Robert L. Waldrop, vice president and general manager of Reynolds Flexible Packaging Division. "The expansion will offer potential for new plastic consumer products and further strengthen Reynolds broad mix of foodservice and direct customer packaging products."

Waldrop emphasized that the expansion also is in line with Reynolds commitment to diversify its packaging product mix. "This new plant emphasizes that Reynolds is a full-service packaging company," he says. "In addition, with a major plastics operation in Nevada, our West Coast customers can be more efficiently and economically served."

Mt. Vernon Plastics operates as a unit of Reynolds Flexible Packaging Division and has sales of about $50 million. Its Mt. Vernon, Ky., plant, similar in operation to the new Sparks facility, has over 400 employees.

PHOENIX, ARIZ. (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Hospitality Capital Corp. ("HCC") (Philadelphia: HCCX) announced that it has acquired International Environmental Corp. ("IEC"), headquartered in Phoenix.

IEC, a privately held company founded in 1987, is a leading regional provider of asbestos abatement services in the West and Southwest. IEC's clients include state agencies, school districts, and Fortune 500 clients.

On a preliminary basis, IEC had net income of $84,700 on revenues of $6,010,000 for the fiscal year ended Dec. 31, 1989 compared with a loss of $229,700 on revenues of $1,570,500 in 1988. IEC has approximately $2,500,000 in assets and a net worth of approximately $900,000. For the six months ended June 30, 1990, IEC had revenues of $509,400 and a loss of $120,500.

IEC spent most of the first six months of the year in acquiring larger bonding capability to allow it to comply with a change in bonding procedures for government and larger private projects. This strategy is designed to permit IEC to bid on such jobs, which have relatively fewer bidders than smaller contracting jobs. To implement its plan, IEC required additional capital, which was obtained in conjunction with its transaction with HCC.

In the transaction, HCC acquired all of the issued and outstanding shares of IEC for 18,800,000 restricted shares of HCC common stock, which makes IEC a wholly owned subsidiary of HCC. In connection with the foregoing transaction HCC also completed a private placement to reduce debt and increase its working capital through the sale of approximately 7,600,000 restricted shares.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - John G. McMillian, chairman and chief executive officer announced today that Allegheny & Western Energy Corporation's (NASDAQ: ALGH) ("the company") wholly owned subsidiary, TEX-HEX Corp., recently completed a horizontal well, the Lane No. 4 (on the acreage acquired from Tipperary Oil and Gas Company in November 1989), in the Austin Chalk formation located in LaSalle County, South Texas. McMillian said, "The initial results of this well are extremely encouraging and support the viability of the company's new direction into horizontal drilling." The Lane No. 4 well tested at a rate of 2,050 barrels of oil per day and 920 thousand cubic feet of natural gas per day. The well had a horizontal extension of 4,400 feet in the Austin Chalk.

Two other wells recently drilled and completed, the Dickson No. 5 and the Brown "A" No. 5R, both located in Frio County, are also on the acreage acquired from Tipperary. The Dickson No. 5 tested at a rate of 385 barrels of oil per day and 240 thousand cubic feet of natural gas per day as well as 262 barrels of water per day. The Brown "A" No. 5R has been completed but is awaiting a potential test. Both wells are still recovering water attributable to drilling operations. The company is also drilling two wells in Dimmit County on approximately 19,000 gross mineral acres located in Dimmit and Zavala counties in Texas acquired in February of this year in which the company is the operator and has approximately a 50 percent working interest. This acreage is different from the 8,000 net mineral acres acquired from Tipperary.

The company's after payout net revenue interest in the three recently drilled wells on the Tipperary acreage ranges from approximately 19 percent to 31 percent and its working interest ranges from approximately 25 percent to 50 percent. TEX-HEX is the operator of all of the company's Austin Chalk acreage. Its net revenue interest in future wells currently ranges as high as 80 percent and its working interest ranges as high as 100 percent.

McMillian went on to say "The company is well positioned with mineral rights to approximately 35,000 gross acres which have been acquired since November 1989 and are under lease by TEX-HEX Corp." The company's acreage is located in Frio, Dimmit, LaSalle, Zavala and Gonzales counties in Texas. Included in the company's gross acreage are mineral rights to approximately 7,200 gross acres recently acquired in Gonzales County in two contiguous blocks in which the company has a 100 percent working interest. Wells drilled by others within five miles of the Gonzales prospect have been tested successfully including one that tested at 12,254 barrels per day in May 1990; however, no assurances can be given as to the company's production from this prospect.

Allegheny & Western Energy Corporation, based in Charleston, W. Va., conducts oil and gas exploration and development in Texas and West Virginia and owns Mountaineer Gas Company, the largest gas distribution utility in West Virginia operating approximately 3,600 miles of natural gas distribution pipeline.

MINNEAPOLIS (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - VeriFone Inc. (NASDAQ: VFIC) today convened its second annual Transaction Automation Industry Conference, bringing together senior executives from the company's global customer base. The theme of this year's conference, "Mapping the Next Decade: New Strategies for Adding Value," will provide a platform for the open discussion of new technologies, relationships, markets and opportunities for all users and providers of Transaction Automation products and services.

"We launched this event last year to give our customers an opportunity to focus on key issues facing our industry in the 1990s, exchanging ideas with us and with each other," explained Hatim Tyabji, president and chief executive officer of VeriFone. "Our company's growth and success are the direct result of listening to our customers and responding to their needs. The Transaction Automation Industry Conference allows us to reinforce our strategic partnerships with these companies, many of which are the leaders of their respective industry segments. Together we can drive the Transaction Automation market worldwide."

The conference participants represent a variety of Transaction Automation market segments, from banking, retail and network services to petroleum, health care and government benefits. Industry Speakers

The featured speaker at the conference will be James Treybig, president and chief executive officer of Tandem Computers Inc., the leading supplier of computer systems and networks for on-line transaction processing (OLTP), large data base applications, and the UNIX(R) systems marketplace. Treybig's address, to be delivered after a special dinner on Thursday, will focus on OLTP in the 1990s and its implications for Transaction Automation.

On Friday morning, Russell Hogg, the former president and chief executive officer of MasterCard International and now an industry consultant, will discuss global trends and issues in card acceptance.

The conference will also include presentations from VeriFone management, including Tyabji and Ashok Narasimhan, vice president of market and product development. Dich Tran, director of vending, will discuss prepaid cards as an emerging market opportunity for Transaction Automation. Panel Sessions

A number of VeriFone customers will participate in panel discussions to be held during the two-day conference. Representatives from the end-user community will discuss Transaction Automation applications for supermarkets and the international petroleum industry. A panel of transaction service providers will present their views on the use of value-added services to gain a competitive advantage, and a panel of telecommunications service providers will examine various innovative technologies that are now available for expanding the Transaction Automation market. The Company

VeriFone Inc., based in Redwood City, Calif, is a leading supplier of Transaction Automation systems used to deliver payment processing and other financial services to the retail and petroleum industries worldwide. In addition, VeriFone is developing new market segments for Transaction Automation, such as fast food, health care and government. BEAVERTON, ORE. (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - FPS Computing (NYSE, PSE: FLP) today reported third quarter revenue of $11.5 million, compared to $11.8 million for the second quarter, and a loss of $2.9 million compared to a second quarter loss of $1.9 million.

During the quarter, the company received $14.5 million from the sale of 9.67 million shares of preferred stock to an institutional investor. Proceeds from this financing will be employed primarily as working capital as the company continues its intensive product development program and expands its sales and marketing activities. Long term debt has been reduced by $2.7 million from the financing proceeds.

"During the quarter we announced an important new working relationship with Sun Microsystems," said Howard Thrailkill, FPS Computing's President and Chief Executive Officer. "Our agreement with Sun allows us to provide widely accepted SPARC(TM) technology to customers for our next generation of UNIX(TM) supercomputer systems. Current FPS customers have generally applauded this new direction with the migration tools we are providing, and the broad base of initial demand from the SPARC user community has been very gratifying," he stated. "It is difficult to predict how this will affect the Company's quarterly revenue levels as we bring these new systems to market early next year, but our recently announced sales and marketing agreement with Sun should provide momentum to their launch." FPS also acknowledged that joint sales calls and marketing seminars have begun with Sun and that its relatively high levels of product development and marketing expenditures would be continued.

During the quarter, FPS announced sales of Model 500EA UNIX supercomputer systems to customers in the United States, Japan and Europe, including sales to Lockheed Missiles & Space Co. Inc., Canon Sales Co. Inc. and ETH Zurich. The company also stated that its growing installed base of Model 500 systems has begun to offer a significant source of upgrade, add-on and maintenance revenue.

FPS Computing has one of the largest installed bases of high performance computing equipment in the industry. The firm designs, manufactures and markets high performance computing solutions for scientific, engineering and technical applications. The FPS Computing product line includes UNIX supercomputers and array processors. Founded in 1970 as Floating Point Systems Inc., FPS Computing is headquartered in Beaverton and is listed on the New York and Pacific Stock Exchanges.

WASHINGTON, D.C. (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - CMS Energy Corporation Chairman and Chief Executive Officer William T. McCormick Jr. today urged Congress to amend the Public Utility Holding Company Act (PUHCA) for the purpose of expanding future electric supply options in the electric generation market and increasing competition in the electric industry.

Speaking on behalf of a coalition of independent power producers, industrial energy users, natural gas interests and utilities, McCormick stated that amending the nation's holding company act governing utilities will benefit electric customers by providing the most efficient, clean, reliable and low-cost electricity available.

The group is calling for specific modifications to PUHCA that would allow for independent power plants to be built along with qualifying facilities and traditional rate-based plants, giving consumers the benefits of a more competitive system. Specifically, the group urges:

- New Class of Exempt Facilities - Independents, utility subsidiaries and registered and exempt utility holding company subsidiaries should be able to build and operate IPPs without being subjected to the regulatory burdens of PUHCA or without jeopardizing their status as QFs under the Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act (PURPA). Purchases from IPPs should only be voluntary and should be eligible for market pricing.

- Enhanced Competition - To ensure the maximum benefit to consumers, there must be enhanced competition in the market. PUHCA legislation must not result in a market that is biased in favor of, or subject to the control of, any power producer. Regulatory authority should be relied on, if necessary, to ensure that the market results in arm's-length, competitive transactions.

- Transmission - The group recognizes that enhanced competition in power generation has raised the issues of transmission access and pricing. They also recognize the significant activity on these issues, such as the Office of Technology Assessment Report, the FERC Transmission Task Force Report, proposals made by a number of utilities and others, and proceedings of state commissions. The group believes that the provision of transmission service should be nondiscriminatory - that is, they embrace the principle that the provision of transmission services should not be used to unfairly advantage any power generator in the competition for wholesale electric generation contracts.

The enactment of PURPA in 1978 stimulated competition in the electric industry. During the past decade, qualifying facilities (QFs) under PURPA have reliably supplied over 31,000 megawatts of electric generating capacity, or nearly 25 percent of our nation's new electric generating capacity over that period. The U.S. Department of Energy and others agree that our nation will require an additional 100,000 to 150,000 megawatts of new electric generating capacity by the year 2000. This rapidly growing demand means that unnecessary regulatory constraints on independent power generation must be eliminated. The restrictions on size, location and technology imposed by PURPA limit the ability of electric power suppliers to provide adequate, efficient and economical energy to meet this demand.

In July 1989, Sen. J. Bennett Johnston introduced the competitive Wholesale Electric Generation Act. Congressmen Billy Tauzin, Tom Bliley and Rick Boucher introduced similar legislation in the House in November 1989.

The group applauds Sen. Johnston and Congressmen Tauzin, Bliley and Boucher for their introduction of PUHCA reform legislation. The group has two primary goals: 1) to assist Congress as it grapples with the complex policy considerations involved in this issue; and 2) to demonstrate that many in the energy community are united on a number of these issues as well as in their determination to seek these changes.

While differences of opinion may exist among group members about the details of PUHCA reform, all are committed to the expansion of competition in wholesale power generation.

CMS Energy Corporation (NYSE: CMS) is a $3 billion (sales) diversified energy company with businesses engaged in the distribution of electricity and natural gas, interstate storage and transmission of natural gas, oil and gas exploration and production, independent power generation and utility services. CMS Energy Corporation's principal subsidiary is Consumers Power Company, Michigan's largest utility and the nation's fourth-largest combination utility.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - David O. Maxwell, chairman and chief executive officer of Fannie Mae (Federal National Mortgage Association (NYSE: FNM), today said the Treasury/OMB proposal to set capital standards for government-sponsored enterprises (GSEs) should now be dropped and replaced by a comprehensive discussion among all parties interested in the careful regulation and adequate capitalization of the enterprises.

In remarks at an investor conference sponsored by Smith Barney, Maxwell pointed out Moody's Investors Service had rejected the Treasury/OMB proposal that private rating agencies establish capital standards for GSEs.

In a letter made public yesterday, Moody's Executive Vice President Thomas J. McGuire wrote: "While Moody's understands the desire for increased financial responsibility for GSEs, we do not believe it is appropriate to use credit ratings as such in pursuit of this objective....The ratings that Treasury would get -- although superficially objective -- would in reality reflect the political and social biases of a group of unelected individuals who have no particular competence to make political judgments." The letter was addressed to Henry B. Gonzalez, chairman of the House Banking Committee.

Maxwell pointed out that, when the Treasury/OMB originally proposed its GSE plan, Fannie Mae, and others, "said it was poor public policy."

"Now Moody's has stated its emphatic agreement with this position," he said.

At the end of the second quarter of 1990, Fannie Mae's capital was $4 billion, including $494 million in loan loss reserves. Maxwell said the company was well on its way to the goal he announced in February of adding $2.0 to $2.5 billion to capital in 1990 and 1991, through a combination of retained earnings and growth in loan-loss reserves.

DALLAS (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - The Southland Corporation said today that its previously announced exchange offers have been extended to expire at midnight New York time on Tuesday, Sept. 25, 1990, unless further extended. The company also announced that Ito-Yokado Co., Ltd., Seven-Eleven Japan Co., Ltd. and Southland have mutually agreed to extend the termination date of their previously announced stock purchase agreement to Sept. 25, 1990.

As of midnight on Sept. 12, the following securities had been tendered: 13-1/2 percent senior extendible reset notes -- 92.67 percent, or $488,925,703 principal amount ($255,098,600 by guarantee); 15-3/4 percent senior subordinated notes -- 67.65 percent, or $236,792,000 principal amount ($35,812,000 by guarantee); 16-1/2 percent senior subordinated discount notes -- 65.27 percent, or $262,540,000 principal amount ($89,634,000 by guarantee); 16-3/4 percent subordinated debentures -- 49.77 percent, or $248,873,000 principal amount ($67,482,000 by guarantee); 18 percent junior subordinated discount debentures -- 53.42 percent, or $39,155,000 principal amount ($10,340,000 by guarantee); and 15 percent cumulative exchangeable preferred stock -- 94.53 percent, or 13,050,054 shares (1,746,080 by guarantee).

Under the exchange offers, Southland bondholders and preferred stockholders are being offered new debt securities and approximately 25 percent of newly issued Southland common stock. Existing stockholders would retain approximately 5 percent of the company's common stock, and, following consummation of the exchange offers, Ito-Yokado and Seven-Eleven Japan would purchase 70 percent of the stock for $430 million in cash.

In addition, Southland announced that the special meeting for holders of its preferred stock was adjourned to 10:00 p.m. Dallas time on Tuesday, Sept. 25, 1990, at 2711 North Haskell Ave., Southland's headquarters in Dallas. Recordholders of preferred stock as of the close of business on July 13, 1990, will be eligible to vote at the meeting in person or by proxy. If the exchange offers are extended again, the company intends to further postpone or adjourn the special meeting so that it will occur on the expiration date of the exchange offers.

This announcement does not constitute an offer to sell or to buy any security or the solicitation of any consents or proxies, which offers and consent or proxy solicitation shall only be made by means of a proxy statement/prospectus.

TROY, MICH. (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Kmart Corporation (NYSE: KM) and OfficeMax, Inc. today announced an agreement in principle for the purchase by Kmart of an approximate 22 percent interest in OfficeMax, an office supply superstore chain, for an undisclosed amount of cash. OfficeMax also agreed to acquire the Office Square business of a Kmart subsidiary.

The agreement is subject to completion of definitive agreements and to approval of the directors of the respective companies and shareholders of OfficeMax, as well as to any required governmental approvals.

Provisions of the agreement give Kmart the right to acquire additional equity in OfficeMax within specified time frames.

Kmart Chairman of the Board and Chief Executive Officer Joseph E. Antonini said, "Kmart's investment in a minority ownership position of OfficeMax represents a partnership of two fine organizations. Large- size office supply stores represent an exciting growth opportunity for Kmart. Our investment in such a well-established company will enhance our position in this rapidly expanding business. These superstores are expected to capture an increasing share of the growing office supply and equipment market in the years ahead."

OfficeMax is a privately held suburban Cleveland-based office supply superstore chain operating 34 stores in seven states, with previously announced plans to grow to approximately 65 stores by the end of its July 1991 fiscal year. OfficeMax was founded in April 1988 by Michael Feuer, the company's president, and Robert Hurwitz, chairman. The company opened its first store in July 1988 in a Cleveland suburb and today is the dominant office supply superstore operator in the Midwest. OfficeMax stores average approximately 23,000 square feet and feature over 6,000 office supply items, furniture and electronics at everyday low prices which are typically 50 percent less than the manufacturers' suggested list price.

Kmart Corporation serves America with over 4,000 retail outlets in all 50 states in the United States and in Puerto Rico and Canada. Kmart, currently operating 2,330 Kmart stores, is also the parent company for Pay Less Drug Stores, Builders Square, Waldenbooks, PACE Membership Warehouse Clubs and The Sports Authority. Kmart Corporation's stock is listed on the New York, Pacific, Midwest and Tokyo stock exchanges. Its trading symbol is KM.

PITTSBURGH (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Chambers Development Company Inc. (AMEX: CDVB), a leading national environmental services firm, today announced that it has agreed to acquire the stock of Remote Landfill Services Inc. in Oliver Springs, Anderson County, Tenn., near Knoxville and Oak Ridge.

Remote Landfill Services Inc., has a permit from the Tennessee Department of Health and Environment to construct and operate a 135-acre sanitary landfill, located on a 260-acre site, in Anderson County.

The landfill will be constructed using modern technology, employing a double synthetic liner over a two-foot clay base.

The Anderson County facility which will meet or exceed proposed federal standards and all Tennessee regulations, is located approximately 25 miles west of Knoxville, company officials said, adding the landfill is expected to be operational by mid-1991.

Chambers anticipates completing the acquisition after the resolution of certain litigation that currently is outstanding against Remote Landfill Services.

Company officials reported that engineers have performed stringent geotechnical tests and determined that the site is environmentally excellent for landfill use.

"The site's outstanding characteristics and its service area make it a valuable asset for environmental safety in Tennessee and to Chambers," said Alexander Rangos, Chambers executive vice president.

Rangos said the landfill represents an important opportunity for Chambers to enter a new market area and an important step in the company's strategy to offer services in major markets.

The acquisition marks Chambers first activity in Tennessee. Chambers Development Company, headquartered in Pittsburgh, with a major regional office in Atlanta, offers services in recycling, collection, hauling, disposal and landfill development. The company's southern operations include landfills, as well as collection and hauling operations in Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Texas and Mississippi.

The company also provides security services through its wholly owned subsidiary, Security Bureau Inc., one of the largest U.S. security firms.

ATLANTA (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Courier Dispatch Group Inc. (NASDAQ: CDGI) today reported results for the fourth fiscal quarter ended June 30.

Operating revenues were $13,082,000 compared to $12,307,000 for the same quarter last year. Net income for the quarter amounted to $166,000 or $.07 per share vs. $188,000 or $.07 per share for last year.

For the 12 months ended June 30, operating revenues were $50,355,000 or 7 percent over last year's $47,068,000. Net income was $458,000 or $.18 per share compared to $723,000 or $.28 per share for the same period last year.

In commenting on the quarter, Paul R. Dean, president and chief executive officer, stated: "Although the results for the year were below original expectations, we were able to see some improvement in earnings performance for the final quarter which was in line with more current expectations."

Dean went on to say: "Operating revenues continued to be somewhat flat through the fourth quarter, in part reflecting continuing pricing pressures from competition in most of the company's markets. Insurance costs, in addition to other operating expenses, continue to increase at rates presently beyond our ability to keep pace through improved operating revenues. Fuel prices were in line with expectations for both the quarter and the year. Looking into the new fiscal year, we have seen sharply rising fuel prices following the August Mid-East crisis, yet to this point, we have been able to offset these increases by passing them along to our customers in the form of temporary fuel surcharges. Needless to say, we're watching the changing situation very closely," Dean commented.

With respect to certain of its operating divisions, Dean stated: "The company's Minnesota operation continues to show improvement and is now consistently profitable. Our New England operation, however, continues to be unprofitable although it has shown much lower losses going into the new fiscal year due to improved operating efficiencies as well as strengthened sales results. We hope to see profitability during the new fiscal year.

"All major operating units are presently profitable with the exception of New England. The company as a whole has been strengthened by the acquisition of two courier companies in the fourth quarter. In particular, the acquisition of Birmingham, Ala.-based Errand Express has shown exciting profit results from inception," said Dean.

In closing, Dean also announced the recent change in responsibility of its Chairman and Founder Patrick L. Connolly, age 76. "Mr. Connolly will continue as chairman of the board but will no longer be involved in the day-to-day operations of the company. The company is grateful to Mr. Connolly for his past contributions and looks forward to continuing its relationship on this new basis."

Courier Dispatch Group Inc. is a full service courier organization providing both scheduled and on-call ground and air courier services for transporting time-sensitive documents of its customers. The company conducts air courier services in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Maine, Massachusetts, Minnesota, New Hampshire, North Carolina, North and South Dakota, and Rhode Island.

CANTON, OHIO (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Diebold, Incorporated (NYSE: DBD) and International Business Machines Corporation (NYSE: IBM) today announced completion of their joint venture, named InterBold(TM), which will provide automated teller machines (ATMs) and financial self-service systems worldwide. Terms of the joint venture agreement were not disclosed.

Diebold owns the majority of InterBold with IBM owning the remaining substantial minority. InterBold will begin operating immediately from its headquarters in North Canton, Ohio.

InterBold will offer a full complement of products, from low-end, cash-dispensing equipment to high-end, full function ATMs. In the United States, InterBold will market the full product line with assistance from Diebold and IBM. Outside the United States, IBM will market and service the combined product line.

InterBold will conduct its own research and development at Diebold's current North Canton, Ohio location and at current IBM sites in Charlotte, N.C. and Boeblingen, Germany. InterBold owns all rights to manufacture products and initially will contract manufacturing with Diebold's current facility in Newark, Ohio, and IBM's facilities in Charlotte, N.C., Berlin, Germany and Jarfalla, Sweden.

IBM vice president and president, services sector division William W.K. Rich said, "Formation of InterBold strengthens IBM's commitment to ATM and financial self-service system solutions. InterBold will permit IBM to be a significant part of a better, forward-looking ATM business." He added, "With the combined resources of IBM and Diebold, InterBold will be able to improve worldwide responsiveness to both industry and customer needs."

Diebold and IBM also announced the members of InterBold's governing committee. They are Barone; William T. Blair, Diebold vice president, customer services; Robert J. Warren, Diebold vice president and treasurer; John P. Cunningham, IBM directeur general des plans and des services techniques, World Trade E/ME/A; and Robert M. Stephenson, IBM vice president and assistant general manager, finance and planning, IBM U.S.

Diebold's agreement to purchase IBM's U.S. ATM servicing business, which was announced in July along with the joint venture agreement, has not yet been completed.

BRYAN, OHIO (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE -- In response to growing business volumes in north central Ohio, CF Motor Freight, one of the nation's largest long-haul trucking companies, relocated its Bryan terminal operation to a new eight-door facility.

The new facility, located at 1902 Progress Dr., serves current CF customers in Bryan, Defiance, Napoleon and Wauseon. The terminal is the area's link to CF Motor Freight's nationwide freight-flow system, a 697-terminal network serving virtually every business address in the United States and Canada, including Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico.

Prior to the opening of the new Bryan terminal, CF Motor Freight's local customers were served through a three-door facility, located at 302 Toy St. Current CF Motor Freight customers in the Bryan area include Spangler Candy, Sauder Wood Working, American Gauge and Anderson Vreeland. Among the commodities transported are candy, fiber board cabinets, calibration equipment and printing machinery.

The new terminal has six employees -- three drivers and three office workers -- and uses three tractors and 10 trailers.

Like all CF Motor Freight terminals, Bryan is tied into the company's freight-flow system through a sophisticated nationwide computer freight tracking and data management network. The company's system enables Bryan customers to obtain instant status of their shipments, whether inbound or outbound, as well as pricing, volume and other freight profile and logistics information that helps customers manage their businesses.

The company also provides related computer programs and services utilizing a customer's own computer resources. These include OMNIRATE, a personal computer-based software program that simplifies the pricing of freight shipments; LOGISTICS MANAGER, a PC-based program that streamlines shipping functions by automatically preparing bills of lading and shipping labels; and CF DIRECT, a telecommunications link that allows customers to directly access CF's computer network for shipment information and specialized reports.

CF Motor Freight provides intermediate and long-haul transportation of less-than-truckload freight, which are commercial and industrial shipments generally weighing less than 10,000 pounds. The company is based in Palo Alto Calif.

WALTHAM, MASS. (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Tecogen Inc. (AMEX: TGN) has developed a compressed natural gas (CNG) engine that achieves performance comparable to a gasoline-powered engine, but with substantially lower emissions. The first school bus powered by this engine, called TecoDrive(tm) was introduced today as it was readied to go to California for further testing.

Under a program funded by Southern California gas company, San Diego Gas & Electric Company, and Pacific Gas & Electric Company, Tecogen, in cooperation with General Motors, has modified a GM 427-cubic-inch V8 engine to run on natural gas. By optimizing the engine's internal components to take advantage of the high octane level of natural gas, the TecoDrive engine is nearly as powerful as its gasoline-powered counterpart. Dual-fuel versions, designed to run on CNG or gasoline, are approximately 40 percent less powerful than CNG-dedicated engines.

The cleaner-burning characteristics of natural gas, along with a specially configured carburetor and fuel system, keep exhaust emissions from the TecoDrive engine significantly below the EPA's tightened 1991 emissions standards for California -- 50 percent less nitrous oxides and 14 times less carbon monoxide.

Tecogen's CNG-powered school bus will be delivered to the California utilities next month where it will be used as a demonstration model for school districts in the region. Enroute to California, the bus will be displayed and test-driven in Washington, D.C., at "The Drive for Clean Air" natural gas vehicle conference to be held later this month.

Vehicles powered by clean-burning and readily available natural gas from domestic supplies can play an important role in meeting President Bush's proposals for an alternative fuels program to improve the nation's air quality and reduce our dependence on foreign oil.

Tecogen Inc. manufactures, markets, and services packaged cogeneration and commercial cooling systems fueled principally by natural gas. The company also conducts research and development on low-emmission natural gas engines for vehicles; pump, compressor, and electric generator drives; as well as advanced systems for clean-coal combustion and other high-efficiency gas-fueled devices. Tecogen is a public subsidiary of Thermo Electron Corporation (NYSE: TMO).

TRENTON, N.J. (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Base Ten Systems, Inc.'s (NASDAQ: BASEA) President, M. M. Kranzler, announced nine month results today: "Net profits in the third quarter of 1990 were $335,000 or nine cents per share on revenues of $10,742,000. Nine months net profits were $1,308,000 or 37 cents per share on revenues of $35,318,000.

"Our efforts have been intensified toward developing products for commercial markets. The company's strong engineering and product management skills are focusing on non-defense opportunities while still working to generate sales in today's markets for weapons control systems and the expanding contract manufacturing field.

"One of the new opportunities open to us, since we are experienced and recognized for high reliability electronics, is in the growing field of satellite electronics. In June we were awarded a contract of almost $1 million for power supplies for a commercial satellite. This was our initial entry into this market and one which is helping to establish us as a competitor.

"Our manufacturing division recently accepted a small contract to produce circuit boards for a medical electronics company. We have grown our "Privacy of Information" market to include additional sales for both peripheral equipment and the proprietary interface units we developed this year. Our sales indicators are positive and we are aiming at several million dollars of new sales next year with growth to follow.

"On Sept. 13, 1990, we held a press conference in Eching, Germany announcing the entry of our German subsidiary into the field of environmental controls, another area where our electronic and software skills are expected to give us a competitive edge.

"The company is recognized as a leading supplier of missile control systems for such weapons as the Sidewinder and Stinger missiles and believes the current world situation, including recent events in the Middle East, afford new opportunities for sales of these products since their cost effectiveness should be attractive to defense planners.

"Our immediate goals are to sustain our revenues with contract manufacturing and weapons control business while developing new products and new markets, to accumulate cash and to continue profitability. We have demonstrated our ability to accomplish this by having converted a $3 million telemetry business in 1975 into a $49 million weapons control business in 1989.

"Third quarter performance was affected by cost overruns on a U.K. contract, soon to be concluded, and a slowdown in shipments in Trenton because of delays in order writing.

"As a result, revenues for 1990 are now forecast at about $45 million with pretax operating profits of approximately $2.5 to $2.75 million. 1991 performance is dependent on results of current marketing programs and will not be clear enough to forecast for several months. What is clear, however, is that we have taken positive steps towards a transition intended to lift our revenues and bring earnings growth without dependence on defense contracts. We have also resized our company to accommodate the current market reducing costs by over $1.5 million per year.

"Our engineering and management skills are ideally suited to the future and, despite the possibility of variations along the way, we expect to exceed our successes in the defense market and to see our products in tomorrow's satellites, environmental protection installations and secure communications systems."

EDISON, N.J. (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Midlantic National Bank today announced a program designed to provide loans for small businesses that may not be able to qualify for traditional bank financing.

The announcement was made by Marshall L. Wolf, executive vice president of Midlantic Corporation (NASDAQ: MIDL), the parent company of Midlantic National Bank. Wolf is responsible for Community Reinvestment Act activities and the coordination of public and political affairs.

"The U.S. Small Business Administration Loan Program which Midlantic is providing will allow us to better serve our communities by giving promising small businesses the chance to grow and prosper," Wolf said.

The bank has already closed its first SBA loan under this program. The loan provides $500,000 in financing for Electronic Manufacturing Company of Newark, a manufacturer of electronic tubes components and specialty metal parts.

"The financing will allow the company to expand and increase its number of employees," said Allan R. Juleus, an assistant vice president and lender at Midlantic National Bank, asset based financial services department.

Juleus added the bank is waiting for approval from the SBA on two other loans. One would permit a small company to construct a fast-serve oil change and lubrication operation in Piscataway. The other would provide financing for a Linden-based company owned by two women who silk screen and design high-end fashion t-shirts.

In addition, Midlantic National Bank/North, based in Paterson, is test marketing the SBA loan program in the Clifton and Passaic areas, noted Joseph P. Barbato, the bank's SBA liaison officer.

The SBA guarantees loans under the program, allowing Midlantic to provide financing to businesses that might not be able to qualify for a traditional bank loan or that might need extended repayment terms. The bank, as well as the SBA, must approve the loans.

To be eligible for consideration, a business must be operated for profit; be independently owned and operated; and qualify under SBA size standard criteria.

Loans may be made to assist an established business or to start a business. For a new business, the applicant must provide a reasonable amount of his or her own funds (cash or equipment) so the operation is adequately capitalized. The SBA requires a minimum capital contribution of 30 percent to 50 percent by the principals in new business start-ups. Equity in personal assets does not qualify as capital. The applicant must also meet other requirements, including Midlantic's credit standards.

Midlantic Corporation is a $24 billion interstate bank holding company headquartered in Edison. The company operates a network of 514 offices primarily in New Jersey, Pennsylvania and New York.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of directors of Comptek Research, Inc. (AMEX/BSE: CTK) today announced the resignation of Jack E. Wagner as chairman, president and chief executive officer, effective immmediately. Dr. John R. Cummings, a founder and director of Comptek since 1968, has been elected chairman and appointed acting president and CEO. The executive committee of the board of directors will conduct a search over the next several months to find a permanent replacement for Wagner.

"Comptek has made trememdous progress over the past two years and is in excellent financial condition," stated Wagner. "A very capable management team is in place to continue Comptek's strategy of developing cost-effective and creative products and services, primarily for the defense electronics industry. This is an appropriate time for me to move on to other challenges."

Beginning as electrical engineer, Wagner had worked at Comptek since his graduation in 1969 from the State University of New York at Buffalo's School of Engineering. In his 21 years at Comptek, Wagner held several management positions, culminating in 1988 with his election as chairman, president and CEO.

In fiscal 1990 (March), Comptek achieved a 147 percent increase in net income to $1,352,000, or $0.63 per share, on a 3 percent increase in sales to $49,584,000. At year end, the company's backlog was at $49,472,000, up 53 percent from the same date in 1989.

Cummings, age 57, has been an officer and director of Comptek Research since its formation. Most recently he was vice president and chief scientist. After receiving a bachelor of science degree in electrical engineering from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Cummings went on to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology for master of science and doctor of science degrees in electrical engineering.

"Mr. Wagner's resignation has been accepted with regret, and he will be missed " stated Cummings. "We are however, very pleased with the condition of the company, management structure and prospects for the future."

Comptek Research, Inc., with thirteen offices and subsidiary locations in the U.S., develops Command, Control Communications and Intelligence systems and electonic warfare systems, primarily for the Department of Defense. Related activities include providing specialized technical services and manufacturing precision electronics.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - The Turner Corporation (AMEX: TUR), the United States' leading general builder, announced today that its subsidiary, Turner International Industries, Inc. (TIII), New York, has formed a new company with Karl Steiner Ltd. of Zurich, Switzerland, to pursue construction-related opportunities in Europe.

Support for the new company, Turner Steiner Europe Inc. (TSEI), will be shared equally by each parent company. Headquartered in Brussels, Belgium, TSEI will offer consulting and management services related to general contracting, design/build and project development to a broad base of clients with building plans in Europe.

"We at Turner are extremely enthusiastic about the alliance we have formed with the Karl Steiner company and about the potential it provides for Turner's expansion in a growing European market," commented Alfred T. McNeill, chairman of The Turner Corporation. According to McNeill, the linkage with the Steiner company "allows us to offer a unique combination of European building expertise together with Turner's time- tested approach to construction management to American clients with plans for new construction projects on the Continent as well as to European organizations with building programs."

Karl Steiner Ltd. is among the leading general contracting and design/build companies in Switzerland. Its organization includes subsidiaries operating in France, Germany and Italy. Other business concerns handled by the Steiner group include the manufacture of construction-related materials and building systems, and real estate development.

TIII, directly or through subsidiaries, currently has consulting and construction projects under way in Bermuda, Bulgaria, England, Japan, Kuwait, Singapore, Taiwan and Yugoslavia. Building a wide variety of public and private structures throughout the world, TIII is headquartered in New York. It has completed numerous commercial, institutional and light industrial projects for both public and private clients over the past 25 years.

Based in New York, The Turner Corporation, through Turner Construction Company and other construction subsidiaries, is the United States' largest builder of commercial, industrial, hospital and health care, institutional, government building and multi-unit housing projects.

AGORDO, ITALY (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Luxottica Group S.p.A. (NYSE: LUX) announced today that at its board meeting yesterday, they were joined for the first time by two new board members. During the extraordinary shareholders meeting in July, Tancredi Bianchi and Lucio Rondelli, both personalities in the Italian economic and banking industries, were elected to the board.

At the meeting, the board evaluated the progress of Luxottica's business in the first eight months of 1990.

Sales of eyeglass frames increased compared to a year ago, and are in line with what the company had indicated to the financial community earlier this year. Specifically, from January to August 1990, sales rose by 18.9 percent (13 percent in units). On a geographical basis, sales increased 9.6 percent in the United States (-0.2 percent in units), 62.8 percent in Italy (39.2 percent in units), and 44.6 percent in the rest of the world (32.6 percent in units).

The board said that it reviewed the situation in markets where Luxottica operates, paying specific attention to the United States. They noted that the commercial activity of Luxottica has not been influenced by recessionary trends in any of the world economies, thanks to the group's highly diversified customer base.

Luxottica Group is a world leader in the design, manufacture and marketing of high quality eyeglass frames in the middle and premium- priced categories. The company's products, which are designed and manufactured in Italy and include over 850 styles available in a wide array of colors and sizes, are sold through wholly-owned distributors in the U.S., Canada, Italy, France, Spain, Portugal, Sweden and West Germany and 50 percent-owned distributors in the United Kingdom and Japan.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of The "Shell" Transport and Trading Company, p.l.c. (NYSE: SC) today announced an interim dividend for the year 1990 of 8.4p per ordinary share (50.4p per New York Share). This represents an increase of 9.1 percent over the 1989 interim dividend of 7.7p (46.2p).

The amount to be paid to holders of New York Shares will be determined by the dollar/sterling exchange rate and the advance corporation tax (ACT) rate on Nov. 15, 1990. At the current rate of 1 pound sterling equal $1.85 approximately and ACT of 25/75ths, the interim dividend and tax credit together is equivalent to $1.2432 per New York Share.

The interim dividend will be paid on Nov. 23, 1990 to holders of record of New York Shares as at Oct. 11, 1990. The shares become ex- dividend in New York on Oct. 5, 1990.

Shareholders resident in the United Kingdom are entitled to a tax credit equal to the amount of ACT referable to their dividends. At the current rate of ACT of 25/75ths, the tax credit referable to the proposed interim dividend of 8.4p per ordinary share (50.4p per New York Share) is 2.8p (16.8p) and the dividend and tax credit together amount to 11.2p (67.2p).

The current Double Taxation Conventions between the United Kingdom and the United States of America and Canada provide for the payment to qualifying United States and Canadian residents of an amount equal to the relevant tax credit, less United Kingdom income tax at the rate of 15 percent on the sum of the dividend and the tax credit. A shareholder who pays United States or Canadian Federal income taxes may claim credit for the income tax withheld at 15 percent.

CHICAGO (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Centel Corp. (NYSE: CNT) announced today that Patricia E. Simmons has been elected to the new position of vice president-federal legislative affairs.

In her new position, Simmons, who has been general manager-government relations at Centel since 1987, directs Centel's government relations efforts in Washington, serving as a liaison between the company and Congress, executive agencies and trade associations. She will continue to work out of Centel's Washington office.

"This change reflects Centel's growing presence and scope in the federal political arena," said David A. Bohmer, Centel's senior vice president-government relations. "Ms. Simmons has been an effective representative for Centel and has been instrumental in our increased efforts in Washington. In her new position, she will have additional responsibilities in dealing with Congress and other agencies."

Prior to joining Centel, Simmons spent 13 years on Capitol Hill as an aide to six congressmen. Her most recent position was as legislative director to then-U.S. Rep. Dan Coats (R-Ind.), who was a member of the Commerce Subcommittee on Telecommunications. Coats has since become a U.S. senator, filling the seat vacated when Dan Quayle was elected vice president.

Simmons is a graduate of the University of Arkansas, Fayetteville. Chicago-based Centel Corp., which had 1989 revenues of $1.19 billion, provides local exchange telephone service through more than 1.6 million access lines in nine states; operates cellular communications franchises that serve nearly 150,000 access lines in 45 markets in 15 states, and supplies electric power to more than 136,000 customers in two states.

CALGARY, ALBERTA (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Myrias Corporation today delivered the first Myrias SPS-3, its latest high-performance parallel system, to the Canadian Network for Space Research (CNSR). Acquired with CNSR funds, this SPS-3 contains 32 Motorola 68040 microprocessors. This is the first delivery of a commercial product that incorporates 68040-microprocessor technology.

Among several Networks of Centers of Excellence funded by the Federal Government, the Canadian Network for Space Research consists of seven private sector companies, five university-based research groups, and two government laboratories. The University of Alberta Space Physics Group, part of the CNSR, will be operating the system for the center.

The Myrias SPS-3 computer will assist the researchers in their ongoing study of the acceleration of ionized particles in deep space, responsible for such natural phenomena as the northern lights. A practical consequence of these studies will be a better understanding of the damaging effects these solar-terrestrial interactions have on man-made systems such as operational satellites and large-scale power grids at high latitudes.

The SPS-3 parallel computer is well-suited to modelling the space plasma environment. This was demonstrated last December, when Myrias successfully ran the largest-known particle-in-cell simulation, consisting of 22 million particles on a 4096 x 4096 grid, on a 1024-processor SPS-2, an earlier version of the Myrias parallel computer.

Myrias and University researchers look forward to a close working relationship together pushing the boundaries of parallel processing and penetrating the unknowns of the space environment.

Myrias develops and manufactures high-performance parallel computing systems.

GREENVILLE, S.C. (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - The resignation of James T. Lynagh as President and Chief Operating Officer of Multimedia, Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: MMED) was announced today by Walter E. Barlett, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of the Company. Lynagh also resigned from Multimedia's Board of Directors and Executive Management Committee. He will continue with Multimedia in the capacity of consultant to the Chief Executive Officer. Bartlett said, "I count heavily on Jim Lynagh's advice and I expect him to continue to serve a very important role in the Company." Bartlett will assume the additional title of President of Multimedia, Inc.

Lynagh stated that he was resigning to pursue personal objectives. He said, "While I have chosen to retire from full time media work after 39 years, I am pleased to continue my association with Multimedia on a consultative basis at least through 1991. The Company is now well positioned for future growth, has a talented group of senior managers and is properly diversified for continued excellent performance. I am grateful to Walter Barlett, the Company's Chairman and CEO, and the Board of Directors for their support and encouragement during the past nine and a half years. This change affords me the opportunity to continue contact with my associates and friends in the broadcast and other media businesses. However, I will also be free to explore other fields in which I have been interested but lacked the time to pursue in the past."

Barlett said, "It is with great regret that Multimedia accepted Jim Lynagh's decision not to continue in his full time position. He is an outstanding executive and as President of Multimedia, Inc. and formerly President of Multimedia Broadcasting, has been an important member of our management team. We have enjoyed a close working relationship over the years and I look forward to our future assocation. I am greatly pleased his expertise will continue to be available to us in his new assignments with the Company."

Bartlett added that Lynagh will play a major consultant's role in the selection of programming, news presentation and promotion at the Mutimedia television stations. He will also participate in the development of television programming for national syndication and for sale to cable networks by the Multimedia Entertainment division.

Multimedia, Inc., is a diversified media communications company headquartered in Greenville, S.C., which publishes 13 daily and 49 non-daily newspapers, owns and operates four television and eight radio stations and a video production company, operates more than 100 cable television franchises in four states, and produces and syndicates quality television programming, including the Phil Donahue and Sally Jessy Raphael shows.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Computer Task Group, Inc. (CTG) (NYSE: TSK) today announced that it has acquired a firm specializing in networking systems integration -- Connolly Data Systems, Inc., (CDSI) of Lowell, Mass.

In its five-year strategic plan, CTG -- the consulting, systems integration and professional services firm -- targeted networking, communications and connectivity as areas of high growth. CTG acquired CDSI as part of its strategic commitment to communications and networking. CDSI is New England's largest independent networking systems integrator, and was recently ranked the 25th largest U.S. networking systems integrator by LAN Magazine.

"Communications and networking have become urgent needs for our clients," said David N. Campbell, chairman and chief executive officer of Computer Task Group. "Our corporate commitment to these areas is an important part of our strategy. CTG has a strong team of networking experts in our consulting group -- Telecommunications Management Consultants (TMC) -- and the CDSI acquisition will add an important dimension to our service."

The CDSI acquisition will broaden CTG's market presence into systems integration and product-related services. The acquisition more than doubles CTG's communications staff.

"This acquisition positions CTG at the forefront of the communications market as connectivity issues become essential to the strategic positioning of many firms," Campbell continued.

Across industries, the demand for connectivity between personal computers, workstations and mainframes has been explosive. CDSI helps firms bring together differing technologies into cohesive enterprise networks. CDSI's services, coupled with the services of CTG's TMC, offer clients a single source of support for connectivity. Jointly, their services would include consulting, systems integration, education, software development, hardware support and maintenance.

Founded in 1976 by Patrick H. Connolly, CDSI's chief executive officer, the firm will operate as a wholly owned division of CTG.

Listed on the New York Stock Exchange under the symbol TSK, CTG's 3,800 experienced systems professionals serve 85 of the Fortune 100 through a network of more than 60 offices worldwide. CTG is in its 25th year of business.

GREENVILLE, S.C. (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - First Union National Bank of South Carolina has pledged one million dollars to the City of Greenville's New Home Ownership Program for low- and moderate-income families.

Since its inception in 1986, the program has helped 26 families purchase new homes by offering affordable mortgages. The National Conference of Mayors, the National Center for Public Productivity at Rutgers University, The Journal of Housing, and the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) have all honored the program with national awards for its work in the community.

In brief remarks at a meeting today with bank and city officials, and representatives from HUD, Greenville Mayor W.D. Workman praised First Union and others who have entered into partnerships with the City.

We are excited by your efforts to increase affordable housing opportunities for low- to moderate-income residents of Greenville," Workman said. We can't do it alone, and we count on public/private ventures to help these people."

Representing First Union National Bank of South Carolina was Chairman and Chief Executive Sid Tate. "It is an excellent opportunity for us to reinvest in the communities we serve," Tate said. "This partnership with the City of Greenville is just one way we're able to do that."

Approximately $250,000 will be set aside immediately for about ten homes in the Green Avenue area. "You may think ten homes is just a drop in the bucket. But the shortage of affordable housing is tremendous, and we're going to tackle it one drop at a time, one bucket at a time, one home at a time," said Tate.

The loans will have an adjustable interest rate, with no loan origination fees or appraisal fees. The city will refer applicants to First Union.

The program also provides incentives to developers to encourage the construction of single-family homes that are affordable, and to help families build equity in a home of their own. Individual mortgages will not exceed $25,000, and the city will provide for a maximum subsidy of $12,000 per homeowner.

First Union National Bank of South Carolina is headquartered in Greenville and operates 56 banking offices in more than 32 communities across the state.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Vista Concepts, Inc., a NYNEX company (NYSE: NYN), today announced the licensing of its securities processing software to the International Stock Exchange (ISE), the leading trading exchange in Europe. Vista's software will be the cornerstone of the ISE's new TAURUS system, which will automate securities settlement.

The ISE is the second European depository to employ Vista software. A license to the Amsterdam Depositary was announced earlier this year.

TAURUS (The Automated Registration of Uncertified Stock) is a paperless system for handling share ownership and transfer. It will be fully integrated with the ISE's TALISMAN system, which handles material stocks, and will provide a complete settlement system and an electronic depository.

Five online, real-time Vista software packages are included in the deal. Vista staff will work with the TAURUS project team to customize the software to meet specifications developed by the ISE in consultation with the securities industry. The software system is scheduled to be operational by October 1991.

According to John Watson, the ISE's project director for TAURUS, "Having conducted a thorough analysis of possible options, we invited suitable companies to tender. Vista offers the best fit for our requirements and operational environment. We are confident that it will enable us to build the system necessary to take U.K. settlement forward, and building onto an established framework will give us a better opportunity to meet the demanding timetable.

"Vista software has a proven track record and is designed in a way which facilitates our developments to comply with the Group of Thirty's recommendations," Watson continued. "It allows the phased addition of planned future functionality such as rolling settlement, same-day trade confirmation and delivery vs. payment. The TALISMAN system will continue to operate for material stocks, and existing TALISMAN facilities required for the longer term will by utilized within the Vista design concept."

Vista Concepts, Inc., a NYNEX Information Solutions Group business unit, specializes in securities software packages and consulting services for banks and other financial service institutions. Vista clients include some of the world's largest and most prestigious securities processing organizations, with installations in the U.K., Netherlands, United States and Canada. NYNEX Information Solutions Group, Inc., a subsidiary of NYNEX Corporation, is a leading worldwide provider of financial services software, information technology consulting and operations support.

WILSONVILLE, OR (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - CF Motor Freight, one of the nation's largest long-haul trucking companies, has opened a 5-door Wilsonville terminal, which will enable the company to provide improved freight transportation services to its customers in southwest Portland.

The new facility, located at 9730 S.W. Hillman Ct., serves businesses in Canby McMinnville, Newberg, Sherwood, Tualatin, Wilsonville and Woodburn. The terminal is the area's link to CF Motor Freight's nationwide freight-flow system, a 697-terminal network serving virtually every business address in the United States and Canada, including Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico.

"By opening this terminal, we are moving closer to our Wilsonville area customers," said Bill McDonald, Wilsonville terminal manager. "This enables us to provide our customers here with more responsive and efficient freight transportation services."

The Wilsonville facility is a spin-off of the company's Beaverton terminal, which has served local businesses for three years. Current CF Motor Freight customers in the Wilsonville area include Nike, Coca-Cola, G.I. Joe's Department Stores, Payless Shoes, SR Smith and ADEC. Among the commodities transported are consumer products, industrial goods and dental equipment.

The new terminal has 10 employees -- six drivers and four office workers -- and uses six tractors and 15 trailers to carry freight for its customers.

Like all CF Motor Freight terminals, Wilsonville is tied into the company's freight-flow system through a sophisticated nationwide computer freight tracking and data management network. The company's system enables Wilsonville customers to obtain instant status of their shipments, whether inbound or outbound, as well as pricing, volume and other freight profile and logistics information that helps customers manage their businesses.

"Comprehensive and accurate shipment information is very important today, particularly for businesses involved in just-in-time retailing and manufacturing," McDonald said. "The ability of a carrier to provide consistent, error-free service often can make the difference between a production line operating efficiently, or a retailer having the proper goods in time for a sale."

CF Motor Freight provides intermediate and long-haul transportation of less-than-truckload freight, which are commercial and industrial shipments generally weighing less than 10,000 pounds. The company is based in Palo Alto Calif.

DALLAS (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - James L. Hailey and Henry H. Scott have been elected presidents of the women's and children's divisions, respectively, of J.C. Penney Company, Inc., it was announced today by William R. Howell, chairman of the board.

Hailey, who has headed up the children's division since August 1987, succeeds John A. McConville, who is retiring after 39 years with the company.

In other management changes, which are also effective Nov. 1, Kenneth T. Russo has been elected a vice president and named director of international sourcing a new position, and Gerald L. Shores has been named to succeed him as director of merchandising, women's accessories. Shores, who has served as director of coordination for JCPenney stores since April 1988, has also been elected a divisional vice president.

In the children's division, with the combining of the marketing and merchandising functions, two new positions have been established. Andrew Cumming, who has been responsible for marketing, becomes director of merchandising for boys' and girls' lines. He continues as a divisional vice president. Tice Siegel has been elected a divisional vice president and named director of merchandising for infants, toys, children's catalog, and children's shoe lines. Both Cumming and Siegel report to Scott.

Hailey, Scott, and Russo report to W. Barger Tygart, executive vice president and director of merchandising.

BEDFORD, MA (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Atex Publishing Systems, the leading supplier of computer-aided publishing systems with installations in more than 750 newspapers worldwide, today announced it will implement Atex Investment Management Services (AIM) -- a comprehensive program to integrate the wide range of service offerings the company currently provides.

"The services that Atex will provide under the AIM umbrella not only will allow our customers to prolong their use of Atex equipment, but also will enable them to maximize their investment," said Harland K. LaVigne, president, Worldwide Distribution.

"One of the major benefits that Atex will offer is the ability to integrate the many Atex services into customized support plans for our customers," LaVigne added. "These customized plans are being designed to meet not only our customers' immediate needs, but also to enable our customers to meet their long-term objectives."

While not yet ready to announce the complete deatils of the program, present plans call for the AIM umbrella to include:

-- AIM Software Services (AIM Soft);
-- AIM Hardware Services (AIM Hard);
-- AIM Networking Services;
-- AIM Consulting Services;
-- AIM Training Services;
-- AIM Documentation Services; and
-- AIM Customer Support Center.

BEDFORD, MASS. (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE -- Atex Publishing Systems, the leading supplier of computer-aided publishing systems with installations in more than 750 newspapers worldwide, today announced the establishment of the centralized Atex Investment Management Services (AIM) Customer Support Center for all newspaper and commercial publishing customers.

The new telephone support center for customers in the United States and Canada directed by Gerry Angeli, vice president of Customer Service and Quality, will be staffed 24 hours a day, seven days a week. All support calls --- to the toll-free number 1-800-USA-ATEX --- will be routed through the center and directed to the most appropriate technical resource. The toll-free number for customers in Massachusetts and Canada is not yet available; those customers should call 1-508-670-3063 until the new number is available.

The program will be phased in on a region-by-region basis beginning Sept. 24. When the program rollout is completed, hardware and software service calls will no longer be taken by Atex regional offices.

Many Benefits for Atex Customers "The establishment of the centralized AIM Customer Support Center will provide a number of important benefits to Atex customers," said Harland K. LaVigne, president, Worldwide Distribution.

"Most important, the customer will always speak to an Atex representative ... a live person and not an answering service. Moreover, the customer needs only to explain the problem or request once because those details will be logged and tracked in a database.

"Every customer call will be addressed because each job will be monitored by customer center personnel to ensure completion. All calls will be escalated internally as necessary so that the customer receives the most appropriate resource," LaVigne noted.

BRYN MAWR, PA (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Philadelphia Suburban Corp. (NYSE: PSC) today announced its decision to more actively pursue a water services strategy.

In this connection, the company announced its intention to dispose of its non-water services businesses, consisting of its information services, telemarketing, and energy engineering and software operations.

The company also stated that it would be making a special charge to earnings in the third quarter of approximately $2.6 million or approximately $.34 per share. This charge will include a write-off of certain computer software products and other assets. The company said it does not anticipate a loss on the ultimate disposition of its non- water services operations.

John W. Boyer Jr., president and chairman of Philadelphia Suburban Corp., stated that the company's present potential for growth lies in its ability to capitalize on the opportunities now available in water services.

"It is our expectation that the decisions we have made will put the company's future earnings on a more predictable basis," Boyer said.

Philadelphia Suburban Corp. is a diversified company. PSC's largest subsidiary is Philadelphia Suburban Water Co., which serves 234,000 customers in portions of Delaware, Chester and Montgomery counties, north and west of Philadelphia. PSC's nonregulated subsidiaries presently offer services to a broad base of customers with an emphasis on the utility and public sector markets.

HANOVER, Md. (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Continuing a long-standing tradition, Ford Aerospace recently presented Junior Achievement of Central Maryland a cash contribution for its in-school economic education programs.

In addition, Ford Aerospace, WDL Division, also reaffirmed its commitment providing professional assistance to Anne Arundel County (Md.) school teachers in the presentation of Junior Achievement's courses.

Jim Green, director, Ford Aerospace Strategic Systems Operations, recently presented the company's annual cash contribution to Pat Perry, executive director, Junior Achievement of Central Maryland at Ford Aerospace's Hanover facility. In May, Ford Aerospace supported three teams in Junior Achievement's "Bowl-a-Thon," the organization's largest fund-raising event. In addition, Ford Aerospace's Jim Micek continues his service on the board of directors for Junior Achievement in Anne Arundel County.

Junior Achievement of Central Maryland is part of the nation's oldest privately funded economic education organization. It provides three in-school economic education programs: "Business Basics" for fifth and sixth grades; "Project Business" for eighth and ninth grades; and "Applied Economics" for 11th and 12th grades. In 1989-90 Junior Achievement of Central Maryland served more than 14,000 students in 58 high schools, 55 middle schools and 60 elementary schools.

At its Hanover location, Ford Aerospace is involved in high technology communications systems in support of the Department of Defense. The local work force develops software, systems design, integration, test, training, and operations and maintenance for large computer-based communications systems.

Ford Aerospace, a wholly owned subsidiary of Ford Motor (NYSE: F), is a leader in command, control, communications and intelligence systems; tactical weapon systems; satellites and space systems; and professional and technical services. The corporation is headquartered in Newport Beach, Calif., with major operations in California, New Mexico, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Texas and the Washington, D.C., metropolitan area in addition to Colorado.

STAMFORD, Conn. (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Savin Corporation (NYSE: SVB) today announced that it has been awarded a series of "Cost per Copy Service" contracts by the General Services Administration to supply approximately 4,000 photocopiers to the United States Navy and various other government agencies effective Oct. 1, 1990. These awards are renewable annually for up to a total of five years. According to the terms of this contract, Savin will provide copiers, supplies, training and service.

Brian L. Merriman, Savin president, commented, "We are pleased by the confidence expressed by the General Services Administration in awarding Savin this performance contract, which is one of the largest single awards made to a contractor under this program. Savin's ability to service all the machines at 16 different domestic locations was essential to the contract."

William T. Smith, vice chairman and chief operation officer, explained, "In 1990, a company strategic focus was to increase its copier rental base. This award is a major step in the fulfillment of this strategy. Savin equipment is also being used by the other branches of the military; for example, significant quantities of our copiers were sent to Saudi Arabia for use by the Army and the Marines."

Savin Corporation, founded in 1959, distributes a full line of office copiers and facsimile products through a North American network of ten company-owned branches and over 380 dealers at more than 500 selling and servicing locations. Savin is also a non-exclusive distributor of a full-color copier: the PrismTMI. Savin is the only distributor of copier products in North America offering the customer a choice of toner technologies.

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Hilton Hotels Corp. (NYSE: HLT) announced today that based on results for July and August, net income from operations for the third quarter is expected to decline approximately 50 percent from the comparable 1989 period. Net income from operations for the 1989 quarter was $30.5 million or 63 cents per share.

The decline in net income is primarily attributed to a reduction in gaming revenues at the Las Vegas Hilton. Increased competition in Las Vegas adversely impacted both premium and table play revenues at the Las Vegas Hilton.

The Flamingo Hilton-Laughlin was opened as scheduled on Aug. 1, 1990, and, despite the traditionally slow summer period, is showing good results.

Hotel income contribution is expected to decline slightly due in large part to a soft summer in New York City, one of the company's principal markets.

Other factors contributing to the decline are extraordinary adjustments to interest income and income taxes recorded in the 1989 quarter.

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - A new superspeed centralized digital printing system was announced today by Eastman Kodak Company (NYSE: EK). The new system is designed to be "the most dramatic advance in office productivity since the mouse," according to the company's Copy Product's Division.

Kodak described the system as a "quantum leap in productivity for users of PCs Macintosh computers and workstations."

Operating at speeds up to 92 pages per minute, and supporting PostScript page description language, the superspeed digital printing system is driven by LionHeart's revolutionary 1.0 advanced printing software. The software enables users of PCs, Macintosh computers and workstations to be networked to the superspeed printer either directly or through a print server.

Also announced was LionHeart's guarantee, which accompanies every product in the LionHeart family: Customers will experience measurable improvements in productivity or the system may be returned.

The announcements were made jointly by Charles L. Trowbridge, vice president and general manager, Copy Products Division, and by Michael J. Murray, vice president and general manager, marketing, Copy Products Division.

"Guaranteed productivity in the office or central reproduction department is the promise behind the name LionHeart," said Trowbridge. "Over the next year, we will introduce a number of new products under the LionHeart banner. Each will meet the standard of guaranteed productivity for our customers.

"The name LionHeart," said Murray, "represents an important advance in office productivity. This is true when productivity is measured by the speed at which documents can be printed, duplicated and finished. It is also true when productivity is measured by how powerfully those documents convey information due to their superior appearance."

NEW YORK (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Fiat Group's (NYSE: FIA) industrial vehicles subsidiary, Iveco, has agreed to buy a 60 percent stake in Spanish truck-maker Enasa from the Spanish state-owned holding company INI (Institute Nacional de Industria).

The agreement, signed on Sept. 12, includes a medium- and long-term industrial plan for the development of Enasa. The plan calls for the strengthening of Enasa's manufacturing facilities and the maintenance of its workforce at current levels.

Fiat's Iveco will adopt the measures necessary to broaden Enasa's product range in both the heavy and light vehicles sectors with the aim of improving the competitive position of Enasa's commercial network.

INI and Iveco have begun the process of obtaining regulatory approval for the operation.

Cesare Romiti, president and CEO of Fiat Group and chairman of Iveco, said: "The finalization of this agreement with INI strengthens Iveco's operations in Europe, adding the Spanish plants to those in Italy, France, Germany and Great Britain. This transaction is a further step in the internationalization strategy of Fiat Group, after the recently signed agreements with Ford vis-a-vis the farm equipment business and Nippondenso for the joint production of car air conditioners and heaters," Romiti said.

In 1989, Iveco net consolidated revenues were $6.4 billion, up 9 percent from the previous year. Operating income was 7.6 percent of revenues. Last year the industrial vehicles sector of the Fiat Group produced 139,300 units. Iveco's European market share was approximately 20 percent.

POTSDAM, N.Y. (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Clarkson University and International Business Machines Corporation (NYSE: IBM), today announced a major partnership called Workstations in Science and Engineering (WISE), designed to improve engineering, science and management education not only at Clarkson but across the country.

The partnership is being initiated by a gift of an IBM 4381 mainframe computer and a joint study including 150 of IBM's RISC System/6000 family of workstations. The approximate value of this equipment, which will be delivered over the next two years, will be $5 million.

These computer tools will enhance the Clarkson "living and learning" environment and enable students and faculty to increase their current computer capabilities.

The advanced workstations will greatly increase the computing power of students, faculty and researchers at Clarkson. One model of these workstations has three times the computing capability of a larger computer currently used by the University. The new workstations will allow faster computation of complex engineering problems as well as increase the capability of students and faculty to communicate via computer with their counterparts on campus and around the world.

The workstations will be showcased in Clarkson's new Center for Advanced Materials Processing (CAMP) facility which is nearing completion on the "hill campus." They will also be incorporated into the undergraduate instructional curricula, thus preparing tomorrow's engineers and scientists with the most up-to-date equipment.

Commenting on the new partnership, Clarkson President Richard H. Gallagher stressed that the partnership is important to the future of the University. "IBM has long been a leader in the computer manufacturing world," he said. "Its generosity and interest in education also makes it a leader in transforming education to meet today's technological challenges."

Nicholas M. Donofrio, IBM vice president and president, Advanced Workstations

Division, and member of Clarkson's Board of Trustees, commented that the use of educational computers should not be for computing so much as for enhancing the productivity and learning process. "They should enable professors and teachers to interact creatively with students," he continued.

Donofrio added that the partnership with Clarkson translates into providing first rate training for future IBM employees. There are nearly 1,000 Clarkson alumni employed by the company.

Clarkson will call upon various IBM resources to explore the most effective ways to use computers to enhance learning. The company's consulting scholars educators who are computer experts in specific disciplines, will visit Clarkson to share their expertise in using computers as instructional tools.

LOS ANGELES (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - The Walt Disney Studios and Interscope Communications in partnership with Nomura Babcock & Brown have entered into a joint venture to produce and market numerous motion pictures over the next four years, it was announced today by Jeffrey Katzenberg and Richard Frank, chairman and vice president, respectively, of The Walt Disney Studios; Ted Field and Robert W. Cort, chairman and president of Interscope; Ichiro Tsunoda president of Nomura Babcock & Brown, and Richard Koffey, managing director of Babcock & Brown.

This new arrangement is an outgrowth of the successful creative collaboration between Disney and Interscope that has resulted in numerous hit films over the past five years. The Interscope/Nomura Babcock & Brown partnership and Disney will each contribute a minimum of $50 million to the joint venture. The Interscope/Nomura Babcock & Brown partnership can increase such initial contributions to $100 million, which Disney is committed to match. This will bring the total aggregate production and marketing fund to $200 million. At their option, the Interscope/Nomura Babcock & Brown partnership have the right to make additional contributions with Disney again committed to match.

Nomura Babcock & Brown will sell partnership interests to its customers in Japan in order to provide funds to the partnership for production and marketing.

Under the terms of the agreement, the Interscope/Nomura Babcock & Brown partnership may elect to co-finance the films that Interscope produces or executive produces for The Walt Disney Studios. These films will be marketed and distributed under the studio's Touchstone Pictures, Hollywood Pictures and Walt Disney Pictures production banners.

Some of the initial projects to be co-financed will be drawn from the sixteen projects that Interscope already has in development with Disney. In addition, Disney may offer projects to the Interscope/Nomura Babcock & Brown partnership for funding and production under the new arrangement. All projects owned and controlled by Interscope will continue to be shown first to Disney, under the company's existing first-look deal with the studio, and will be available for co-financing by the joint venture. The Interscope/Nomura Babcock & Brown partnership retains the right to co-finance films for other major studios if Disney elects not to become involved with a particular project.

In making the announcement, Katzenberg stated, "We have always had tremendous respect for Bob Cort and Ted Field and this new joint venture gives us the opportunity to expand our successful relationship with them. We look forward to this unique financial partnership with Interscope and Nomura Babcock &

Brown and feel it will result in an increased flow of quality motion pictures."

Ted Field, chairman of Interscope, called the joint venture a "huge step forward for our company. Having successfully produced seventeen movies over the past four years, we feel ready to increase our involvement beyond producing to encompass an equity stake." Cort added, "Our time-tested relationship with Disney with its very equitable and reasonable give-and-take, gives us great confidence for the success of the joint venture."

Tsunoda of Nomura Babcock & Brown commented, "We are very happy as this deal provides us with the best and strongest combination of Disney as a studio/distribution organization and Interscope as a producer. We are confident that this is a good deal for our investors."

Koffey of Babcock & Brown said, "The joint venture with Disney provides our investors with an extraordinary opportunity. We had surveyed leading production companies and determined that Interscope, based on personnel and track record, offered our investors the optimum combination of creative talent fiscal responsibility and production acumen as our film partner. The arrangement Interscope has concluded with Disney is early evidence that we made the right choice."

Nomura Babcock & Brown was founded jointly by Nomura Securities Co., Ltd., Japan's largest securities firm, and Babcock & Brown, a leading U.S. investment banking firm, in March 1988. This combination enables Nomura Babcock & Brown to introduce Japanese investors and business managers to international investment opportunities and the latest financing methods.

Babcock & Brown is a San Francisco-based company that arranges asset-based financings worldwide. Including its affiliates, Babcock & Brown arranged financing for $8.5 billion in assets in 1989 and projects a $9 billion activity for 1990.

Interscope is an independently-financed supplier of product for the motion picture, television, cable and videocassette marketplace. The company is privately owned by Ted Field who founded it in 1982. Robert W. Cort joined Interscope in 1985 as president and chief operating officer.

Interscope has produced a number of highly-successful feature films in the last six years. "Three Men and a Baby," starring Tom Selleck, Ted Danson and Steve Guttenberg, "Cocktail," starring Tom Cruise, and "Outrageous Fortune," starring Bette Midler and Shelly Long, were all released by Touchstone Pictures. "Three Men and a Little Lady," the sequel to "Three Men and a Baby " which is currently in post-production, will also be released by Touchstone Pictures later this year. "Bird on a Wire," the 1990 summer smash Interscope-produced film starring Mel Gibson and Goldie Hawn, was released by Universal. "Revenge of the Nerds" and its sequel, "Revenge of the Nerds II," were released by Twentieth Century Fox, as will be the upcoming "Class Action

" starring Gene Hackman and Mary Elizabeth Mastrantonio. Interscope's surprise comedy hit of 1989, "Bill and Ted's Excellent Adventure," which was released by Orion, further evidences the company's unique success with comedies. Production starts on January 3rd on the sequel, "Bill and Ted go to Hell."

Interscope movies have collectively grossed over three quarters of a billion dollars of box office gross worldwide. In addition, Interscope currently has forty-five projects in active development, twenty-five of these are in conjunction with the major studios, sixteen of those with Disney.

The Walt Disney Studios is a business segment of The Walt Disney Company.

KALAMAZOO, MI (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Manatron, Inc. (NASDAQ: MANA) today announced a 167-percent rise in net income along with a moderate 2-percent increase in net revenues for its first quarter ended July 31, 1990.

The company reported revenues of $2,129,219 for the quarter just ended compared to $2,092,121 in the year earlier quarter. Operating income was $50,623, vs. a $21,021 loss -- an improvement of more than $71,000.

Net income was $96,817, or five cents a share, vs. $36,234, or two cents a share. Affecting net income in the recent quarter was $96,194 of other income primarily interest earned on investments, compared to $73,255 in the year earlier quarter. Income taxes were recorded at the 34 percent statutory rate in this quarter as opposed to 31 percent a year ago.

There were 2,130,944 weighted average shares outstanding in the recent quarter compared to 2,114,674 weighted average shares in the year earlier.

"This quarter's results attest to many of Manatron's strengths," said Allen F. Peat, chairman and president. "The nature of our business means we are generally able to grow profits faster than revenues. Our gross profit margin expanded this quarter to 49 percent from 42 percent as we restructured our product mix. Also, our improving cash position means that we are generating additional interest income.

"We are, however, using our strong financial position to maintain a fairly high level of investment in marketing and advertising. We have continued to expand and improve profitable services for our customer base," Peat continued.

"A recent move to improve customer service is our newly created Map Lab which consolidates all information and personnel supporting our Geographic Information System. Users call directly to the Map Lab for any kind of support. This has been so successful that we expect to move toward this lab concept for other major systems.

"A new agreement with Endata, Inc., Nashville, Tenn., gives Manatron the ability to market state of the art laser printing, bar encoding and microfilming services. This means that government can be more efficient in areas such as the processing and storage of property tax bills, voter records or other important documents. We will market this process to the public sector in areas served by our national sales offices," said Peat.

"Our financial condition is still solid as we balance investment for growth and maintain the financial strength we believe is important. Working capital of $4.5 million on July 31, was up from $4.2 million on April 30. Book value per share stood at $2.79, higher than today's stock price which we believe represents an opportunity for the long term investor," Peat said.

"As we are now into the second quarter, our confidence that we will continue to meet growth targets is strengthened," he concluded.

Manatron designs, markets, installs and maintains advanced computer based turnkey data processing systems for local governments, using its own specialized proprietary software and hardware from leading manufacturers.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Renault Vehicules Industriels S.A. (RVI) announced today that the shareholder class actions that had been brought challenging RVI's offer to acquire all of the common stock of Mack Trucks, Inc. (NASDAQ: MACK) not owned directly or indirectly by RVI have been settled.

RVI and the other defendants to these actions have entered into a memorandum of understanding setting forth the terms of a settlement of the litigation. The shareholder class actions had previously been consolidated for discovery and pre-trial purposes in the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania. The settlement is subject to consummation of the offer, final court approval of the settlement, and dismissal of the consolidation action with prejudice.

The offer is being made by ITM Acquisition Corp., an indirect wholly owned subsidiary of RVI. On Sept. 6, 1990, RVI announced that it had entered into an agreement with Mack to acquire all of the common stock of Mack not owned directly or indirectly by it at an offer price of $6.25 per share, net to the seller in cash.

BOSTON (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of directors of PaineWebber Independent Living Mortgage Fund, Inc., today announced the declaration of a dividend of $.25 per share of common stock, payable on Oct. 1, 1990, to shareholders of record at the close of business on Sept. 28, 1990. This dividend equates to a 10 percent annualized rate of return and is the fifth consecutive quarter for which this dividend will be paid.

PaineWebber Independent Living Mortgage Fund, Inc.'s objectives are to make first mortgage loans that will provide current income, preserve and protect capital, and to maximize dividends through participation in annual gross revenues and the appreciation of the real estate securing the loans. The loans will be secured by rental housing complexes designed for independent senior citizens.

The fund has invested in six participating mortgage loans and has approved a seventh loan for an additional property. The fund's portfolio of properties is performing ahead of schedule. Two existing properties, Crowne Pointe in Omaha, Neb., and Sedgwick Plaza, in Wichita, Kan., were acquired by Angeles Housing Concepts in March 1990 from the Heritage Corporation. Since acquisition, Angeles Housing marketing efforts have increased occupancy at Crowne Pointe from 95 percent to 100 percent plus a 6 percent wait list and at Sedgwick Plaza from 82 percent to 95 percent. Independence Villages in East Lansing, Mich., and in Winston-Salem, N.C., are in their lease-up phase and their leasing is currently on schedule with 78 and 68 leased units, respectively. Two Independence Villages are under construction in Peoria, Ill. and Raleigh, N.C. Pre-leasing activity has been excellent in Peoria with 33.5 percent pre-leased with an October opening scheduled. Raleigh is 16 percent pre-leased and is scheduled to open in December. Crowne Villa in Omaha is scheduled to begin construction soon.

John S. Moody, president of PaineWebber Properties, which acts as advisor to PaineWebber Independent Living Mortgage Fund, Inc., said: "After thorough research, we recognized a compelling demographic phenomena -- the aging of America -- and the need for quality senior rental housing at moderate prices. We elected to form our REIT to provide funding to the senior housing industry with the belief that this format would allow our clients to capitalize on the dynamic growth of this industry. Angeles Housing Concepts was chosen as the borrower and manager of the senior housing properties financed by the REIT because of their preeminence in the senior housing market and their experienced senior management team. PaineWebber Independent Living Mortgage Fund's performance confirms our convictions. We are very pleased with its performance."

IRVINE, CA (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Fidelity National Financial, Inc. (AMEX: FNF), a leading title insurance underwriter, today reported an 11 percent increase in net income.

For the quarter, net income was $1,850,000 or $.59 per share, as compared to $1,669,000 or $.50 per share, recorded for the comparable fiscal 1989 quarter. Revenues for the quarter were $46,863,000, up 3 percent from the $45,560,000 in revenues for the prior-year third quarter.

Net income for the nine months of 1990 increased 41 percent to $3,622,000 or $1.10 per share, versus $2,561,000, or $.72 per share, for the first nine months of fiscal 1989. Revenues for the nine-month period were $133,942,000, up 15 percent from the $116,639,000 recorded for the year earlier nine-month period.

William P. Foley, II, president and chief executive officer, said: "Third quarter earnings continued strong despite modest revenue growth in the latest quarter." Foley emphasized that Fidelity continued to focus on its direct operations, which accounted for $111,794,000 in revenues for the nine months ended July 31, 1990, up 19 percent over the $94,244,000 in the prior year's nine months. Similarly, Foley added, the company has continued to decrease the number of its independent agents and has concentrated on larger and more established agents.

The company's fourth quarter outlook remains positive despite a softening real estate market in some areas of California. Foley stated that strong markets in Northern California, the Central Valley region of California, Oregon and Texas should maintain overall company profitability.

ST. LOUIS (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - The U.S. Government has awarded Trans World Airlines an exclusive one-year contract, with a two-year extension option, to train all Air Force One B-747 pilots, TWA announced today.

Effective Oct. 1, the contract will include flight crew training at New York's Kennedy Airport. Air Force One pilots will complete TWA's standard 747 training course, which includes a 69-hour ground school course and 16 hours of simulator.

Besides having trained pilots on the former Air Force One B-707 during the late '60s and early '70s, TWA currently trains all E-4B (a military 747) pilots.

TWA's primary flight operations training facility is located in St. Louis with additional facilities in New York and Kansas City.

NEWPORT BEACH, CA (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - J.M. Peters Co. Inc. (AMEX: JMP) today reported second quarter financial results for the period ended Aug. 31, 1990.

For the second quarter, revenue from housing sales was $51.1 million, compared to the $56.6 million reported for the corresponding period of fiscal 1990.

The decline in revenues resulted in net loss for the second quarter of $451,000, or a loss of $.03 per share on 13,980,000 shares outstanding, compared to net income of $3.5 million, or $.25 per share on 13,980,000 shares outstanding, for the prior year's comparable period.

For fiscal 1991's second quarter, the company reported new orders (homes contracted for sale less cancellations), for 79 homes. At Aug. 31, 1990, the company's backlog was 197 homes valued at $79.0 million. For the same period of the prior year, the company recorded new orders for 322 homes, with a backlog consisting of 552 homes valued at $236.8 million.

The company's second quarter financial results are reflective of the continued downturn in sales for single family move-up market housing in most areas of Southern California. The company's fiscal 1991 second quarter results were also negatively impacted by increased finance and marketing costs on inventory homes and land in various stages of development.

Gross profit percentages on housing sales for the second quarter were 14.8 percent, versus 19.7 percent for the comparable period of fiscal 1990.

J.M. Peters Co. Inc. with total assets in excess of $565 million, is one of Southern California's premier builders of homes for the "move-up" market -- upper income buyers who have previously owned a principal residence. The company, which operates in Orange County, Calif., and adjacent counties, closed 775 homes in fiscal 1990.

DALLAS, (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Interphase Corporation (NASDAQ-NMS: INPH) today announced record revenues of $7,501,278 for the third quarter of fiscal 1990, ending July 31, 1990. Revenues were up from $7,184,331 for the previous quarter and $5,577,050 reported for the third quarter last year. Revenues for the first nine months of fiscal 1990 increased 38 percent to $19,945,105 compared to $14,418,041 for the same period last year.

The company incurred a net loss of $2,780,298 or $0.83 per share for the third quarter of 1990 as compared to a net profit of $117,375 or $0.03 per share in the same quarter of fiscal 1989. The company's net loss for the first nine months of 1990 was $3,999,813 as compared to a net profit of $223,300 for the first nine months of fiscal 1989. The loss in the third quarter is due to a combination of losses from consolidating the operations of OMNI Solutions, Inc. and a one-time write-off of assets associated with the decision to cease further operations at OMNI.

Interphase President Michael E. Cope stated, "As announced earlier this month, our third quarter figures reflect a one-time write-off of our investment in OMNI Solutions, Inc. Interphase core business remained profitable during this period, and we expect to report a profit for the fourth quarter, ending Oct. 31."

Interphase is a leading manufacturer of high performance network controllers, disk and tape controllers and SCSI host adapters for the VMEbus, EISA and Multibus markets, and the Sun Microsystems aftermarket.

WEST PALM BEACH, FL (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Dycom Industries, Inc. (NASDAQ: DYCO), today reported record operating results for the fourth quarter and fiscal year ended July 31, 1990.

Revenues for the fourth quarter increased to $39.9 million, compared with $24.2 million for the same period last year. Net income was $2.7 million, or $0.29 per share, compared with net income of $1.2 million, or $0.17 per share, a year earlier.

Revenues for the full fiscal year amounted to $166.7 million, a 39 percent increase over the $119.9 million revenue reported in fiscal 1989. Net income was $9.6 million, or $1.10 a share compared with the prior year's $5.6 million or $0.81 a share. These numbers reflect the 3-for-2 stock split which was effective Aug. 22, 1990.

Commenting on fourth quarter and year end results, Thomas R. Pledger, president and CEO said, "We are extremely pleased with fiscal 1990's record performance. We are now well positioned to capitalize on the rapid growth and expansion of markets in the fiber optics and telecommunications industries, and look forward to another year of continued growth and profitability."

Today, the company announced that its common stock will commence trading on the New York Stock Exchange under the symbol DY, beginning Sept. 24, 1990.

DEARBORN, MICH. (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Ford Motor Company (NYSE: F) has notified dealers that it has increased the manufacturer's suggested retail prices on its 1991 cars by an average of 1.9 percent over comparably equipped 1990 models, and the 1991 models introduced earlier this year.

"We have held down price increases on our new cars as much as possible, only partially recovering increasing costs, to give the best value to our customers " said Robert L. Rewey, vice president - North American Sales Operations. "We believe potential customers in this highly competitive market will recognize that many of our products are priced hundreds of dollars below the major competition.

"The early reaction to our 1991 models has been very good and we believe these highly competitive price positions will reinforce their outstanding overall value."

Prices are effective Sept. 17 for all 1991 cars except Ford Escort and Crown Victoria, and Mercury Tracer and Grand Marquis; price increases for these cars are effective Sept. 27.

FOSTER CITY, CA (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Applied Biosystems Inc. (ABI) (NASDAQ: ABIO) today announced plans to relocate its liquid chromatography components operation from New Jersey to California. As a result of costs related to this action, ABI expects to record a one-time pre-tax charge of approximately $5 million in its first quarter ending Sept. 28, 1990.

ABI expects the consolidation to be completed by early 1991. Management believes this consolidation will enable ABI to enhance its ability to support its customer base, more effectively coordinate new product development efforts and improve its overall cost structure.

The research and development, marketing, manufacturing, and support functions for liquid chromatography components located in Ramsey, N.J., will be merged with ABI's other bioseparations business in San Jose, Calif. The one-time charge is primarily due to severance costs and the relocation of certain employees and assets. The operation in New Jersey currently employs 113 people.

PINELLAS PARK, FL (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - The next generation of recycling systems was unveiled today when officials of Waste Management of North America Inc. (NYSE: WMX) formally dedicated the company's Suncoast Recycle America Center.

The plant, a processing center for recyclables, features a "super sorter" that separates recyclable materials faster and more efficiently than traditional manual methods.

The advanced sorting machine is called the BRINI classifier. The classifier is part of a waste recovery and recycling system that Waste Management Inc. owns.

"Built for the future" is how Rick Justice, Suncoast's general manager, describes the machine. "It gives us the flexibility to respond to the dynamics of the recycling industry. We can process a greater variety of materials, in larger quanities, and in less time."

Suncoast is the first facility of its kind in the country to employ the BRINI technology in its operation.

Suncoast is what's known in the recycling industry as a MRF. The acronym, pronounced "murf," stands for materials recovery facility. Papers, plastics, metals and glass recovered from household and business recycling programs are sorted at a MRF and prepared for shipment to manufacturers.

For most MRFs to work, any newspapers that are collected from residential programs must first be isolated from other recyclables. (To be marketable, used papers must follow a different "path" in the sorting process from glass, metals and plastics.) Normally, the papers must be separated either at the pickup point -- by the householder or the collector -- or by the workers at the processing center.

At Suncoast, the BRINI classifier eliminates this time-consuming step. The machine does it, instead.

RESTON, VA (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - The Rolls-Royce Turbomeca RTM322 helicopter engine has gained its U.K. military type approval certificate, allowing it to be used in the EH101 helicopter.

Type approval is a significant achievement in the RTM322 development program, proving that the Anglo-French engine meets all the certification requirements of the British Ministry of Defense.

More than 10,000 hours test running have been completed on RTM322 engines in Britain and France. Installation design work is now being undertaken by Rolls-Royce Turbomeca in preparation for engines to be fitted to PP4, the EH101 pre-production aircraft being used for engine integration work.

Rolls-Royce Turbomeca aims to obtain civil certification of the engine during 1991 as the next step towards RTM322 becoming the standard powerplant for all civilian and military EH101 customers, as well as the new NH90 military helicopter.

Rolls-Royce is a world leader in the design, development and manufacture of civil and military aviation, marine and industrial gas turbine engines.

IRVINE, CALIF. (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - PacTel Cellular has purchased an additional 35 percent ownership interest in the Athens, Ga. market area.

PacTel acquired the interest for $2.781 million from General Cellular Corp., which was the largest remaining minority shareholder in the Athens market.

Industry studies estimate the population of the Athens metropolitan statistical area (MSA) at 144,000.

The purchase increases PacTel's ownership share in the market to 85.09 percent. The company previously held a 50.01 percent ownership interest.

Don Harris, vice president for corporate development for Irvine- based PacTel Cellular, said the purchase helps bolster PacTel's position in the Georgia marketplace.

"The Athens and Atlanta areas are a good market for cellular. The purchase gave us the opportunity to consolidate our interest at an attractive price," Harris said.

In addition to owning a cellular system in neighboring Atlanta, PacTel Cellular also operates systems in Los Angeles, San Diego, San Francisco, San Jose, Sacramento and Detroit, serving some 450,000 customers.

The company is a wholly owned subsidiary of Pacific Telesis Group, a worldwide diversified telecommunications corporation based in San Francisco.

EAST HARTFORD, CT (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Pratt & Whitney is developing a new burner for its JT8D engine family which will enable airline operators to meet increasingly tougher environmental standards worldwide.

The advanced technology burner is expected to reduce oxides of nitrogen (NOx) by up to 25 percent of current JT8D levels, and hydrocarbons (HC) and carbon monoxide (CO) emissions each by up to 65 percent -- all well below the emissions levels standard set by the International Civil Aviation Organization (71-76.5 g/kN for NOx, 19.6 g/kN for HC and 118 g/kN for Co).

The burner will be a single annular design, replacing the nine can-annular configuration on the current JT8D and JT8D-200 models. It incorporates burner and fuel system technology used in Pratt & Whitney's higher bypass engines. The result is a more efficient combustion process, producing significantly less NOx, HC and CO emissions.

The annular design, with more than twice the number of burning zones as current JT8Ds, results in a quieter engine.

The advanced technology burner is scheduled to be certified by the Federal Aviation Administration in mid-1993.

The JT8D, legendary in the industry for its excellent reliability record, powers more than half the world's transports. More than 13,500 JT8Ds are in service with some 350 operators around the globe.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Philip Morris International today announced that it will supply the Russian Republic with the largest single export order in the company's history. A total of over 20 billion cigarettes will be shipped by year-end 1991. Shipments will commence by the end of September 1990.

Cigarettes produced for Russia will be manufactured in Philip Morris factories in the United States and in other manufacturing facilities around the world.

Philip Morris International also announced the signing of two protocols. One provides for the continuing supply of significant quantities of cigarettes to the Russian Republic for the period 1992 to 1995. The second provides for long-term cooperation with the state agencies of both the USSR and the Russian Republic in developing the Soviet cigarette industry.

Russian officials asked for Marlboro and other Philip Morris brands to satisfy consumer demand. Marlboro is the best-selling cigarette in the world and the most popular international brand in the Soviet Union.

"This export order continues our tradition of trade with the Soviet Union that first began almost 20 years ago," said Aleardo G. Buzzi, Philip Morris International's president and chief executive officer. "The Soviet Union is the third-largest cigarette market in the world, and we are pleased to help satisfy the Russian consumers' pent-up demand. We are delighted to extend our concrete assistance to the Soviet Union," he notes.

Philip Morris International accounts for nearly 60 percent of United States cigarette exports. All told, tobacco exports brought the United States $5 billion in 1989. For the first six months of 1990, total industry cigarette exports increased more than 14 percent. Philip Morris exports through August 1990 are up 20 percent. The 1990 and 1991 export orders and the protocols further assure Philip Morris International's future of continued growth.

Philip Morris International Inc. is a subsidiary of Philip Morris Companies Inc. (NYSE: MO) whose products are sold in more than 170 countries and territories. Philip Morris International exports cigarettes around the world. It manufactures and markets the company's products through affiliates and licensees in 57 countries and territories.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - At 3 p.m. (EDT) today, Dean S. Marriott, senior deputy comptroller for Bank Supervision, Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (OCC), declared First National Bank of Kennedale, Kennedale, Texas (Bank), insolvent.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. (FDIC) was appointed as receiver. The bank received a national bank charter on June 16, 1986. The bank operated no branch offices. As of July 31, the bank had total assets of approximately $26 million.

First National Bank of Kennedale became a concern to the OCC in 1989. Problems included poor quality loans, lack of timely and adequate problem loan identification, and poor underwriting standards. The bank did not comply with board resolutions adopted to resolve earlier problems, and as a result, a formal agreement was placed upon the bank by the OCC. The bank's condition continued to worsen, and full compliance with the formal agreement was never achieved. Deterioration in the local real estate market compounded the problems and worked against recovery efforts. Eventually, losses mounted and the bank's capital funds were exhausted, resulting in insolvency.

The FDIC is expected to release additional information later today.

ELMSFORD, N.Y. (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - The Magnetic Products Division of Fuji Photo Film U.S.A. (NASDAQ: FUJIY), Inc. announced today that it has been named the "Official Videotape of the National Football League." The announcement is part of a three-year, multi-faceted program with Fuji Tape and the National Football League.

Fuji is also the "Official Videotape" of the upcoming Super Bowls XXV, XXVI and XXVII, the AFC-NFC Pro Bowls 1991-93, along with the 28 individual NFL member clubs.

"The combination of videotape and football is a natural," said Stan Bauer, general manager of Fuji's magnetic products division. "Sporting events are the second most popular programming consumers tape off-the- air. This association with the NFL will strengthen Fuji brand loyalty more than ever.

"More than 75 million people watch NFL games each week," added Bauer. "When combining the best videotape with America's most-watched sport, you create an unbeatable marketing team."

Building on this association, Fuji will soon announce an array of consumer promotions and merchandising programs, including free-standing inserts and sweepstakes.

This partnership continues Fuji's long association with sports. Fuji currently sponsors tennis pros Stefan Edberg and Gabriela Sabatini and the U.S. Swimming Federation. Fuji was also the "Official Film" of the 1984 Los Angeles Olympics, the "Official Film" of the 1988 Paralympics in Seoul, Korea, and the "Official Film and Videotape" of Major League Baseball from 1985-1988 as well as the 1989 Pan Am Games for Physically Disabled Youth. In 1987, Fuji sponsored the America's Cup in Australia and the Second World Championships in track and field, held in Rome. Fuji was also the sponsor of the World Cup 1990 in Italy and "Official Film" of the 1990 Asian Games.

Fuji Photo Film U.S.A. Inc., is the U.S. marketing subsidiary of Fuji Photo Film Co., Ltd. of Tokyo, a leading manufacturer of imaging and information products. MISSISSAUGA, ONTARIO (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Battery Technologies Inc., (BTI) of Mississauga, Ontario took pleasure in announcing today the launch of a Canadian test marketing program for the revolutionary rechargeable alkaline manganese (RAM) battery. The initiation of this program is a direct result of the positive in-house testing conducted at BTI. The test market involves 300 test kits, containing AA batteries and chargers, and will now give the general public the opportunity to use RAM batteries for the first time. Families across Canada will use the batteries in all applications currently utilizing single use disposable batteries. This initial test market will begin this October and will be followed by a full scale consumer test marketing program scheduled for the second quarter of 1991.

In addition to consumer testing, BTI, in association with several outside companies, is also conducting tests utilizing RAM batteries in various original equipment applications. One such test uses "D" batteries in the new Bo-ox barbecue, which recently won gold and silver medals at the Paris International Fair of Inventors. RAM batteries may be the ideal battery for this innovative product because of the technologies ability to work at high temperatures, its' low self discharge rate and the cost and environmental benefits of being rechargeable. The new Bo-ox barbecue uses the "D" size batteries to power a micro air compressor which in turn allows the Bo-ox to light instantly, become hot in less than one minute, to cook food much faster than conventional barbecues and to be fueled by only two small pieces of wood.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Value Line, Inc. (NASDAQ: VALU) reported net income of $4,865,000 or $.49 per share as compared with a loss of $927,000 or $.09 per share in the corresponding period of the previous fiscal year.

Revenues of $16,088,000 for the three months ended July 31, 1990, were 3.1 percent above revenues recorded for the previous fiscal year. This increase is largely reflective of an increase in the Value Line Investment Survey's circulation level - a result of both increased new orders for the product and a higher renewal rate with respect to expiring subscriptions.

Jean B. Buttner, chairman and chief executive officer, said "I'm pleased to note, that despite substantially less than optimal market conditions, our first quarter's results indicate that fiscal 1991 is off to a good start. The Value Line Investment Survey, our flagship product, has performed well. Looking beyond the short-term, we are exploring opportunities for international expansion and developing products aimed at significantly increasing out penetration of the institutional markets."

HARRINGTON PARK, N.J. (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - United Water Resources (NYSE: UWR) will postpone the meeting at which shareholders will vote on the proposed purchase of the water operations and related assets of Pennsylvania Enterprises, Inc. (PEI) and its subsidiary, Pennsylvania Gas & Water Company (PG&W). The disclosure was made today by Donald L. Correll, United Water's vice president and chief financial officer, during hearings at the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission on the proposed acquisition.

Correll stated that the transaction is continuing to move forward, but said the nature and complexity of the agreement and the amount of disclosure requiring the review and clearance by the Securities and Exchange Commission have necessitated a change in the date for the shareholder meeting, originally scheduled for September 24. A new meeting date is likely to be in October or as soon as practicable thereafter, and will be announced at a future time, Correll said.

The proposed water acquisition is part of a transaction which also contemplates the merger of PEI into NUI Corporation (NUI). The Asset Purchase Agreement signed on April 23 provides for United Water's acquisition of the water operations and related assets of PEI for approximately $220 million, subject to adjustment for several factors, including among others, the level of expenditures associated with the construction program currently underway by PEI. United Water anticipates that it will require about $248.5 million to finance the acquisition.

In a related matter, United Water has been notified by the Federal Trade Commission of early termination of the waiting period under the Hart-Scott-Rodino Antitrust Improvements Act of 1976, which had been one of the prerequisites for the transaction.

The consummation of the transactions is conditioned upon receipt of regulatory approvals, satisfaction or waiver of the conditions of the PEI/NUI merger agreement, approval by shareholders of PEI, PG&W and United Water, and upon certain other conditions.

MOSCOW (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - While participating in a Presidential Business Development Mission in Moscow, Sea-Land chairman and chief executive officer Alex J. Mandl announced several new cooperative initiatives between the U.S.-based global ocean carrier and Soviet transportation authorities. The initiatives build upon protocols signed in May by Sea-Land and Soviet rail sea and air authorities, strengthening Sea-Land's partnership with the Soviet Union for transportation purposes.

As a result of these developments, Sea-Land will place personnel within the Soviet Union, have space on Soviet vessels available to it, and establish direct electronic communication between Sea-Land's Soviet agents and Sea-Land offices worldwide.

Mandl was part of a delegation of 15 CEOs from major U.S. corporations participating in a Presidential Business Development Mission to the U.S.S.R., led by Secretary of State James A. Baker III and Secretary of Commerce Robert A. Mosbacher. The mission's purpose was to demonstrate support of market economy Perestroika and President Bush's efforts to build a stronger, more active commercial relationship with the Soviet Union.

"Based on what I have learned on this visit, meeting with President Gorbachev and other top Soviet economic officials, and given the strong support of Commerce Secretary Mosbacher, Sea-Land is now prepared to move aggressively and concretely on a number of mutually beneficial Soviet ventures," Mandl said.

"Sea-Land/Soviet collaboration can help accelerate the pace of activity in world markets. Also, eventual improvements in the Soviet transportation infrastructure -- upgraded terminal facilities, communications and information linkages -- can provide important benefits to the U.S.S.R. and its ability to distribute foodstuffs, energy products and consumer goods domestically," he added.

Mandl said Sea-Land has successfully concluded Connecting Carrier Agreements with two of the major Soviet shipping companies: the Baltic Shipping Company, based in Leningrad, and Black Sea Shipping Company, headquartered in Odessa. The agreement with Baltic Shipping calls for Sea-Land to make use of space on Baltic's vessels sailing to/from points in North Europe and Leningrad. The agreement will enable Sea-Land to serve the Soviet market from Europe, the United States and other parts of the world.

Sea-Land Service Inc., a unit of CSX Corporation (NYSE: CSX), Richmond, Va., is a world leader in international intermodal freight transportation and related trade services. Sea-Land operates more than 60 container ships and 128,000 containers in the United States and foreign trade and serves 80 ports and 70 countries and territories.

FAIR LAWN, N.J. (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Warner Computer Systems, Inc. (NYSE: WCP) today announced revenues and net income for the quarter ended July 31, 1990.

For the three months ended July 31, 1990, the company realized record revenues of $11,861,273 as compared to $7,377,034 for the same period last year, and net income for the three months ended July 31, 1990, of $371,685 ($0.06 per share) as compared to $634,500 ($0.10 per share) for the comparable period in 1989. For the nine months ended July 31, 1990, the company's revenues increased to $34,078,899 as compared to $18,994,602 for the comparable period of the prior fiscal year. Net income for the nine months was $1,089,657 ($0.16 per share) compared to $1,577,636 ($0.24 per share) for the comparable period of the prior fiscal year. The increases in revenues, as well as costs and expenses, were principally attributed to the company's contract with the JUA and related subcontracting costs.

On Aug. 22, 1990, Warner announced that it had reached an agreement with the New Jersey Department of Insurance to act as a servicing carrier for the Market Transition Facility of New Jersey (MTF) for a three year period starting when the MTF replaces the JUA on Oct. 1, 1990. Under the provisions of the agreement, it is expected that the number of policies the company services will increase significantly from the current level due to the termination of one of the JUA servicing carriers and Warner's award of additional policies from that carrier. This new contract, including the servicing fee for the additional policies, may result in an additional $35 to $45 million in revenues over the three year period (including fees to Warner's claims subcontractor).

Warner Computer Systems, Inc., provides administrative and data processing services to insurance companies; data bases to the financial community and investors, and sales and maintenance of microcomputers to business and professional users.

STATE COLLEGE, PA. (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Richard E. Perry, chairman, president and chief executive officer of C-COR Electronics Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: CCBL), today announced that COMLUX has been merged into a wholly owned subsidiary of C-COR under the name C-COR/COMLUX Inc.

In an agreement dated Dec. 1, 1989, C-COR agreed to fund the development, by COMLUX, of digital fiber optic equipment for use in CATV systems. Under the terms of the agreement, C-COR has paid COMLUX $1,000,000 to fund the development project. On June 4, 1990, C-COR exercised the option to acquire all of the outstanding shares of COMLUX in exchange for a number of shares of C-COR common stock equal to approximately 4 percent of the outstanding shares of C-COR. On Sept. 13, 1990, the merger was completed. All principals of COMLUX will remain with C-COR/COMLUX Inc.

Commenting on the merger, Perry stated, "This is an exciting time for C-COR and the entire cable industry. C-COR/COMLUX Inc. will give customers the product reliability, quality and service for which C-COR is so well known, and the innovation and experience in digital fiber optics offered by COMLUX."

Added C-COR/COMLUX President Joe Hawkins, "We're excited to become a part of the C-COR team, and together, look forward to serving the total system needs of cable operators worldwide."

C-COR, founded over 35 years ago, designs and manufactures high quality electronic equipment used in cable television and data communication systems. C-COR's headquarters is in State College, Pa., with production facilities in Tipton and State College, Pa. C-COR Electronics Canada Inc., a subsidiary of C-COR Electronics Inc., is located in Ontario, Canada, and C-COR Europe B.V., C-COR's European marketing arm, is located in The Netherlands. C-COR's common stock is listed in the NASDAQ National Market System under the symbol CCBL.

COMLUX, founded in 1986, designs and manufactures fiber optic transmission systems and associated communications products. The company serves broadcast and cable television, research and industrial markets with high data-rate, digital systems for transmission of video, audio and data signals. BOHEMIA, NY (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Symbol Technologies, Inc. (NYSE: SBL), the leading supplier of portable bar code reading equipment, announced today that the company has entered into a definitive licensing agreement with Hand Held Products Inc. of Charlotte, N.C., a leading manufacturer of portable terminals and a long-time Symbol customer.

Under the agreement, Symbol has granted to Hand Held Products a license under certain Symbol patents to manufacture and sell a one-piece laser scanning battery-operated portable terminal for reading bar code symbols and collecting the encoded data. Symbol is presently producing and selling the scanning portion of the terminal to Hand Held Products.

The agreement calls for Symbol to receive a royalty of 7.5 percent of Hand Held Products sales of the licensed product. The agreement is non-transferable, and is similar to previous licenses on one-piece laser scanning terminals granted to Telxon Corporation and INTERMEC Corporation in previous years.

Symbol Technologies, Inc. is the world leader in bar code-based data capture systems with over one million scanners and terminals installed. The company designs, manufactures and markets bar code reading equipment, portable data terminals and radio frequency data communications products which are used as strategic building blocks in data collection systems for retail, military, manufacturing, distribution, health care and many other applications.

EAST HILLS, N.Y. (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Pall Corporation (AMEX: PLL) today reported completing its 19th consecutive record year in sales, orders and earnings.

Sales for the year ended July 28, 1990, were $564,498,000, up 13-1/2 percent over the previous year's $496,997,000. Orders for the year were $583,300,000, up 15-1/2 percent over the previous year's $505,900,000. Earnings per share grew 14 percent to $1.72 compared to last year's $1.51 per share. Sale for the fourth quarter were $168,613,000, up 17 percent over the same period last year. Orders were $165,050,000, up 18-1/2 percent over last year. Earnings were 66 cents per share, an increase of 6-1/2 percent, compared to last year's fourth quarter earnings of 62 cents per share.

In commenting on the results, Maurice G. Hardy, president and chief executive officer, said, "The low rate of earnings increase in the fourth quarter as compared to last year's fourth quarter was mainly due to new plant start-ups in Britain and to a higher effective tax rate in 1990. Present expectation for fiscal 1991 is for sales growth of over 15 percent with somewhat higher rate of increase in earnings.

"It should also be noted that adjusted for the 1989 payment in settlement of a patent infringement indemnity obligation (11 cents per share), and for the effect of hurricane damage in Puerto Rico on 1990 earnings (5 cents per share) earnings per share growth in 1990 over 1989 would be 9 percent rather than 14 percent."

TORRANCE, CALIF. (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - International Technology Corp. (NYSE: ITX) (IT) announced today the signing of a definitive agreement with MetaTRACE Inc. (MetaTRACE), a wholly owned subsidiary of TRC Companies Inc., to acquire certain assets of MetaTRACE's analytical laboratory located in St. Louis for $4,500,000 in cash. The acquisition, which is subject to certain conditions, including the completion of an environmental audit and survey, is expected to close by the end of the month.

MetaTRACE's laboratory performs analytical testing of hazardous and mixed waste substances. The laboratory facility encompasses 27,000 square feet of space, employs approximately 60 people and contains a complete range of analytical testing equipment. Although the laboratory was suspended by the United States Environmental Protection Agency (USEPA) from participation in its Contract Laboratory Program in March 1990, IT's ability to operate the laboratory is not impacted by this USEPA action.

"MetaTRACE's mid-western location is complementary to the geographical coverage of our existing laboratory network," said Murray H. Hutchison, chairman and chief executive officer. "This laboratory, combined with our mixed waste laboratories in Oak Ridge, Tenn. and Richland, Wash., positions IT to capture a significant share of the projected high growth mixed waste analytical market."

International Technology Corp., based in Torrance, is a leading environmental management company providing services to government and industry. The company's common stock is traded on the New York Stock Exchange under the symbol ITX.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - At 4 p.m. (EDT) today, Dean S. Marriott, senior deputy comptroller for Bank Supervision, Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (OCC), declared Western National Bank of Texas, Fort Worth, Texas (Bank), insolvent.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. (FDIC) was appointed as receiver. The bank received a national bank charter on Jan. 3, 1983. The bank operated no branch offices. As of July 31, the bank had total assets of approximately $36 million.

Western National Bank of Texas became a concern to the OCC in 1989. Problems were the result of inadequate supervision by management and board, poor credit administration and underwriting standards, and lack of problem loan identification. The board entered into a formal agreement with the OCC on Sept. 18, 1989, which addressed the problems. Full compliance was never achieved. Deterioration in the local economy compounded the problems and worked against recovery efforts. Eventually, losses mounted and the bank's capital funds were exhausted, resulting in insolvency.

The FDIC is expected to release additional information later today.

LONGWOOD, FL (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - US Sage, Inc., supplier of MainLan networking products for small and medium-sized businesses, has annnounced a 10 Mbps Ethernet adaptor card for networking IBM Personal System/1 (PS/1) computers. The new card, MainLan for PS/1, fits inside the PS/1 computer to enable linkage in either peer-to-peer or file server environments. Cards are compatible with MainLan's own operating system and with Novell.

"Many companies including IBM, are recognizing the potential of the PS/1 as a cost-effective networked computer and we are the first in the world to develop a network adaptor compact enough to fit into it. Users can now have a fully networked IBM office for an unbelievably low-cost, a fact which should interest corporate users as well as our traditional small- to medium-sized business users," says US Sage, Inc. President Alex DuBrow.

The compact size of the PS/1 results from Sage's use of its proprietary "ENZO" chip in the design. The ENZO chip is a dedicated chip designed to carry out network functions normally performed by several chips, thus reducing the amount of card "real estate" required for the chip.

MainLan for PS/1 is available as part of a complete starter pack or as a separate card. The starter pack includes two 10 Mbps Ethernet cards specially designed for the PS/1 and the MainLan's peer-to-peer operating system software. The cards are also Novell- compatible. The system is designed for ease of installation and use, high performance and low RAM overhead. It occupies only 30K for conventional PC workstations, or 15K in workstations utilizing EMS. The software also runs with MicroSoft Windows(R).

List price for a PS/1 starter pack is $499. In addition to two PS/1 Ethernet cards and MainLan NetBIOS compatible system software, the starter kit includes 16.5 feet of thin coaxial cable and a detailed manual.

Purchased separately, MainLan 8-bit PS/1 Ethernet cards with Novell drivers are $199 each. MainLan 3.12, peer-to-peer operating system software for unlimited use is $199.

Users wanting to network PS/1s in a file server environment may use the same cards with US Sage, Inc.'s MainLan 386 operating system. MainLan 386 is $599 for 2-4 users, $999 for 2-8 users and $1,499 for unlimited use.

US Sage Inc. unveiled MainLan for PS/1 during NetWorld on Sept. 11, in Dallas and will exhibit it at the COMDEX 1990 Fall Show, in Las Vegas, NV, Nov. 12-16. It will be available for shipping in October.

US Sage, Inc., established in 1989, is a Longwood, Fla.-based subsidiary of The Sage Group, plc, headquartered in Newcastle, England.

DALLAS (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Super Club today announced the completion of its new $115 million revolving credit and term loan facility. First City, Texas -- Super Club's lead bank in the United States -- acted as agent in syndicating the loan.

In making the announcement, Darrell Baldwin, president and CEO of Super Club said, "The proceeds of this increased credit facility will be used to consolidate the operating debt existing within Super Club's numerous acquisitions and provide funding for further expansion. It represents a major step in Super Club's overall strategic plan for developing financially strong and cohesive operations in North America because it will provide us with: greater flexibility in utilizing the borrowing capacities of each subsidiary; increased efficiency in our banking relations; and tighter, overall financial control. More specifically, we will continue to develop and expand our retail base -- and encourage the synergistic flow of resources among our audio and video experts that, among other things, has been responsible for launching our audio retail program...internally in Super Club's video retail stores and externally to Best Video's customers."

He added, "We enjoy a satisfying relationship with First City -- and take pride in working with their team of high-caliber professionals."

Super Club currently owns over 435 audio and video stores in 26 states. Its subsidiaries include Alfalfa/Movietime, Best Video, Movies At Home, Record Bar/Tracks, Turtles, and Video Towne Entertainment.

COLUMBIA, S.C. (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - SCANA Corporation (NYSE: SCG) announced today that at a special meeting held September 12, 1990, the common stockholders of Peoples Natural Gas Company of South Carolina ("Peoples") approved an Agreement and Plan of Merger with SCANA Corporation. The proposed merger was approved by approximately 82.3 percent of the 484,000 common shares of Peoples outstanding and entitled to vote. The merger is also subject to certain regulatory approvals and other conditions, including the transfer of operating authority for Peoples' gas utility properties by The Public Service Commission of South Carolina (PSC). A public hearing is scheduled to be held by the PSC on September 13, 1990.

On May 15, 1990, SCANA and Peoples signed a definitive Agreement and Plan of Merger under which Peoples would be acquired by SCANA through a tax-free exchange of common stock valued at approximately $19 million. Peoples, a regulated public utility headquartered in Florence, S.C., distributes natural gas to approximately 9,600 residential, commercial and industrial customers in Florence, Darlington, Hartsville, and Sumter, S.C. and surrounding areas. Peoples also has a wholly-owned subsidiary, Supertane Gas Company, that sells and distributed liquefied petroleum gas to approximately 4,200 customers in a seven-county area of the state.

Following consummation of the merger, the gas utility assets formerly owned by Peoples will be merged into SCANA and operated pursuant to an operating agreement with South Carolina Electric & Gas Company (SCE&G), SCANA's principal subsidiary. The acquisition of Peoples represents a strategic extension of SCANA's retail natural gas and propane businesses.

SCANA Corporation, headquartered in Columbia, S.C. is a diversified holding company with approximately 4,300 employees and annual revenues of approximately $1.1 billion. SCE&G, SCANA's principal subsidiary, is a regulated utility that serves approximately 441,000 electric and 205,000 retail natural gas customers in portions of South Carolina.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - WestAir's Atlantic Coast Division, which operates as United Express, today announced that it will increase its existing service from Washington's Dulles Airport to Stewart/Newburgh, N.Y.; Raleigh/Durham, N.C.; and Allentown/Bethlehem/Easton, Pa.

Additional service to all three cities will commence Oct. 15.

"Our expanded service to these three markets is directly attributable to strong community support for the United Express product. Our response, with additional frequency to Washington's Dulles Airport exemplifies the United Express commitment to each of the communities we serve," said Kerry Skeen, president of WestAir's Atlantic Coast Division.

United Express will add two additional daily roundtrips from Washington-Dulles to both Steward/Newburgh, N.Y. and Raleigh/Durham, N.C., for a total of six and eight daily roundtrips, respectively. In addition, service between Dulles and Allentown/Bethlehem/Easton will increase from four daily roundtrips to five. The increased service in all three markets will be scheduled for timely connections to and from United Airlines' flights at Washington-Dulles.

As a marketing partner with United Airlines, United Express offers it customers many United Airlines benefits, including worldwide reservations, advance seat selection and boarding passes. Members of United's popular Mileage Plus frequent flier program earn a minimum of 500 miles on all United Express flights, and senior citizens may participate in United's Silver Wings program which offers a variety of travel-related discounts.

WestAir's Atlantic Coast Division, which operates as United Express, began service from Washington-Dulles in December 1989, with 48 daily departures to six cities. Since that time, the division has tripled in size, currently serving 20 cities in seven states from Dulles. In addition to today's announcement, United Express previously announced that it will begin service between Binghamton, N.Y., and White Plains, N.Y., Sept. 14; and between Charlotte, N.C., and Washington-Dulles, Oct. 15. These additions, combined with today's announcement, will bring the total number of cities served from Washington-Dulles to 21, and total daily departures to 185.

WestAir, a subsidiary of WestAir Holding, Inc. (AMEX: WAH), operates as United Express and consists of two divisions -- the Atlantic Coast Division, with hub operations at Washington-Dulles, and the Pacific Coast Division, with hubs at Los Angeles; San Francisco; Portland, Ore.; Seattle, Wash.; Sacramento and Fresno, Calif. Headquartered in Fresno, WestAir Holding, Inc. is the largest regional airline company in the United States, operating over 850 daily flights to 64 cities in 14 states and the District of Columbia. In early 1989 the company was named "Regional Airline of the Year" by Air Transport World Magazine.

BRANCHBURG, NJ (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Metcalf & Eddy Companies Inc. (NASDAQ: METC) reported earnings today of 26 cents per share for the third quarter of 1990 compared to 30 cents per share for the third quarter of 1989. Earnings for the first nine months of 1990 of 89 cents per share were 10 percent higher than the comparable period of 1989.

Gross revenues in the third quarter were slightly lower than the comparable period in 1989 due to lower direct project expenses (costs which are passed through to the company's clients) primarily on the Peace Shield project in Saudi Arabia. Net revenues, which represent work the company performs directly, of $51 million were 25 percent higher than the comparable third quarter of 1989. Cost of sales as a percent of net revenues increased from 44 percent in the third quarter of 1989 to 48 percent in the third quarter of 1990, primarily due to changes in business mix. General and administrative expenses increased as a percent of net revenues from 36 percent for the third quarter of 1989 to 37 percent in the third quarter of 1990, reflecting increased labor-related costs and increased marketing, sales and project development expenditures.

Eckardt C. Beck, chairman, president and chief executive officer of Metcalf & Eddy Companies, noted that, "As we had anticipated in our second quarter earnings report, the municipal market, particularly in the Northeast, has experienced a slowdown. Economic conditions in that section of the country have placed pressure on governmental budgets and expenditures which in turn have resulted in project slowdowns and delays. Furthermore, the recent hostilities in the Middle East have impacted the company. Metcalf & Eddy Companies has a long history of involvement in the Middle East, including current work in Saudi Arabia, Egypt, the United Arab Emirates, and other countries. This includes the Peace Shield joint venture contract with the U.S. Air Force under which we have been providing oversight of the construction of defense infrastructure facilities for the Royal Saudi Air Force. We continue to monitor these events carefully."

Metcalf & Eddy Companies Inc., an Air & Water Technologies company (AMEX: AWT) provides a comprehensive range of environmental treatment services to governmental, commercial and industrial clients directed principally at the protection of the integrity of water resources. NEW YORK (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Scandinavian Airlines System (SAS) and Continental Airlines Holdings, Inc. (AMEX: CTA), today announced that they have completed a previously announced transaction making SAS the largest single shareholder of Continental Holdings.

SAS signed agreements on Aug. 9 to acquire Jet Capital Corporation, with its significant interest in Continental and to purchase 2.25 million shares of newly issued common stock from Continental.

As a result of today's transactions, SAS holds 16.8 percent of Continental's equity, up from 9.8 percent, and 18.4 percent of the voting stock, up from 6.5 percent.

The transaction was approved by the board of SAS and by Jet Capital's shareholders. It also cleared regulatory review by U.S. authorities.

Under the terms of the arrangements, Frank Lorenzo has sold his investments in Continental and stepped down as chairman and chief executive officer of the company. He will remain as a director.

Hollis L. Harris, formerly president of Delta Airlines, has become the new president and CEO of Continental and has joined the board.

Carl Pohlad, a long-time Continental director, has been elected chairman of the board and Robert Garrett as chairman of the executive committee.

When the agreements were signed the Continental board of directors invited Jan Carlzon, president and CEO of the SAS Group and a member of Continental's board, to assume the position of non-executive chairman of Continental.

"I have seriously considered the invitation," said Carlzon. "However, while I intend to continue contributing fully in my role as director, I cannot reconcile the additional time and responsibilities of chairmanship with my extensive duties in Scandinavia. I believe that in Carl Pohlad and Hollis Harris we have an excellent combination to guide Continental to a great future."

SAS will appoint a total of three directors to the 15-member Continental board. In addition to Carlzon, they are Lars Bergvall of Sweden, who is chief operating officer of SAS, and Roberto Mendoza of the United States, vice chairman of J.P. Morgan.

Carl Pohlad in a statement thanked Lorenzo for the 18 years service he had dedicated to Continental and wished him success in his new endeavors.

"The entire board is confident that Continental is poised for a new era of great success with its new shareholding and management structure, which has been welcomed by the financial community, employees, travel agents and the traveling public," said Pohlad.

ARLINGTON, VA. (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - USAir will officially open the new USAir Club on Concourse C at Charlotte/Douglas International Airport on Saturday, Sept. 15.

This new and expanded club replaces a smaller facility destroyed by Hurricane Hugo about a year ago.

The new club occupies 4,920 square feet, substantially larger than the former club. Charlotte Airport now has three separate USAir Clubs -- one each on B, C and D concourses, more than any other airport on the USAir system.

The new two-level, Concourse C club features three conference rooms, increased phone capacity, expanded reception and check-in areas, seating for 144 members departure screens, a larger bar area, facsimile machine, restrooms and two television sets. It is also designed for handicapped accessibility.

More than 4,000 local Charlotte-area residents are members of the USAir Club.

MINNETONKA, MN (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Advance Circuits, Inc., Minnetonka-based manufacturer of printed circuits, forecasted sales for its fiscal year ended Aug. 25, 1990, would be in excess of $88 million and net income of $1.42 to $1.47 per common share.

Thomas F. Leahy, chairman, indicated that the company was continuing to experience very high demand in order flow for its military division products but that recently demand for its commercial division products had somewhat softened.

He indicated that the company expected the first quarter of fiscal 1991 to be less than the first quarter of fiscal 1990, because 1990 included a $400,000 life insurance benefit and higher than customary first quarter demand.

The company's common stock is traded on the NASDAQ national market system under the symbol: ADVC.

PONTIAC, MI (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - First Federal Bancorp, Inc. (AMEX: FFB) of Pontiac, the holding company for First Federal Savings Bank and Trust (FFSBT) of Pontiac, reported a net loss of $33 million, or a loss of $9.15 per share for its fiscal year ended June 30, 1990, compared to net income of $3.5 million, or $0.95 per share for the previous fiscal year.

The announcement was made by Leo D. Ottoni, president and CEO of FFB. The loss resulted from provisions for loan losses of $23.5 million and the write-off of $8.7 million of goodwill, which no longer counts as capital pursuant to the Financial Institution Reform, Recovery and Enforcement Act of 1989, in addition to the $1.9 million of scheduled goodwill amortization.

For the fourth quarter of fiscal 1990, the net loss was $16.5 million, or $4.57 per share, compared to net income of $344,000 or $.09 per share in its previous fourth quarter.

The fourth-quarter loss included provision for loan losses of $15.8 million and an additional charge for goodwill expense of $1.2 million.

The large provision for loan losses which was recorded in the final two quarters of the fiscal year resulted from certain loan concerns identified by FFSBT and its regulators, the Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS) in its recently completed exam, and a desire by the OTS to have the bank significantly increase its general reserve for loan losses.

At June 30, 1990, total general reserves for loan losses were $13.5 million and specific reserves for loan loss were $4.7 million for a total of $18.2 million.

The level of loan loss reserves as a percentage of consumer and commercial loans approximates 5.5 percent, a level which exceeds industry standards. FFSBT plans to appeal the level of loan loss reserves required by the OTS.

During the fiscal year the company charged off all of the $9.3 million of remaining goodwill from its Florida subsidiary, Citizens Federal Savings Bank (CFSB). The goodwill write-off resulted from the changes in federal regulations which forced the elimination of certain goodwill from capital and management's decision, as previously announced, to sell CFSB.

Net interest income for the fiscal year decreased by $2.1 million, or 8.1 percent resulting from a planned reduction in total assets. For the fiscal year total assets were reduced to $1.27 billion at June 30, 1990, from $1.58 billion at June 30, 1989, a reduction of 19.7 percent.

Average interest earning assets were $1.36 billion for fiscal year 1990 compared to $1.45 billion for fiscal year 1989; a reduction of 6.2 percent. The reduced average interest earning assets were partially offset by an increase in the average interest rate spread to 1.88 percent for the current year from 1.81 percent for the prior year.

SHORT HILLS, N.J. (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - AT&T and Kokusai Denshin Denwa Ltd. (KDD), of Japan, will donate to the U.S. and Japanese scientific community a portion of TransPacific Cable-1, the first undersea cable system to span the Pacific.

The 26-year-old cable, which carried up to 138 simultaneous telephone conversations, was replaced in April 1989 by a fiber-optic cable with a capacity of 40,000 simultaneous calls. It continued to function as a backup system until last month.

The retired copper cable will be given to the Earthquake Research Institute of the University of Tokyo and the Incorporated Research Institute for Seismology (IRIS) in the United States on Nov. 1.

The two groups will use the 2,656-kilometer cable system the backbone of an undersea observation system to monitor acoustical waves, geomagnetism, water pressure and temperature, speed of water current, and other seismological factors. The cable had formerly been used to handle telephone traffic between Japan and Guam.

The system will make it possible for scientists to study the sea bed between the Philippine Plate and the Pacific Plate, where earthquakes occur frequently. It is expected to increase the accuracy of earthquake and tidal wave forecasting and to advance understanding of the inner structure of the earth.

AT&T Bell Laboratories scientists, who developed the cable, predict that the vacuum tubes in the system's underwater amplifiers will, after 25 years of telecommunications life, now have a scientific lifetime of 50 or even hundreds of years.

"This cable, which has served to bring the cultures and economies of the U.S. and Far East closer together, will continue to serve scientists in their search for fuller understanding of the scope and implications of the natural mysteries of our planet," said James Barrett, deputy director, AT&T International Communications Services.

At its retirement last month, TransPacific Cable-1, state-of-the-art technology in 1964, was still functioning reliably as part of an overall system from California to Japan. Its replacement digital optical system was built by AT&T and KDD for their international information service needs as well as those of a consortium of 20 additional owners.

SAN FRANCISCO (SEPT. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Visa International said it will bring together bankers from Canada, France, Norway, and the United Kingdom to share data on smart card programs at a special forum in London, Sept. 20-21.

The group, Visa International Integrated Circuit Card Users Group, was formed to provide a forum for Visa member financial institutions with smart or integrated circuit card programs to share information and address issues of common interest. Three group forums will be scheduled annually.

Smart cards contain imbedded computer micro chips for storage and manipulation of information such as a cardholder's account balance. In addition to point-of-sale-use, smart cards can be used in telephones or vending machines and other devices equipped to read the chip.

Visa International, with 230 million cardholders, is the world's largest consumer card payment system.

REDMOND, WASH. (SEPT. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - ECOVA Corp., an environmental cleanup firm which uses biotechnology, today announced its shareholders have approved a major recapitalization of the company.

The recapitilization was inititated in October 1989 and funded by a $3.5 million credit facility from ECOVA's primary investors. They are Cable & Howse Ventures of Bellevue, Wash.; the European conglomerate Italimprese; T. Rowe Price of Baltimore; and HLM Management Co. and John Hancock Venture Capital of Boston. Under terms of the recapitilization, the number of stockholders is reduced and ECOVA is now a private company.

Most of the recapitalization funds were made available to the company late last year as a loan. Since then, the funds have been used primarily to stengthen the company's balance sheet and support the continued commercialization of remediation technologies. The loan has now been converted to equity.

ECOVA gross revenues increased from $4.8 million in 1988 to $7.2 million in 1989, while 1990 revenues are projected to reach $8.0 million. Net service revenues (gross revenue less outside direct costs) have more than doubled in the first half of 1990 compared with the first six months of 1989. Staff reductions, attrition and overhead reduction measures have contributed to a dramatic improvement in net profitability. A loss of $5.3 million in 1989 has been reduced to a projected loss of less than $1.0 million this year. Rogers said he expects the company to move into the black next year.

ECOVA is internationally recognized for its development and application of "bioremediation," an innovative technology which uses naturally occurring micro-organisms to clean up hazardous wastes. The company is the industry leader in the application of the technology, having cleaned up more than 800,000 cubic yards of contaminated soil and millions of gallons of contaminated water since it was founded in 1986.

Locally, ECOVA is cleaning up the old Seattle marketing fuel terminal near Pier 70, the largest bioremediation project currently underway in this state. The company also is conducting remediation of more than 300,000 cubic yards of petroleum-contaminated soil at a California tank farm site, a project Rogers said may be the largest on-site bioremediation project ever conducted in the United States.
